Both Conventions Coming to Chicago

DEMOCRATS TO FOLLOW G. O. P. HERE ON JUNE 27

$200,000 Outright Gift Swings Deal.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The next President of the United States will be nominated in Chicago next summer, as the 1932 national convention of the Democratic as well as the Republican party will be held in that city.

The Democratic national committee voted today to hold the Democratic convention in Chicago, beginning on June 27. Last month the Republican national committee selected Chicago for the convention of its party beginning on June 14. Both conventions will be held at the new Chicago Stadium, 1800 West Madison street.

The conventions of both major political parties have not met in the same city since 1884, when Chicago was the scene of both the Republican and Democratic nominations.

Makes City Political Capital.

For nearly a month, Chicago will be the center of the politics of the nation. The period will be distinguished also by a preliminary opening of the Chicago Century of Progress exposition of 1933, in honor of the two national parties. During the Republican convention, there will be a Republican day for the display of the exposition to the visiting Republicans and during the Democratic convention, there will be a similar Democratic day.

For the privilege of being host to the Democratic convention, Chicago business interests will contribute $200,000 outright to the treasury of the Democratic national committee and, in addition, will furnish the convention hall rent free. In the case of the Republicans, Chicago has contracted to pay the expenses of their convention up to $150,000, with the understanding that any remainder above actual expenses shall be returned to the contributors.

Good Bargain for Democrats.

The expense of each convention, it is estimated, will be well under $90,000. In the case of the Democratic gathering, therefore, the Democrats will derive a profit of more than $110,000 from the transaction. In the case of the Republicans, the Chicago contributors will receive a "dividend" of $60,000. The late Fred W. Upham, veteran Chicago convention impresario, was wont to estimate the value of a Republican national convention to the railroads, hotels, theaters and stores at five millions of dollars, and of a Democratic convention at three millions. But that was in flush days.

$200,000 Bid Does It.

Chicago won on the first ballot, but not till Mr. Hurley had been compelled to cut the strings on his $150,000 offer and made it an outright gift to the committee and Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago had announced the raising of an additional $50,000.

The selection of Chicago signalized a defeat for the forces of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, leading aspirant to the Democratic nomination for President. The Roosevelt managers were beset by fears that Illinois is inimical to the governor and that a convention held in Chicago might easily be stampeded into choice of a rival contender.

Kansas City was the favorite of the Rooseveltians, but Kansas City had announced on Monday night it would not bid, being unable to raise the money.

Rooseveltians Get Busy.

Thereupon James Farley, chairman of the New York Democratic committee, telephoned Conrad Mann in Kansas City guaranteeing ninety-three votes, an overwhelming majority of the committee, if Kansas City would bid. He also promised to chip into the Kansas City fund with $50,000, raised in New York.

The Kansas City business interests thereupon raised $50,000 and promised Mr. Mann another $50,000 if he should get the convention. Thus, it fell out that Kansas City offered $150,000 today. San Francisco also offered $150,000, and Chicago's bid of the expenses up to $150,000 was recorded.

But Chairman John J. Raskob had frankly stated at the beginning of the proceedings that the convention was to be auctioned to the highest

PERFUMERY MAKERS SUE WALTER WINCHELL OVER RADIO REMARKS

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Three complaints, asking $500,000 each, were filed in the Supreme court today against Walter Winchell, columnist and radio talker, the American Tobacco company, sponsor of the "Lucky Strike hour," and the National Broadcasting company, in suits in which summonses had been filed some weeks ago.

The suits, brought by Prince Georges Matchabelli, his wife, Norina, and the Prince Matchabelli Perfumeries, Inc., are based on allegedly false statements concerning the prince, said to have been made in a broadcast over WEAF on Nov. 19.

The complaints allege that Prince Matchabelli is an expert in perfumeries and cosmetics and of "excellent, refined, and fastidious tastes," whereas in his broadcast Winchell said he had heard the prince was to be arrested as an agent of the soviet government and said the prince used to run a gambling house in Russia and was now "in the perfumery racket."

The complaints describe Winchell as a "professional scandalmonger" who, for a long period before the broadcast on which the suits are based, "aroused the interest of the public by his broadcasting of scandalous material concerning private lives and affairs of various persons."

LONDON PARLEY AGREES TO SPLIT BURMA AND INDIA

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Prime Minister MacDonald will close the round table conference on Burma Tuesday with a declaration which is expected to give a responsible, constitutional government to Burma and its 13,000,000 people.

The new constitution will not make Burma a dominion, but will give her a substantial measure of home rule, something like that enjoyed by Malta in the Mediterranean and considerably more than the rest of India now possesses.

It will provide, first, that Burma will be separated from India and will no longer bear what the Burmese call the humilation of sending a single delegate to represent her in the Indian legislative assembly. The new Burman government will have a two chambered legislature, but the governor, appointed by the British crown, will keep control of the army and foreign affairs.

Science Adds to Birth Peril, Doctor Says

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Science, through the use of anesthesia and surgical instruments, instead of making childbirth safer, is making it less safe by too much interference, Dr. Dorothy Reed Mendenhall, lecturer in the University of Wisconsin, declared yesterday. She addressed the conference on "The Government's Responsibility for Our Children," sponsored jointly by the Chicago Forum of the League of Women Voters and the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education which was held at the Congress hotel.

"Childbirth should be a natural physiological process," said Dr. Mendenhall. "Yet a questionnaire sent to hospitals by the White House conference yielded the information that one out of every four or five births is now an operative birth. Some doctors have a hurry complex. Some women, motivated by fear, desire a short, quick, and painless delivery.

Compares Foreign Figures.

"The result is, according to Dr. G. W. Kosmak, that there are about 30 per cent operative births in this country compared to from 3 to 4 per cent abroad."

Dr. Mendenhall is the wife of Charles E. Mendenhall, chairman of the physics department of the University of Wisconsin, and the mother of four children, one of whom is a senior in Yale university and one a freshman in Harvard university.

Although infant mortality in the United States has been cut in half in the last 20 years, maternal mortality remains stationary and high, eighth among countries of the civilized world, said Dr. Mendenhall, who attributed this fact largely to lack of prenatal care, abortions, and operative interference at birth.

Quoting statistics from medical authorities that 15,000 women die annually from abortions in the United States, Dr. Mendenhall said that this cause doubled the maternal death rate.

Increases Death Rate, She Says.

Not only does operative interference increase the maternity death rate, Dr. Mendenhall said, but it increases the infant death rate as well. She pointed out that deaths from injuries at birth were increasing, having doubled in Wisconsin in the last 20 years.

Dr. Mendenhall quoted a report of Miss Grace Abbott of the United States Children's bureau to the effect that the majority of abortions in this country are not among unmarried mothers, but married women who have had three or four children.

"As we make advance in science, the stress and strain of modern life increases," said Dr. Mendenhall. "Devitalized foods, hard work, hard play, all contribute to maternal mortality."

HUSBAND'S LOVING HUG BREAKS RIB, SO WIFE ASKS DIVORCE

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—"Judge, my husband, Clyde Conard, loved me so hard once that he broke one of my ribs in two places while hugging and kissing me."

Such was the tearful plea for a divorce made by Mrs. Marguerite Conard, in Judge Charles W. Hoffman's Court of Domestic Relations today.

The husband, Conard, admitted he had squeezed his wife a bit too hard but had meant no harm. Conard testified that his wife on one occasion had tied him to the bed one evening while he slept to keep him from "running around nights" with other young women.

4 Perfect Bridge Hands at Same Time and Table!

Osceola, Ia., Jan. 9.—[U. P.]—Mr. and Mrs. William Beard, Mrs. Frances McDonald, and Mrs. S. D. Monger were playing a friendly game of bridge. Mrs. McDonald bid seven spades. She held 13 spades, Mrs. Beard 13 diamonds, Mrs. Monger 13 hearts, and Mr. Beard 13 clubs. That's the story, anyhow, and they all agree to it.

Chicago Takes a Hand.

Si Braunstein and three companions in a bridge game forgot all about the furniture business last night when Braunstein picked up thirteen spades for a perfect hand and grand slam. The game was played in his room in the Maryland hotel. Those at the table with him were Morton Newlander and A. L. Gran, both of Detroit, and Meyer Robbin, of Los Angeles. They are attending the furniture convention here.

JAIL FOURTH IN HAWAII KIDNAP AND DEATH PLOT

Second Sailor Held as Massie's Aid.

The Honolulu Case

Secretary of the navy makes public the report of Rear Admiral Stirling on the rape of the wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, who, with his mother-in-law and two seamen, is now accused of the kidnaping and murder of one of Mrs. Massie's assailants. Story on page 6.

BULLETIN.

[Copyright: 1932: By United Press.]

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 9.—Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, New York and Washington society leader under arrest aboard the old warship Alton on charges of participating in the murder of Joe Kahahawai, young Hawaiian who allegedly attacked her daughter, collapsed tonight.

BY CLIFFORD GESSLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Jan. 9.—A fourth person was formally charged with first degree murder by Honolulu authorities today in connection with the kidnaping and shooting of Joseph Kahahawai, a Hawiian. The latest defendant is Al Jones, an enlisted man in the navy. He will probably be turned over to the naval authorities.

Jones was arrested yesterday. Police charge that he stood guard in front of the residence of Lieut. H. Massie while Kahahawai was being killed. He was also found to possess the magazine of an automatic pistol with one cartridge missing and a fake warrant believed to have been used in luring Kahahawai from the federal building to the death car.

Prisoners Aboard Warship.

The three other prisoners in the slaying—Mrs. Granville Fortescue, New York and Washington society leader, her son-in-law, Lieut. Massie, and E. J. Lord, an enlisted man—are prisoners aboard the old warship Alton. They are being held by the navy under a "gentleman's agreement." All are charged with the abduction and murder of the Hawaiian who was one of five men accused of raping the naval lieutenant's attractive young wife, Thalia, on Sept. 12.

The vengeance wreaked on the Hawaiian by the husband and mother of his victim, is described by the city attorney in Honolulu as having been done "for the honor of the navy."

Police Release Sailor.

D. E. Gilkey, an enlisted man, accused of renting the death car, was released today. He told police the automobile used by Massie and Mrs. Fortesque in the abduction and slaying had been stolen from him while he was intoxicated. His story was vouched for by his commanding officer.

The murder defendants were ordered to appear in court today for a preliminary hearing, but James Gilliland, both the city and county attorney, asked and was granted a week's continuance to gather evidence for the prosecution. The prosecutor will attempt to convict all four of the defendants of first degree murder, which carries a mandatory death sentence. The prisoners, including Mrs. Fortescue, will be kept aboard the Alton in the meantime.

A heavy marine guard was established over the warship tonight. Not even civil authorities were permitted to go aboard to question the trio. The three prisoners are quartered in a big suite just off the officers' mess hall.

Prisoners "Calm and Cool."

Officers of the ship described them as "calm, cool, comfortably settled and among friends." Their quarters include a sitting room, a lounge, card tables, books, and magazines, and three staterooms equipped with electric fans and showers.

Mrs. Massie is ashore with friends. She told newspaper men today that she "was sorry Kahahawai had been shot," and then quickly added, "but it was no more than he deserved."

Davis Resigns; Roosevelt to Philippines

(Pictures on Page 8.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Theodore Roosevelt of New York, son of the former President, and at present governor of Porto Rico, was named governor of the Philippine islands today by President Hoover following the resignation of Dwight F. Davis. The nomination of Col. Roosevelt went to the senate shortly after noon.

The effective date of the Davis resignation was left open to the President, but, it is understood, Col. Roosevelt will go to the Philippines within the next few months. Mr. Davis, whose wife is ill in Paris, expects to leave for the French capital within the near future. The governor general's decision to retire was made known to Mr. Hoover some weeks ago when he arrived from the orient.

Mentioned as Dawes' Successor.

It is considered possible he may be offered the post to be vacated on the retirement of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes at London.

Davis has been governor of the Philippines since 1929. Mr. Davis came to Washington as assistant secretary of war in 1923, entering the cabinet two years later. He served under President Coolidge until 1929 then accepted the governorship of the islands. President Hoover said he accepted the Davis resignation with the greatest reluctance.

"I presented my resignation to the President," Mr. Davis said upon emerging from the executive offices with Secretary of War Hurley. "It will take effect at the pleasure of the President."

Asked about reports that he might run for senator in Missouri, he recalled that he had been in public service for a quarter of a century and spiked the rumor, saying:

"There is nothing in it. I feel that I have served my turn for 25 years. Now I plan to get a little rest."

Roosevelt a War Veteran.

Col. Roosevelt has been in New York for the Christmas and New Year's holidays and arrived here this morning for a visit with his sister, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth.

Told of his nomination, he said:

"I am deeply grateful for the confidence the President has shown in me by nominating me for this very important position. I will do my level best to justify this by serving the United States and the Philippine people to the best of my ability."

Col. Roosevelt has been governor of Porto Rico since 1929 and is 44 years old. He was assistant secretary of the navy from 1921 to 1924, in the latter year being the Republican candidate for governor of New York, but was defeated. His war service included participation in practically all the offensive operations of the A. E. F.

ROBBER SHOOTS SELF IN HOLDUP; 2 PALS ESCAPE

A young bandit shot himself last night, probably fatally, while rifling a trunk as his victims and two accomplices looked on. His pals carried him outside, but abandoned him on a neighborhood porch and made their escape.

The wounded robber is John Panick, 19 years old, of 4334 Honoré street. Panick and two companions, all armed, entered the grocery of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Wilkovich at 1523 West 45th street. They forced the Wilkoviches into the rear living rooms. While his confederates covered the storekeepers, Panick broke open a trunk. He knelt alongside it and took out $360. As he handed the money to his pals the revolver in his right hand was discharged accidentally. The bullet entered his chest. He was taken to the Bridewell hospital.

YOUNG PLAN NO LONGER VALID, BRUENING SAYS

Cites World Bank Report to Allies.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—"The present situation makes it impossible for Germany to continue to make political payments. Any effort to keep up the system is bound to lead to disaster for Germany and the whole world."

In these words Chancellor Bruening announced today that Germany will refuse to continue to pay reparations. He will officially notify the allies of this decision at the reparations conference at Lausanne on Jan. 25. Bruening cited the recent report of the world bank experts who investigated Germany's capacity to pay to show that Germany is unable to continue payments.

Blames Panic on Reparations.

"The world's experts agreed that the present difficulties were brought about by the tribute payments made by Germany," he said. "Now it is up to the world powers to draw their conclusions from the report and act in accordance at Lausanne.

"The Basel report stressed the terrific depression in Germany. It told of the unprecedented measures taken by Germany to master the crisis and admitted that they were without parallel in modern legislation.

"The report showed also that the German measures alone are not sufficient but that, on the contrary, the disastrous situation in Germany is to a great extent responsible for the increasing financial paralysis from which the world is suffering. This makes joint action of the powers necessary, but that action must take place immediately. The report indicated what must be done."

Says Experts Meant Abolition.

The careful wording of the world bank experts' report, Bruening insisted, indicated that they recommended abolition of reparations payments.

"The report stated clearly that the conditions on which the Young plan was based originally have changed from the bottom up," he added, "and consequently the Young plan can no longer be valid.

"At the forthcoming conference at Lausanne we can only give the other nations the facts on the situation and ask them to draw their own conclusions. We shall urge them not to seek a new compromise, similar to the previous ones, which cannot be carried out. All that is needed is courage to wake up to reality and, as the world economic experts stated, not to allow politics to vitiate clear economic issues.

Says Nine Billion Has Been Paid.

"According to American figures, Germany has paid more than $9,000,000,000 in reparations. More than $5,000,000,000 has been paid to France. The reconstructed and devastated regions have cost us $3,000,000,000. There is no money left in Germany for reparations. It is up to the powers to draw conclusions at the Lausanne conference."

Chancellor Bruening conferred twice today with Adolf Hitler, leader of the Fascists, but a final decision on whether Hitler will consent to his party supporting a vote in the reichstag to extend President von Hindenburg's term in office for a year to avoid the expense of an election in May was postponed until next week. Hitler's Nationalist allies are still balking. The German People's party, the Economic party, the Center party, the Democrats, and other small parties have signified their determination to back Von Hindenburg.

FRANCE SHOUTS "NO!"

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 9.—Chancellor Bruening's declaration that Germany cannot continue to make reparations payments burst like a bombshell in the midst of the French political crisis. It was immediately pounced on by Finance Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin, who seized the occasion to voice the sentiments of the majority of the French people and at the same time to emerge from the political scramble as the man of the hour by uttering a thundering "No!"

"No Frenchman could accept a unilateral denunciation of engagements freely undertaken," he said. "If the Lausanne conference is going to be preceded by such a statement of bankruptcy, it is futile to hold the conference. No one can at the same time throw France's rights to the winds and ask her for help."

Since Flandin's stand is sure to be backed by the present Laval government or almost any new government that might succeed it, it looks as if Europe had reached an impasse. Unless some kind of compromise can shortly be reached the chances for the Lausanne conference accomplishing anything, or even being held, are being knocked for a row of cocked hats.

Efforts to reconcile the French and British points of view were resumed today with the arrival of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British treasury expert, who presented a new English memorandum. The memorandum renounces the radical program of the Bank of England regarding the cancellation of reparations, but holds firmly to the British view that the Hoover moratorium should be extended at least two years instead of only one, as demanded by the French.

Hand of Britain Revealed.

What neutralizes this is information obtained tonight from a good German source here that Bruening's declaration was really made at the instigation of the British government. According to this version, Britain is unable to continue shouldering the loss of $150,000,000 that the Hoover moratorium costs her and cancellation of reparations is therefore an indirect way of bringing pressure to bear on the American congress for revision of the whole debt chain, since the French claim the right to cease payments to America if reparations are stopped.

The political situation has been changed overnight by the Bruening statement. Whereas yesterday political observers regarded a collective resignation of the cabinet as a certainty, it now seems more likely that Premier Laval will only patch up the two holes in his lineup. These holes were caused by the death of War Minister Maginot and the resignation of Foreign Minister Briand. Laval, himself, is scheduled to assume the foreign ministry, and his present right hand man and undersecretary of state, Pierre Cathala, will probably succeed him as minister of the interior.

Will Bring in One Outsider.

Only one outsider will be brought in, either to replace Andre Tardieu as minister of agriculture if Tardieu moves over to the war ministry, or as minister of war if Tardieu elects to stay where he is.

The reason for the change of front is the feeling that a long crisis, during which the French state would be without an authoritative head, would be disastrous with the European situation being as it is. Even President Paul Doumer, who yesterday insisted that Laval throw in his ministerial hand and take a new deal, is now willing that he should continue with a makeshift cabinet during the emergency.

Berenger Cites 1926 Agreement.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—[U. P.]—Henri Berenger, framer of the Mellon-Berenger accord on the French debt to the United States, insisted today on the inseparability of reparations and French payments to the United States.

"The clause is not written into the debt agreement," he said, "but on April 22, 1926, I declared before the American debt commission that France's payments depended on Germany's. Mr. Hoover and Mr. Mellon were present and neither protested.

"If France's debtors do not pay, France finds her own capacity of payment modified, perhaps sufficiently to warrant suspension, in accordance with the provision allowing France the unconditional right to suspend for three years the annuities in excess of $20,000,000. Under the terms of my agreement, France receives annually $105,000,000 in excess of the payments due to the United States."

MACHADO FREES MENOCAL, CUBAN REVOLT LEADER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Jan. 9.—Mario G. Menocal, former president of Cuba, and Col. Carlos Mendieta, his right hand man, who have been prisoners since they attempted to bring about a revolution last August, were released from Cabanas prison today by order of President Machado.

The Cuban congress is scheduled to approve a general amnesty bill for all political prisoners.

Raoul, former President Menocal's son, and Martin, his nephew, were also freed today. Other prominent leaders of the August revolt, including Menocal's elder son, Mario Jr., were released by President Machado earlier in the week.

JAPANESE CLOSE BRITISH RAILWAY IN MANCHURIA

Tokio Army Advances Into Jehol Province.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, Jan. 9.—Announcement was made at Japanese military headquarters here today that the Japanese army will not permit resumption of traffic on the Sino-British owned Peiping-Mukden railway between Shanhaikwan and Chinchow.

This was closely followed by a Chinese allegation that the Japanese army has launched an extensive drive into Jehol province. The Chinese claim that some 3,000 Japanese troops which took part in the occupation of Chinchow are now advancing into Jehol over a branch railway extending northwest from Chinchow to the town of Pepiao, where important coal mines are located. Following this, it is said, the Japanese will continue their advance to Jehol City, also known as Chengtehfu, which is connected with Pepiao by motor roads.

See Menace to Peiping.

Jehol City is located northeast of Peiping, to which it is connected by another road about 125 miles long. According to the Chinese statement, the object of the present drive is to consolidate the Japanese military control of Manchuria's four provinces. The other three provinces, Fengtien, Kirin and Heilungkiang, have already been occupied by the Japanese.

Japanese military occupation of Jehol province and its provincial capital would place the military within easy striking distance of the former Chinese capital, Peiping, without the necessity of conducting military operations over railways in the Peiping-Tientsin district. Such military operations would be certain to provoke further international complications, due to the important interests of other powers, including Great Britain, the United States, France and Italy, all of which maintain garrisons at Peiping and Tientsin and patrol the Chinese railway extending from Peiping to the sea under the Boxer protocol of 1900.

"Bandit" Charge Made Again.

The Japanese military report this afternoon merely stated that the Japanese had closed transportation on the Peiping-Mukden railway between Chinchow and Shanhaikwan because of the presence of bandits and irregulars in that area.

The Chinese allegation said the town of Pepiao has been repeatedly bombed since the Japanese occupation of Chinchow. The Chinese also alleged that the Japanese had bombed and machine-gunned the Chinese Third Cavalry brigade, which is cut off along the Chinese railway between Tahushan and Tungliao, adjacent to Jehol's eastern boundary.

Report Advance on Harbin.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—[U. P.]—A dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, today said Japanese troops were advancing toward Harbin and had bombed a town 100 miles from the city.

The Japanese were reported to be advancing from Kirin. The dispatch said an airplane dropped two bombs on the town of Wuchang-Yushu.

Harbin is a key city on the soviet controlled Chinese Eastern railway. There is an important foreign population there. Rioting occurred in Harbin between Chinese and Russians earlier this week.

Japan Maps Reply.

TOKIO, Jan. 9.—[U. P.]—Japan will reply to Secretary of State Stimson's note on Manchuria by declaring she has no intention of infringing on China's sovereignty, the open door policy, or the Kellogg anti-war treaty, it was indicated tonight.

The note will insist, however, that China strictly observe and acknowledge the Chinese-Japanese treaties governing the rights of Japan in Manchuria.

It also will point out that Japanese military activities in the Chinchow region are nothing but an act of driving out bandits, a right reserved by Japan in accepting the resolution of the league of nations' council on Dec. 10.

Outlines Her Demands.

Japan maintains that she intends to abide by her obligations as a signatory to the nine power treaty, which upholds the sovereignty of China and the open door policy, giving all nations equal rights and advantages in China.

As to a settlement of the present incident, it is understood Japan adheres in the note to the following policy:

1. Japan will under take no measure that would violate the Kellogg treaty and does not intend to attempt any new agreement with China regarding a revised status in Manchuria.

2. What Japan wants is discontinuance of the organized anti-Japanese movement in China and strict observance and acknowledgment of existing Chinese-Japanese treaties.

Britain "Questions" Japan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Great Britain, while not associating itself with Secretary of State Stimson's note to Japan invoking the nine power treaty, today asked Tokio to confirm its promise that the open door in China will not be violated.

"The British government stands by the 'open door' policy for international trade in Manchuria, which was guaranteed by the nine power treaty at Washington," the statement said. "Since the recent events in Manchuria the Japanese representative at the league of nations council at Geneva stated on Oct. 3 that Japan was the champion in Manchuria of the principle of equal opportunity and the 'open door' policy for the economic activities of all nations. Further, on Dec. 28, the Japanese prime minister stated that Japan would adhere to the "open door" policy and would welcome all foreign participation and cooperation in Manchurian enterprises.

"In view of this statement it has not been considered necessary to address any formal note to the Japanese government on the lines of the American government's note, but the Japanese ambassador has been requested to obtain a confirmation of this assurance from his government."

BOMBING PLOT CONFESSED BY EX-UNION AGENT

Ben Stone, 46 years old, 1645 South Turner avenue, former business agent of the bakers' union, made a confession yesterday partly corroborating the statement of Joseph Siegel, professional bomber, who asserted Stone had hired him to place a bomb on the roof of Joseph Becker's bakery at 1502 South St. Louis avenue last Nov. 6.

While Stone would not admit actual payment of money to Siegel, he told Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks that he had knowledge of the attempted bombing. On other occasions, he said, he had hired Siegel to plant stench bombs in the bakery and slug Becker's nonunion employés. Following Siegel's arrest in the act of lighting the bomb, he had attempted to raise a defense fund for him, Stone added.

The ex-business agent denied that the union had any knowledge of or had given him authorization for his activities. He said he had quit as business agent seven months before terrorism was begun against Becker, and explained that he ordered the bombings and sluggings to impress union members that he was "tough" enough to swing the independents back into line. On the basis of his statement Maurice Kaufman, secretary of the union, and Jacob Grossman, former employé of the Becker bakery, were released from custody.

OFFICER POSES AS BROKER, NABS TWO AS FORGERS

Police Say Stock Ring Is Broken Up.

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—A city detective who posed as a shady broker, out to fleece the world, finished his impersonation today. He arrested two men and broke up what police and stock officials describe as a ring which has flooded the country with more than $1,500,000 worth of forged stock certificates.

The prisoners are Charles T. Morgan, 32 years old, alias Howard, and Arthur N. Plummer, 38, alias Norton. Two other men, Salvatore Giordano, 47, and Carmine Ucci, 55, both of Brooklyn, also are held. Morgan and Plummer it is charged, are members of the ring with whom the broker-posing detective negotiated to bring about their downfall.

Switched on Street.

Police said the ring, through agents, switched spurious stocks for genuine shares by stopping messengers on the street. The agents would ask to look at consignments, and then, unnoticed, switch forged stocks, for genuine ones.

As evidence, Police Commissioner Edward Mulrooney has 890 spurious stock certificates. How many similar certificates are held by unsuspecting victims is not known. Mulrooney and Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, were elated over the arrests.

Inauguration of the stock forgery scheme dates back many months. Every week complaints of spurious documents were received. All pertained to stocks bearing the name of the General Motors company. Mr. Whitney and brokers' association members complained formally to Commissioner Mulrooney. The latter assigned Lieut. Grover Brown, Detective George McNulty and three other detectives to the case.

Arranges to Buy Shares.

One of the detectives, suave and a fast talker, was nominated to pose as the shady broker. His name is withheld. He opened an office in Church street, and confided here and there he was not "particular" as to legitimacy of transactions. Finally Morgan appeared in his office. He said he had some General Motors stocks. They dickered for weeks. Last week the detective agreed to buy 1,800 shares to be delivered today at one-quarter the market price.

At noon today Morgan appeared. He had only 890 shares, he said. His partner, Plummer, who was in the corridor, would produce the balance, he promised. The decoy broker invited the men to a bank to draw the cash, and there, with other detectives, seized them.

Morgan and Plummer were charged with forgery. It is alleged the stock ring had virtually completed plans to flood the country with forged stocks of other companies, among them A. T. & T. and B. M. T.

FORMER EVANSVILLE OFFICER DIES.

PAUL P. LLEWELLYN TO FIGHT ALIMONY CHARGE OF EX-WIFE

MRS. LLEWELLYN.

Notice that alimony troubles of one of the city's oldest families would be aired in a court contest was filed in the Superior court yesterday. Those involved are Paul P. Llewellyn, son of the late Silas J. Llewellyn, steel magnate, and himself a former steel company executive, and his former wife, Mrs. Mary C. Llewellyn, of 1145 Thatcher road, River Forest. Mrs. Llewellyn is a noted horsewoman.

Notification of the impending fight was given in a counter petition submitted by Llewellyn, who now lives at Rectortown, Va., in answer to his wife's effort to have him cited for contempt on the charge that he is $3,000 in arrears in support and alimony payments.

Llewellyn charged that since their divorce eight years ago he has paid his wife about $17,000 for the support of his daughter, Mary Belle, now 15 years old. He asks an accounting for these funds and a modification of the decree under which he was ordered to pay his wife $900 a month alimony.

Llewellyn charged that his wife had dissipated her own fortune of $120,000 and asks that she be cited for contempt.

His own fortune, according to his bill, has been greatly reduced through business reverses.

BANDITS HOLD UP SCORE IN OFFICE; ONE HITS GIRL

Four bandits entered the Kaplan Auto park, a concern dealing in used automobile parts at 1812 South State street, yesterday afternoon, forced twenty customers, the manager and an office girl into a rear room of the office, and fled with $269 in cash, $530 in jewelery and the office revolver. One of the men became angered when Miss Lucille Morrow, 3110 Eastwood avenue, was slow in giving up her engagement ring and he struck her across the face with his hand. She fainted. As the bandits left they fired several shots into the ceiling warning their victims not to call the police.

Max Kaplan, 1914 South Lawndale avenue, the owner, lost $235 and a diamond ring valued at $400. Miss Morrow was robbed of a $40 wrist watch in addition to her ring. The bandits searched only three of the customers, obtaining $35 from them.

In a robbery of the Coöperative Cleaners & Dyers, 1838 West 21st street, a gunman forced Louis Waltoff 1509 South Karlov avenue, the manager, to open the office safe. The bandit escaped with a companion, who waited in an automobile, taking $200 in checks and $100 in currency.

DAWES ARRIVES WITH DENIAL OF ANY CANDIDACY

Terms Political Rumors "Damn Nonsense."

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, retiring ambassador to Great Britain, stepped off the train in Chicago yesterday morning and two minutes later dismissed reports about his potential candidacy for President with a characteristic Dawesesque phrase:

"It's all damn nonsense," he exclaimed with a pull on the famous underslung pipe. "There's nothing to it. I won't even discuss it."

He added with a grin: "I guess that takes care of that."

Choice of Mrs. McCormick.

The general's disclaimer was followed later in the day by an announcement from Ruth Hanna McCormick, in her Rockford paper, that she is for Dawes for the Republican presidential nomination. There is a dash of dramatic values—Mrs. McCormick is the daughter of the late Senator Mark Hanna, who made McKinley President in 1896, while in that same year Mr. Dawes had charge of the McKinley campaign in Illinois and Dawes became McKinley's controller of the currency.

Crowds of friends swarmed around Dawes in the train shed when he arrived with his brother, Rufus C. Dawes, and the latter's wife. Newspaper men laid down a barrage of questions and photographers were busy with flashlights.

"So this is the life of a private citizen," remarked the colorful diplomat. "And I was coming home to retire."

Silent on Statement.

The ambassador declined to comment on the announcement issued at Washington after the train was on its way that he would resign his position at London and retire to private life in Chicago. Similarly he dismissed questions about the Geneva conference on disarmament, for which he will sail Jan. 20, and about reports that war debts and reparations would form a great part of its agenda.

"I can't discuss it and I shall give out no interviews," he said.

The return of the ambassador and his declaration that when he gets through at Geneva and the court of St. James he will resume his old place as chairman of the board of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company was reflected on the stock exchange. Stock of the Dawes bank went up about 25 points.

Home to Care for Business.

Gen. Dawes made flat denial of rumors that he was returning to Chicago to head a merger of his banking house with another leading financial institution.

"There's nothing to it," he remarked, "I am coming home to take care of my business as every good American should do."

An hour after his arrival the ambassador was immersed in a conference in the Pure Oil building. He refused himself to callers with word that he had no elaboration to make of his statement in Washington, that he was in Chicago on business only, and would be here only a few days before returning to Washington.

Return Cheers G. O. P. Camp.

The return of the "Hell 'n Maria" general perceptibly chirked up local Republican leaders. Despite his declaration that the presidential talk is "all damn nonsense," many of the old party war horses began to snort around with expressed hopes that the ambassador might land on the party ticket somehow or somewhere.

The party leaders talked of him in connection with the presidential preferential primaries in April and in respect to the vice presidential nomination, remarking that as running mate for Hoover, whom they deem almost certain of renomination, he would pull more weight than Vice President Charles Curtis, who is seeking a renomination.

The governorship, too, was brought in as a matter of course, many of the politicians letting their imaginations ride on the possibilities of what a Republican state ticket might do if headed by Gen. Dawes. Efforts of the local organization leaders to bring out a strong Chicago candidate have not been productive thus far.

Seen as Aid to Tickets.

The White House has indicated it would like Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to run to strengthen the national ticket. Some of the Republican leaders yesterday had a small eruption of remarks that if Dawes could be brought out for governor it would strengthen the national, state, and local tickets in Illinois. But heaving sighs, they remarked the ambassador probably wouldn't care to run for governor after having been Vice President and ambassador to Britain.

In recent weeks indcations have been evident that the April primaries will see a battle between Hoover and anti-Hoover candidates to the national convention in June. It was reflected a few days ago by an utterance from Mrs. McCormick, who is former congresswoman at large, former Republican national committeeman, and nominee for senator in 1930, saying the nomination of a candidate for President is too important this time to be decided by the mere political habit of renominating a President for a second term.

Mrs. McCormick's editorial avowal for Gen. Dawes yesterday says: "Dawes is big enough, unselfish enough, imaginative enough, experienced enough. By his resignation he becomes no more the servant of President Hoover than any other good Republican or any other good American. He becomes a free agent, and as such he is subject to call. And that call is not from Chicago, or Illinois, or the Republican party—it is the voice of America's need."

Politicians declared that if Gen. Dawes were a candidate, which he denies, the situation in Illinois is almost made to order.

Back to Aid Fair, View.

As between politics and business, however, the prevailing conjecture expressed was that the reason for Gen. Dawes' resignation as ambassador is a desire to get back into the banking business and to help the Century of Progress exposition of 1933, one of the general's pets.

Rufus C. Dawes, the general's brother, is president of the world's fair. Before leaving for London nearly three years ago the ambassador personally put on a $10,000,000 drive in two days, and before leaving for England he announced his purpose of coming back from time to time to help the fair.

A sharp advance in the market price of stock of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company yesterday followed the surprise announcement of Gen. Dawes that he will return to his old position of chairman of the board. At the same time, a flat denial by Gen. Dawes put a quietus on rumors that the bank would merge with some other institution.

The flood of unfounded rumors has contributed to the steady decline in prices of Chicago bank stocks in recent months. On Friday the shares of Central Republic had sold as low as $82 and at the close of the day's trading they were quoted at 81 bid, 83 asked. But yesterday when trading opened there was a good demand for the stock and it was heavily traded in between 82 and 88. Offerings of stock were quickly cleaned up and the price jumped in successive moves up to sales at 105. At the close of trading at noon the shares were quoted at 104 bid, 109 asked.

One Boy Skater Drowned, His Companion Saved

Defy Police

The first fatality of the skating season occurred yesterday when two boys broke through thin ice in the Columbus park lagoon, where they had ventured in the face of a police guard and signs warning that the ice was unsafe. One boy was saved by a passerby who leaped into the icy water. The other was swept beneath the ice and drowned.

The dead youth was John Monaco, 12 years old, 1007 South Mayfield avenue. His body was recovered by police with grappling hooks an hour and a half after the accident. His companion, Jerome Reichstein, 11 years old, 1117 South Austin boulevard, was rescued by John W. Tobin, 68 years old, 5415 Van Buren street, a brother of Edward J. Tobin, county school superintendent. Tobin was thrown into the water with the boys when he ran out on the ice, which broke under his weight. Policeman Louis Zijicek pulled Tobin and the Reichstein boy to safety after Tobin had thrust an auto tire within reach of the boy. The lad was taken to the Frances Willard hospital and sent home after treatment for shock.

FOUR PERUVIAN LAWMAKERS TO FIGHT 2 DUELS

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Challenges to two duels were issued today as a result of disorders in the legislature last night during debate on the government's emergency bill for suppressing radical agitators.

The bill was passed today. The new law gives President Sanchez Cerro extraordinary powers to suppress any anti-government outbreak, including a strike called for next Monday.

Later Manuel Seoane, an Aprista, issued a duel challenge to Domingo Sotil, follower of President Sanchez Cerro, and Helio Dalmu, Decentralist, challenged Carlos M. Cox, an Aprista. The challenges grew out of personal remarks during the debate. Seconds were reported conferring today over locations for the duels.

G. O. P. LEADERS SPECULATING ON DAWES' PLANS

Wonder if He Will Seek Nomination.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The Washington political battleground was swept by cross currents today as the capital's officialdom and its political prophets sought to solve the riddle propounded by the sudden announcement of Charles Gates Dawes that he will resign as British ambassador.

The former Vice President's brusque dismissal at Chicago today of reports that he had designs on the White House failed to stem speculation as to whether the dynamic diplomat was preparing to grab the Republican presidential nomination from President Hoover.

Revives Hoover Opposition.

While friends of the President discounted all talk of a possible Dawes candidacy for the 1932 Republican nomination, the general impression seemed to be that the Dawes retirement has revivified the move to combat President Hoover's reëlection. In many quarters predictions were made that a move on the part of Dawes to enter the race for the nomination certainly would inspire other Republicans, hostile to President Hoover, to enter as favorite son candidates.

Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.] considered it unlikely that Ambassador Dawes had presidential ambitions at this time.

Committed to Hoover.

"I think he retired because he had had enough of the diplomatic game," he said. "Of course I am committed to support President Hoover and expect to do so." The senator in his final sentence had reference to his action today in filing in the New Hampshire primary as a delegate pledged to President Hoover.

Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] shared the opinion of Senator Moses that Mr. Dawes had retired because he had had enough of diplomacy.

White House Expresses Regret.

"The resignation of Ambassador Dawes was received with regret," it was said at the White House. "It was the subject of discussion between the President and the ambassador immediately upon his return to the United States last week. He has rendered outstanding service both in his capacity as ambassador and in his work in other international matters.

"The civic demands of his city were such as to make him desire to retire."

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS.

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors, and more power. The Whirlwind Mfg. Co., Dept. 834-A, Station C, Milwaukee, Wis., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make up to $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write them at once for sample and big money making offer.—Adv.

CASHIER SHOT IN PAPER PAY ROLL HOLDUP; 4 HELD

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Four suspects were held tonight in the $5,000 pay roll robbery of the Arkansas Gazette, in which J. E. Chapple, cashier, was shot and critically wounded.

Charles Pearce, linotype operator employed by the Gazette, his brother, Don Pearce of Pine Bluff, Ham Hart, a former Gazette linotype operator, and a Negro maid employed by Charles Pearce, were arrested. All denied knowledge of the robbery. Chapple and several others identified Pearce as the man who entered the business office behind a pay roll messenger and grappled with the cashier.

CHICAGO GETS CONVENTIONS OF BOTH PARTIES

bidder and when Atlantic City chipped in with a $200,000 offer all recognized that the ante had been raised. At the close of the presentation of the rival claims, Mayor Cermak announced the boost of Chicago's offer to $200,000 without strings.

Roosevelt Forces Retreat.

In the meantime Kansas City had learned that Mr. Farley could not deliver a fraction of the votes he had promised. The Rooseveltians then professed to have deserted Kansas City from fear of the presidential boom of former Senator Jim Reed of Missouri. Anti-Roosevelt leaders were jubilant, pronouncing the outcome a forecast of what they will do to the Roosevelt candidacy in the convention.

On the roll call Chicago received 58 votes, a bare majority; Kansas City, 19 votes; San Francisco, 20 votes, and Atlantic City, 4 votes. Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City promptly switched New Jersey's vote to Chicago, a flock of others followed, and upon numerous motions the choice of Chicago was made unanimous.

The committee then fixed the number of delegates at 1,154, which will be 54 more than in 1928. Under an apportionment submitted by former Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia each delegation will have at least as many delegates as in 1928. Eleven states are allowed 54 more than in 1928, this being the increase they would be entitled to under the 1930 congressional apportionment.

Dry Strategy Beaten.

Jed C. Adams of Texas strove to eliminate the provision for the increase of 54 delegates which, though Texas gains 6, would accrue largely to wet states and may be an important factor in the action of the convention on a prohibition plank. His amendment was overwhelmingly voted down. A threatened flareup over prohibition was averted by the adoption of a motion by former Gov. Byrd, in which Chairman Raskob acquiesced beforehand, to refer the Raskob home rule resolution to the convention resolutions committee.

A minor victory was scored by the Roosevelt men when Robert H. Jackson of New Hampshire was elected secretary of the committee to succeed the late Charles A. Greathouse of Indiana.

Chairman Raskob outlined financial requirements of the party, aggregating $1,500,000, of which $425,000 is needed to meet the deficit, $600,000 until the end of the convention, and $500,000 for preliminary expenses of the election canvass. The "minute men" have raised $500,000 so far.

Hurley Pleads City's Cause.

The principal statement on behalf of Chicago was made to the committee by Mr. Hurley.

He drew attention to the geographical advantages of Chicago which lies within one night's ride of 62 per cent of the delegates. He pledged in behalf of the Chicago Hotel association 14,000 modern hotel rooms in the loop at rates ranging from $1.50 to $4 a day. He cited special rates offered by railroads to bring the delegates to Chicago.

At this point Mr. Hurley caused to be held aloft a huge colored electrically lighted picture of the interior of Chicago's new Stadium

"We are very proud," he said, "of our new convention hall, built in 1929 of concrete and steel which actually has 21,000 permanent numbered seats, with space to add 4,000 more if necessary; and particularly do we remind you of its modern iced cooling system, which maintains a temperature of 70 degrees if we should have hot weather.

"The telephone, telegraph, teletype, broadcasting, television, and loud speaking system is most modern, and every word of the speakers can be heard in the most remote corner of the building."

Mrs. Fairbank Speaks.

Michael Igoe, Illinois national committeeman who had presented Mr. Hurley, then sent to the platform Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank.

"I am going to talk to you about politics," she said. "Illinois is not in the Democratic column yet, but Illinois will go Democratic if a sufficient number of Illinois Republicans vote the Democratic ticket.

"We must follow with the Democratic convention in Chicago. It will have a tremendous moral effect, on the strength of which we will carry the state in November."

Mayor Cermak followed with an analysis of the great strides made by the Democratic party in the recent elections in Illinois and Cook county.

"The Republicans selected Chicago for their convention city," he said, "for the purpose of getting Illinois back in the Republican column. We ask you to come to Chicago to keep the state in the Democratic column.

Answers City's Critics.

"I ask you not to believe half the lies you hear about Chicago. We can show you that we have the playground of the world. We have reorganized our police force and as a result we have less crime and fewer homicides than we have had in the last ten years. That's what I call cleaning up a city. Other cities may offer you more money, bue we offer you the opportunity of capturing a great state with a large electoral vote."

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank and catalogued as a presidential possibility, received tremendous applause as he came forward.

"We are looking forward," he said, "to great accomplishments by our party when it returns to power, looking forward to the return of the government to the people, to a return to simplicity, economy and plain living. Our mayor has told you that Illinois is going Democratic in November. I, too, say it is, but we ask you to assure it by sending our convention to Chicago."

Senator Lewis Closes.

The greatest demonstration of all was reserved for Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois when he was introduced to say the last word for Chicago.

"You are a practical people," he began. "You are here for a practical purpose, to secure the election of a Democratic candidate to put into effect Democratic principles.

"You have not only Illinois to look to, but surrounding states. There are, for example, three states to the west, of which if you carry two you will win the election. The same is true of the seven states of which Illinois is the center. There could be no more powerful argument for the selection of Chicago to promote our political prospects."

There is no such thing as a Smith-Raskob combine out to knife Gov. Roosevelt, Chairman John J. Raskob declared today.

"So long as I am chairman of this committee, everything in connection with the office is going to be conducted in the open and above board."

His statement was in answer to an article in the New York Times, saying that the "Smith-Raskob" group in the national committee had proposed to elect Thomas Taggart, new Democratic national committeeman from Indiana, and son of the late Senator Tom Taggart, secretary of the committee.

NATION'S CONFIDENCE IN CHICAGO PROVEN; CERMAK IS PLEASED

Cumberland, Md. [Enroute to Chicago], Jan. 9.—To THE TRIBUNE Chicago: The Democratic National committee has just voted to hold its party's convention in Chicago. The action of both of the great national parties in selecting our city is most gratifying proof that we have regained the confidence of the nation in the worth and greatness of our city.

I congratulate our citizens upon this achievement. A. J. CERMAK.

French Jobless Ordered to "Seize the Streets"

PARIS, Jan. 9.—[U.P.]—A movement among the unemployed to "seize the streets" next Tuesday, with a demand for a minimum dole of 45 cents a day, was started today by the communist newspaper Humanité.

3D CONVENTION MAY COME HERE; THE UNEMPLOYED

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The unemployed plan to send a delegation to the Republican national convention in Chicago next spring. Another group will go to the Democratic convention.

The Rev. James R. Cox, who returned yesterday from leading an army of unemployed to Washington, said a presidential candidate would be nominated by unemployed if no federal relief was forthcoming by next summer.

He added that if the unemployed were obliged to form a political party to obtain relief the convention would be held in Chicago. The priest, however, held high hopes for obtaining federal aid in the near future.

CHICAGO SCENE OF VIVID DAYS FOR DEMOCRATS

City Has Reputation for Making Party History.

The 1932 Democratic convention will be the fifth that the party has held in Chicago. In 1864, 1884, 1892, and 1896 the party's nominees were chosen and its platforms adopted here.

Grover Cleveland was the nominee in both 1884 and 1892 and was elected each time. It was, however, the convention of 1896 that furnished the greatest thrills.

A young westerner, barely of the age required by the constitution of a President, an advocate of free silver coinage, stood up in the old Coliseum on 63d street and made one of the most famous of American speeches.

"A Cross of Gold."

"You shall not press down upon the brow of labor a crown of thorns; you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold," thundered William Jennings Bryan.

It was a warm, even a hot afternoon. But the perspiring delegates cheered Bryan as no man had been cheered in a convention before. The next day he was nominated. When he made that great oratorical effort the Nebraskan wore an old alpaca coat and wrinkled trousers. He looked like a plain man and it was the common men, the debt burdened hosts of the west and south, who saw in him a hope for better things.

Drama of Speech Still Lives.

Bryan was defeated by William McKinley, but oldtimers still recall the intense drama of his speech. That burst of oratory is regarded by many as the greatest political coup in American history.

It could almost be said that excitement is typical of Democratic conventions. One of the reasons is the requirement that the successful candidate have two-thirds of all the delegates' votes to obtain the nomination. This tends to draw out the balloting to great lengths and to encourage the entrance of "native sons," favored candidates of single states in the hope of breaking deadlocks by sudden shifts to some one far back in the field.

The first Democratic convention was held in Baltimore on May 21, 1832. Andrew Jackson was nominated and later elected over Henry Clay.

Again Meet in Baltimore.

Again at Baltimore in 1836, the Democrats chose Martin Van Buren, who was Jackson's Vice President, to head their ticket. He, too, was successful in the election. In 1840 Van Buren was made the candidate of his party, but was overwhelmingly defeated by William Henry Harrison, who had John Tyler as his running mate on the Whig ticket.

Both Democratic and Whig conventions were held in Baltimore in 1844 and James K. Polk and Henry Clay were the nominees, and Polk, the Democrat, was elected.

Once more in Baltimore, in 1848, the Democrats chose Lewis Cass for President and he was beaten by the Whig nominee, Gen. Zachary Taylor of Louisiana. Franklin Pierce was the Democratic nominee in 1852 and he was elected over Winfield Scott, chosen by the Whigs.

Move to West in 1856.

The Democratic convention of 1856 was the first to be held west of the Alleghanies. At Cincinnati, James Buchanan of Pennsylvania was nominated on the seventeenth ballot. Both the Whig and the American, or Know-Nothing, parties chose Millard Fillmore as standard bearer. The Republican party appeared for the first time in a national election, nominating John C. Fremont. Buchanan was elected.

In 1860 the Democratic party convened in a stormy session at Charleston, S. C. Secession talk was rife and the delegates failed, after taking fifty-seven ballots in ten days, to make a nomination. Some of the southern delegates formed a rump convention under the chairmanship of Senator James A. Bayard of Delaware.

Neither faction finished its business. The regular convention was resumed in Baltimore nineteen days later and on the second ballot nominated Stephen A. Douglas for President. The bolters also met simultaneously in Baltimore and nominated John C. Breckenridge. Meanwhile, in the great Wigwam at Lake and Market streets in Chicago, the Republicans nominated Abraham Lincoln.

Hold War Convention Here.

The first Democratic convention held in Chicago, in 1864, nominated Gen. George B. McClellan. Lincoln was nominated for the second time at Baltimore.

The Democrats in 1868, assembled in New York, chose Horatio Seymore. He was defeated by Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, who had been picked by the Republicans in Chicago. At Baltimore in 1872 Horace Greeley was named by the Democrats. A liberal Republican convention in Cincinnati also named Greeley and the regular Republicans, at Philadelphia, again named Grant, who was reëlected.

Samuel J. Tilden of New York was nominated by the Democrats in a convention in St. Louis in 1876. He was counted out in a contest before an electoral commission appointed by congress, Rutherford B. Hayes, the Republican nominee, being declared President.

In 1880 the Democrats nominated Winfield S. Hancock at Cincinnati. He was defeated by James A. Garfield, who was assassinated while in office.

Both Meet Here in 1864.

Both the major party conventions were held in Chicago in 1884 and James G. Blaine, the Republican nominee, was beaten by Cleveland in the election. Cleveland was renominated at St. Louis in 1888, but lost to Benjamin Harrison. Chicago's good luck charm for Cleveland carried him back to office over President Harrison in 1892.

In 1896 Bryan had to contend not only with McKinley and the political genius of Mark Hanna, but also with a split party. Meeting in Indianapolis, a convention of gold Democrats picked John M. Palmer for President and Simon Bolivar Buckner for vice president.

The year 1900 found Bryan again a defeated nominee for President. The convention was held in Kansas City. In 1904, Alton B. Parker was the nominee chosen at St. Louis. He was beaten by Theodore Roosevelt. Bryan came back as a nominee in 1908 and was defeated by Taft. The Democratic convention was held in Denver that year.

In 1912, Woodrow Wilson was chosen at Baltimore, after a stern battle against Champ Clark, to lead the Democrats back to the White House. In 1916 President Wilson was renominated in St. Louis and defeated Charles E. Hughes. James R. Cox was the Democratic nominee chosen at San Francisco in 1920 and he was defeated by Warren G. Harding, who was nominated in Chicago.

John W. Davis was chosen in New York City to run against President Coolidge in 1924 and Houston, Tex., was the scene of the nomination of Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

Both party conventions are being held in the same city this year for the first time since 1884.

KANSAS CITY CLAIMS IT LOST CONVENTION BY MERE 20 MINUTES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Ike B. Dunlap, Kansas City business man, figures his town lost the 1932 Democratic convention by exactly 20 minutes.

Here's how he explained it:

"At 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, when word reached us Kansas City might have a chance, we hadn't raised enough money to make a bid," said Dunlap. "By 5 o'clock, poor as times are, we had raised $150,000.

"We rushed it here by airplane and train, arriving at 3 a. m. today and got busy for our side.

"Chicago's bid of $200,000 beat us.

"I figure since we raised $150,000 in one hour, if we'd had 20 minutes more to work before we left home, we'd have got that added $50,000."

CATHOLICS OPEN FIGHT IN COURTS ON MEXICAN LAW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 9.—The legal battle of the Catholic church against the law recently passed by congress limiting the number of priests in the federal district to one for every 50,000 inhabitants, or a total of twenty-five for the district, began today.

Thirty-one priests applied to the district courts for injunctions against enforcement of the law. The courts began turning down the applications as fast as they came in. Three hundred or more other priests have applications for injunctions ready to be presented next week.

Meanwhile, Catholic leaders began to organize a campaign to flood all the district courts with petitions from private citizens. These petitions will claim that the rights of the people are injured by the new religious law.

Catholic leaders said they expected to get at least 100,000 signatures, and perhaps as many as 300,000, including the names of many prominent persons in the federal district. The object is to impress on the courts that the will of the people should be respected, according to churchmen.

Beginning Monday, all petitions for injunctions which have been rejected by the district courts will be sent to the Supreme court as fast as they are turned down. Presumably these will include not only the petitions of the priests, but those of private individuals.

Meanwhile, the churches are closed to priests, since no church official may register with the government, as provided by the law, on orders of the Catholic authorities.

PRINCE, EX-KAISER'S GRANDSON, IS GUEST OF CHICAGO FRIENDS

PRINCE LOUIS FERDINAND.

Prince Louis Ferdinand, grandson of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, and son of the former crown prince, is in Chicago today as a guest of friends.

The prince is visiting Prof. Rudolph Deman, his former music teacher, and Mrs. Deman at the Pearson hotel. Mrs. Deman is Freida Leider of the Chicago Civic Opera company. Prince Louis has been employed for the last several years at Ford plants in California, South America, and Detroit.

He described America as a "wonderful country," and said he liked it extremely well.

JUDGE BORRELLI REVIEWS WAR ON HOODLUM GANG

Judge Francis Borrelli, of the Municipal court, ventured into the west side district of the "42" gang for the second time in recent weeks in a personal effort to help break up the young hoodlum bands. He has been threatened with death for his efforts.

With an investigator, he called at 919 Lytle street, to arrest Michael Palasine, 18 years old. According to Judge Borrelli, Palasine is a leader of one section of the gang, and is wanted for six burglaries.

Palasine evaded arrest by jumping from his bedroom window on the third floor to the roof of a building four feet away, and then sliding down the rain pipe. Meanwhile, Judge Borrelli telephoned for police. Sergts. George Maher and Frank Kehoe and their detective bureau squads, and Policemen William O'Donnell and John Seery of the Maxwell street station responded. Search of the building and the neighborhood failed to reveal the fugitive.

BARE ADMIRAL'S OFFICIAL REPORT ON RAPE CASE

Stirling's Statement to Navy Disclosed.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—The following report on the rape of Mrs. Thomas H. Massie was sent to the secretary of navy Dec. 23, 1931, by Rear Admiral Yates Stirling Jr., U. S. N. commandant of the 14th naval district:

On the evening of Sept. 12, 1931, the wife of a lieutenant [junior grade] in the navy, in company with her husband and two other service couples, went to the Ala Wai inn, a rather popular cafe on Kalakaua avenue, which is the main thoroughfare of the Waikiki district in the city of Honolulu.

At 11:30 p. m., becoming bored and tired of the party, the young wife [Mrs. Massie], who was not twenty years old, decided to take a walk. What followed is best told in the words of the woman herself when she testified on the witness stand as the complaining witness against five men on trial for rape:

Car Drives Up; Men Get Out.

"I walked toward Waikiki on Kalakaua boulevard and when I came to John Ena road, I turned down there. I walked to near the place where the road turns toward Fort Derussy. I intended to walk to the turn of the road and then return to the Ala Wai inn.

"There a car drove up beside me and two men got out. They seized me and struck me. They were Chang and Kahahawai. Kahahawai hit me. I screamed, but they dragged me into the car and held me on the seat. Kahahawai was on the right and Chang on the left.

"I tried to talk to them; to get them to let me go. They were holding me and every time I spoke they hit me. I told them my husband would pay them if they would let me go. I told them I had money in my pocketbook and would give it to them. Ahakuelo turned around and said, 'Take her pocketbook.'

Hitting and Holding Her.

"It was not very dark; there are street lights along there."

Q.—How did you recognize him? A.—He turned around several times. I saw him by the light of the street lights. I saw his gold tooth. He turned around to see what was going on. They were hitting me and holding me. Once he told Kahahawai to hit me again.

"I don't know what they did with the purse. I saw it next in the grand jury room.

"Ahakuelo was sitting at the right of Horace Ida who was driving. I noticed Ida wore a brown leather jacket. I saw his face when he turned half way around on the Ala Moana. There was not as much light there as on John Ena road, but enough so I could see his coat and face."

Struck Many Times.

"I was struck many times by Kahahawai's fist. I struggled and cried out every time he struck me."

"The car moved at about forty miles per hour. It turned off the Ala Moana and drove among trees and bushes on the side of the road away from the sea. It stopped among the bushes.

"The two men who were holding me dragged me out of the car. They were Chang and Kahahawai. They dragged me about twenty-five or thirty feet."

She then testified to the first assault. The first man was Chang, who had never let go of her. The others held her.

Says Kahahawai Attacked Her.

Q.—What happened them? A.—Kahahawai assaulted me.

Q.—How did you knew him? A.—He had been sitting next to me. I knew him by his short sleeved polo shirt. I prayed and I heard his voice. He told me to "shut up," and hit me in the jaw.

Mrs. Massie continued with descriptions of the assaults by Ida and Ahakuelo. No specific statement of assault by Takai was made, in fact she could not identify this man. She said Chang assaulted her twice. During this time she struggled so hard with her assailants that she was completely exhausted.

When the men had completed their attacks one pointed out the general direction of the road and they got into their car and left. Mrs. Massie made her way to the Ala Moana road, walked until she stopped a passing automobile, whose occupants took her to her home. She arrived home before her husband who was looking for her; she reported the assault to him. He immediately reported it to the police. The same day, Sept. 13, she was taken to the hospital.

Found to Be Pregnant.

The doctor's testimony of the injuries occupies a full page in the court record. She had a blackened eye, her nose was swollen and bleeding, her jaw was broken in two places, and she was bruised about her body from head to ankles. She later suffered infection from her broken jaw and ran a fever from 101 to 104 degrees for two weeks. She was found to be pregnant as the result of the assaults on her, and an operation was performed to relieve the condition.

At 12:45 a. m., Sept. 13, perhaps half an hour after the assault on Mrs. Massie, an automobile containing four men was in a near collision with a car containing a Mr. and Mrs. Peeples at a street intersection of the city. One of the men, later learned to be Kahahawai, left the car and approached the Peeples' car, "Let me get that damned hoale [white man]." Mrs. Peeples, a Hawaiian woman, alighted from her car and was knocked down when Kahahawai struck her in the face with his fist.

The Peeples succeeded in obtaining the license number of the other automobile and immediately reported the incident to the police. At 3 a. m. the car and driver were apprehended and taken to the police station. The other occupants of the car were eventually discovered and were placed under arrest later the same morning. That afternoon when the occupants of the car were taken before the woman who had been ravished, she immediately identified two of them as her assailants, namely Chang and Kahahawai, the two who had first seized her.

Men in Auto Named.

The men arrested and admittedly in the car at the time the rape occurred were:

Horace Ida and David Takai, Japanese; Benny Ahakuelo, and Joseph Kahahawai Jr., Hawaiian, and Henry Chang, Chinese. [The men are American citizens but of the extractions indicated.] Of these five men three had criminal records. Chang and Ahakuelo were indicted with the three others in 1929 for the rape of a Chinese girl. They were permitted to plead guilty to assault with intent to ravish and each of the five was sentenced to an indeterminate sentence of from four months to fifteen years. Each was released on parole after serving four months.

Chang is still at large on parole, subject to reconfinement until May 29, 1939. Ahakuelo, who is an athlete and local football hero, was, at the instigation of persons connected with the local amateur athletic union, granted a full discharge by the territorial governor on Feb. 25, 1931, in order that he might represent the territory in the national amateur boxing tournament held later in the year at Madison Square Garden, New York. He did, in fact, so represent the territory.

Sentenced for Robbery.

Kahahawai was tried last year on a charge of first degree robbery committed in September, 1930. His first trial resulted in a mistrial by reason of a jury disagreement. Instead of retrying the case a compromise plea of guilty to assault and battery was accepted and a thirty days' sentence imposed on Jan. 7, 1931.

As to Takai and Ida neither is known to have a criminal record. Ida had been living in Los Angeles for about five years and had returned to the territory shortly before the assault. Takai has two aliases and is without visible means of support.

The grand jury was unable to hear the testimony of the complaining witness until six weeks after the assault because of her physical condition, which was naturally aggravated by the merciless publicity to which the case was subjected. In the last part of October a true bill was returned by the grand jury charging the five men mentioned with rape.

Attempt to Hide Identity.

The naval commandant was informed of this case in the early morning of Sept. 13. From the beginning the commandant expressed his desire to assist the civil authorities in every possible way to bring the culprits to justice. Because of the atrociousness of the crime every effort was made to keep the identity of the victim from being disclosed. Only two newspapers, the Hawaii Hochi and the Nippu Jiji, both English-Japanese language newspapers, have ever published the name of the victim. The commandant had several conferences with the territorial governor and mutual coöperation was assured.

After the men had been indicted William H. Heen and William B. Pittman were announced as counsel for four of the defendants. Mr. Heen is a territorial senator and chairman of the judiciary committee of the senate. Mr. Pittman is a brother of United States Senator Key Pittman. These gentlemen are recognized as being among the foremost criminal lawyers of the territory.

It is understood that these two men are being paid fees of several thousand dollars each. The source of this money is not known, but it injected the first knowledge of an unknown, but apparently powerful — at least financially — influence supporting the defendants. The trial of the case began on Nov. 16 and continued for three weeks. The jury deliberated 97 hours before announcing there was no hope of an agreement on a verdict.

During the jury's deliberations it was once necessary for the presiding judge to go to the jury room to prevent physical combat between two jurymen. There is, of course, no authentic knowledge of exactly how the jury stood at the time of its discharge.

Deep Interest in Trial.

During the trial of the case all local newspapers, both English and Japanese, printed almost verbatim the testimony of the witnesses. Great crowds attended. No naval personnel in uniform attended the trial in order that all service interests might be suppressed and no opportunity given the defense counsel to comment on intimidation where none existed. The trial showed that the police department was divided against itself. Reports were made by police officers to defense attorneys instead of to the county attorney's office. The son and daughter of a present supervisor of the city and county testified in behalf of the defendants to assist in establishing an alibi.

A former supervisor of the city was a leading witness for the defense. This man was involved in a white slave affair during the present year, but the case, although it received some publicity, never came to trial. It is a matter of court record that in October this same man was accused before the Juvenile court by an 18 year old girl of pandering and by a 15 year old girl of committing what amounts to statutory rape.

Five Other Instances of Rape.

The newspaper publicity, the evidence of conflict in the police department and the injection of local political pressure into this case aroused great popular indignation and alarm on the part of the reputable citizens of the city. Between Sept. 12, and the completion of the trial, five cases of criminal assault or attempted criminal assault on women of mixed blood occurred in the community. One of these cases involved a policeman of the city of Honolulu and a 17 year old Japanese girl. The policeman was dismissed from the police force and appealed to the local civil service commission. The commission upheld the dismissal. There was no court trial in this case, nor in the other four, although one man was indicted.

Further evidence of the appalling conditions was a report of the city and county physician showing that forty cases of criminal assault were investigated by the physicians at the Honolulu emergency hospital in the first eleven months of this year.

Press Expresses Its Disgust.

This does not represent the total cases because many women, not desiring publicity, go to private hospitals and physicians after they have been assaulted or subjected to unsuccessful criminal attempts.

Immediately after the completion of the trial editorials expressing disgust with the situation existing in the territory appeared in all newspapers.

Since the mistrial the defendants have been at liberty on bail. Ahakuelo is a barefoot football star and each Sunday has appeared publicly in a game and the following day his name has appeared in headlines on sports pages of newspapers. The attitude of the defendants has been that they are the main actors in a spectacle put on for the benefit of the public. This is mentioned to indicate how the case has been played up and the emotions that were bound to follow.

On Saturday evening, Dec. 12, 1931, Ida, one of the defendants was seized on a street in Honolulu by about twenty unidentified men, forced into an automobile, driven out 10 miles to Pali where he was beaten up. Later he said he believed his abductors were navy men.

Navy Men Indignant.

The commandant does not desire to minimize the fact that there is a feeling of indignation among service personnel. The original crime of rape was committed against the wife of an officer. Before the trial there were widely circulated, filthy rumors said to have been started by the defendants to ruin the reputation of the woman so her story and identification would not be believed by a jury. The activity of the naval authorities in coöperating with the civil authorities in the investigation of this case was well known. This fact has had its reaction among certain elements of the local population and engendered a hostility toward naval personnel.

Feeling of Insecurity Arises.

"We have raped your women and will get some more."

Such a letter may be the act of one person only, but enlisted personnel might give it greater significance. Since the defendants have been at liberty during the whole affair, and because of the influence the mistrial will have on other rapists, a feeling of insecurity among naval personnel and their families is but natural. Better residential sections of the city are not patrolled by the police, who have shown themselves almost powerless to cope with the gangs of hoodlums which have increased since the termination of the pineapple season deprived many of employment.

The sheriff informed the commandant that because of court decisions he was unable to break up gangs unless they were detected in overt violence. On Dec. 7 the mine force and air force were scheduled to go to Hilo for a period of ten days on maneuvers. Realizing the feeling of insecurity which had been intensified by several occurrences which seemed to show hostility toward, and a desire for revenge against naval personnel, and in view of the request of the commander of mine craft, with the full consent and approval of the sheriff, extra navy shore patrols were put on duty in outlying districts for the protection of naval families.

Assaults on Navy Men.

After 9 p. m. Dec. 12, 1931, the time when Ida was seized, the Christmas shopping season was at its height and consequently there were many more people on the downtown streets than usual.

Between Dec. 12 and Dec. 18 there were six assaults made on enlisted personnel in the city. Three occurred on Dec. 13, one on Dec. 15, one on Dec. 16, and one on Dec. 18. The records of the naval shore patrol show that since March 25, 1931, there have been twenty-nine cases of assaults or robberies committed by civilians against naval personnel.

A typical case from a police report is as follows: On Dec. 15 a navy man inquired of a man where to find an address on Beretania street. The man offered to point out the way but after walking a short distance with him, struck him in the face, and another man, emerging from the shadow of a tree, also struck him. Two more men approached and the sailor, after striking the man who had first hit him, ran to a naval patrol and reported the affray. Police officers were called and arrested one man who asked to be permitted to go to a nearby house to get a shirt before he was taken to the police station. The permission was granted and the man disappeared. Later inquiry developed that he ran out by a back door, jumped a fense, and escaped.

Navy Man "Invariably Arrested."

The fact that almost invariably there is no arrest made when a civilian attacks or is in a fight with a naval man and whereas the navy man is invariably arrested, is only further evidence of the inefficiency of the police and their inability to cope with the gangster element of the city.

The police situation is intolerable, because the head of the department is an elected sheriff. He has now been in office for five consecutive years and the force is made up largely of appointees he has made from among his political henchmen. There is a growing demand from the public that he be removed.

In the last legislature there was a bill providing for an appointive chief of police, entirely divorced from any political party and who would hold the office on merit alone, but the bill failed to pass.

Commandant Urges Action.

The efforts of the commandant to provide for the safety of personnel, the proper disposition of the rape case discussed herein, and to correct moral conditions in general are set forth as follows:

On the day following the assault the commandant urged upon the mayor the necessity of quick and positive action. The governor was on another island at the time, but immediately upon his return he was asked to exert every means at his command to bring the criminals to justice.

Later the commandant conferred with the governor and the attorney general with a twofold purpose. First, although the commandant was aware that a public trial is guaranteed every person accused, the commandant felt that a public trial of five men of mixed blood for the rape of a white woman would be inimical to the public welfare, because of the race question, and would also be most harassing to the woman who had already suffered so greatly. The commandant recommended a trial behind closed doors, but the attorney general rendered the opinion that the trial would be illegal, so this effort was unsuccessful.

Charges Prosecution Was Weak.

Secondly, the commandant suggested that the best legal talent available be retained by the territory to prosecute this case. This was not done. As stated the defendants were represented by two of the leading criminal attorneys of the territory. The entire responsibility for the prosecution rested on the shoulders of an assistant or deputy district attorney. The district attorney, an elective officer, is partially deaf and as far as the commandant knows he has not handled the actual prosecution of a single case in a courtroom since his reëlection to office last year, 1930.

At the present time the commandant believes the most serious aspects of this case and the general situation are the inefficiency of the police due to the system of political appointments, the lack of a qualified man or men to conduct the prosecution, and that the persons of mixed blood who have been selected as jurymen in rape cases have shown such apathy toward the crime that a just verdict is doubtful.

New Trial May Start Soon.

The case cannot come to a retrial until early in January [this report was written last month] and the commandant understands each of the defendants will stand trial separately. In such an event, the trial may be in progress during part of the time the fleet is scheduled to be in Honolulu. Should the result be a mistrial or an acquittal of any of the four defendants identified by Mrs. Massie, it will be, for obvious reasons, inadvisable to send any number of enlisted men into the city of Honolulu on liberty unless at the same time a condition is maintained virtually amounting to military control of the city.

PHONE THREAT TO LOOP BUILDING IN CLEANERS' WAR

An anonymous threat to drive tenants out of the Capitol building, 159 North State street, unless two cleaners and dyers shops are evicted was telephoned to the renting agents yesterday. The two shops are sending their work to plants outside the city. A stench bomb was broken in the building Friday.

The Capitol building is the fourth loop structure to receive such threats within the last week. Capt. John Horan of the Central police posted a guard in the building. Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Duffiсy, in charge of the investigation for the racket bureau, said that any action must await the return to Chicago of Dr. B. M. Squires, arbitrator of the cleaning industry. He has been absent during the new outbreak of the cleaning war.

A general reduction in cleaning prices to offset the war against cut price cleaners has been suggested by Duffiсy. The price set by Squires, Duffiсy said, is too high.

met today to discuss the crime situation in Honolulu. A committee of five, representing citizens of Japanese, Philippine, Chinese, Hawaiian, and American descent, was appointed to confer with the attorney general, the mayor, governor, sheriff, and county attorney to offer all possible assistance to maintain order. Individual leaders assumed there was no evidence of racial trouble.

Honolulu Feels Tension.

HONOLULU, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Despite outward calm, Honolulu felt the tension of hysteria tonight as an outgrowth of two attacks on white women since Sept. 12 and this week-end's sensational climax to one of them—the arrest of a naval officer, his mother-in-law and a seaman on murder charges.

Various authorities took swift steps, meanwhile, to prevent any outburst. Regular army, military police, and naval patrols were augmented.

The army was reported ready to send troops from its fort, 22 miles out, in emergency.

The army and navy restricted all enlisted men to quarters.

City Attorney Gilliland announced Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie, and the two other navy men would be tried in the territorial courts and not by the navy as a result of an agreement made last August with naval authorities governing the disposal of cases involving men of the service.

[Copyright: 1932: By the United Press.]

HONOLULU, Jan. 9.—Assistant City Attorney Griffith Wight tonight expressed the belief that Joe Kahahawai, young Hawaiian kidnaped and killed here yesterday, was slain "for the honor of the navy."

Reports on Attack

Admiral Yates Stirling Jr.
[Acme Photo.]

"The killing was prearranged," Wight said, adding that he believed Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, took a leading part.

"I believe Mrs. Fortescue and Massie arranged for aid of the enlisted men," he continued. "They knew that Kahahawai, out on bail since the jury was deadlocked in his assault trial, reported at the courthouse every morning.

"Killed in Massie Home."

"Mrs. Fortescue admits being parked in front of the courthouse yesterday when Kahahawai was kidnaped. In my opinion, and I believe evidence will substantiate it, she was there for the purpose of pointing Kahahawai out to the enlisted men, who were in a sedan. When they abducted him she followed them in her motor car. The two cars went to the Massie home. There Kahahawai was killed.

"A cap which the victim wore was found there together with many other bloody articles. They put Kahahawai, fully clothed, into a bathtub full of water, then shot him. His wet clothes were found beside his sheet encased body in the Fortescue motor car when Mrs. Fortescue, Massie, and E. J. Lord, an enlisted man, were captured."

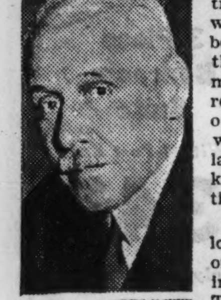
NAVY WILL BAR FLEET'S SAILORS FROM HONOLULU

Admiral Pratt Calls City Unsafe; Fears Riots.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—All shore leave for enlisted men at Honolulu following the February fleet concentration in Hawaiian waters has been canceled by the navy department as a direct result of civil disorders there, which culminated last night in the killing of a native Hawaiian.



ADMIRAL WILLIAM V. PRATT.

Immediately following the receipt of dispatches stating that Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and his mother-in-law Mrs. Granville Fortescue, had been arrested and accused of the murder of a native charged with raping the naval officer's wife, the orders canceling shore leave were issued.

Warns City Unsafe for Wives.

Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, also announced it would be unsafe for the wives of naval officers to go to Honolulu during the fleet's stay there from Feb. 11 to March 8.

All other phases of the joint army and navy maneuvers will be carried out as planned, a combined land force and warships attacking the island in mimic warfare, while naval vessels and army forces based on the island of Oahu defend its strong points. It had been planned to give the enlisted men five days' shore leave immediafter the maneuvers. Now the men will be sent ashore at another point.

Feeling in naval circles was high against officials of the island government today. The feeling here is that the failure of local authorities to maintain order and protect the wives of Americans from attack is responsible for the whole affair. Decision was reached to make public a detailed record of the whole controversy between the navy and island officials over the maintenance of order. This was done.

Admiral Gives His View.

Admiral Pratt, in a statement today, said:

"American men will not stand for the violation of their women under any circumstances. For this crime they have taken the law into their hands repeatedly when they felt that the law had failed to do justice.

"We are taking the present action forbidding shore leave at Honolulu because we believe it will be unsafe to send the fleet to anchor near Honolulu, for acts of violence which might result in bloodshed are almost certain to take place under present circumstances."

Now the men will be sent ashore at Lahaina Roads, 73 miles southeast of Honolulu, in the lee of the island of Maui.

Original Plan Scrapped.

The original navy department plan, scheduled over a year ago, contemplated that the battle force would anchor in the vicinity of Pearl Harbor, near Honolulu, Island of Oahu, following completion of its maneuvers, and would remain there until March 8. Then it was to sail for fleet problem No. 13, which is an attempt by the battle force to seize a foothold on the Pacific coast in the face of scouting force attacks.

Simultaneous with his order barring shore leave at Honolulu, Admiral Pratt laid before the public an account of a series of disorders in Honolulu designed to show that the killing of Joseph Kahahawai had been preceded by a reign of terror among the wives of the naval officers.

"Unsafe for Wives."

The Pratt exposure of island conditions was contained in an explanatory statement under his name and in a series of dispatches exchanged between the navy department and Rear Admiral Yates Stirling Jr., commandant of the fourth naval district with headquarters at Pearl Harbor.

"A retrial of defendants in the rape case is scheduled," Admiral Pratt said. "Meanwhile Rear Admiral George T. Pettingill, commander of minecraft at Honolulu, has advised Richard H. Leigh, commander of the battle force, that in view of the conditions existing the islands—forty similar cases have been reported there in the previous eleven months—it was not safe for wives of naval officers to come to Honolulu during the fleet's stay there."

Fine Wife of Ad Official $225 on Traffic Charges

Mrs. Earl Russell Palmer, 854 North Sheridan road, Highland Park, wife of an advertising executive, was fined $200 and costs for reckless driving and $25 for failing to give a pedestrian the right of way by Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter in Evanston yesterday. Mrs. Palmer's car struck Mrs. Edward J. Powers, 1525 Davis street, Evanston, causing a head injury, on Nov. 13. A $400 bond was posted by Mrs. Palmer to appeal the case.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, as they all set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime, no matter the size of the rupture, and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil. The Supermatic Shield-Complex (Patent No. 747,247, No. 1,237,709, and other patents pending) is a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Infinitely superior to any instrument method of operation, and produces results in no other way obtainable. All cases are secure a lifetime as against any further trouble or expense. Large or difficult cases or incisional rupture (following operations) specifically solicited. The instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, harmful injection, medical treatment or prescriptions, with distinguished personal patrons of all nations. *See booklet on "The Fallacy of Surgical Procedure." Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Capt. Allen Buchanan, former naval aide to President Hoover, will retire from navy service at his own request on Feb. 1. He has served 37 years. Capt. Buchanan now is on duty in the San Diego naval district. He was appointed aide to the President in 1929, holding that post for a year. The medal of honor was conferred upon him for courage and skill in the battle of Vera Cruz in 1914.

Watchman Badly Burned Trying to Put Out Fire

A. D. Stevenson, 40 years old, of 442 North Western avenue, a watchman, was seriously burned late last night in a fire which attacked the Kelly Cash and Package Carrier company, 422 North Western avenue. He was taken to the county hospital. Stevenson was burned when he tried to stamp out the blaze at the start. Division Marshal Anthony McDonald estimated the building damage at $3,000.

EVER A FIGHTER, MAJ. FORTESCUE STANDS BY WIFE

Seriously Ill; Unable to Leave New York.

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Maj. Granville Roland Fortescue, whose wife and son-in-law are under arrest in Hawaii on a charge of murdering a Hawaiian youth who was alleged to have raped Maj. Fortescue's daughter, is ill of pneumonia in the medical center here, it was learned today.

Members of the family reported that he was too ill to receive visitors, but that he was deeply concerned for his wife's welfare and planned to go to Honolulu to assist her as soon as he is sufficiently recovered. Maj. Fortescue went to the hospital yesterday, following a relapse. His condition is described as serious.

Always a Fighter.

The arrest of Mrs. Fortescue recalled here the stories of her husband's vigorous and dashing career. The major is about 57 years old now He closed his Bayport, L. I., home when Mrs. Fortescue went to Honolulu some time ago and since then has been living at the Army and Navy club.

He was known as "Rolly" Fortescue more than a quarter of a century ago when he was a first lieutenant in the Fourth cavalry. His stepfather was Robert B. Roosevelt, the uncle of President Roosevelt, and the lad grew up in a military atmosphere. He was with Roosevelt in the Rough Riders and when his former colonel went to the White House Rollt was attached to the White House military staff.

The legends about him began to grow when he was in Yale. Hazing was outlawed, but Rolly undertook to haze a Texan—and did it by firing a pistol into the headboard of the bed where the Texan was sleeping. The faculty heard about it and Fortescue left Yale.

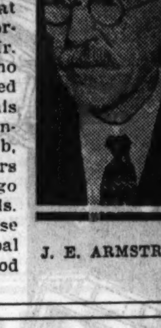
He wanted to go to the University of Pennsylvania and play football. He applied for a place on the team but the coach rejected him because he was too little to make a good tackle. Rolly tackled the coach and the coach went to the hospital for three days. Fortescue won a place on the team.

He joined the Cuban army before he could be graduated and left the Cubans to enlist with the Rough Riders. After that he went to the Philippines. He resigned from the army in 1905, but returned to the service in time to see action in France. He was wounded at Montfaucon.

He married Grace Hubbard Bell—the Mrs. Fortescue who is now under arrest in Honolulu—in 1910.

RETIRED PRINCIPAL TO GET SCHOLASTIC HONOR AFTER 51 YRS.

Fifty-one years after his graduation from the University of Illinois James E. Armstrong, 10638 Prospect avenue, is to be made a member of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity. The ceremonies are to be held at Urbana tomorrow evening. Mr. Armstrong, who is now retired and devotes his time to the Principals' club, served 44 years in the Chicago public schools. For 37 of these he was principal of the Englewood High school.



J. E. ARMSTRONG.

Police Seize 2 Suspects in Loan Association Holdup

Cragin police held two men last night for questioning in connection with the recent robbery of the St. James Building and Loan association, 5717 Fullerton avenue, in which $200 was taken and Policeman Marty Keane menaced. They are John De Biesic, 31 years old, of 533 North Artesian avenue, and Tom Capezio, 30, 4000 Washington boulevard. They denied any connection with the crime.

BUILD NAVY OR SINK, ADMIRAL TO SENATE GROUP

Shipping Industry Periled, He Declares.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Rear Admiral George H. Rock, chief of the bureau of construction and repair of the navy department, told the senate naval committee today that the basic shipping industry of the nation faces ruin unless a new warship construction program is authorized and vessels constructed according to an orderly program covering several years.

REAR ADMIRAL ROCK.

The revival of ship building under the Jones-White merchant marine act will be over before the end of the year, the naval officer stated, adding that if no new warships are authorized many of the big yards will have no work. Unless additional warships are authorized and contracts let soon, Admiral Rock said, the art of building warships will be largely lost by the private industry in this country.

Urges Orderly Program.

The naval officer said that an orderly ship building program is just as vital to the ship building industry as efficient ship yards are to the nation in event of a national emergency when many ships must be built quickly. Unless the basis shipping industry is maintained in time of peace, he said, the navy will have no place to turn to for new ships in event of war.

Admiral Rock took the stand a moment after the committee had been informed that the United States did not have a first class navy and in event of war would not be able to adequately defend its vast interests at home and overseas. Testimony to this effect was given by Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, chairman of the executive committee of the navy general board and one of the navy's keenest students of world affairs.

Would Help Idle, Too.

"We had a revival of the ship building industry after the passage of the merchant marine act in 1928," Admiral Rock said. "That expansion period is gradually declining as the work begun within the last three years has been completed. No new work is in sight. If the ship building industry is to be kept up it is necessary to supply warships.

"A new ship building program such as is contemplated in my bill to build up to treaty levels would be a help in relieving the unemployment situation."

The testimony of Rear Admiral Bristol contrasted sharply with a statement issued recently at the White House in which President Hoover said he had been assured the American army and navy were large enough for defense purposes.

IN COURT 4TH TIME ON DRY CHARGE.

East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Arraigned for the fourth time as a violator of the national prohibition law, Charles Pillow of East St. Louis pleaded guilty in federal court here and was sentenced to serve a year and a day in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas.

Dentist on Roof to Repair Radio Wire Killed by Fall

Dr. Milton S. Allen, 25 years old, a dentist, was killed last night when he fell off the roof of his two-story home at 6657 South Ashland avenue. He went upon the roof to repair a radio aerial. Near the edge he slipped on the icy footing, and toppled to the ground. He was taken to the Holy Cross hospital where he was pronounced dead. The body was taken to the Schroeder-Thompson mortuary, 6115 South Ashland avenue.

Fears He Killed Policeman, And Shoots Self to Death

Believing he had slain a policeman who had arrested him for liquor law violation, George Zakas, 40 years old, owner of the Pullman hotel, 10th avenue and Broadway, Gary, shot and killed himself last night. A squad of police headed by Cleo Edwards seized Zakas after finding a small quantity of liquor in his hotel. Zakas fired at the raiders. Edwards fell to the floor for protection. Zakas, thinking he had killed him, fled from his hotel and committed suicide.

HUNTER APPEALS FOR STATE FUNDS TO ASSIST NEEDY

Puts Responsibility Up to Legislature.

JOEL D. HUNTER.

An appeal to Gov. Emmerson and the general assembly for relief funds was made yesterday in an open letter to the state's chief executive and each member of the legislature by Joel D. Hunter, general superintendent of the United Charities of Chicago.

At least $30,000,000 will be needed in Cook county alone during 1932, says Mr. Hunter, and only about $5,000,000 is now available. He does not suggest specific legislation for obtaining the funds needed except the bill which would allow counties to use their share of the three cent gasoline tax for charitable purposes, if they choose.

Holds Situation Is Serious.

"In my twenty-five years experience in Chicago this is the first time that I have ever written an open letter to the governor and the members of the general assembly," Mr. Hunter begins. "Because of the present serious situation and because of information which comes to me as superintendent of the United Charities, it would be a dereliction of duty not to write this letter.

"The governor and the members of the general assembly have a responsibility to prevent hunger and starvation which cannot be sidestepped and cannot be placed on any one else's shoulders.

"It is my belief that about $30,000,000 will be needed for relief in Cook county alone in 1932. I have never been more serious and sincere in any statement than the following: There will be acute hunger, evictions and food riots, unless a large amount of money for relief is provided by the present session of the legislature.

Must Prevent Hunger.

"While political considerations are of secondary importance to you all, it seems to me that to provide money for the relief of citizens is the wisest political move you could make. I am certain that citizens of this state having incomes and transacting business would rather relieve their hungry neighbors and friends through taxation than to have many of them hungry and without shelter.

"I believe that certain types of taxes can be levied on those who are able to pay and that they must be levied. Just what these taxes should be is the responsibility of the legislature.

"The taxes provided must produce an immediate revenue—immediate because the present fund will be exhausted about March 1.

Contributions Not Sufficient.

"The need is great and it is impossible to obtain anything like $30,000,000 from private contributions. Both the rich and the employed workers of Chicago gave most generously this fall and probably will again next fall, but the total need cannot be met by philanthropic gifts. Most of it must be met out of taxes. It is very doubtful whether any federal aid will be given.

"I am not crying wolf when there is no wolf at the door. There is not only one wolf but there is a pack of them. Their names are hunger, starvation, eviction, and riot."

REALTY BOARD HITS INCOME TAX IN PRESENT FORM

Brittain Backs Bill Now in House.

Two views on the proposed state income tax were given yesterday. H. H. Haylett, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board, spoke for his organization in a statement opposing the current bill, while Joseph K. Brittain, chairman of the executive committee of the governor's tax conference, came out in support of it.

"The Chicago Real Estate board opposes a state income tax in the form of that which has been proposed," read the Haylett statement.

Asks Offset for Realty Taxes.

"Any income tax which does not permit an offset for property taxes is just another tax load on the shoulders of citizens who now bear the weight of the tax burden. Such additional tax at this time on the householders of Chicago would be a calamity, the extent of which in present circumstances cannot be foretold."

Mr. Brittain's statement was issued at a time when the income tax bill, a major plank in the platform of the tax conference, is in danger of being defeated by the votes of Chicagoans and other house members from the larger municipalities.

"Move to Restore Credit."

"The income bill now pending at Springfield," said Mr. Brittain, "was proposed by the governor's tax conference as one part of a program designed to restore public credit, to relieve real estate of disproportionate tax burdens, and to improve temporary financing in the local governmental crisis.

"The income tax bill is a first step to relieve real property from paying more than its share of the tax bill. There is only one way thus to relieve real property. That is by providing revenue from new sources. The income tax is one such source. With its companion bills it will reduce substantially the taxes now levied for schools in every part of the state, including Cook county."

THREE HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

Benton, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Guy Reed, 19, Elliott McReynolds, 19, both of Benton, and Gwendolyn Stover, 18, of West Frankfort, were seriously injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding struck a Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad switch engine near West Frankfort.

MISS BENNETT OF FILMS WILL ADOPT A BABY

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Constance Bennett, film actress, has taken steps to adopt a child known as Dennis Arthur Armstrong here. The papers in the case were sealed.

Before her marriage to Marquis Henri de la Falaise, her present husband, Miss Bennett brought an infant to this country from England in February, 1930. The child's name was given at Ellis island as Dennis Armstrong, and his age 1 year at that time. The child has been cared for by a nurse.

In the only interview she gave about the baby Miss Bennett said that his mother was living in England, but had consented to permit the child to be adopted to obtain greater advantages.

Dentist Leaps to Death from "Suicide Bridge"

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Pasadena's "Suicide bridge," high concrete span over Arroyo Seco, claimed another life today when Dr. Marlo Mock, 26 year old dentist, cast himself to the rocks 150 feet below while despondent over a quarrel with his wife, Fern Mock. Scores of men and women saw him leap. Mock's neck was broken when his body landed in an orange tree and fell from there to the canyon floor. More than 30 persons have taken their lives by leaping from the bridge.

How Modern Women Lose Pounds of Fat Swiftly—Safely

Gain Physical Vigor—Youthfulness With Clear Skin and Vivacious Eyes That Sparkle With Glorious Health

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes—in 4 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin is clearer—your eyes sparkle with glorious health—you feel younger in body—keener in mind. Kruschen will give any fat person a joyous surprise.

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts—the cost is trifling and it lasts 4 weeks. If even this first bottle doesn't convince you this is the easiest, safest and surest way to lose fat—if you don't feel a superb improvement in health—so gloriously energetic—vigorously alive—your money gladly returned.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drug store in the world.

WHEN Hard Times
COME A-KNOCKING
AT THE DOOR

Whether or not, as some people think, times are harder today than they ever have been, we are sure of one thing:

There have been ten business depressions since A & P was founded in 1859; and, with the rest of the country, A & P has come through all ten of them stronger and better. We believe we can do it again.

Our part, as we see it, is to keep on selling more food for less money—thus making it possible for more people to buy more food—in turn, keeping more food producers busy, and making more jobs all around.

And it works. For today, besides furnishing a steady market for many growers and producers, we are employing 5,763 more workers in our own company than we did in 1929, the most prosperous year this country has known.

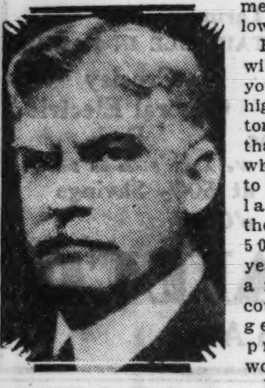
PLANNERS MAKE CHICAGO A CITY OF TRUE DREAMS

They're Good Medicine for Low Spirits.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

A visit on any afternoon except Sunday to the Chicago Plan commission is good medicine for low spirits. For it will show you in a highly pictorial way that a city which adds to its population at the rate of 50,000 a year has, as a matter of course, urgent and profitable work to do. It will cheer you with such elemental facts that grain will continue to grow and be eaten, that cattle will continue to multiply and be butchered, and that the greatest grain and cattle market in the world will not suspend business as long as mankind retains its appetite.



ERNEST R. GRAHAM.

It will show you that the fifty million people who dwell within a night's ride of Chicago are perforce going to continue to be customers of the city which is their natural commercial capital, and that we, from bellboys to bankers, can continue to make an honest living by dealing honestly with them.

Not a City of Whimperers.

It will show you that the real Chicago of today is not a Chicago of whimpering and lethargy but a Chicago which, having done great work, inevitably has greater work to do.

The commission's headquarters are an exposition of values created during the last two decades that do not now have to be deflated.

Take the North Michigan avenue improvement—formulated by the Chicago Plan commission—as a specific instance of the profit in a piece of work when Chicago bends to its tasks with good will and intelligence. That improvement cost sixteen millions, of which half was paid by the city and half by a special assessment on the property owners in the district benefited.

Dazzling Gains.

Within three years after the completion of the improvement in 1920 the increase in property values in the district was one hundred millions, and when this increase is equitably placed on the tax books it will mean an increase of four millions a year in the city's revenue—an increase equaling in two years what the city spent on the improvement.

In addition to that increase of one hundred millions in property values in the assessed district there was erected in that district within three years after the completion of the improvement one hundred million dollars' worth of new buildings.

Furthermore: For every dollar of special assessment which the property owners in the district had to pay, their property increased in value $13 in three years. In recent months those huge increments have, like other values, been reduced by the general depression but they are so fundamental, and the district affected is so much a part of the future of the real Chicago, that their recovery is inevitable.

Dreaming to Some Purpose.

And yet there were official persons in this community twenty years ago who felt that they had said something withering and conclusive when they called the members of the plan commission "dreamers." Perhaps they were—and are. But they dream to some purpose.

Ernest R. Graham, an architect of national fame, who, like all the other members, serves the commission without fee, puts it thus concerning these dreamers:

"Chicago is fortunate in having a plan commission that is vigilant, fearless, farsighted, nonpolitical, and nonsectional, and which has at heart only the best interests of the city.

"To these men and their predecessors Chicago owes the magnificent public improvements that have been accomplished in the last two decades.

"They have dreamed, but their dreams were of the kind that could be expressed in exact blue prints and then in steel and stone.

"They have time and again proved to this community and to communities as far away as Australia that there is nothing of greater value to a city than a comprehensive plan, for city planning is order, harmony, economy, convenience, and beauty.

Assets Spiritual and Assets Practical.

"All those attributes are assets in two senses. They mean spiritual victories and practical gains.

"In a word, the development of all large cities is determined more by a comprehensive plan than by any other one factor which makes for the welfare of the citizens of a community."

Mr. Graham is the architect who, among other colossal structures, designed the Field museum, the Civic Opera house, the Merchandise Mart, and the Field stores in Chicago, the terminal in Cleveland, and, in Washington, the municipal postoffice and the Union station, the passenger concourse of the station being one of the largest rooms in the world under one roof: so large, in fact, that 50,000 troops could stand in it at parade rest. His latest dream is the proposal and plans for a 26 million dollar terminal at Randolph street which can be erected without adding a dollar to the taxes of the people of Chicago, and without the expenditure of a dollar of public money, and the construction of which will provide twelve million dollars' worth of employment.

That project, together with the plans and estimates for its accomplishment, is dreamer Graham's gift to the plan commission which, in turn, presents it to the people. Its details were published in THE TRIBUNE a week ago yesterday.

A Fruitful Visit.

But about that cheering visit to the plan commission.

It will be fruitful because in good times and bad the Chicago Plan commission serenely goes on with its work.

It adjusts its expenditures to suit the times, but it is never idle or disheartened and it never loses sight of its goal.

Its sane methods, its tenacity, patience and tact are a lesson to the community which for 22 years it has greatly served. It has lived through a war and through the costly aftermath of war, but it has not relinquished an ideal nor lost its courage.

In these anxious times it is not only skilfully working on great plans but it also has great plans all ready for the builders when the slough of despond has been crossed.

Its office on the 22d floor of the Morton building at the northwest corner of Washintgon and Wells street is the most exhilirating place a Chicagoan can visit today.

No Place for Groaners.

There are no groaners about.

The walls are hung with maps and views that show the great work you and your fathers have done in the last 22 years to make a great city. They are inspiring.

Other maps and views, and thick folios of estimates, charts and explanations adorn the walls and lie upon the tables. They are provocative and stimulating. For they are a panorama of opportunity. They are a permanent but ever changing exhibit of mankind's progress toward the realization of the most ennobling and salutary work in the world—the building of cities at once convenient and beautiful.

This panorama in delicate water colors and in bold black and whites, this exhibit of graphs, diagrams and data are also humbling. The visitor beholds the views of work done and he knows that they are authentic because the spacious plazas, the wide driveways, the two-level streets and the mighty bridges and causeways which they picture are now Chicago plan actualities that make his daily comings and goings easier and swifter, save his time and—what is more important—reduce the nervous strain of existence.

Tasks That Tried Men's Souls.

But while he is gazing at these resplendent proofs of great things done he is told how this or that improvement which we now take for granted, and which, if it were suddenly obliterated, we would clamor to have restored to us, meant ten years of praying and preaching before a tap of work was done on it: how opposition malevolent and opposition merely stupid were encountered and slowly argued out of countenance; how these delays made certain projects cost thrice what they would have cost had they been promptly launched, and how, amid heartbreaking delay and waste, the plan commission had always to keep its temper for the reason—if for none other—that it has no mandatory powers.

Eugene S. Taylor, manager of the commission and the man who will make your visit to the office as interesting as an hour at the play and as instructive as an hour in a university classroom, unfolds the scheme of commission procedure thus:

"The plan commission has no power except the power of persuasion. It is a regular city department, but it has no executive power.

Where Persuasion Is Applied.

"And the sole power the commission possesses—that power of persuasion—it has to exercise in two ways.

"1. Persuade the city authorities that they want to do a thing.

"2. Persuade the people who have to pay for that thing that they want it more than they want their money.

"Hence the commission has to be absolutely right when it commends a project to the authorities and the community. Its technique must be perfect. Otherwise it could not pass the gantlet of intense criticism which every plan it has ever launched has encountered.

"The commission never adopted a project for the improvement of the city without first having studied every conceivable alternative to that project. Those alternatives were worked out in detail without pride or prejudice but as data, and not one iota of the data was withheld from any critic on or outside the commission. Its technical staff has first to convince the commission's executive committee of twenty-six members that a project is the best project before it goes to the people.

The Facts—and All the Facts.

"Sometimes ten, fifteen, twenty alternate studies have been made on a project and detailed estimates of cost were compared, one against the other.

"Such detail is almost infinite—going, as it does, meticulously into such matters as how much every building to be affected by an improvement is worth now and how much it will be worth later. And not every building alone! The present and future value of every shed and every fence is calculated. What every foot of improvement will cost in new pavement and new sidewalk is closely estimated. There have been improvements in the formulation of which the commission's minute estimates covered properties extending along miles upon miles of a street."

The result of so much care and caution is, Mr. Taylor said, that the Chicago Plan commission has become "the channel by which the coöperative effort of the citizens of Chicago is directed toward a specific end"—and that end is the improvement of the city.

Colossal Achievements.

In the 22 years of its existence the commission has formulated or fostered about 25 major projects and 75 minor. Of the major projects all are either completed or so far advanced that their completion is only a matter of time. Of the minor projects two-thirds are finished. On the major and minor projects the sum of $478,000,000 has been spent by the municipality, the federal government, the railroads, and private interests.

Some of the more spectacular improvements which the commission formulated and developed and, after years of patient pleading, persuaded the community to undertake are Wacker drive, North Michigan avenue widening, Roosevelt road widening, lake front development, the outer drive, river straightening, La Salle street widening, Ogden avenue widening, Canal street widening, the municipal airport, South Park way, Western avenue widening, Ashland avenue widening, and the new postoffice, on which work has begun.

Never a Breath of Scandal.

In its fostering of such huge projects the Chicago Plan commission has never been touched by the breath of scandal. I know of two men among its salaried employés who could today be millionaires if they had used their foreknowledge of projects that the commission was formulating to secure options on certain properties which were almost certain to be benefited and which, as it turned out, were benefited.

In short, the commission has a lofty tradition behind it. It has the tradition of Burnham and Wacker, and, under James Simpson, its present chairman, it remains true to the tradition. What that tradition is, and how it functions today, not as a dreamy but as a working ideal in the daily life of Chicago, will be told in next Sunday's article.

STUDENTS WHO NEED HELP URGED TO STAY AWAY AT ILLINOIS U.

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Students needing financial help were discouraged from attending the University of Illinois next semester by the student senate committee on relief today.

"Students are not encouraged to return next semester, expecting that they will receive continued help," the committee said. The semester begins in February.

The committee has been making loans only in emergencies and will not help students carry on their schooling, the announcement said. Notes must be signed on loans, which are made from a fund subscribed by faculty members. Guy Tawney is chairman of the relief committee.

BRING BACK BEER AND GOOD CHEER, SENATORS URGED

Farmer, Jobless, Uncle Sam Would Benefit.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WILLIAM E. HULL.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Bring back beer and you bring back cheer to everybody except the bootlegger, argued Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] before the senate subcommittee on manufacturers today as he listed the advantages that would come to the American farmer, to the American stomach, and to the American treasury if 4 per cent by volume beer were made legal.

"It certainly would create close to a billion dollar industry," Senator Bingham predicted, "and would raise, painlessly, at least $400,000,000 in taxes and employ hundreds of thousands of men."

Quick Jobs for 1,000,000.

Representative William E. Hull [Rep., Ill.], who catalogued himself as a "one-time distiller who certainly holds no brief for the breweries but who wants to see justice done the American farmer," advocated that this 4 per cent beer, made from American products, be sold in half pint bottles at a dime a bottle with a 2 cent government tax.

The demand, he declared, would be so great that if the bill were signed on the first of next May, 1,000,000 people would be put into employment by the last day of May.

The return of 4 per cent beer, American made, would bring an immediate sale to the American farmer of 66,000,000 bushels of barley, that now goes into competition with corn and oats as feed, reducing prices all around; and would increase that sale to 120,000,000 bushels of barley a year. A 15 cents rise in the price of every bushel of American grain would be the agricultural result.

Cites Capone Briberies.

Four per cent [by volume] beer is not intoxicating, Mr. Hull contended. To prove it, he said he went into a Swedish restaurant last summer and drank four pints of it, with no ill effects whatever.

Brewers themselves, Representative Hull maintained, will fight the sale of beer in the speakeasy, and for this reason: "If the government were to allow beer by the barrel, the speakeasy proprietor would have a can of alcohol under the table; the drinker would mix the two; go home drunk, and then people would say he got drunk on beer. Even in the old days, I claim that not even the bum got drunk on beer; he mixed alcohol with it. We must sell this beer in bottles only, and make the price so low that there would be no profit to sell it in a speakeasy."

Speaking of profit, Mr. Hull drew Al Capone into the discussion when he quoted from a magazine article telling Capone's admission that he made a $5 profit on every $55 barrel of beer and that the rest was "Paid out in graft."

Use of Alky Increases.

Prohibition, he asserted, has not cut off beer; it has merely substituted 25,000,000 barrels of illegal, ill-tasting, unhealthful beer; for the 60,000,00 barrels of "mellow beer with character" made before the passage of Volstead act. The per capita consumption of alcohol in the United States, he deduced from statistics he had gathered, has increased from 1.036 gallons in 1918, to 1.97 gallons in 1930.

Put barley into the brewery market and you not only help the barley farmer by taking an estimated 60,000,000 bushels of his 63,000,000 crop, but you withdraw barley from competition with corn as animal feed, with a tidy raise in price of both grains, Frank J. Delany of the Chicago Board of Trade told the subcommittee.

In the barley field alone Mr. Delany estimated that legalized beer would shoot the price in Chicago from 40 cents a bushel to $1, perhaps $1.25.

Stench Bombs Hit Three Evanston Barber Shops

Stench bombs were set off yesterday in the shops of three Evanston barbers who have favored a reduction in prices. The shops attacked and the proprietors, were at 634 Davis street, Ernest B. Watson; 822 Custer street, John Munro; and 700 Main street, Lawrence W. Schneider. Watson, Munro and Schneider have led a fight for the reduction of haircut prices from 75 to 50 cents in the Master Barbers' Association of Evanston

Metcalf, Rhode Island, chairman of senate committee holding hearings on bill to legalize four per cent beer; Senator Hiram Bingham (standing), author of bill, and Prof. Yandell Henderson of Yale, expert on volatile poisons, as he showed committee tests of four per cent beer. Prof. Henderson advocated passage of the bill.

TYDINGS BARES FLOW OF LIQUOR IN U. S. CAPITAL

Claims Dry Law Can't Be Enforced.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—"If congress can't halt violations of the prohibition act in Washington, how can the drys expect prohibition to be successfully enforced throughout the country?" Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] demanded of his colleagues today.

For the ten years preceding prohibition an average of 75 persons under 21 years old were arrested annually in Washington for drunkenness, he said, quoting the police figures.

During the last six years, he said—still quoting from the police records—an annual average of 326 persons under 21 years of age have been arrested in Washington for selling or manufacturing liquor, and an annual average of 328 persons under 21 years old have been arrested in Washington for drunkenness.

"Liquor Flows On."

"What is the use of talking about the law being enforced?" he demanded, "when we, the mayor, and the city council of this city, Washington, D. C., can make no better showing ourselves?

"If congress cannot do any better in this city, which is under its absolute control, are we going to be hypocrites enough to point the finger of scorn at Chicago or New York, or Philadelphia, or Boston, or any other place?

"Here is the place to make the demonstration of the 'noble experiment.' If it cannot be made here, it cannot be made elsewhere."

Despite the loading of the federal pay roll with a force of 3,000 prohibition agents, Senator Tydings declared, they were no more able to stem the flood of illicit liquor than he was to "push back Niagara Falls with his right hand."

Jails Jammed, He Says.

Every pail in the country was crowded to capacity, said the senator, and bills are pending to appropriate $5,000,000 to take care of prohibition law violators, yet the liquor still flowed.

He was addressing himself to the pending beer bills, however, the senator declared, and for the present was leaving liquor out of it.

"Everywhere you go," he proclaimed, "you see the prohibition law violated; yet we stand here like ninnies, afraid of the lash of the Anti-Saloon league, afraid to assert ourselves as the keepers of the liberties and the money of the people, to bring a solution into the arena which more than any single measure, I submit, would cure the difficulties under which we are at this moment laboring."

Instead of laboring over the two billion dollar reconstruction finance corporation bill and bills for unessential construction work, all of which will raise the taxes, congress might better pass a beer bill, put 300,000 men back to work, and increase the federal revenues 500 million dollars a year by a beer tax of 25 cents a gallon.

He chided members of congress for their fear of the Anti-Saloon league and the politico-ecclesiastical lobbies who, he said, told candidates: "When we say 'Forward, march,' you guys had better goosestep." He cited recent wet victories, notably the latest one in New Hampshire.

Cites Graft of Agents.

"Made work," he declared, was but a dole in disguise. A beer bill, he said, would start 200,000 freight cars rolling, consume 64,000,000 pounds of sugar and 100,000,000 bushels of grain.

"In Detroit, where there are 175 men in the border patrol," said Senator Tydings, "all of them were discharged for graft in a single year and new forces hired, and half of them were discharged before another year was out."

He referred to the Capone case and scored the government for having to convict the gang leader for nonpayment of income tax.

OPERA SOLD OUT FOR "PARSIFAL" MATINEE TODAY

The second and final performance for the season of Wagner's "Parsifal" by the Chicago Civic opera at 2 p. m. today has been sold out, it was announced yesterday. This is the second time that "Parsifal" has drawn a capacity audience. The first performance was sold out five days in advance. "Parsifal" will be one of the sixteen operas presented by the Chicago company in Boston during its engagement in February.

HOOVER BILL TO AID DEPOSITORS IS INTRODUCED

Tariff Measure Passed by House Democrats.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SENATOR JOHN THOMAS.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—President Hoover sent his bill providing federal relief for depositors in closed banks to congress today.

After an all day debate and by a vote of 214 to 182, the house Democrats put over their politically aimed tariff measure, which seeks to transfer the control of the flexible provisions from the President to congress.

The senate debated all day on the two billion dollar reconstruction finance corporation bill, largest among the measures in the administration's legislative program, and finally agreed to reach a vote next Monday.

Work on Relief Program.

Such were the day's steps, as executive branch and legislative branch progressed toward a program for ameliorating the economic situation of the country.

Among the many amendments to the reconstruction bill proposed in the senate, one in particular is of interest to cities, which, like Chicago, are in financial straits in which the banks can no longer help them. This was an amendment offered by Senator Royal C. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] and backed by a telegram from Mayor Jams J. Walker of New York, providing that municipalities should be eligible to share in the credit offered by the proposed corporation. If banks were eligible, the cities whom the banks no longer could help, ought to be eligible, Mayor Walker's telegram argued.

100 Million Provided.

As introduced by Senator John Thomas [Rep., Idaho] in the senate and Representative Caroll L. Beedy [Rep., Me.] in the house, the administration's bill for the creation of a 150 million dollar fund provides that the federal treasury shall furnish the new corporation with 100 million dollars in payment of class A stock and that the federal reserve banks, according to the amount of their surpluses shall purchase out of surplus $50,000,000 in class B stock.

The corporation is to have authority to make loans to the receivers of banks which have suspended since Dec. 31, 1930. This relief is to be extended to all national banks and to all state banks of deposit. State banks, however, become eligible for loans only when their receivers have been authorized by proper state authority. In return for the loan the receiver will give his official promissory note and the loan will constitute a lien on the bank's free assets. Interest on the loan will be at six per cent.

Cash for Slow Assets.

In this way, the bill contemplates, closed banks may receive cash on their slow moving assets and so give relief to hundreds of thousands of depositors whose funds are now tied up.

Another clause of the bill allows the receivers of national banks to secure loans from any other sources, provided the interest rate is not more than six per cent.

The corporation is to be authorized to issue bonds in a total not to exceed four times the amount of the capital stock outstanding. The maximum thus will be 600 million dollars' worth of bonds.

The directors of the corporation are to be the secretary of the treasury, a member of the federal reserve board to be selected by the President, and the controller of the currency.

During the senate debate on the reconstruction bill, two amendments were defeated. One by Senator Bratton [Dem., N. M.] to extend the facilities of the corporation to irrigation and reclamation districts went down on a tie vote, 37 to 37. A second, by Senator Jones [Rep., Wash.], to grant credit facilities to American shipping lines, was defeated, 61 to 15.

POPE PIUS BESTOWS HIGH DECORATION ON PREMIER MUSSOLINI

ROME, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today received his first papal decoration, the Order of the Golden Spur. The decoration is possessed by only nine other persons, including King Fuad and former King Amanullah of Afghanistan. The decoration was presented to the premier at the Palazzo Venezia this morning by Papal Nuncio Borgonini Duca.

It was the second exchange of decorations in consequence of the settlement of the state and church controversy. The Supreme Order of Christ was bestowed upon King Victor Emmanuel earlier this week. Premier Mussolini's decoration is just a shade less important than the king's.

The nuncio later called on Foreign Minister Dino Grandi and presented him with the Grand Cross of the Order of Pius IX., which was also given to Ambassador Cesare Maria de Vecchi, Italian envoy to the holy see.

WOMAN TELLS OF MYSTERY OFFER TO FIX DRY CASE

Mrs. Ruth Oldridge, 36 years old, 539 Brompton place, a widow who was taken before United States Commissioner Walker on Friday on a charge of selling liquor in her flat, said yesterday that she has received mysterious telephone calls and that a man has been prowling about the building since then. Yesterday morning, she said, a man who represented himself as a friend gained admittance to her apartment and then told her would fix the case for $200.

"I stepped out of the room on a pretext and called the Town Hall police," Mrs. Oldridge said. "Three detectives were sent and the man ran."

Mrs. Oldridge was arrested by prohibition agents after Agents Stanley Crellin and Bernard Shaffer, with two unidentified informers, entered her flat on Dec. 29, represented themselves as friends of her roommate, Miss Elda Beck, and were served with gin highballs.

HYDE VIRTUALLY ADMITS HOOVER CHANCES SLIM

Shifts Part of Blame for Slump on Democrats.

ARTHUR M. HYDE.

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—What was taken by his hearers to be an acknowledgment by Arthur M. Hyde, the secretary of agriculture, that President Hoover may fail of reëlection startled the 1,100 women present at the annual meeting and luncheon of the Women's National Republican club at the Waldorf-Astoria this afternoon.

Secretary Hyde was the principal speaker, and his address was devoted to an effort to make plain to his audience that President Hoover had nothing to do with causing the depression and that but for his efforts the situation would have been much worse than it is.

As a matter of fact, the secretary of agriculture said, the blame for the depression can be laid to a great extent to the late President Wilson, to his secretary of the treasury, William G. McAdoo, and to Senator Carter Glass, who was first chairman of the senate finance committee and then Mr. McAdoo's successor at the treasury. Mr. Hyde said they "illegally" loaned at least two billion dollars of the nation's money to the nations of Europe after the war.

Mr. Hyde's speech was long and when he got through there didn't appear to be much that anybody else could say. He blamed the international bankers for making vast loans to Europe which they are now faced with the prospect of losing and said that these loans are complicating a bad situation.

"The bursting of the bubble was inevitable, but the stock market crash found Herbert Hoover prepared."

CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER.

Boonville, Ind., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The jury trying Rothert Parker, 34, in the Warrick Circuit court for the murder of Raymond Scales, 22, returned a verdict tonight, finding the defendant guilty of manslaughter, which carries a sentence of from two to twenty-one years.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

LAWYERS ON THE 18TH AMENDMENT.

One of the important developments of the prohibition controversy is the growth of discussion of the constitutional principles involved. These principles were deplorably neglected as the 18th amendment was adopted and for years after its adoption. They are largely ignored now by prohibitionists for the very good reason that they do not favor the scheme of national prohibition. But in recent years their bearing upon the dry experiment and the profound issues they present have come into the forefront of debate and their discussion is increasing rapidly in extent and force.

That this discussion will shake the partisanship of zealots or professional propagandists will not be expected. But it cannot fail to reach the intelligence of the majority of Americans whose minds are not closed and whose opinions are not controlled by special interests. In this majority is the only hope of a correction of the wrong done to our constitutional system and to the nation whose welfare it supports. It has therefore become of real importance that constitutional lawyers have been taking a more and more active part in the public debate upon prohibition and impressing upon the public the gravity and significance of the constitutional aspects of the experiment in national prohibition. The weight of professional judgment, it is becoming increasingly apparent, is against the 18th amendment, as it cannot fail to be in view of the well settled principles of our system of government, and this has had the effect of somewhat silencing the hubbub raised at one time by prohibitionists over alleged disrespect for the constitution. Respect for the constitution meant in the prohibitionist propaganda respect only for the 18th amendment and a consequent disrespect for the constitutional principles which the 18th amendment violated. We have now, happily, reached a stage of the discussion in which the whole question of constitutional consistency is in view, and the real issue of loyalty to our constitutional system is clarified. The revolt against prohibition can no longer be plausibly rebuked as disrespect of the constitution but is beginning to be understood as not merely a revolt against the concrete social and governmental evils with which the experiment has strewed the landscape but also a revolt of men who understand the full import of our principles of liberty and efficient government and who realize what the departure from these principles in the adoption of the amendment really means.

An excellent example of this later phase of the prohibition controversy is Henry Allen Johnston's recent address before the faculty and student body of Williams college, from which we venture to quote the following:

"The 18th amendment was an attempt, by means of following the strict letter and form provided in the constitution for creating amendments, to pass an irrepealable law, and thus to abolish a power which previously existed in the states, and, instead of transferring that power to congress, to extinguish it altogether. It was not a readjustment of government but a denial of government.

"Other possible extensions of this theory of government emasculation will no doubt suggest themselves to you. One may say it is far fetched to suggest the possibility of an amendment prohibiting the teaching of certain theories in the schools and colleges of the country, but the bare suggestion, however remote the possibility, indicates the danger to representative government presented by an amendment like the 18th.

"Such practices continued might lead to a tyranny more insidious and more subversive of liberty than any tyranny which might be set up by a usurping dictator, since it is of more far reaching influence and difficult to cope with. And, I might add, that such tyranny is apt to be the tyranny of mediocrity, whereas the dictator, at least, has reason and purpose behind his despotism; and if he goes too far, the gallows, a firing squad, or an assassin's bullet affords relief. . . . Suppose that under the excitement of a great national emotion the legislatures of three-fourths of the states are stampeded into ratifying an amendment of this character, and that after a return to normal conditions, the people's ardor having cooled, there should be a popular reversion of sentiment and demand for a repeal; the result is startling. As thirteen states can block the repeal of an amendment, we are now confronted with the possibility of Arizona, Delaware, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, and Wyoming, which altogether have a population of only 5,802,802, or about 5 per cent of the total population of the United States, standing pat and effectually defeating the will of 100,407,818 people, or 95 per cent of the population.

"Alexander Hamilton foresaw such dangers when he said: 'Sophistry may reply that sovereigns are equal, and that a majority of the votes of the states will be a majority of confederated America, but this kind of logical legerdemain will never counteract the plain suggestions of justice and common sense. It may happen that this majority of states is a small minority of people of America; and two-thirds of the people of America could not long be persuaded, upon the credit of artificial distinctions and syllogistic subtleties, to submit their interests to the management and disposal of one-third. The larger state would after a while revolt from the idea of receiving the law from the smaller.'

"A prohibitory amendment, such as the 18th therefore not only violates this principle deliberately embodied in the constitution, but by reason of the altered ratio of population among the states today results in a much grosser absurdity than could possibly have been foreseen in Hamilton's time.

"We had to wait 130 years, until the world was suffering from shell shock, before there could be conceived such a misshapen monster to bear the name of democracy. This is the thing we are begged to accept as a great forward step in government, to bow before, and to oppose not, under the penalty of being branded from the pulpits of the country as nullificationists."

As for the appeal for further experiment with the amendment, Mr. Johnston remarked that "a free government should not experiment by putting 681,000 in jail," and of the argument that we have no right to demand repeal until we have a generally acceptable substitute he holds that congress has ample powers to protect dry states against importation "and that is all a bone dry state has a right to ask," for Kansas has no right to dictate to Massachusetts or New York their standards of social conduct. What only the dry states have a right to is protection from interference with their own standards by or from other communities.

NINEVEH AND TYRE.

In the United States, and probably in Britain as well, only the fewest of men are aware of the fact that the next few weeks are destined to be among the most critical in the life of our generation; and yet the fact is unescapable.

On Jan. 1 the first payments of income tax for 1932 fell due in Great Britain. The government is calling, according to a dispatch from John Steele, for three-fourths of the full tax in the first payment. That there will be many defaults is a certainty. The question is whether the number of defaults will not be so large that the government will be helpless to proceed against the defaulters.

In Britain, under the new law, incomes of 2 pounds a week are subject to taxation. That is, a boy earning $350 a year must pay an income tax. Thousands of new taxpayers who do not understand the law are subject to criminal and civil liability for failure to pay. The administration of the law against the new taxpayers is a tremendous problem by itself, but it is enormously complicated by the circumstance that all taxes have been greatly increased and that the ability of the people to pay, even at the old rates, was questionable. The new rates are almost a guarantee that thousands of British subjects will find themselves unconvicted felons.

The people of Great Britain are to pay higher taxes than they ever paid before and they are to pay them in a depreciated currency. Because of the retreat from the gold standard the cost of living has risen in England. It has not risen by the full amount of the depreciation, which now amounts to more than 25 per cent, but there is no doubt that the price level is higher than it was when the pound would buy $4.86 worth of American wheat, Argentine beef, or Australian wool, instead of $3.40 worth. Wages have remained stationary, which means that a smaller margin remains above bare living costs for all purposes, including taxes. And now taxes are taking a higher share of income than they ever have before.

In any industrial nation the largest item in the national economy must be wages. It is so in Britain, of course, and the new taxation can only result in increasing the hardships of the working classes particularly, though of all other classes as well, to the point where the burden cannot be borne.

That is the situation which Great Britain is confronting as the new year begins. To describe this situation as desperate is to put it mildly. If the tax receipts fail to reach expectations, only one alternative is left: that is to start the printing presses turning out pounds sterling. To date there has been no considerable inflation of the British currency, but once that is started the inevitable consequence will be a further sinking of the pound in the world's exchange markets, a further increase in the cost of living in Britain, and a corresponding increase in the problem of balancing the British budget from tax receipts.

The new government in Britain has failed to take the only step which might have eased matters, for no really serious effort has been made to reduce the expenditures of government. The fundamental cause of Britain's difficulties, the enormous load of socialistic ventures, remains substantially as it has existed; and it is not without significance that the premier today is the same premier who, as head of the Labor party, must bear no small part of the responsibility for Britain's present plight.

If the taxes fail to yield the expected revenues the world seems destined to observe the crumbling of the greatest empire of our day. Our generation will then have seen the reversal of the usual association of war and privation and of peace and plenty. Britain survived the war, but she may succumb to the peace. Other great empires have fallen before their enemies, but it is doubtful if history can record another instance of an empire committing suicide.

The year 1932 may be a year of colossal drama in the history of nations. Americans observing that drama can profit from its lesson. The causes which have led Britain to the brink of destruction are operating in this country, and unless checked, must lead us to the same precipice.

MR. STIMSON'S PACIFISTS.

Secretary Stimson with some heat informed the house committee on foreign affairs that the American delegates to the Geneva disarmament conference were "the most practical pacifists I know." He said there was not a militarist on the delegation. "I know that personally, not from hearsay." The government wants an appropriation of $450,000 for the expenses of the delegation.

Mr. Stimson would have a great deal of difficulty if he tried to find any militarists among Americans qualified for appointment on any delegation. America does not grow them. However, there is no doubt the delegates to whom he referred are what he says they are. But why waste $450,000? The American delegates could be polled by post card and the consequences would be the same.

Editorials of the Day

THE GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS.

[Chilton (Wis.) Times.]

The wall of the traders on the grain and produce exchanges and other business men, because of governmental invasion of their fields of private enterprise, is described by Arthur Sears Henning, Washington staff writer of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as a "mounting cry of protest." Competing agencies, financed by the government out of taxpayers' money, are driving them into bankruptcy, they complain. They have no way to recoup their losses except through their business operations. The government agencies opposing them have a simple and effective method of wiping out deficits—they turn them into the public treasury where they are assessed against the taxpayers in ever mounting levies. Out of this procedure arises the strange anomaly of private business enterprises contributing directly by taxation to meet the losses incurred by their competitors in driving them to the wall. Under such circumstances private enterprise is necessarily loath to invest capital, and to this hesitancy and fear is attributed in no small degree the present industrial stagnation of the country.

The invasion of the fields of private business by the government in recent years is due largely to the mouthy efforts of political opportunists. By deluding the people with promises of fabulous advantages they create a sentiment that perpetuates them in power. They are not hampered by adherence to principles. Their sole concern is expediency. Fostering of class hatreds and discontent by picturing all private business as dishonest, self-seeking, avaricious, is a favorite device. All that is is wrong. What's to be [if their fanciful suggestions are followed] will be truly and unimaginably good. So they would have groping thinkers think.

Admitting that selfishness and dishonesty do play an important rôle in our present scheme of industry, what guarantee have we that under government ownership and operation they will have a less conspicuous part? Let the government take over any business it may choose today. Who will run it? The selfsame men who are engaged in that particular industry now. They will have a new boss—the government. Will that fact inspire them with greater initiative and incentive, bless them with improved ability, a keener sense of honesty? Are the agents which the government will place in charge inevitably to be more capable, more energetic, more ingenious and faithful than the private managers? Are they to be so imbued with the spirit of unselfish service that they will be devoid of selfishness? Is the selfish, grasping business man to be transformed suddenly into a superservant of the people by the simple expedient of investing him with the authority of an officer of the sovereign state?

The oil scandals of recent unsavory memory answer No. Wartime government operation of the railroads when, in a period of 26 months, with business at a record peak and freight rates at a record high, a deficit of nearly two billion dollars was piled up, to be assessed back to the taxpayers, does not indicate that human nature would undergo an essential improvement in the change. The fiasco called prohibition in which the government has been engaged for over a decade has yet to reveal evidence that government enterprise is capable of any magic which private enterprise cannot match.

Mounting taxes present one of the most serious problems in the country today. The recent congress appropriated more billions than were ever before appropriated in times of peace. The close of the fiscal year found the treasury with a deficit of nearly a billion. Prospects are for a deficit of a billion and a half at the end of the next fiscal year. Meantime the government has been in business on the most extensive scale in history. A fund of five hundred millions raised by public taxation has been dissipated largely on an experiment that is admittedly a failure. The farmers who looked on while prices dropped to new low levels will be called on to help foot the bill incurred in a futile experiment in their behalf.

In a speech in Chicago, Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania called the farm board experiment "the greatest failure, as well as the greatest folly, in the history of America."

And yet, like a haunting dream, the idea persists that government ownership and control affords the solution of every economic ill. Somehow nonchalantly overlooked is the broad field that would be opened up for political intrigue and inevitable corruption. Overlooked is the stifling effect of such a system on individual initiative. Overlooked is the universal yearning of the human heart for individual liberty. Initiative is fostered by the appeal of a reward commensurate with the effort expended. Paternalistic security, were that attainable in a socialistic state, would mean the negation of progress. The instruments of production, the volume and low price of products, of which we are all beneficiaries, have been made possible by private business ingenuity developed through keen competition. The road of future advancement lies along the course of individual liberty, sustained initiative and equality of opportunity. The government's functions are executive, legislative, judicial. Its part in private business should be that of the watchful, impartial, inexorable referee.

OPPOSITION TO REFERENDUM MISTAKE.

[The Wisconsin State Journal.]

The Woman's Christian Temperance union, echoing the views of many dry leaders, is sending out letters decrying a referendum upon the prohibition question.

We believe that such a position is a mistake. The majority views on the wet and dry question should control as upon any other issue.

The fundamental principle of a rule of a majority is of more importance to this nation than even the question of the sale of alcoholic liquor.

We also think the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance union overestimate the strength of the wets. We much doubt if the prohibition question is submitted to a referendum in the United States that the vote will ask the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. The members of the Woman's Christian Temperance union are not taking into consideration the many votes in the agricultural districts of the country that will be cast for the dry side of the issue.

The letter which the Woman's Christian Temperance union is sending out intimates fear of the result of the referendum on prohibition because of the character of the propaganda the wets will circulate.

The drys have an equal right with the wets to fight for their cause. They have ample avenues for a campaign in support of prohibition. They should not fear a contest on a question upon which the people of the nation have a right to express their opinion.

In the long run the drys will profit more by a decided campaign in support of prohibition than they will by allowing the opinion to prevail that they are opposed to a test permitting an expression of the voters' will.

THE ROSS AWARD FUND.

SCIENTISTS are trying to raise a fund known as the Ross Award fund. While Dr. Ross is an Englishman, his discoveries were of such importance to America that the scientists of this country are lending a hand.

Dr. Ronald Ross is a British physician who was attached to the British army stationed in India. It was an accepted fact that malaria was more important, not only to the army, but also to the Indian people, than was plague or cholera. These latter diseases struck first here and then there—they came and went. At times they caused most dramatic epidemics. Malaria was omnipresent. Like the mills of the gods, it ground always and exceedingly fine. It was the dripping water that finally wore away the granite because it was ceaselessly and enternally at it.

A Frenchman, Laveran, working in north Africa, discovered the parasite that caused malaria, but other links had to be discovered before the disease could be tied to man. Dr. Ross proved that mosquitoes infected man with malaria. Most of the things we have done since then have been aimed at breaking this as the weakest link in the chain.

Anti-mosquito measures made it possible to build the Panama canal, to grow cotton without great hazard in the Yazoo delta in Mississippi, and in various other sections of the country, and also made possible the present great fruit industry in the tropics.

Dr. Ross' demonstrations of the relation of malaria to mosquitoes laid the foundation for other work aimed at insect-borne diseases. The old speculation about mosquitoes and yellow fever, first advanced by Nott, was taken off the shelf and polished up by Findley and handed to Gorgas and Reed when we landed in Cuba. This old theory, properly proved, was the basis of what we have since succeeded in doing in the warmer parts of the world in the last thirty years. It was the basis of the freedom from plague of the troops engaged in the world war.

Great industrial enterprises, as well as great wars, have been free from some of their hazards because of the scientific work done by Dr. Ross. His book on malaria put the control of that disease on a mathematical basis. And a trend in this direction, with respect to other infective diseases, is a quality of the latest advances in scientific epidemiology in contrast to the wasteful, unnecessary, expensive, and sometimes harmful rule of thumb epidemiology of the old days.

Dr. Ross gave his discoveries to the world without profit to himself. He is now crippled with deforming arthritis, unable to walk, confined to a wheel chair, old and without means enough to rest from his labors.

MASSAGE THE TONSILS.

Mrs. A. J. C. writes: Ever since I had an attack of tonsillitis, about five years ago, there has been a hole on the left side of my tonsil. Sometimes a large, yellow blotch appears in the cavity, and [illegible] again in a few days. When I get up in the morning my tonsils are all red and it hurts even to talk. Can you tell me why this is and what I can do for it? I am 17 years old.

REPLY

This hole is what is called a tonsil crypt. The yellow blotch is a mass of mixed food, debris, and bacteria. Sometimes these masses cause halitosis. Sometimes they cause sore throat. In many cases the tonsils can be emptied by massaging them.

LOOK OUT FOR BOGY MAN.

Mrs. W. A. G. writes: What do you consider the effects of alcoholic liquor on duodenal ulcer of long standing?

REPLY.

A person with a chronic duodenal ulcer had better watch his step or the bogy man will get him. He should exercise care in his eating, both as to the amount he eats and the foods eaten, and as to the space between meals. He is a chump if he indulges in any dietary indiscretions. Drinking alcoholic liquors is at best a dietary indiscretion.

SHOULD RECORD CONTRACT.

Aurora, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. In buying a lot on contract from a realty corporation is the buyer protected from loss in case the corporation goes into a receiver's hands? 2. How can the purchaser protect himself when only making monthly payments and has not yet secured a deed? F. A.

1. Yes, if the lot is still in their possession.
2. Recording his contract would give him some additional protection against the possibility that they might sell the lot to a second purchaser.

NEW OUTER DRIVE.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Friend of the People.]—When will the outer drive be extended north to Howard street? I understand it is contracted for to Foster avenue. How are funds provided to pay for extension? T. B.

The drive will be extended from Montrose avenue to Foster avenue. That is the part we are working on now and before we can go farther that will have to be completed. The funds for enlarging the extension of the park are provided for by bond issues voted by the people.

WARREN WRIGHT,
President, Commissioners of Lincoln Park.

ANTENUPTIAL AGREEMENTS.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Where a widow and a widower marry, each having children by former marriages: 1. Would the children of the wife have any right or interest in the estate of the husband in the event of his prior death? 2. What would be the case as regards the children of the husband in the event of the wife's prior death? 3. Can a prenuptial agreement be made in regard to the use or disposition during the lifetime of both, or after their death, of property owned by either or both at the time of such marriage, without consulting the wishes of the children of either party? 4. If such an agreement is made and embodied in any will after marriage, can the will be contested on the ground that the children were not consulted? 5. Should any mention of such children be made in prenuptial agreement or in the will? G. L. M.

1 and 2. No.
3. Yes.
4. No. We advise the employment of an attorney in the drafting and execution of the antenuptial agreement and the will.
5. There is no law so requiring.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

This nation has had other serious financial depressions, as the following excerpts from The Tribune files reveal. Each of these periods of hard times has been followed by periods of great prosperity.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 10.—The financial situation does not materially improve in this quarter and the embarrassment is widespread. Manufacturing concerns are in distress and the reduction of working forces continues. The big manufacturing establishment of Squires & Co., which two weeks ago discharged a large number of employés, issued a card stating it will be obliged to give up its foreign business and hold only its home trade, being unable to get money to buy hogs. It is possible it may be obliged to shut down altogether.

Omaha, Neb., March 16.—Receiver Clark of the Union Pacific sprung a bomb in the camp of the railway delegation. He said he would confer only with engineers, trainmen, and telegraphers on grievances. This excludes the American Railway union, switchmen, carmen, Knights of Labor, shopmen, trackmen, and car repairers. The order of the judge expressly provided that all employés should be heard. Clark claims that none but the employés he names are affected by the proposed wage cut.

1907.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 1.—One thousand employés of the West Milwaukee car shops of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, nearly all skilled workmen, were laid off indefinitely. Several hundred freight solicitors were also laid off.

1914.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Dr. Charles R. Henderson, chairman of the city commission on unemployment, will present to the mayor and city council within a few days recommendations for relief of tens of thousands of unemployed men now in Chicago.

1921.

Benwood, W. Va., March 22.—The Riverside plant of the National Tube company has suspended operations, making 2,500 idle.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 10, 1916.

WILMINGTON, Del.—In an explosion at the Du Pont Powder works at Carney's Point, N. J., opposite Wilmington, six men are known to have been killed and four others injured. Other bodies are believed buried in the wreckage. Two of three plants were blown up, supposedly as a result of a plot. The explosion occurred immediately after the midnight shift went to work.

LONDON.—It is officially announced that the complete evacuation of the Gallipoli peninsula has been carried out. Gen. Sir Charles Monro, according to the official statement, reports that one British soldier was wounded in the evacuation; that there were no casualties among the French, and that all the guns were saved except seventeen worn out ones, which were blown up. The last positions abandoned were at Seddul Bahr, the extreme tip of the peninsula. Anzac cove and Suvla bay were evacuated previously.

JANUARY 10, 1902.

WASHINGTON.—By the extraordinary record of 308 to 2 the house of representatives passed the Nicaragua canal bill without any amendment except that suggested by the committee. Every effort to pass the Panama canal scheme as a factor regarding transit through the isthmus was defeated by an overwhelming majority. Party lines were obliterated in the final vote on the measure. The votes in the negative were cast by Fletcher of Minnesota and Lassiter of Virginia. Cannon of Illinois, who opposed the Nicaragua bill because he believed the proposition of the Panama company should be investigated, moved to recommit the Nicaragua bill to the committee with instructions to report a new measure giving the President authority to decide upon the route and was defeated by the overwhelming vote of 206 to 41.

JEFFERSON ON LAWYERS.

Elburn, Ill., Dec. 28.—Thomas Jefferson would have been interested in the Carroll-Megan controversy re: "Laws and Lawyers." Note this extract from his autobiography:

"I served with Gen. Washington in the legislature of Virginia before the revolution, and during it with Dr. Franklin in congress. I never heard either of them speak ten minutes at a time, nor to any but the main point which was to decide the question. They laid their shoulders to the great points, knowing that the little ones would follow of themselves. If the present congress errs in too much talking, how can it be otherwise in a body to which the people send one hundred and fifty lawyers whose trade it is to question everything, yield nothing, and talk by the hour? That one hundred and fifty lawyers should do business together ought not to be expected." E. H. OLSEN.

AN ALTERNATIVE.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—The visiting teachers, the special rooms for mentally retarded children, vocational guidance, and the services of professionally equipped social workers in the Juvenile court together compose the community's meager but indispensable bulwark against the child distress of this decade and the crime of the next.

The current depression will no doubt lift. For the most part, some years from now, the community will forget its severity and recollect with difficulty the common concerns which it brought to light. But for years to come the community will feel the effect of the depression on the children whose parents are now in such large numbers deprived of an opportunity to earn a livelihood.

How much we shall pay in police costs, prison costs, costs for correctional schools will depend upon how much the board of education and the Cook county commissioners now discriminate between necessary economy and that body of indispensable protective activities, the social services.

We do not choose the crisis in disease for eliminating from the patient's budget the item for medical skill.

GRACE BENJAMIN,
Chairman Child Welfare Committee,
Cook County League of Women Voters.

BUREAUCRACY.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—The articles on bureaucracy written by your Washington correspondent, Mr. Henning, impressed me very deeply. I believe that he and your valued publication are on the right track and I hope that you will pursue this giant monster and succeed in arresting its further development and, if possible, succeed in its destruction.

A. J. PARKER.

MONEY FOR CHICAGO.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—We hear great cries that the city is in great need of money. If the city would exercise a reasonable amount of alertness it would have millions in a few days by a very simple method. The 1932 city vehicle licenses should be ready for prompt delivery and the city should insist that all licenses be purchased before the middle of January and not the middle of July. In New York arrests for not having 1932 city vehicle licenses will start Jan. 2.

H. KNARF.

THE PROFITS OF PROHIBITION.

Mount Morris, Ill., Dec. 30.—In this department Dec. 29 Mr. Ralph Hunter asks why millions could not be saved in the way of taxes by withholding appropriations for prohibition enforcement. For the first nine years of prohibition the collections from fines, sale of property, etc., in enforcing prohibition amounted to about $247,000,000 over the cost of enforcement, or over $23,000,000 a year on an average. If Mr. Hunter and his wet friends are sincere about saving money for the people and the government they will vote dry, as can be seen by these figures. Prohibition enforcement is unintentionally a money making proposition and helps to pay taxes instead of increasing them. Money collected from fines, etc., is turned back into the national or state treasury and can be gotten out each year for further enforcement only by an act of congress appropriating the necessary amount. If a business man spent his time in telling the world only what his expenses were, and never disclosed his income, he would get little sympathy from his friends. What, then, is to be thought of the wets shouting aloud about the cost of enforcement, but never saying a word about the income? H. E. ZIMMERMAN.

NEW SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—I note in your columns that four new high school buildings are proposed for Chicago. I would like to know if the great school building at Addison and Western is to be completed now, or is it to be left unfinished as a monument, rusting away, to the inefficiency of our city fathers that spend our taxes so freely? Where is the money coming from? FRANKLIN STARR.

CONSISTENCY.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—According to Washington dispatches, congressional Democrats intend to boost the maximum surtax on personal income to perhaps 60 or 65 per cent, the latter figure equaling the maximum war rate. This proposal sounds like playing to the gallery, the more so when not including reduction of present too high exemptions. In general raising the surtax maximum would seem proper procedure from the quite justifiable point of view that larger income means larger ability to pay taxes. But if this holds true up to a point of income where a 65 per cent surtax would enter, to stop just there and not subject still larger income to still higher tax rates all the way up to 100 per cent would plainly contravene sound, logical policy and constitute gross favoritism to higher income brackets in curious inconsistency with the pretensions and protestations usually put forth by sponsors of this kind of "democratic" legislation.

CHRISTIAN BOTKER.

FOR A PROPERTY QUALIFICATION.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Why is it not time to squelch with some sort of law the riff-raff vote in this as well as all other states? My contention is that only property owners should be allowed to vote. Especially on bond issues which result in only the owners of property being taxed. Why allow the floating and repeater voters to say that the property owners must be taxed beyond all reason? L. E. P.

2 PROSECUTORS TO FACE JUDGE IN CONNOLLY QUIZ

Are Ordered to Explain Detention of Fugitive.

State's Attorney Swanson and his first assistant, John E. Northup, must appear before Judge Philip L. Sullivan in the Criminal court tomorrow morning to explain why Timothy L. Connolly, former purchasing agent for the sanitary district during the régime of Timothy J. Crowe, was not produced in his court yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus.

Connolly was reported to be in a hideout making revelations to Assistant State's Attorneys Harold Keele and Henry Seyfarth, regarding wild spending in the sanitary district during Crowe's administration.

The battle over the detention of Connolly started as soon as the Criminal court opened yesterday morning. Attorney Cameron Latter, accompanied by Attorney John Higgins, personal attorney for Crowe, appeared with a writ of habeas corpus. Attorney Higgins took no part in the proceedings.

Ordered to Face Court.

"I want Swanson and Northup here on Monday morning at 10 o'clock," Judge Sullivan shouted as he continued the case until that time. "I want both of them here and that is a direction from this court." The order was directed at Assistant State's Attorney Euclid Taylor, who was appearing for the state's attorney's office.

Earlier in the proceedings Judge Sullivan had called attention to the statute on habeas corpus, which says that if a prosecutor refuses to obey a writ he may be held in contempt of court, fined $500, or held incapable of holding office.

"Tell Mr. Swanson that there is a writ here and that he must obey it or take the consequences," said the judge. "I am going to deal with this situation as it presents itself. The state's attorney is presumed to know what is going on in his office and he is responsible for every act of his assistants."

Prosecutor Swanson Absent.

Mr. Swanson was not at his office yesterday. Prosecutor Northup was there until a short time after the writ was issued, but before Prosecutor Taylor went into court to announce that the state did not have "custody" of Connolly, Northup left and could not be found later. It was reported that he was at the time negotiating with another potentially important witness who, it is said, may appear for the prosecution when the trial is resumed tomorrow morning.

Connolly in the meantime was being taken from place to place, it was reported, by the men who have him in charge. It was understood that he had spoken much more freely yesterday and had added much to the revelations he made on Friday when he was brought back to Illinois from San Diego, Cal., where he was arrested recently after being a fugitive for three years.

This fact was confirmed, it was said, by the strenuous efforts of the defense to have him brought into court where they might talk with him, and also by the fact that the grand jury, which stood ready to go to the Criminal court to act on evidence already presented against Connolly, was not summoned into session. The prosecution has enough evidence before the jury to bring a dozen indictments against Connolly, but no action is to be taken on this evidence, it is reported, if Connolly agrees to testify for the prosecution.

Surprise Move by Northup.

It became known yesterday that elaborate plans taken by the friends of Connolly to prevent him falling into the hands of the prosecutors for an extended questioning had been thwarted by a surprise move by Mr. Northup. Connolly, it was revealed, was accompanied from San Diego by another man who was to see that he arrived safely in Chicago where he could promptly be released from custody on bond.

Prosecutor Northup, however, arranged to have Connolly taken from the train at Streator. James McQueeney, a private detective employed by the Citizens' association, who arrested Connolly, was met by a state's attorney's automobile.

Before Connolly's companion realized what had happened, the automobile pulled away with the prisoner. It was reported that the defense, however, had received information through a leak in the state's attorney's office, because the defense attorneys traced Connolly to Kankakee before losing the trail.

Hearings on Writ.

There were three hearings on the writ. The first hearing was called soon after the forthwith writ was issued. Prosecutor Taylor, who handles all writs of habeas corpus, was about to file a return to the writ to show that Connolly was not in the state's attorney's custody.

"I object to that return," said Attorney Latter. "I was told by an assistant state's attorney in this courtroom a short time ago that the return is untrue."

Taylor replied that he was acting on information given by Mr. Northup and added that the petition showed that Connolly was in the hands of a governor's messenger, and that the governor was the only one who could give directions to the messenger.

At the second hearing Taylor said he had tried without success to find Mr. Swanson or Mr. Northup, or anyone who could give him any information about Connolly. Attorney Latter said he was unable to find Northup or any of his assistants to serve them with subpoenas. Latter said he was advised that Connolly was in the custody of Policemen Larson and Crosoli of the state's attorney's office, "Chief Investigator Fasses" and Prosecutors Keele and Seyfarth. He had all his information written on a paper.

Demand by Judge Sullivan.

"I can't help what the circumstances are in this case or of how much public concern the case is," said Judge Sullivan. "If the state's attorney has this man it is his duty to bring him in court or to say he hasn't him in custody. However, I do not want anybody to make any false returns to this court."

Attorney Taylor asked for a continuance until tomorrow. The judge granted a continuance only until 3 o'clock yesterday, however, and added: "That would just be defeating the purpose of the writ of habeas corpus if I granted the request of the state. I want Connolly here or some reason why he is not here."

The hearing was called again at 3 o'clock, but still Taylor had no additional word. He insisted that Northup had told him the state's attorney did not have Connolly in custody.

"Avoiding Process of Court."

"In can only draw one conclusion from what has occurred here," said the judge. "It is just another way of avoiding the process of the court."

Attorney Latter then placed Prosecutor Taylor on the witness stand. He brought out that Taylor had told Northup about the issuance of the writ prior to Northup's disappearance. Prosecutor Taylor then put Latter on the witness stand and questioned Latter's authority to file the writ. The attorney, however, said he was acting on behalf of Connolly's brother, and Judge Sullivan ruled that this was sufficient. Then Judge Sullivan issued the order for the appearance of Swanson and Northup in his court tomorrow morning.

WALKER SAYS BANKS TRYING TO 'SQUEEZE' NEW YORK ON LOANS

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Assailing the city's great banking institutions for alleged "squeezing" of the municipality in the pending negotiations for a short term loan of $90,000,000 or more to meet maturing obligations and make possible the city's $20,000,000 program for home relief and unemployment aid, Mayor James J. Walker appealed today to the federal government for coöperation in making available the necessary funds.

In a telegram to Senator Royal S. Copeland he urged an amendment to the pending bill to create a 2 billion dollar reconstruction corporation, to make possible loans to cities as well as to banks. He was notified tonight that the amendment had been introduced and his telegram read into the senate record.

Declaring that the bankers were demanding exorbitant interest rates and attempting to impose severe restrictions upon the city's policy in return for loans, Mayor Walker asserted that the municipality with its unquestioned credit standing and long record of never failing to meet its financial obligations was as much entitled to federal relief as were the banks which had admittedly extended vast loans to foreign governments on security not as good as that offered by New York.

Mayor Walker indicated that the appeal for federal aid was but the first of a number of drastic steps which he was prepared to take to prevent the great financial groups from forcing the city to abandon or modify certain fundamental policies. It is understood that his reference was to the city's transit policy, which is predicated upon a five cent fare for existing lines and the new city system and the financing of the latter on the short term bond basis originated in 1925 by the board of transportation.

Girl Reported Kidnaped Found at Friend's Home

The reported kidnaping of Anna Otis, Austin High school girl, on Wednesday, yesterday faded into a voluntary leaving of home after an alleged quarrel with her mother. Mrs. Otis told police that she saw a man grab her daughter and drag the girl from her home at 4749 Fulton street. The girl's brother, Frank O'Day, told police his sister had left home voluntarily and was at the home of a friend. He produced her at the Austin police station, where she confirmed his story.

CITY CONSIDERS TAX LOAN OFFER OF $20,000,000

Special Council Meeting Called for Tomorrow.

Called in special meeting by Mayor Cermak, the city council tomorrow morning will consider a proposal for obtaining funds to replenish the city treasury and to pay come of the school board creditors.

The meeting is called on a proposition for the city to sell $20,000,000 worth of its 1930 tax anticipation warrants to the Associated Bond and Share corporation, 111 West Washington street. In return the company proposes to give the city probably $10,000,000 in cash and $10,000,000 worth of 1931 school board tax anticipation warrants.

A. T. Greeley, president of the concern, which has modestly furnished offices in the Conway building, said after the call for the council meeting was issued yesterday, that his company has $100,000,000 with which to buy up municipal securities. The intimation was given that this money represents eastern capital.

Greeley Reticent on Plan.

When asked to explain how his company proposes to obtain the 1931 school warrants it would turn over to the city, Mr. Greeley became reticent and made a plea not to "bring politics into this," and to "please let the company stay in business."

Efforts to learn the backers of the Associated Bond and Shares corporation were not successful. No information concerning the company could be obtained in New York nor in Chicago financial circles.

From Thomas V. Sullivan, attorney for the board of education, it was learned that the company has in mind purchasing 1931 tax warrants from school board creditors if the board will pay the creditors in such warrants. A possible explanation given by financial experts was that the company probably planned to buy the warrants at a discount.

President Myers Skeptical.

When asked about the plan, Lewis E. Myers, president of the board of education, appeared skeptical of it. The board has authorized the issuance of $10,000,000 worth of 1931 warrants which, if the proposal is carried through, could be given to creditors.

If $10,000,000 should be turned into the city treasury on such a proposition it seemed questionable yesterday whether it would be dispensed in salaries. The corporate fund is almost depleted and on Jan. 2 salary payments of about $1,000,000 to the police and fire departments were passed up. Other rolls coming due since then have raised the unpaid salaries to about $1,500,000, it was said.

Since bond and interest payments are due in July and collections of new revenue are in danger, due to the recent decision of County Judge Jarecki voiding the 1928 and 1929 assessments, it was considered problematical whether the money, if forthcoming, would leave the treasury for salary payments.

JUDGE WILL GRANT A WRIT TO COMPEL TAX ON PERSONALTY

Superior Judge Charles William yesterday indicated that he would grant a writ of mandamus to compel the board of review to place 13 billions of dollars' worth of personal property upon the 1930 tax rolls.

The order would force County Clerk Sweitzer to turn back to the reviewers the books from which the 1930 tax bills already are being prepared, and would delay indefinitely the collection of that levy. Attorney Roy Massena, who represented the reviewers in the suit, announced, however, that he would appeal the order and that the tax books would remain in the county clerk's hands pending the decision of the Illinois Supreme court.

The issuance of the writ will be the first court recognition of County Judge Jarecki's recent ruling that the 1928 and 1929 tax levies were invalid. Tax experts have held since then that the 1930 rolls also were invalid since they are based upon the same valuations which prevailed during the two previous years.

The Superior court petition for the writ was filed several months ago by the law firm of Watkins, Ten Hoor & Gilbert on behalf of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers.

JARECKI URGES CONSTITUTION AS REAL TAX CURE

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki appealed to members of the Chicago Bar association at luncheon yesterday to support a campaign to relieve the present tax crisis by "getting back to the constitution."

Quoting excerpts from the state and federal constitutions, Judge Jarecki said that a cancerous growth of fraud and corruption in tax assessing and tax spending in the country had made a mockery out of fundamental law, and that order could be restored only by a return to constitutional government.

The Chicago Real Estate board made public yesterday a resolution commending Judge Jarecki for his decision holding invalid the tax assessments rolls for 1928 and 1929. The judge's decision held that many millions of dollars in personal property had escaped taxation through willful frauds and failures of assessment officials.

STATE TO ISSUE TAX WARRANTS FOR $2,500,000

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP)—State tax anticipation warrants totaling $2,500,000 will be issued Monday to provide money for current operating expenses of the state government, State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett said today.

The warrants will not be sold to the public but will be bought by the motor fuel tax fund. With the warrants to be issued Monday, the total amount of the anticipation vouchers in possession of the gas tax fund will amount to $5,600,000.

State Treasurer Barrett also said today that he probably will have an announcement of his political intention for the Democratic primary ready next week.

RAID 4 ALLEGED HANDBOOKS.

Four alleged handbooks, two of them in the loop, were raided yesterday by Capt. Martin Mullen and his gambling squad. Nine men were seized. The places visited were at 16 West Jackson boulevard, 177 North State, 1946 East 71st street, and 2351 Van Buren street.

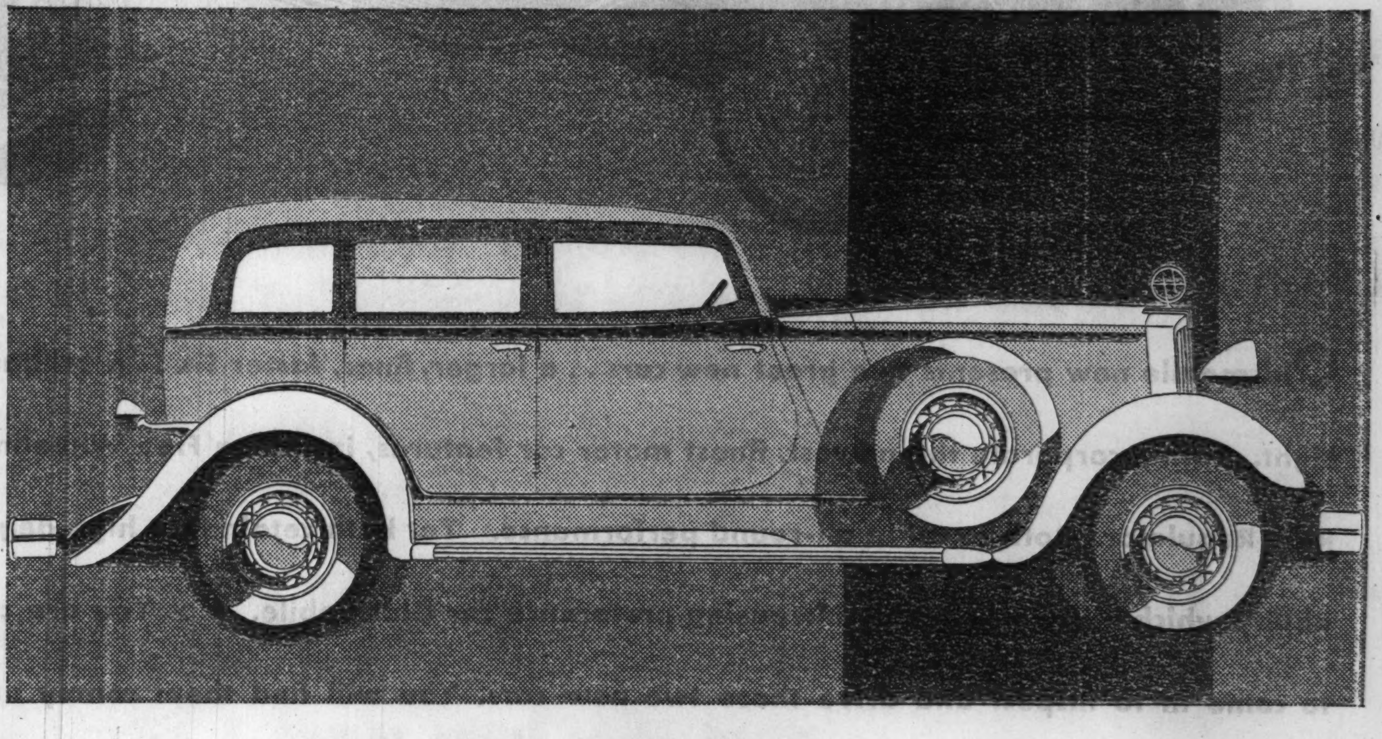
A NEW CAR • FOR A NEW AGE



THE NEW HUPMOBILES

1932 speaking! Shrewd, critical, money-wise 1932 is voicing its demands. Stating the motor car requirements of this new value-seeking age: "Smash the old barriers between the modest purse and the beauty and behavior of the finest custom cars! We want more power, more speed, more comfort, luxury, and safety! We want the kind of medium-priced car we have never seen before!" Hupmobile answers . . . with a New Car for a New Age.

Extreme lowness. Streamlined running boards. Snug fenders. V-type radiator. Longer wheelbase. Extra-wide doors. Wide, comfortable seats. Automatically controlled shock-absorbers. Fully-insulated bodies. Airplane type instruments. Increased power and speed. Genuine Free-Wheeling. Synchro-Silent transmission. Controlled oil temperature—the oil is cooled in summer and warmed in winter. And 85 more outstanding features in the new "Hundred Feature" Hupmobile.

These two highlight the show!

Grand Central Palace, New York, January 9:—The curtain rising today on the New York Automobile Show reveals with eye-smiting clearness just why the motor car industry has been saying: "Watch Hudson!" Here, made real in metal and enamel and fabric—glowing in the pride of their beauty, power and grace—are the car-builder's ambition and the car-owner's desire: two refreshingly new lines of automobiles, pacemakers in look and action—the 1932 Hudson Eight and the 1932 Essex Super-Six! The first-day's crowds got it instantly—one glance and they were won. They saw, with appreciation and delight, in the longer, lower, sweeping lines of these new cars, the capture of the airplane's "speeds and streams" of form. They saw thrilling new colors of gem-like clarity and brilliance, impressive advances in engineering design, an ingenuity and perfection of detail and equipment that may well furnish patterns for the industry for months to come. Unmistakably, by force of outstanding character, performance and value, the new Hudson and the new Essex step out now for special attention and preferential consideration. In making their bow to 1932 at Grand Central Palace they certainly are getting it. These two highlight the show!

Hudson Motor Car Company, Detroit, Michigan

What They're Saying at the Show:
An Editorial Note from the Show Review Columns of The New York Evening Journal

"A veteran automobile man, who despite his experience and his years still gets a thrill out of something rare in motor looks and performance, remarked that his young daughter saw and tried the new Hudson, and said: 'It's like young fire'!"

GANDHI MEN SIT IN ROAD 4 DAYS; BEATEN BY POLICE

"Patience Contest" Ends in a Rout.

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Jubbulpore's nationalists won their "patience contest" with the police today but lost their position on the main street of the city, where they had been squatting since last Tuesday.

The contest started when police forbade a parade that had been scheduled by the followers of Mahatma Gandhi, whereupon they settled in the middle of the road and refused to budge.

Chased Out by Police.

Police, working in shifts, kept guard over them night and day. Today the local magistrate decided the contest had gone far enough and gave the nationalists five minutes in which to clear out. They remained in their places until the police charged them with lathis [staves] and then, offering no resistance, they dispersed. Three leaders were arrested.

In Bombay a group of nationalist women picketers succeeded in causing the stock exchange to close. From their picket line they asked members not to transact business because all other markets in the city were not operating. The president of the exchange complied with their request to avoid unpleasantness.

India generally was quiet today, the Nationalists apparently being overawed by the series of restrictive emergency ordinances. For the most part they confined their activities to the boycott—the one weapon against which they believe neither bullets nor ordinances can prevail.

Impound Bank Accounts.

The authorities continued their drive by impounding the bank accounts of leaders of the all-India National congress party. It was thought likely that wealthy sympathizers with the congress movement would provide funds surreptitiously.

At Cawnpore, M. N. Roy, a communist leader, was deported for twelve years on a charge of "conspiracy to wage war against the king." This was the first deportation sentence of the present controversy.

16 MORE CITED IN CITY'S WAR ON SMOKE EVIL

Sixteen persons and business concerns were summoned yesterday by Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, to appear at his office tomorrow to explain the emission of dense smoke from chimneys on their properties. Those summoned are:

Charles C. Blish, receiver, 8015 Avalon avenue.
Charles Tuggey, 6150 Dorchester avenue.
Cochran & McCluer, 550 Arlington place.
A. R. Thompson company, 213 East Illinois street.
Adam May, 1613 North Harding avenue.
Sears, Roebuck & Co., 6153 South Western avenue.
American Furniture and Novelty company, 2617 Flournoy street.
Euclid hotel, 6733 Stony Island avenue.
The Delany Heald company, 7159 Stony Island avenue.
Wabash railroad freight house, 27 Roosevelt road.
C. Miller, 7820 South Sangamon street.
C. Sweetack, 4527 South Fairfield avenue.
B. Santowski, 2175 Maplewood avenue.
E. H. Johnson, receiver, 1407 Wicker Park avenue.
B. Harberg, 1531 South Kedvale avenue.
Kershaw Public school, 6431 South Union avenue.

A warning will be given by Chambers at the hearing that if any of those summoned violate the city's smoke abatement ordinance within 30 days after the hearing action will be taken in the Municipal court to abate the nuisance.

OBTAIN WRIT TO PROTECT PRIVATE FUNERAL AUTOS

A temporary injunction restraining members of the Auto Livery Chauffeurs' union from interfering with funeral processions in which private automobiles are driven was issued yesterday by Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel. The Chicago Funeral Directors association asked the action. The judge refused the request of the morticians' association for an injunction restraining union drivers from refusing to drive in funeral processions in which private automobiles were driven.

In issuing the temporary injunction Judge Gentzel said, "Essentially I wish to protect the public from a conspiracy, if it should exist, between the morticians and the union. While I cannot force union drivers to participate in a cortége if they do not wish to do so, they must be restrained from interfering with these processions."

The Chicago board of trade post of the American Legion yesterday adopted a resolution opposing the efforts of the union drivers to prohibit the use of privately owned automobiles in funeral processions. The resolution stated that American Legion conducted funeral would be greatly hampered by such a ruling.

Dog's Fire Alarm Arouses Family

MRS. BREASTED'S AUTO HITS WIFE OF A PROFESSOR

Mrs. Mary Isabell Wood, 58 years old, 5744 Kenwood avenue, wife of Prof. Frank E. Wood, a retired educator, was struck and seriously injured yesterday by an automobile driven by Mrs. Frances Breasted, wife of Dr. James H. Breasted, director of the oriental institute of the University of Chicago, as she was crossing 57th street at Blackstone avenue.

At the Billings Memorial hospital, where she was taken by Mrs. Breasted, Mrs. Wood was found to be suffering from severe lacerations of the scalp, a possible concussion of the brain, and general shock. Physicians said she would recover.

According to the police the accident was unavoidable. Mrs. Wood confirmed their report. There are no traffic lights at the corner. Mrs. Breasted, driving her own car, was going east in 57th street and was making a turn north into Blackstone avenue when Mrs. Wood started to cross the street from the south to the north side. Police questioned Mrs. Breasted at the hospital, but did not detain her.

One death yesterday caused by an automobile accident increased the Cook county toll to 34 since Jan. 1. The victim:

Mrs. Arlene Johnson, 32 years old, colored, 443 East 46th place. Died at the Dailey hospital of injuries suffered when she was run down at Cottage Grove avenue and 63d street. The driver was Merle Mulligan, 10421 Church street.

Policemen Harry Sullivan and Joseph Conlon were slightly injured last night when their squad automobile was struck by a 55th street surface car at Drexel avenue.

Robs Theater, Menaces a Pursuer and Escapes

Thrusting a pistol, wrapped inside a newspaper, through the ticket window of the Grove motion picture theater at 7620 Cottage Grove avenue, a robber last night forced Mrs. Eva Fitzgerald, 1704 West 84th street, the cashier, to surrender $30. As he left, Mrs. Fitzgerald signaled to Al Boynton, an usher. Boynton pursued the bandit on foot, but was halted near 77th street when the gunman turned around and threatened to kill him. Boynton fell back and the robber escaped in an automobile containing an accomplice.

TRAIN KILLS COUPLE IN AUTO.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. William Nicholson, Carmel, were killed this afternoon near Nora, Ind., when their automobile was demolished by a Chicago bound Monon passenger train.

Smoke in Home

Max, the watchdog of the George Schroeder family at 3222-3224 North Clark street, set up a wild howl yesterday morning. Awakened by the noise, Schroeder, his wife, and their sons, Kenneth, 7 years old, and George Jr., 13, found their apartment filled with smoke. The front staircase was blocked by flames, and the family, in their nightclothes, fled to safety down the rear stairway. Damage to the building, a four story frame structure, was estimated at $10,000.

O'BRIEN, TRAVEL WRITER, IS DEAD IN WEST AT 62

Sausalito, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Frederick O'Brien, 62, noted author, journalist and wanderer in far away places, died at his home here today. He was a victim of heart disease that attacked him six months ago.

Perhaps best known for his book, "White Shadows in the South Seas," O'Brien lived a life full of adventure and romance, including travel and newspaper work in many countries.

Survivors include a sister, Miss May Claire O'Brien, of 8 West 13th street, New York City.

DIES FROM PLUNGE OUT WINDOW.

Galesburg, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Walter Swanson, 35, died today of a broken back suffered when she plunged from a fourth story window while suffering a nervous breakdown.

GIRL'S FATHER FOUND GUILTY OF KILLING ESCORT

Illinois Physician Faces 14 Year Term.

Carthage, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Dr. Clyde L. Casey of La Harpe, Ill., was convicted tonight of murder in connection with the killing of a man who brought his 16 year old daughter, Jayne, home from a party late at night.

The jury recommended a penalty of 14 years imprisonment, the lightest sentence possible in Illinois for conviction on a murder charge.

The jury deliberated about four hours as to whether Dr. Casey was guilty of murdering Homer Peck, 28, a former school teacher, on the night of Nov. 3.

The tragedy occurred after Peck and a party of young folks had driven the doctor's daughter home. Members of the party testified all had drunk to excess and that only one was capable of driving their automobile.

Accident, Is Defense.

Dr. Casey, dressed in hunting clothes, had gone out to remonstrate with Peck and the others for keeping Miss Casey out so late. He seized the keys to the youths' car to prevent the mfrom driving away, he said, and later, in reaching in his pocket for them, withdrew the pistol also, with which they had become entangled.

He was talking with Peck, he said, the pistol in his hand, when the automobile started backwards down an incline, and struck his elbow, causing him accidentally to discharge the pistol. The bullet struck Peck in the chin, coursed along his spine, and came out his back.

Peck died soon afterwards in a La Harpe hospital, while Dr. Casey was preparing to operate upon him.

Witnesses Change Stories.

Two hospital nurses testified that at that time Royal and Lyle Landis, brothers, and state's witnesses, who were members of the party, told them the shooting was accidental and assured the physician they would "stand back of him."

On the stand, however, they said Dr. Casey had walked to the car, drawn his pistol, and deliberately shot Peck.

BANDITS POSE AS MESSENGERS AND ROB WOMAN

Two robbers, posing as telegraph messengers, entered the apartment of Mrs. Lillian Webb, 39 years old, at 6206 Blackstone avenue late last night. They admitted a third man. One of the trio tried to attack her, but she fought him away. They then gagged and tied her and thrust her in a small closet.

The bandits then took two rings valued at $700, and a $10 bill, and fled. Mrs. Webb untied herself after an hour. She notified police over the telephone of a neighbor after discovering the bandits had severed the wires leading to her apartment.

HOLDUP MEN GET $190.

Two gunmen forced Frank Mejstrik, 8048 Elizabeth street, an attendant in a gas station at 7316 Cottage Grove avenue, to hand over $190 yesterday.

OHIO MAN ADMITS 'MERCY' SLAYING OF HIS OWN SON

Child Suffering from Brain Disease.

Millersburg, O., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Because his 2 year old son suffered from an incurable brain disease, Charles S. Stanhouse, a quarry worker living near here, administered a fatal portion of chloroform "to put him out of his misery."

Stanhouse, according to Sheriff John A. Stevens, to whom the confession of the "mercy" murder was voluntarily made last night, committed the act in September, 1929, following a drunken orgy which lasted three weeks.

Confesses to Sheriff.

While details of the murder are lacking in Stanhouse's confession, Stevens said the man, accompanied by his wife, appeared at the county jail last night and told how he bought chloroform three weeks before the murder.

"I took my boy, David Oscar, to a brain specialist in Cleveland," Stanhouse told Stevens, "when he was a little more than a year old.

"The doctor told me it was doubtful he would ever recover, but he told me to come back in six months. I went back and the doctor said he would carry the effects of the malady throughout his life.

"I decided right there what course I would take," Stanhouse said. "So I bought some chloroform and took it to my home in Glenmont.

Can't Recall Details.

"It took a lot of courage to give it to the baby," Stanhouse said, "but I started to drink and kept it up for three weeks—then one night I came home and found the baby in a fainting spell.

"These spells were common with the baby—but this one was worse than usual. So I got out the chloroform."

Stanhouse did not remember whether he gave the child the poison as a drink or whether he administered it in the form of an anaesthetic. After administering the poison, he called a doctor, but the child was dead before he could be revived.

Stanhouse was arrested pending the outcome of the sheriff's investigation.

PAUL ROBESON CONCERT WILL HELP NURSERY

Paul Robeson, Negro actor and singer, will come from London to lend a helping hand to the Helping Hand Community Day nursery here, it was announced yesterday. He will appear in a concert on Feb. 1 at Orchestra hall under the direction of Bertha Ott.

During the last eleven years the Helping Hand nursery, founded by the Olivet Baptist church, has cared for 7,000 children while their mothers worked. The nursery is at 3146 Vernon avenue. Here children are fed, taught how to play, and given general care looking toward their future welfare. The staff is under the direction of Miss N. M. Johnson, superintendent. Dr. S. W. Smith is president and medical director.

The nursery has been conducted for both white and colored mothers, and is an agency recognized by the Chicago Council of Social Agencies and other charities.

DRUG STORE IS HELD UP.

"Funerals by Hursen" Of Course

Hursen Chapels are today recognized as the finest institutions of the kind in this country. The North Side chapel, particularly, is a masterpiece of beauty, massiveness, facilities and arrangements. It has recently been remodeled. The South Side and West Side Chapels are palaces, convenient for the smaller or the largest funerals.

All Hursen automobile equipment, the finest things on wheels, was built for Hursen along Hursen special designs. Yet the charge is no greater than for equipment far less desirable.

There is no charge for the use of any of the three Hursen Chapels, each equipped with organs of unmatchable tone and size. The charges for Hursen funerals are less than the charges usually made elsewhere. So, call Hursen, of course!

Gentlemen:

Pursuant to your request we have appraised your stock of furniture and furnishings, located on the seventh floor at the above address. This work has been executed by staff appraisers from our Residence Division. A personal inspection of each item was made, and a valuation was placed by them upon printed and numbered tags which are sealed to each article.

The values established represent our opinion of the fair value of each item at this time. It is the value we would place upon the items should we find them a part of the furnishings of a private home. The valuation was made entirely without knowledge of the cost to you of the items appraised, and without any knowledge of your proposed selling price.

Our appraisers found a large stock of excellent pieces comprising French, Italian and English antiques, reproductions, and objects of art.

Yours very truly,

THE AMERICAN APPRAISAL COMPANY

MOSCOW USING FOOD AS BAIT IN KENTUCKY HILLS

Hungry Miners Swallow Soup and Sovietism.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pineville, Ky., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Here in the shadow of Pine mountain, in the center of a coal bearing area that covers parts of Virginia, Tennessee, and Kentucky, communism has taken its latest stand in this country. It is sowing its seed of social revolution along the valleys and creek beds of the Cumberlands, among the descendants of the pioneers who first penetrated the western wilderness in the days of Washington.

That it is meeting with some temporary success is due primarily to the dark economic situation in the coal fields. It is promising to feed the hungry and clothe the naked and bring about a better social order. It is led by clever, trained agitators from New York and Pittsburgh, and some supplies are being given out to the strikers who have accepted membership in the National Miners union. The local charity organization refuse to feed any one who is so tainted. The food issue seems to dominate the situation at present.

Nurtured by Depression.

The ground work for this condition, which already has produced two threatened riots and promises more trouble, is found in the troubles of the coal operators in keeping their mines open under the reduced demands, and in the failure of the United Mine Workers of America to organize this field. It extends into Harlan, Bell, and Knox counties in this state, where the operators have kept the conservative union from organizing, and where miners have been blacklisted and discharged for trying to improve their condition in this way.

On ground made fertile by the organizers of the United Mine Workers the Red agitators moved in and are reaping the harvest. The operators refuse to sign a contract with the United Mine Workers officials, even on a basis of a competitive wage scale. The officials of this organization have pointed out that in the Pittsburgh region one of the great coal companies have recently made a contract with the union, whereupon miners who had been nominal members of the Red organization turned and drove out the soviet agitators.

Trouble Comes to Valley.

Fresh from the field and armed with communistic literature and membership cards, Vincent Kemenovich, Vern Smith, and others of the international labor defense and other communist organizations came to this old valley, deep in the hills, a few weeks ago and have stirred up more trouble than has ever been known in this community.

The first question asked about a stranger now is whether he is a bolshevik. The Red agitators have been put in jail under a doubtful clause of the criminal syndicalism law, but more keep coming in, and so far the county authorities have not considered it safe to bring the prisoners to trial.

Officials of this county have always been considered friendly to the miners and they have not taken the strong methods that the Harlan county group took, which resulted in several murders in that community. There is a gentler feeling here, not against the agitators from the east, but toward the miners who have been led into following their banner. It is just ignorance, they say, on the part of the miners and they will soon go back to work.

Legion Taking Hand.

Preachers are trying to stem the tide, and the American Legion, Kiwanis and other organizations are active with counter education. The miners, it is thought, are not aware that the National Miners union is a creation of the propaganda bureau of Moscow and will desert when they find this out. In the literature seized at the headquarters of the communists opened here were booklets urging them to fight and "defend the United States of soviet Russia." with mimeograph instructions how to carry on the strike and instructions on how to act when arrested. All officers are referred to as "your enemies." One picture showed a judge cowering behind his bench and a worker pointing a threatening finger at him.

It has been the policy, apparently, of the group of ten organizers, including six women now under arrest and waiting a hearing, to have a crowd of strikers gather in town during the trials to intimidate the judge and prosecutors. This has happened on two occasions—last Tuesday and again Thursday.

1,500 Invade Town.

On Tuesday a crowd of at least 1,500 men came in. When the county attorney and prosecutor, Walter B. Smith, heard of the approach of these groups from the surrounding counties, suposedly armed, he asked for help from the sheriff at Harlan, John Henry Blair. The sheriff sent ten men armed with machine guns. They came in two cars and pulled up along the courthouse square, facing the crowd. About noon of that day it was reported that the miners were going to take the guns away from the officers and the deputies went up on the porch of the Continental hotel, famous as the scene of the "toothpick indictment" of Theodore Dreiser, and ranged themselves, with the porch as a barricade, in front of them, and the lobby of the hotel cleared of strangers. They stood in a row, waiting for trouble. A pistol shot from the crowd would have resulted in a battle at that moment.

The chief of police finally persuaded the miners to move to the other side of the square and the deputies to go inside the hotel, and trouble was averted. Then Thursday another large group appeared in town, marching with American flags. The cases have now been put off until Tuesday, with prospects of another gathering.

Nothing has ever been done about the indictment of Dreiser and his group under the criminal syndicalist act. That act has recently been held unconstitutional by the court of appeals and it is doubtful if it will hold in these cases. The object, however, is not so much a trial and punishment as it is to drive the agitators out of the community and keep them out. This has been the procedure followed in Harlan county, where a number of agitators were indicted in this act and then permitted to leave the county.

Strike Began Jan. 1.

The extent of the present strike is hard to estimate. It has spread rapidly since Jan. 1 and has closed many mines. The number of miners who have answered the call of the National Miners union is estimated from a thousand upward. The communist union warns the men against the United Mine Workers, and calls on the strikers to stand fast for their demands.

"The coal operators are using every means at their command," the call states, "in an attempt to prevent the strike. Their attempts to smash the strike will be even greater. They will try to intensify terror. They will repeat their hypocritical cry that the National Miners union is calling this strike to destroy religion, abolish the government and God. The purpose of the strike is to defeat the existing starvation conditions and the brutal terror of the coal operators. The picket committee, the defense committee, and the relief committee shall be set up in every mine. The Negroes, the women, and the youth must have adequate representation on all the committees. Mass picketing will win the strike."

It is reported today that many men are going back to work, but the court house is filled with miners, milling aimlessly about, and the prisoners in the jail are having many visitors.

Labor Speaker Arrested.

Harvey Collett, who is said to have made speeches to the miners during this trouble, was arrested today on a federal liquor charge. Two guns were found in his possession and a number of account and note books showing the activities of the strike leaders.

He will be "out of circulation for some time," according to the prosecutor.

The only thing approaching a demonstration today was the gathering of a hundred or so miners on the courthouse steps to talk and sing hymns. They were a thin, half starved looking group, dressed in ragged garments. They lifted their voices to the old hills of their forefathers in songs of the glories awaiting them in some land beyond this life, which has offered them so little. They were old mountain hymns, with something of the beat of Negro spirituals and told of love and the Savior.

Around them were the barriers of the great hills, with pine trees climbing rocky slopes to a cold gray horizon.

They shivered and sang "Put Your Shoulder to the Wheel," and a shaggy old preacher talked from a text of Jeremiah, and had much of the flavor of that mighty prophet in his discourse.

This land which they inherited has been taken by corporations and aliens and the wealth of coal brought out of it in the last few years has meant little to them, and indeed little profit to the state. As a flowering civilization it is a poor spectacle, and may explain something of the appeal of the communist agitators.

It is certain, however, that no one is going to talk "God out of the skies" for them and as soon as they comprehend this phase of the soviet movement they will desert it. Their religion is a very vital thing.

Witness and Prewitt Clash.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—John Huckelbuck, a miner witness for the defense, clashed repeatedly with the court today at the murder trial of William Hightower.

Huckelbuck refused to answer questions "yes" and "no" until threatened with a jail sentence by Judge Henry R. Prewitt. He said while being cross-examined:

"The officers started all this trouble," he shouted at one point "and the law wants to finish it. They have been going around punching the poor laboring men and they got tired of it. I have worked miles under the hills to get bread for my children. Conditions were bad and we wanted to organize a union to better them."

Late this afternoon Joe Caywood, defense witness who was arrested yesterday on warrant for perjury sworn to by Sol Smith, state witness, swore out a warrant before County Judge Senff charging that Smith had sworn falsely at both the trials of W. B. Jones and Hightower. When arrested Smith gave bond, with John Henry Blair, sheriff, as surety in the sum of $1,000. The cases against both men have been set for trial Jan. 20.

BOND INCREASED

LOUIS ALTERIE.
[Acme Photo.]

Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office yesterday received word from Denver that the bond of Louis Alterie, indicted for kidnaping in Chicago, had been increased from $2,500 to $20,000 and the former gangster had been released on this bond after being placed in the custody of a Colorado sheriff.

State's Attorney Swanson had sent a wire to Judge Robert W. Steel of Denver asking the bond increase. A hearing on a writ of habeas corpus for Alterie was continued to Jan. 23 pending a hearing by Gov. W. H. Adams of Colorado on Alterie's extradition to Illinois. Alterie's attorney is fighting extradition, charging that the kidnaping indictment is a "frame-up."

Alterie was charged in the indictment of having aided in the kidnaping last March of Edward Dobkin, a gambler, who paid $8,000 as ransom before he was released.

The New Six Sedan $845

New DODGE
SIX AND EIGHT
with Floating Power
AUTOMATIC CLUTCH with Silent Gear Selector and FREE WHEELING

A new achievement in silent, effortless motion and easy, positive control . .

DODGE PROUDLY PRESENTS two new cars which give results so astonishing that no possible description can quite prepare you for the sensation you will get at the wheel.

Floating Power as applied to the new Dodge six- and eight-cylinder engines, produces a power flow so liquid-smooth that comparing it to electricity only partly does it justice.

The Dodge Automatic Clutch co-ordinated with the entirely separate Dodge Free Wheeling mechanism, enables you to drive without ever touching the clutch pedal.

You simply drive as though there were no clutch. You can shift to low, to second, to high—or back down again—at any speed, standing still, or under any circumstances whatever. Nor do you have to touch the clutch to reverse ... the whole operation is completely automatic.

There are no extra things to learn. No extra pedals or buttons to push. No way to make a mistake. Driving is not complicated, it is simplified—to a point that engineers have often dreamed of, but never before achieved.

Nor is that all. Shifting is completely effortless with the Silent Gear Selector. You can move the shifting lever as easily and silently as you turn the page of a book. And Weatherproof Hydraulic Brakes of greatly increased size with newly designed drums give braking control that is unexcelled for ease of operation and equalized, positive action.

A single control on the dash enables you to lock out both the Automatic Clutch and Free Wheeling—effecting instant change to conventional drive.

Dodge is proud of these cars. Proud that they offer engineering progress that goes beyond everything that has previously been known. Proud of their beauty. Proud of their size and comfort. Proud of their already-proved factors of body and chassis design which give them highly advanced stability and safety.

Dodge is proud to invite you to drive these cars. Confident that their buoyant responsiveness, their silent, pulse-quickening pace will give you the most delightful experience you have ever had in a motor car.

Dodge commends them to you as a great forward stride in engineering—and more. With all of their advancements, with all of their flashing speed, smoothness and lightning-quick responsiveness, they are true Dodge cars—economical to buy, economical to drive—typical products of Dodge Dependability.

For Dodge continues to believe that the most important thing about a motor car is that it be a good motor car.

There is only one way to appreciate what these cars are, what they can do, what they mean in terms of what the dollar can buy today. Take the wheel—the cars themselves will tell you.

ALLMAN SHIFTS 14 CAPTAINS IN POLICE SHAKEUP

54 Other Policemen Are Transferred.

Fourteen police captains, seven lieutenants and forty-seven sergeants and patrolmen were transferred to new stations in an order issued by Police Commissioner James P. Allman last night. The shift, the biggest one affecting captains in years, and the most important thus far in Allman's régime, is effective technically at one minute after midnight tonight. Actually the change will apply generally at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The issuance of the transfer order followed rumors that it was coming. Questioned about the move before the order was actually issued, Commissioner Allman said only that it was "for the good of the service." He added no further explanation last night. Reports however, hinted that Mayor Cermak, now out of the city, was instrumental in making the change. It was also rumored the shift was probably inspired by a desire to break alleged police cliques.

Capt. Lee Shifted.

One of those affected by the Allman order is Capt. Michael Lee, commander of the Englewood district for the last twelve years. His long tenure in one district is a record. Lee goes to the first deputy's roll, generally considered a benching. Lee is a cousin of First Deputy Commissioner John Alcock. Another ordered to the deputy's roll is Capt. Martin J. O'Malley. Technically he is transferred from Summerdale station, but he has not been in active command there for some time on account of illness.

The other twelve captains and their old and new assignments are:

Patrick Kelliher, from detective bureau to Fillmore.

Michael Tobin, from Brighton Park to Englewood.

George P. O'Connor, technically from Pekin to Brighton Park.

Richard P. Gill, from Des Plaines to Summerdale.

Lieutenants Transferred.

The lieutenants transferred and their new stations are: Frank J. Malone, Warren avenue; Patrick J. Carmody, Des Plaines; Garrett B. Coan, Kensington; George Lynch, Austin; Alva C. Stevesson, Marquette; Arthur W. Mooney, Marquette, and Thomas Ward, Stockyards.

Only four sergeants are included in the order. They are Joseph Murray, John T. Gilfeather, William Recker and Joseph G. Murrin. The others are patrolmen.

PROM QUEEN

Miss Louise Dvorak of Berwyn, former Oak Park High school student, now enrolled at University of Wisconsin, who has been picked by Edward Kinsley of Elgin, junior prom king for 1932, as the Wisconsin prom queen. The prom will be held next Saturday. The announcement was made in Madison last night at the pre-prom dance.

ASKS CASH BACK ON HIS UNUSED LICENSE TO WED

Wabash, Ind., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—After more than 18 months W. D. Burkhart has discovered there has been a depression going on in the country.

Today he appeared at the county clerk's office here and asked for a refund of $2 which he paid in May, 1930, for a marriage license and also a $3 refund which he paid for a little white book in which was to be kept the record of his marriage to Margaret Wisenberg of Peru, Ind. Neither the marriage license nor the book had ever been used, Burkhart told the clerk, adding, "I have no regrets that the marriage was not performed, but I would like to have the money back now, because I need it."

There is no provision for making a refund in such cases, so Burkhart, who gave his occupation as "student" and address as "Wabash college, Crawfordsville, Ind.," when he applied for the license, is now no better off financially than he was yesterday.

"Representative of Labor" Is Sought in Slaying Quiz

An unidentified man who described himself as a "representative of organized labor," was sought by Fillmore street police last night in connection with the slaying of Robert W. Wesenberg, 4435 Washington boulevard, a building worker. Wesenberg was shot and killed near his home on Jan. 7.

$99,100 STOLEN FROM U. S. MAIL FOUND IN POUCH

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 9.—(AP)—A mail pouch containing $99,100 in currency, several packages of valuable jewelry, and a bundle of securities were recovered by postal inspectors and Lowell police today.

Victor L. Magoon, 36, a postal clerk, led the inspectors and policemen to a lonely spot in Tewksbury woods where, the authorities said, he had thrown the pouch behind some bushes. Meanwhile, Louis Skaff, 23, driver of a mail truck, sat in police headquarters charged with having aided Magoon in his attempt to outwit one of the government's most efficient police organizations.

The inspectors said both men confessed their parts in the theft, committed on Dec. 31. The remaining $900 of the $100,000 which had been in the pouch when it was stolen was found, the investigators said, in a glass jar in the cellar of Magoon's home.

The police said Magoon told them he conspired with Skaff to steal the pouch. He said, the inspectors asserted, he was constructing two weatherproof boxes in which he planned to bury the contents of the pouch until the investigation had quieted down and then split the money with Skaff.

A lineman for a power company found an empty mail pouch in the Tewksbury woods Thursday and police believed this was the one that had been stolen, but developments proved it had nothing to do with the case.

The certificates in the pouch were to have been delivered to the Commercial Union Insurance company at New York and the money was being sent by the Union-Old Lowell National bank for deposit with the Federal Reserve bank at Boston.

Skaff provided $10,000 in bonds for appearance in federal court. Magoon, unable to get bonds, was taken to jail.

FOUND DEAD IN SHAFT.

Evidently the victim of a fall, James O'Shea, 55 years old, 3006 Archer avenue, was found dead yesterday at the bottom of an elevator shaft in the warehouse of the city water pipe extension bureau at 3150 South Sacramento avenue. He was employed there as a watchman.

CHICAGO WATER GOES INTO PIPES IN FOREST PARK

The 18,000 residents of Forest Park began drinking Chicago water yesterday afternoon. The suburb officials turned the valves at the village water works, Jackson boulevard and Des Plaines avenue, sending Chicago water into the pipes, which had heretofore been supplied by artesian wells. Forest Park officials decided to purchase Chicago water when they were faced with the possibility of dry wells and mounting costs. A pipe line was constructed, connecting the Chicago pipes at Austin boulevard and Harrison street, at a cost of $128,856.

Among those present at the ceremonies yesterday were President George Gold, Kurt Berliner, commissioner of health and safety, and Harry Huxhold, village clerk.

FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL.

A man registered as W. Williams was found dead in his room at the Aplin hotel, 27 East Harrison street, yesterday by the police. He was about 50 years old. The police are seeking his companion, who registered as C. S. Johns.

34 WARD CHIEFS TAKE PLEDGE TO OBEY EMMERSON

Declare for Leadership of Governor.

Thirty-four Republican ward committeemen attended a luncheon in the Bismarck hotel yesterday. Gov. Emmerson was to have been the chief guest, but he was unable to attend.

The committeemen unanimously adopted a resolution setting forth the accomplishments of Emmerson's administration and reaffirming faith in him as leader of the Republican party. The resolution was construed as an indication the committeemen will support Omer N. Custer, chairman of the state tax commission, for governor if Emmerson names Custer as his choice.

Represent Various Factions.

The committeemen represented all Republican factions with the exception of that of former Senator Charles S. Deneen. Many of the committeemen who were supporters of the former city administration and who have recently been given state patronage, were present.

The speakers were W. R. James, chairman of the meeting and head of the west park board; Edward F. Moore, former deputy commissioner of public works, now a member of the west park board; Louis Nettelhorst, secretary of the Lincoln park board; Charles Nowak, chairman of the state industrial commission; Charles Krutckoff, member of the state tax commission; Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] and Barney Cohen, director of the state department of labor.

The committeemen who attended and the wards they represented were:

2—Louis B. Anderson.
4—Charles Krutckoff.
5—John Leonard East.
7—Charles L. Gerds.
9—D. W. Jellema.
10—Elmer A. Brown.
11—William S. Finucane.
12—George D. King.
13—Felix F. Kucharski.
15—Ernest Withall.
17—William J. Balmer.
18—Herman C. Vandenberg.
19—Charles A. Nowak.
22—Harry A. Steinmeyer.
23—William Lass.
24—Paul W. Rothenberg.
26—James Curran.
27—William M. Garrison.
28—Alexander N. Todd.
30—Edward F. Moore.
31—James Vignola.
32—Eugene D. Sullivan.
33—Daniel D. Coffey.
34—Thomas A. Brockmeyer.
26—George Hitzman.
37—Eden T. Brekke.
38—John T. Dempsey.
39—Frank M. Kalteux.
40—John J. McKeone.
43—Charles G. Burmeister.
44—Thomas O. Wallace.
45—William H. Feigenbutz.
47—John J. Hoellen.
50—Louis Nettelhorst.

Committeemen Daniel A. Serritella [1st] and William H. Reid [16th] were represented by proxy. Others who attended the meeting were former County Treasurer George F. Harding; Herbert O. Crews, public administrator; former Judge George Barrett, former Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman, Ald. William V. Pacelli [20th], and Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th].

ACQUITTED

MRS. BERNICE O'CONNOR.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

CIGARET GIRL IS FREED BY JURY ON 2D BALLOT

Mrs. Bernice Wysofsky O'Connor, 24 years old, cabaret cigaret girl, was acquitted yesterday by a jury in Judge Phillip Sullivan's Criminal court on a charge of murdering her divorced husband, Edward J. O'Connor. The latter was shot and killed last July 31 as he broke into his former wife's flat at 4330 Lake Park avenue.

The jurors retired to deliberate after hearing instructions from the judge. On the first ballot, it was reported, the jurors stood 7 to 5 for acquittal. The second ballot, taken after the jury had lunch, showed a unanimous decision for acquittal.

Defense Attorneys Harold Levy and Emmett Byrne closed their side of the case without having Mrs. O'Connor take the witness stand. They depended on the testimony of other witnesses to show that O'Connor had on many occasions threatened to kill his former wife.

Candidate Malone to Talk at Church Club Tonight

OFFICER SEEKS ARISTOPHANES TO ARREST HIM

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9.—[U. P.]—A sadder but wiser policeman today gave up his search for "this guy, Aristophanes."

The search was instituted after police raided a presentation of the 2,300 year old drama, "Lysistrata," and arrested 53 performers on charges of giving an indecent performance.

After the cast had been booked at the police court a member of the raiding squad was told to find the author, if possible, and take him into custody. A fruitless hunt ensued and finally the officer was told the Greek playwright, Aristophanes, had died about 380 B. C.

Meanwhile producers of the play obtained an injunction restraining police from further interference with the show.

SEARCH FOR MISSING MAN.

A search has been started for James E. Cooper, 45 years old, who disappeared three years ago, following the report of his mother, Mrs. C. Cooper, 5601 Wabansia avenue, that his father, J. Cortland Cooper, is seriously ill in a hospital at Berkeley, Cal.

MRS. GROSS WINS LIFE INCOME ON DISPUTED TRUST

Another phase of the complicated legal controversies involving Capt. Christian Channing Gross of Chicago and his former wife, Mrs. Virginia Harrison Gross, was ironed out yesterday when a suit over the disposal of $250,000 was settled in New York.

Yesterday's settlement in New York involved the return of a gift of $250,000 which Mrs. Gross said she gave her husband while they were in Algiers and which, she claimed, was to have been repaid her by terms of a separation arranged in Paris some years ago.

Under yesterday's agreement Mrs. Gross is to receive the income from the $250,000 in trust until her death, when the trust fund is to be divided equally between their children, Peter Christian Channing Gross and Barbara Gross.

Anna Gross, youngest child of Mrs. Gross, was not mentioned in the agreement. Last September Judge Joseph B. David handed down a decision that Anna was the daughter and one of the heirs of Capt. Gross.

WHOLE FLOCK OF BRITISH ESTATES PUT UP FOR SALE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The real estate market today saw a fresh supply of ancestral acres put up for sale by the hard pressed nobility. Lord Reay, young chief of Clan Mackay, is trying to sell Earlston, his last Scottish property.

The earl of Dalhousie has sold his Scottish seat of that name to the maharajah of Alwar, who has frequently rented it for deer hunting. The earl's grandfather, known as the "great annexer," attempted to subdue Alwar while viceroy.

The duke of Westminster is selling more of his rural and urban property to meet taxation and several owners of other estates are seeking wealthy American tenants. The duke of Rutland, owner of famous Haddon hall, and Earl Fortescue, owner of Mount Edgecombe, are among these. The duke of Beaufort, nephew by marriage of Queen Mary, is reported to have found it impossible to keep up Badminton, one of the stateliest mansions in England. He is said to be dickering with a Bourbon prince for a long lease.

Identified as Woman Sought by N. Y. Police

A woman identified as Mrs. Helen Knopman, 50 years old, who died in the county hospital early yesterday morning after a heart attack in a west side restaurant, has been sought by the New York police since Nov. 1, when she disappeared from her home at 809 Park place, Brooklyn. Sergt. Joseph Starshak of the missing persons bureau, said that he had been asked to search for her. She had given her address as the Park Row hotel, 4144 Roosevelt road, but at the hotel it was said she had not lived there. She was also known as Helen Baron, and two letters, addressed to Gov. Roosevelt of New York, and Samuel Seabury asking for interviews, were found in her purse.

SPECIAL SHOWING TWO NEW LINCOLNS

THE NEW LINCOLN V-8 . . . 5-PASSENGER SEDAN—$3200 AT DETROIT

The two new Lincolns—a V-8 cylinder—a V-12 cylinder—are now on display. The new V-8 is a true Lincoln in the full meaning of the term. Its modern beauty is typically Lincoln in line and finish. Priced from $2900 at Detroit for the Sport Roadster, the new V-8 brings Lincoln ownership within reach of more people than ever before. Like the V-12, it is characterized by workmanship that is expert and painstaking, by materials that are the finest obtainable, and by precision methods of construction that are world-famous. Its engine is the 60-degree V-type which has built the present Lincoln reputation. The V-12, an advanced expression of its makers' ideal, "a motor car as nearly perfect as it is possible to produce," is priced from $4300 at Detroit for the Sport Phaeton. This Lincoln has an immediate appeal to all who insist upon the ultimate in automobile transportation. You are cordially invited to inspect the two new Lincolns.

BUILDING IN SUBURBS FOR YEAR A FLOP

But December Gained 63% Over November.

BY AL CHASE.

[Real Estate Editor.]

There are two ways to analyze the suburban building figures for December, made public last night by S. W. Straus & Co., and still feel cheerful. One is to compare the December totals with those of the month preceding; you'll find an increase of 63%. The other is to look back a year and find that December, 1930, only gained 18% over the month preceding. In other words last month's gain over the month preceding was much more encouraging than the year previous.

This may seem like catching at a straw in order to line up the figures on the cheerful side of the picture, fo when one compares December's suburban figures with those of the same month of 1930 the picture is distinctly sad. But one has to do it in order to show actual conditions and he finds a loss of 44%.

For the person to whom percentages mean little and figures a lot, we'll give the totals. December's building permits in forty-seven suburbs totalled $1,117,280, as compared with $684,294 in November, 1931. That's the gain of 63% already mentioned.

December, 1930, building permits totaled $2,005,743, which accounts for for the already mentioned 44 per cent loss.

Year's Loss 57 Per cent.

Now while we're piling on the gloom we might as well make the unpleasant comparison of the entire year's building figures. There the loss was 57 per cent. The 1930 total was $32,082,514 and the 1931 total only $13,671,924.

Frederick Doyle, who collects these figures from the suburban communities has this to say: "It is to be hoped that the large December gain in permits for new construction carries a reasonable basis for belief that the building industry will in 1932 experience at least the beginning of a return to normal prosperity." Let's hope so.

Following are the comparative figures for December, 1931, and November, 1931. The totals for the year also are given:

Eleven of the forty-seven communities shown in the above table reported gains for December, 1931, over the preceding month, and the reason for the big total gain over November is found in only five towns where the increases were extraordinary not merely in percentages but in actual dollar volume.

East Chicago at Top.

The communities showing gains in December, 1931, as compared with December, 1930, were East Chicago, 2,522 per cent; Hinsdale, 306 per cent; Park Ridge, 302 per cent; Winnetka, 148 per cent, and Blue Island, 75 per cent.

The towns whose total volume of building permits for 1931 exceeded a million dollars each are Aurora, with $1,205,657; Hammond, with $3,383,799; Evanston, $3,251,250; Winnetka, $1,414,980; Oak Park, $1,249,183; Aurora, $1,205,657; Lake Forest, $1,082,600, and Cicero, $1,072,703. Gary probably would have achieved this honor roil but failed to make a report for December. Wilmette very nearly hit the million mark.

CALLS ACTIVITY IN SUBURBS A WELCOME SIGN

According to Stewart B. Matthews, manager of sales for Baird & Warner, the first real estate area to feel the impulse of betterment after a depression is suburbia. And he backs his assertion with figures showing that suburban buying began to increase during 1931 over 1930, and predicts 1932 will see a still larger gain. He states that in the Evanston office 1931 showed an increase of 40 per cent in the number of deals and 20 per cent in volume. In Baird & Warner's Glencoe and Highland Park offices he reports a gain in deals of 46 per cent, with an increase of 10 per cent in volume."

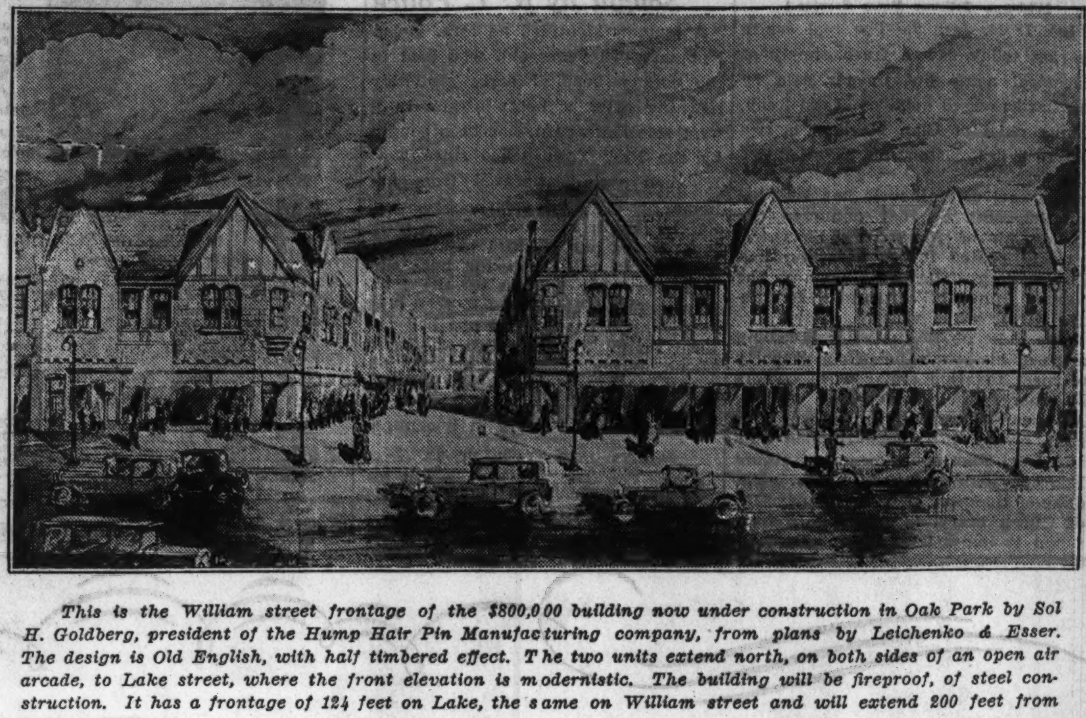
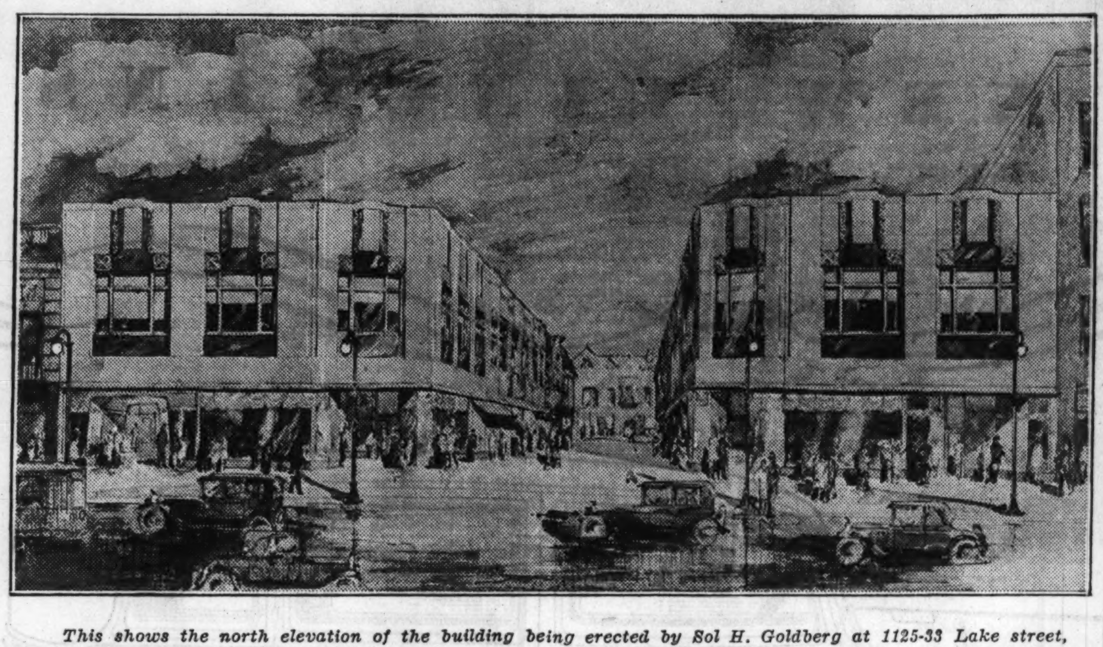
A BIT O' BRITAIN FOR OAK PARK



This is the William street frontage of the $800,000 building now under construction in Oak Park by Sol H. Goldberg, president of the Hump Hair Pin Manufacturing company, from plans by Leichenko & Esser. The design is Old English, with half timbered effect. The two units extend north, on both sides of an open air arcade, to Lake street, where the front elevation is modernistic. The building will be fireproof, of steel construction. It has a frontage of 124 feet on Lake, the same on William street and will extend 200 feet from Lake to William.

ON LAKE STREET—MODERNISTIC



This shows the north elevation of the building being erected by Sol H. Goldberg at 1125-33 Lake street, in Oak Park, which extends south to William street. The corner store, on your left, has ben leased to Hillman's for a food mart, and will open probably March 1. Leichenko & Esser, architects, have used a modernistic design for the Lake street facade and Old English for the William street front to harmonize with the development of that tiny thoroughfare into a typical British High street shopping center.

BOUL MICH HAS INITIAL LARGE LEASE FOR 1932

Henri, Hurst & McDonald, Inc., Chicago advertising agency, now in the Garland building, Wabash and Washington, have negotiated the first large office building lease of 1932, taking the entire eleventh floor of the McGraw-Hill building, 520 North Michigan avenue, for five years at a reported term rental of $100,000. L. S. Carpenter was broker. The lease begins May 1, but the lessees who have been in their present location for the last fourteen years, probably will move north on March 1. Remodeling of the new offices will begin at once.

W. B. HENRI.

In addition to all of the eleventh floor the lessees will have considerable space on the Grand avenue level and an option on additional floor area on the tenth floor.

"On the eleventh floor will be the departments of creative copy and art production, sales and service, finance and billing, media and research, arranged to obtain the maximum efficiency," said W. B. Henri, president of the firm. "A feature will be a unique radio audition room for producing private auditions for clients. It will be sound proof and acoustically treated."

Mr. Henri stated that business for his firm was better in 1931 than 1930 and, as a majority of his customers expect a considerably better volume of profits and sales during this year, the present expansion was decided upon.

SAYS FARMER IS NEVER HUNGRY OR OUT OF JOB

The First Realty company, of which Buckingham Chandler is president, has entered a new field. The Federal Land Bank of New Orleans has employed it to sell their foreclosed farms in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

"We're selling these farms without any high pressure salesmanship, no florid descriptions, but on plain, cold facts, and the public seems to appreciate it by the way the inquiries are coming in," said Mr. Chandler.

"A catalog has been prepared. We're having from thirty to fifty inquiries daily from our classified advertisements. The railroads to the southland are coöperating with excursions and homeseekers' rates, and the 'back to the farm' movement seems to be getting in full swing.

"In this period of unemployment, and sometimes hunger, it's well to remember that there are two things a farmer never experiences, namely, unemployment and hunger."

Fay O. Bellmar has charge of the farm department for the First Realty company.

REAL ESTATE BOND SERVICE

Inquiries must be accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply. Answers are based on information received from outside sources and, beyond care in securing it, The Tribune assumes no responsibility. Inquiries should be addressed to the Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune. Information should not be asked for more than one issue at a time. Give the name of the underwriter and the full title of the bond.

IOWA BONDHOLDER SAYS HE CAN'T GET ANY INFORMATION

Patient, frank, honest and intelligent treatment of bondholders' inquiries, most of them pathetic, many of them tragic, and all of them deserving of courteous attention [for didn't they put actual cash into these properties — and most of it hard earned money at that?] is not being accorded all of the security owners involved in the present unsavory mortgage bond mess.

HOLMAN D. PETTIBONE. [Walinger Photo.]

For instance, Louis H. Brede of 1018 Iowa street, Dubuque, Ia., writes THE TRIBUNE as follows: "I am the owner of a $500 bond of the Sheridan Shore apartments, 647 Sheridan road, Chiscago. On Jan. 12, 1931, I was informed by F. P. Linneman, secretary of the bondholders' committee that my bond was deposited with the Northern Trust company, the depositary. The underwriters of these bonds were George M. Forman & Co.

"On Oct. 20, 1931, I was advised, after requesting the secretary, F. P. Linneman, for information, that definite information would be given me in the near future but have heard nothing since. I am enclosing the names of the bondholders' committee. I have had no information from this committee as to what is being done. May I ask you for assistance in getting this? I feel I am entitled to it."

Other letters were received by THE TRIBUNE asking for information regarding this same issue; they, too, apparently not being able to obtain it from the Forman trust.

After several letters from THE TRIBUNE the following communication was received, signed, the George M. Forman Realty Trust, by F. P. Linneman, attorney:

"In response to yours of the 30th ultimo relative to several of the issues of George M. Forman & Co., may the writer suggest that inasmuch as the status of the defaulted issues changes from time to time the information that you desire can hardly be submitted.

"The writer would therefore suggest that you refer all inquiries relative to these issues to us, whereupon we will be glad to supply the desired information from time to time."

THE TRIBUNE has instituted a Real Estate Bond Service for its readers. It intends to continue it. It believes that the public will have considerably more confidence in the various trusts, committees and other groups active in reorganization work and will respond more readily in depositing requested bonds if these bodies abandon the attitude, adopted by some, that bondholders are merely figureheads and not worthy of intelligent attention.

"Good managers will furnish promptly complete information about operating results, so that scattered owners will not be dealing in entire ignorance of their properties," said Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, in an address before the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America at its recent convention.

J. Arthur Friedlund of Marston, Friedlund, Tone & Friedlund, attorneys, is chairman of the bondholders' committee for the Sheridan Shore apartments. William Ehrat, vice president of Wirtz, Hulbert & Little, real estate, and Lewis M. Watson, attorney with George M. Forman & Co., are members of the committee.

Wolfram Apartments.

I own a $500 6½ per cent first mortgage bond on the Wolfram apartments, 837-39 Wolfram street, Chicago, bought through the Ritchie Bond and Mortgage company. The bonds defaulted last May. I followed the advice of the bondholders' committee and deposited my bond. Since then I've had no information as to how matters are progressing or whether there has been a foreclosure. Recently I wrote to the secretary but received no reply. I will appreciate any information you can give me. J. S.

The bondholders' committee informs us that the property has been foreclosed and the Straus National Bank and Trust company is the receiver. The original bond issue was $95,000, since paid down to $94,000. There are eight vacancies in the building, which contains thirty-eight furnished suites. All of the bonds, with the exception of about $3,000, have been deposited. The master's sale will take place shortly, after which the property will be reorganized for the benefit of the depositing bondholders. The secretary, Joseph W. Cremin, states that the building is in good condition and should pay the bondholders a satisfactory return from rents.

Field Apartments.

I own a $500 bond on the Field apartments, 1456-58 South Hamlin avenue, Chicago, bought from the Noel State bank which closed last June. Any information regarding this issue will be greatly appreciated. E. C.

Ivan D. Carson, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, informs THE TRIBUNE that there are $41,500 first mortgage bonds outstanding. The gross receipts for the eleven months ending Dec. 1, 1931, were $6,392 and the operating expenses $6,636. Interest due Dec. 13, 1931, was paid through the Straus National Bank and Trust company. He also states that $1,500 of bonds, due Dec. 13, 1931, have been extended to Dec. 13, 1933. The issue has not been called. He adds that the property appears to be capably managed and the protective committee recommended an extension of the maturing bonds as a means of avoiding foreclosure proceedings at the time.

Annes Rents La Salle and Jackson Boulevard Corner

George J. Annes, restaurateur, has leased for several years the southeast corner of Jackson boulevard and La Salle street, 30x75, from D. A. Schulte, at a reported annual rental of $10,000. Gus C. Manos was broker.

BOOK-CADILLAC REORGANIZATION IS ANNOUNCED

Straus Tells of Detroit Refinancing.

Reorganization plans for the Book-Cadillac hotel, Cadillac Square building (formerly the Real Estate Exchange building, and the Woodward Arcade, Detroit, were announced by S. W. Straus & Co. last night. The plan was adopted in conjunction with the committee representing holders of the general mortgage bonds, preferred stock holders, and holders of secured equipment notes and other creditors.

The plan in its general features follows the reorganization principles for bond issues in default used by the Straus firm. Under this plan the holders of the first mortgage 6½ per cent fee and leasehold bonds will receive approximately 30 per cent in cash, a new 5 per cent income bond equal to the balance of their holdings and accrued interest, and also common stock.

The original first mortgage bond issue amounted to $9,000,000, of which $7,885,000 is outstanding. The properties are subject also to a general mortgage bond issue outstanding in the sum of $1,025,000; secured equipment notes amounting to $905,000 and claims of creditors in excess of $2,150,000. In addition there is $556,000 preferred stock outstanding and $1,600,000 common, plus unpaid interest and taxes.

Will Bid In Property.

A decree of foreclosure has been entered and it is expected that the bondholders' committee will bid in the property for the benefit of the first mortgage bonds and other securities participating in the reorganization plan.

The Book-Cadillac hotel is twenty-nine stories and has 1,129 rooms. The Cadillac Square is a twenty story office building and the Woodward Arcade is a six story structure. At the present time the income from these properties is insufficient to meet the principal and interest requirements on the outstanding first mortgage bonds.

The corporation holding the secured equipment notes not only provided the committee with sufficient funds to pay all reorganization expenses but is enabling it to make a cash distribution to the bondholders, who will receive in cash approximaely $30 for every $100 bond. In addition the committee has arranged for each depositing bondholder to receive approximately $78 of prior income bonds and a voting trust certificate for two and one-half shares of common stock for each $100 bond.

Final Date Is Feb. 10.

The committee points out that the nondepositing bondholders are entitled only to their proportionate shares of the foreclosure price, minus all foreclosure expenses. All bonds must be deposited on or before Feb. 10 in order to share in the benefits of the reorganization.

Upon consummation of the reorganization the financial structure of the new company will be approximately as follows:

First mtge. 5½% 10 yr. bonds.	$3,800,000
Prior 15 yr. 5% income bonds	6,500,000
Junior 15 yr. 5% income bonds	1,200,000
Common stock of no par value, 1,000,000 shares.

The management of the hotel has been taken over by the New Yorker Hotel corporation, of which Ralph Hitz is managing director, according to a New York wire. Attorneys in the reorganization were Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse and Gottlieb & Schwartz.

STATE BUILDERS PLAN THREE DAY CHICAGO MEET

Builders from all parts of the state will gather in Chicago tomorrow to attend a three days' convention of the Illinois Builders' league, of which Oscar W. Rosenthal is president, at the Hotel Sherman. Sessions will be held in the Louis 16th room. Building modernization and home financing are two subjects scheduled for discussion. More than three hundred Illinois building contractors and men engaged in allied branches of the building industry will attend the convention. The opening session will be tomorrow at 1:30 p. m.

H. B. WHEELOCK.

E. M. Craig, president of the American Construction council and secretary of the Building Construction Employers' association, will talk on the general building outlook for 1932. He also will sketch briefly the program of the American Construction council on slum clearance and rehabilitation.

Other speakers will include L. R. Putman, lumber; C. E. Stedman, vice president of the Celotex company; H. B. Wheelock, former president of the Illinois Society of Architects; George Hoffman of the Crane company; Gerhardt F. Meyne, builder; Mr. Rosenthal, and M. J. Hewlett.

WOMEN OWNERS TAKE OVER THE COLONIAL HOTEL

At the expiration of the Hayes Brothers' lease, Louise B. Dodge and Edith L. Baker Charpiot, the owners, took over the operation of the Colonial hotel, at 6325-35 Kenwood avenue. It will be managed by Mary J. Nixon, who has been assistant to the manager for several years.

Schulte Leases Corner Store in Otis Building

D. A. Schulte, Inc., operating a nationwide cigar store chain, has leased the corner store in the Otis building, at Madison and La Salle, for ten years starting May 1, 1932. James C. Liebman, of Hooker & Slosson, was broker. The lessee will install one of its new type units, all fixtures being of green stained oak.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

HERE'S MODERN STYLE OF HOME THAT'S FIRE-SAFE

Playground Space on the Roof.

[Next week: A two family, income producing home, each floor containing five rooms and bath, which can be built on a 30 foot city lot.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[Home Builders Editor.]

With the new year already under way, it is pleasant to study an example, both conservative and restrained, of the newer style in architecture. A five room home this is, in the manner moderne, designed by Wal-Ward Harding, architect, 660 Barry avenue, Chicago. In addition to many outstanding features of fire safety in construction and convenience in equipment and layout, playground space has been provided on the roof of the house. The enclosing parapet walls have been carried somewhat higher than is usual in a flat roof design to insure adequate security for the children. The height of the walls ranges from three feet to five feet.

LOUISE BARGELT

The design is suited to a fifty foot city or suburban lot and can be built at a cost estimated to be between 40 and 45 cents a cubic foot. In metropolitan Chicago and its close environs the average cost of the house would be between $8,000 and $9,000. In other areas it would run a little less.

Firesafe Construction.

The type of construction chosen by the architect makes possible this uniquely designed dwelling. Firesafe construction is specified, with concrete masonry walls, exterior finish Portland cement stucco, reinforced concrete first floor and reinforced concrete roof. The walls have a rigorous simplicity to which has been added just the right balance of interesting detail. The exterior wall surfaces are to be of Portland cement stucco.

Within the home are many features of comfort to appeal to the modern mistress. A study of the plan reveals these features. Note the more than ample closet space. Each of the two bedrooms has an adequately large wardrobe. Then, opening from the central hallway there are guests' and linen closets. And in the living room there is located a large closet which may be used to house an in-a-dor or concealed bed, or for any other purpose the home owner may choose.

Are One Unit.

A doorway off the entrance hall leads to the stairs by which the roof is reached. A stairway to the basement opens from the kitchen.

The living room and dining room really consist of one large unit separated only by a projecting partition that serves to screen the kitchen doorway from the view of persons who are in the living room. The ceilings of the living room and dining room are one.

The window openings in the living, dining, and bed rooms and the manner in which the casements are installed attract immediate attention. The casement windows are built at the corners, as shown on the plan, to provide the advantages of the full area of openings. Light and air thus have unobstructed entrance.

The kitchen is amply large, and in the modern manner, is designed to house the mechanical and electrical devices, which lessen the toil of culinary as well as housekeeping duties.

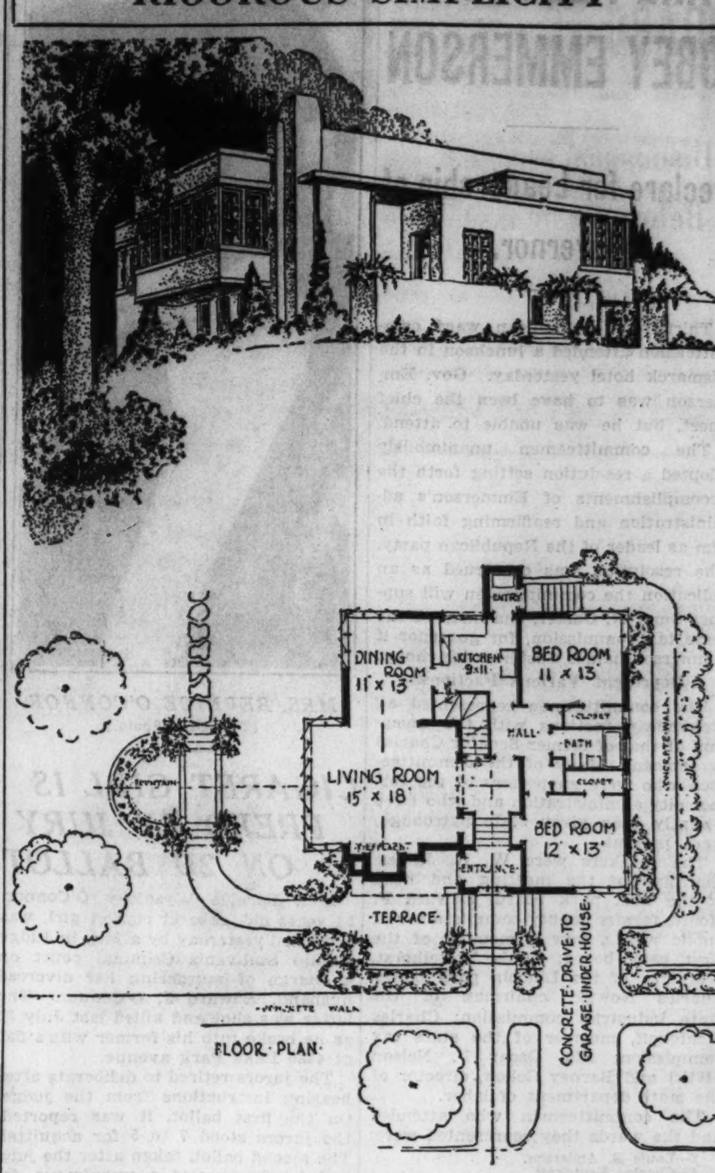
Plenty of Sunlight.

Plenty of sunlight and fresh air may be obtained in the bedrooms, at the discretion of the occupants. This is due to the unique window arrangement, which provides these features and at the same time accentuates the horizontal line treatment of the exterior.

Although the basement plan is not shown, this can be visualized from a study of the floor plan. The garage is a component part of the house, being located directly below the front bedroom. This garage is convenient and unobtrusive, having a door into the basement as well as the outside door opening on the driveway. The heating room for boiler or warm air conditioning furnace, to be fueled with oil or gas, is located in the basement. Here too is a completely equipped laundry, gas heater, and incinerator.

The floor dimensions of the rooms shown in layout are: Living room, 15 feet by 18 feet; dining room, 11 feet by 13 feet; kitchen, 9 feet by 11 feet; bedroom, 11 feet by 13 feet; bedroom, 12 feet by 13 feet.

RIGOROUS SIMPLICITY



Designed in the newer architectural style, the so-called manner moderne, this five room house has been given playground space on the roof. Designed for a 50 foot lot, its construction is to be firesafe throughout, with concrete masonry walls, exterior finish of Portland cement stucco, reinforced concrete first floor, and reinforced concrete roof. Restrained and conservative despite its modernistic leanings, it can be built in Chicago area for between $8,000 and $9,000. Architect, Wal-Ward Harding, 660 Barry avenue, Chicago.

HINSDALE TAXES TO BE LOWER FOR 1930; SCHOOLS HAVE CASH

The announcement the other day that Cook county's belated taxes for 1930 would be boosted 9.12 per cent over those assessed for 1929, came simultaneously with a contrasting note from out of the west, this time from the village of Hinsdale, located just over the line in Du Page county. County Clerk Clarence Wageman of Du Page county has just announced a lowered rate for Hinsdale, the rate for the coming tax bills to be $6.47 per $100 valuation.

The report revealed that the total rate in Hinsdale was reduced from $6.51 last year to $6.47 this year, in spite of a fourteen cent increase in the road and bridge tax and a special town tax of eighteen cents for unemployment relief.

The village of Hinsdale corporate tax has been cut from 86 cents last year to 78 cents per $100 this year, and during the last two years to 78 cents, a reduction of about 20 per cent.

According to Trustee E. B. Johnson, it may soon be possible to eliminate the corporation tax entirely, inasmuch as the municipality owned electric light and water plant is returning to the taxpayers a profit of more than $100,000 annually.

The village of Hinsdale has at the present time a large cash surplus in the bank, in spite of the fact that strenuous efforts have been made to give all men who could work on public improvements during the last few months employment at the public expense.

The Hinsdale schools have kept their teachers paid up to date and are discounting their bills. Philip R. Clarke is president of the school board.

PLAN MIRALAGO FOOD MART IN NO MAN'S LAND

Carl Schmidt has leased six stores in the Miralago building in No Man's land between Wilmette and Kenilworth, and announces a market to be known as the Miralago Food Mart. He will operate the meat and grocery departments and in addition will lease space to others for fish, fruits and vegetables, bakery, dairy, delicatessen, nuts, fruit and health foods and luncheonette departments. The total area will be approximately 7,200 square feet. It will open about March 1, according to Mr. Schmidt.

Suburban Realty Council to Hold Election Jan. 14

The annual election of officers of the Suburban Real Estate Board council of Chicago will be held on Thursday noon, Jan. 14, at the Great Northern hotel. Ralph Field, executive secretary of the state realty body, will discuss pending taxation legislation and Oscar W. Rosenthal, president of the Construction Investment trust, will talk.

FARM and GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

FARMERS PLAN MEETS: PURDUE AND URBANA

House Plant Culture a Topic.

Several thousand farmers and their families in Illinois and Indiana are expected to attend the "short course" programs of information and instruction offered by Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., and the University of Illinois college of agriculture at Urbana, Jan. 11 to 15.

Latest scientific and practical information on efficient farm and home practices will be made available through special speakers and by members of the faculty and extension forces in both schools. At the same time, many statewide associations of grain, livestock, beekeeping, fruit and vegetable producers will hold their annual meetings.

Of interest to both rural and city property owners will be courses of instruction on landscaping, floriculture and gardening in general. While this is but one of two score phases of land utilization to be discussed, several pointers on one topic, the care of house plants, might prove beneficial to many readers of this column.

Expert to Discuss Pests.

At the Purdue sessions, Dr. C. T. Gregory is to discuss the diseases of house plants and of garden flowers. Without going into this subject in advance of such an expert's talks, several fundamentals in the care of house plants may be cited.

Under present day conditions of home management, more time is made available for the attractive display of home grown potted or cut flowers. Mothers and grandmothers often devoted considerable areas of the home to ferneries, or to geranium plants. The call of nature, we may proudly report, has persisted and is still in keeping with modern ideas of interior decoration.

Dry Air Detrimental.

Under conditions of low humidity plants suffer in two ways. The soil loses its moisture rapidly, while the plant itself transpires such a large amount of moisture from its leaves that it gradually becomes unhealthy, susceptible to disease and may eventually die.

Keeping pans of water on radiators, use of humidifiers and the sprinkling of the plants themselves with a clothes sprinkler, is recommended. Watering the plant perhaps is the most vital operation, the methods varying with type of container used.

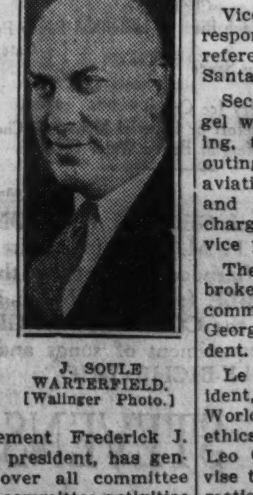
Preventing Soil Dryness.

To prevent the soil from drying out, many use a saucer of moist sphagnum, peat moss or blotting paper under the pots. Drain holes are essential to preventing muddy soil and some degree of aeration of the roots. Ferns take frequent watering and syringing, while cacti require very little.

Fresh air should be given the plants whenever possible, this like the humidity being favorable to the comfort of the family as well as the indoor plant. Such toxic gases as come from the burning of coal and illuminating gas are injurious and sometimes fatal to plants.

NEW COMMITTEE SYSTEM DEVISED BY WARTERFIELD

Thirty-five committees were appointed yesterday by J. Soule Warterfield, new president of the Chicago Real Estate board, to carry on the activities of the organization during 1932. Under a new plan of operation, instituted by Mr. Warterfield, responsibility for the functioning of these committees has been charged directly to the board's officers and directors, with each acting as a supervisor of a definite group of committees.



J. SOULE WARTERFIELD. [Walinger Photo.]

By this arrangement Frederick J. Phillips, first vice president, has general supervision over all committee work. Reports of committee activities at monthly membership meetings of the board will be made by the directors in charge rather than by the committee chairman as heretofore.

The creation of three section groups operating on the west, south and north sides is announced, with Frank J. O'Brien, fifth vice president, made responsible for the formation of a working plan. The objective is to organize realtors into groups for discussion of their local problems at regular meetings.

Vice President Phillips also will be responsible for the functioning of the reference and arbitration and the Santa Claus committees.

Second Vice President Arthur Kruggel will supervise the fireproof building, the janitor agreement, and the outing and finance committees. The aviation, railway terminal, and rivers and harbors committees will be in charge of Louis J. Naumann, third vice president.

The appraisal, business property brokerage, education, and insurance committees will be looked after by George J. Eckhoff, fourth vice president.

Le Roy J. Keneval, sixth vice president, will have the transportation, World's Fair, zoning, membership, ethics, and arbitration committees. Leo G. Varty, secretary, will supervise the bylaws and membership promotion committees, and Lester W. Porter, treasurer, will have the finance committee.

SHALL NEW GAS RATES REMAIN? BOARD TO DECIDE

A Discussion of Problems Before Commission.

Hearings before the Illinois commerce commission to determine whether the present temporary gas rate schedule shall be continued in operation in Chicago or whether further revisions shall be ordered will be resumed on Tuesday.

Corporation Counsel Sexton's assistants announced that they would continue to represent the city, cross-examining the witnesses for the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company throughout the months of further hearings required, with the hope of obtaining further rate reductions.

Since the new gas—a mixture of coke oven and natural gas—was turned into the mains of the company on Oct. 16, thousands of complaints have been registered with the company, the commerce commission, the city department of public service, and THE TRIBUNE's Voice of the People department by dissatisfied consumers.

May Succeed Hadley

G. Gale Gilbert of Mount Vernon, member of Illinois commerce commission since beginning of Emmerson regime, who is expected to be named chairman of commission to succeed Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton, who resigned Friday.

Complain Bills Are Not Lower.

The chief complaint is that the new rate schedules, based on the commission's order of a 31 per cent reduction in the charge for heating gas and a 6½ per cent reduction in the price of cooking gas, do not result in lower gas bills. In many instances increases were reported.

According to the gas company, the commerce commission and the public service department there have always been complaints, particularly around bill periods, but with the arrival in November of the first bills based on the new rates, the complaints of high gas cost are said to have jumped 25 per cent.

The Peoples Gas Light and Coke company has 904,000 customers. Therefore the number of complaints has been large, although the percentage of consumers complaining has not been alarming, according to the commerce commission and public service department. The complaints also are said to be falling off, particularly since the arrival of the December gas bills. This reduction in complaints is ascribed to the proper adjustment of gas burners and to increased knowledge in the use of the new gas.

Some Consumer Questions.

Some of the questions asked by gas users are:

"Why was my bill for November 50 per cent higher than it was for the same month in 1930?"

"Why does the new gas, if it is better, as advertised, black my percolator?"

"Why are my apple pies burned on the top and bottom before they are half done in the middle?"

"Why doesn't the gas company bill us on the basis of cubic feet used, as it formerly did, instead of on this new fangled therm system which nobody can understand?"

In endeavoring to pacify the consumers, gas company employés and complaint takers at the commerce commission and public service department explain that the new gas is richer in heating value, and that correspondingly fewer cubic feet of the new gas are required for the same heating results produced by the old artificial gas.

Another of the Answers.

Had the gas company continued to bill its consumers on the cubic feet basis, the richer gas would have justified an increase in the rates, because less of it is required, and this might not have met with a popular response, the complainants are told. So the customers were billed on the basis of the actual heat input flowing through the meters, and reductions on the same number of therms used were granted, since natural gas is cheaper than the coke oven product.

The switch to the therm basis of billing went into effect in September of 1930, and before the new gas was turned on, according to the gas company, there were only 285 dissatisfied customers out of a total of 848,000. Therefore, the company takes the position that the therm basis of measurement is not at fault.

Improper adjustment of burners and the personal equation are necessarily to blame if the gas bills are not lower under the new rates, say experts of the commerce commission and public service department.

The gas company adjusted all the 9,000,000 burners in domestic use in Chicago, but this was before turning on the new gas, and however scientific the methods employed, perfect results could not have been obtained, according to experts under Jeffrey O'Connor, commissioner of public service.

The public service department is filling, so far as its limited facilities will permit, requests for the readjustment of burners, and it reports that consumers are always satisfied after this has been done. Customers whom this department cannot serve are referred to the gas company.

Another difficulty, according to the city's engineers, is the mechanically minded customer who attempts to adjust his own burners. Approximately one-third less gas should be used now than under the old conditions to give the same heating value, but this is the ideal adjustment and is difficult to obtain on a city-wide scale. The flow of gas into the burners is regulated by pressure and the adjustment is a delicate one, according to the engineers.

Low Flame Is Advised.

Improper adjustments result in using more gas than is necessary and this also may be caused by turning the flames too high, when the pots and pans will be blackened and the pies scorched on the crusts, said Mr. O'Connor. The flame should barely touch the utensil.

The new gas, a mixture of 45 per cent coke oven and 55 per cent natural gas, registers 800 British thermal units per cubic foot, while the old mixture, water and coke oven gas, had a value of only 530 b. t. u.'s per cubic foot. Laboratory tests made by the city engineers show that the new gas is always up to standard, that it registers, in fact, about 810 b. t. u.'s per cubic foot.

A b. t. u. is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree, Fahrenheit. A therm, the unit on which present charges for gas are based, is 100,000 b. t. u.'s. The total number of therms used during a month is obtained by multiplying the number of cubic feet shown by the meter by 800 and dividing by 100,000.

The gas company has two schedules for domestic use: No. 1 for general service, primarily cooking; and No. 3 for heating. The old therm rates for cooking were:

First 2 therms	58c
Next 24 therms, each	17c
Next 239 therms, each	16.9c
Over 265 therms, each	16c
Minimum charge	60c

The new therm rates are:

First 2 therms	58c
Next 24 therms, each	15.9c
Next 239 therms, each	15.8c
Over 265 therms, each	15c
Minimum charge	60c

The average small family uses about 15.9 therms for cooking in one month, according to the American Gas Institute and the American Society of Heating and Ventilating. With the old type of gas the consumer required 3,000 cubic feet of gas to obtain 15.9 therms of heating value and with the new gas he needs only 2,000 cubic feet for the same heat input. Computations prepared by Commissioner O'Connor show that with the old gas and old rates the monthly bill for 15.9 therms would be $2.94 and that with the new gas and new rates it would be $2.79, a reduction of 5.1 per cent.

Where the 6½ Per Cent Comes In.

A fairly large family using some gas for heating water as well as cooking might require 26.5 therms a month, according to Mr. O'Connor, and the monthly bill would be $4.48, as compared with $4.74 under the old conditions, a reduction of 5.48 per cent. The 6½ per cent reduction as ordered in the commerce commission's interlocutory decree is not shown until more than 530 therms are used, a figure which might apply to hotels and some restaurants but never to a household.

The rates for heating, under the old system, were:

First two therms	58c
Next 14 therms, each	17.9c
Over 16 therms, each	14.15c
Minimum charge	$2

Under the new system, a monthly radiation charge, based on the number of square feet of cast iron radiation surface, is imposed from November to April, inclusive. This charge is $3.60 for the first 200 square feet or less and 18 cents for each additional 10 square feet or major portion thereof. In addition, there is a flat commodity charge of 8 cents per therm.

Basis of Radiation Charge.

The radiation charge is based on the gas company's "readiness to serve," the amount of gas it theoretically must have ready at all times to meet a possible capacity demand. Whether the company could meet such a requirement, and whether the possible maximum demand [all customers consuming the maximum at once] will ever be required, is a theoretical proposition for engineers.

Under the old rates, the cost of heating a typical six-room house during a normal winter season, when temperature conditions of from 10 below to 70 above zero are to be encountered, was $306.57, based upon the use of 400,000 cubic feet of 530 b. t. u gas, or 2,120 therms. Under the new system and using the same heating value, the cost is $211.72, a decrease of 30.9 per cent, according to Commissioner O'Connor's computations.

The best results for gas heating, said Mr. O'Connor, depend upon the amount of radiation required and will be obtained when the gas is the sole means of heating and not an auxiliary system.

Company Witnesses Quizzed.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman is cross-examining witnesses placed on the stand by the gas company to explain its figures of costs, estimated revenues and contracts with the companies supplying and transporting the gas. He pointed out that the gas company's proposal, when it applied for permission to mix the gas, called for a price reduction of only 3½ per cent for cooking and 22 per cent for heating and that the commission, after extended hearings, ordered greater reductions in its temporary decree. Further hearings may result in still greater reductions, Mr. Grossman said.

The gas company officials have said that they must pay for transporting the gas on a capacity pipe line load basis, whether the cubic footage is required or not, and that when gas becomes more popular for heating and the load approaches the maximum, lower charges to the consumer will result.

The natural gas is supplied by the Texoma Natural Gas company in the panhandle of Texas and transported by a $75,000,000 pipe line to Joliet. The Natural Gas Pipe Line Company of America owns the pipe line and the Chicago District Pipe Line company, operated by the Peoples Gas Light and Coke, Public Service of Northern Illinois, and Western United Gas and Electric companies, purchases the gas from the Texoma company, distributing it from Joliet. Insull interests own one-fourth of the stock in Texoma and in the pipe line company. The other companies are Insull concerns.

ILLINOIS UPSETS PURDUE ON LONG SHOTS, 28-21

BUILDS UP 14 POINT LEAD IN FIRST PERIOD

Boilermakers Trail, 19-5, at Half.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—An inspired Illinois basketball team, buoyed up by Red Owen's early long shots, swept to victory over Purdue tonight, 28 to 21, after establishing a 14 point lead during the first half.

Owen scored twice from well out toward midcourt in the first five minutes and added another long one before he left the game on personals near the close of the half, which ended 19 to 5.

Huddie Hellmich and Cas Bennett, who scored 17 points between them, helped to build and then maintain Illinois' lead.

Illini Smother Purdue.

Purdue's attack was stopped almost completely by Illinois' man to man defense during the first half. Its few shots went astray. Johnny Wooden finally found the net for a field goal, but not until 16 minutes of the half had elapsed.

Purdue rallied as the second half began. Its renewed vigor, however, never lessened Illinois' margin more than seven points. A capacity crowd of 7,000 spurred the efforts of the Illini. The play was fast and hard, especially during the first half. Then Illinois began to play more cautiously.

Five Players Ejected.

Four other players followed Owen to the sideline on fouls. Fencl and Hellmich were ejected from the Illini lineup, while Purdue lost Eddy and Dornte during the last ten minutes. Officials called 17 fouls on Illinois and 16 on Purdue. Both teams were weak on free throws. The lineup:

[PICTURE ON FOLLOWING PAGE.]

Our Shamrock hockey boys seem a little punch drunk these winter evenings, a matter that isn't altogether hard to understand, seeing as nine goals have been scored against them in their last two home games.

Four of the nine adverse tallies were suffered last night at the Chicago Stadium when the Green and White lads were defeated by an assortment of hockey players from Tulsa, Okla., by a score of 4 to 2.

It is difficult to estimate how badly the Tulsa fellows could have defeated the Chicagoans had they chosen to maintain an offensive throughout. Suffice it to say that the Oilers bore down for three minutes and 48 seconds in the second period and during that brief period negotiated no fewer than three goals.

The outcome was something of a disappointment to a rather nice gathering of 8,000. In the crowd was a group from a stockyards firm which awarded hams to the athletes who scored the goals. There was nothing personal in the selection of the trophies, it was explained.

The first score was made 6 minutes and a half after the contest started. Moffatt found a loose puck in front of an unattended cage and had no difficulty in shoving it into the yawning net.

Riley Ties Score.

The forward line of Riley, Wiseman, and Prelesnik went in to play the last three minutes of the opening session and immediately laid down a barrage which netted the Shamrocks a tie in 18:16. Riley got the puck off the right boards and passed it to a spot directly in front of the cage, whence Wiseman swished past Goalie McCusker.

McFadyen, O'Neill, and Mackenzie opened up the second period with a whirlwind attack, but inspired defense work by the Oilers, combined with a couple of wide shots when opportunity was knocking loudly, made their three-minute tenacity fruitless.

Oilers Get Going.

Throughout the middle part of the second period the Oilers went on the offensive and soon had the Shamrocks a bit dazzled. In 12:32 Healey took a pass from Langlois, swooped in front of Goalie Karakas, and deposited Tulsa goal No. 2 as he swooped.

Ninety-one seconds later Moffatt registered Tulsa goal No. 3 and his second of the evening. It was in 14:03 that Moffatt picked up the puck in front of the cage and while the Shamrocks looked on at Karakas' discomfiture batted in the counter.

Tulsa goal No. 4 was accomplished by Trapp in 16:20 as the climax of a foray which had the puck in the Shamrock defense zone for many seconds.

Goalie Helps Taylor.

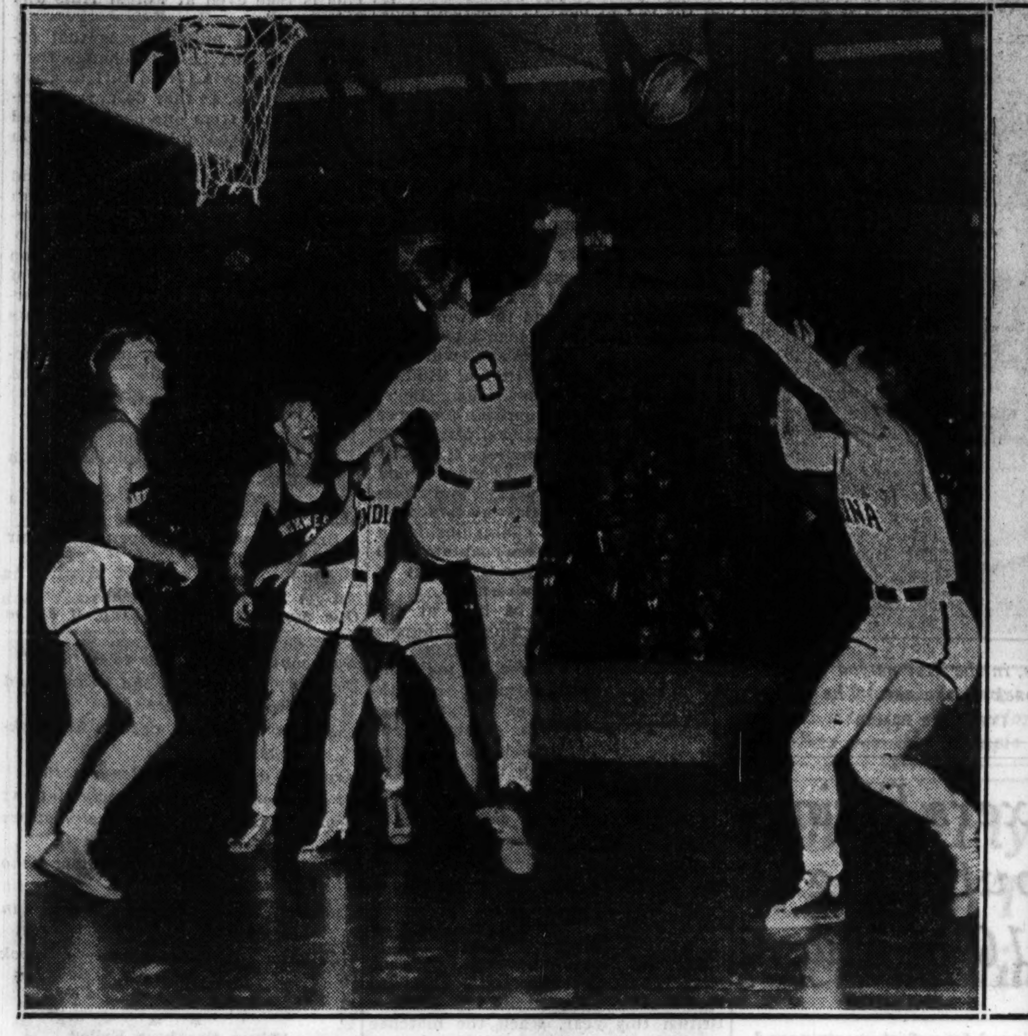
Forty seconds before the period ended the Shamrocks became aroused to the extent of making a goal. Wiseman passed to Taylor and Bouncer got credit for the tally when Goalie McCusker kicked the rubber across the red line.

In the final period the Oilers contented themselves with defensive play. There were no goals.

Thistlethwaite on Anti-Saloon League Platform

Madison, Wis., Jan. 9.—[U.P.]—Addressing Anti-Saloon league rallies is a new activity assumed by Glenn Thistlethwaite, recently resigned as head football coach at the University of Wisconsin. Thistlethwaithe and Ray J. Nye, prohibition enforcement director for the western Wisconsin district, have been booked for speeches before rallies at Richland Center and Platteville since the first of the year.

BEATING BOYS FROM THE BASKETBALL STATE



Hodson, Indiana guard, tries a short shot which is bouncing off the backboard and Suddith (No. 8) leaps in air in an attempt to regain possession of the ball for the Hoosiers in game with Northwestern last night at Patten gym. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

RUMOR $10 BILL SEEN IN MIAMI! CITY'S SURE OF TITLE BOUT IF TRUE

Mr. Getz Finds Garden Waiting Reports of Scouts.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—George F. Getz, the noted amateur wild animal fancier, came on from Chicago today expecting to pick up a few head at the January yearling baboon sales and, having an otherwise idle p. m. on his hands, called on Will Carey, the president of the Madison Square Garden firm, to find out anything he might find out.

As a member of the Illinois athletic commission, another eccentricity of this interesting millionaire, and a citizen of great public spirit, Mr. Getz naturally wished to ascertain whether it would be possible to obtain a heavyweight championship fight with which to elevate the social, ethical and economic tone of his city. Mr. Carey finds himself possessed of the doubtful asset of first claim on the services of Max Schmeling, and Mr. Getz thought that with a little urging of the proper sort the Garden firm might be willing to let go.

Mr. Carey Has His Hopes.

Mr. Carey has field agents investigating rumors that a ten dollar bill was seen in Miami, Fla., not more than a week ago, and if confirmation of these reports is received he will consider that sufficient justification for a fight between Schmeling and Mickey Walker in Miami in February. The Garden firm has a stubborn hope, also, that the New York prizefight commission will waive its grudge against Schmeling and permit him to fight Walker indoors at the Garden, on condition that he post a cash bond to fight Jack Sharkey out-of-doors when summer comes.

The Garden, of course, would much prefer to produce the Schmeling-Walker fight indoors in New York, drawing, perhaps, $200,000. But Carey insists that if the bout is not allowed here he will still be willing to go ahead with the Miami plan, expecting to make a little money, if the rumor of the ten-dollar bill stands investigation.

His firm is under legal obligation to produce some fight in Miami during the winter, but, of course, it need not be the Schmeling-Walker bout.

It's Just a Conversation.

The conversation between Mr. Carey and Mr. Getz did not amount to much.

They met downstairs, and when they rang for the elevator, the operator told them it was out of order. So they walked up six flights and spent the next thirty minutes horizontal on leather couches only able to point to their legs and pant occasionally, "gettin' old."

Somewhat recovered after a long rest they went out to lunch, sliding down the stair rails this time, and were joined by Jimmy Johnston.

Mr. Getz afterward reported that he just called on Carey with social intent and made only the most casual inquiries regarding the possibility of obtaining a Schmeling fight for Chicago.

"The truth of the whole thing is," said Mr. Johnston, "that Getz pulled out some pictures and said, 'Boy, what do you think of those champions?' I suspected that they were baboon pictures," Mr. Johnston said, "but a man has to be careful.

"You know how it is when a man starts pulling photographs out of his pockets and saying, in a proud way, 'Boy, what do you think of those?' I mean, some baboons are remarkably human and some humans look very peculiar, and had to watch my step, because you can never tell when you might make a wrong crack. So I said, in a quiet way, 'You certainly ought to be proud of them, what schools do they go to?'

"Mr. Getz said, 'Oh, we have our own private school right on the place,' and I just happened to say, 'Well, I don't think that's very democratic and, personally, all my boys have been going to military academy.' So Mr. Getz put the photographs back into his pocket and said, 'Well, my boy is going to Yale and I am expecting him down here to meet me right away, so I will have to be going and good-by to you, Mr. Johnston.'

"So, on the whole," Mr. Johnston

But, Senor, Is Levinsky Bad as That!

Paulino Uzcudun may be a Spanish gentleman, as some contend, but for publicity purposes he is full of insults for Chicago's King Levinsky, whom he fights Friday night at the Chicago Stadium.

First the good señor belittled the Kingfish's victory over Tommy Loughran by declaring he, Uzcudun, softened up the Philadelphia boxing master in a previous bout.

Uzcudun's latest jibe is at King's knowledge of fisticuffs in general. The Basque will take his first workout in Chicago tomorrow at Kid Howard's Madison street gym, and in making arrangements for his training sessions he is said to have included this request:

"Please get me some rough, tough sparring partners who do not know how to box and who do everything wrong. I need that type of spar boy to get ready for Levinsky."

This program marks the first major battle for 1932 for Chicago. There will be three other ten round matches on the card, aside from an opener between Yale Okun, Uzcudun spar boy, and Tony Cancela, Levinsky stable mate.

These three are part of the light heavyweight elimination series and feature Dave Maier, Milwaukee; Baxter Calmes, Chicago; Bob Olin, New York, and George Nichols of Buffalo. Maier meets Abie Bain of Newark, Calmes faces Olin, and Nichols tackles Charley Belanger.

White Sox Ban Major League Foes in South

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Until the regular big league campaign opens the White Sox will be able to conduct their training affairs without giving thought or time to major competition.

The dates for the impending conditioning tour were announced yesterday by Harry Grabiner, the club secretary, and no big league opponents are included.

The schedule will open with a game against a college team and closes against Class AA minor teams, so if working up by degrees is of any value, the Sox should be primed for a flying start when the American league show opens April 12. It is the Sox's turn to open the regular race in Chicago and they'll draw the St. Louis Brownies or Detroit Tigers as opponents.

Start at Mineral Wells.

Another departure from Sox's jaunts of recent years is that the preliminary work will be undertaken at one spot and the serious labors at another. On the morning of Feb. 24 as many Sox athletes as can be assembled from this section of the country will be started for Mineral Wells, Tex. Other members of the troupe will report there direct from their homes. Manager Fonseca hopes to have all hands accounted for so as to start Feb. 26 on the job of melting down whatever superfluous flesh the boys may be carrying.

The water at Mineral Wells is of the kind that is supposed to cure whatever ails you, and Fonseca is hoping this is not an exaggeration. By letting his men sip from the

N. U. FIVE BEATS INDIANA, 29-23; M'CARNES, REIFF, FARBER STAR

Wildcat Captain Leads Team's Scorers with 9 Points.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern won its second conference basketball game last night at Patten gym by defeating Indiana university, 29 to 23. Four thousand watched the Wildcats triumph just as they pleased, for while only six points separated the teams at the finish, the contest was all Northwestern from beginning to end.

An exception might be made when with seven minutes left in the second half Indiana came within four points of a tie. But Northwestern previously had piled up a 22 to 10 score and apparently was merely resting for Joe Reiff, the bellwether of the quintet, immediately dropped in a field goal and Saul Farber added a free throw.

Purdue Defeat Cheered.

Indeed, the biggest cheer of the evening greeted the welcome information that Purdue, conceded to be the outstanding Big Ten team, had been upset by Illinois.

The item of most interest to Northwestern last night was the playing of Capt. Bob McCarnes. Mac tossed three field goals, all from the corners, his favorite shot, and he also made three free throws in as many opportunities. Unfortunately McCarnes committed his fourth personal foul late in the second period and retired in favor of Don Brewer.

Brewer, however, scored once from a running one hand throw and then was given a set up when the aggressive Farber grabbed the ball from the Hoosiers and passed to Reiff, who pivoted and handed the ball to Brewer.

Johnson Features on Defense.

Elmer Johnson, for the first time this season, did not score, but he was invaluable in defense. Thus the Wildcat play centered around Reiff, Farber and McCarnes, with Bus Smith scoring twice on set shots from out in the court. Smith's first basket came from Indiana's vain attempt to play one guard behind Reiff on the free throw line and another in front.

Northwestern had superior height, speed on the offense and a better man to man defense. Incidentally, the Wildcats scored seven out of ten free throws, bringing their total for two games to 18 out of 22. Indiana had 11 free throws in 14 tries.

The Hoosiers did not count from the field in the first half, which ended 12 to 6 in favor of Northwestern. Farber's floor play and Reiff's reception of passes principally were responsible for the 22 to 10 advantage mentioned above. Then the Hoosiers, with Glenn Hodson and Sally Suddith in front, came within four points.

Hodson Leads Hoosiers.

Reiff and Farber widened the gap and Brewer's scores kept Indiana from getting under way. Hodson was the Hoosier high point man with two field goals and four free throws.

Gophers Win from Chicago Five, 22 to 14

Minnesota defeated Chicago, 22 to 14, at the Midway fieldhouse before 3,500 last night. Play was spirited for only a few scattered moments. It was the first conference game for both teams and the seventh consecutive victory for Minnesota.

Controlling the ball by superior height, Minnesota played a deliberate offensive game, and broke through from far in its own back court to score nine times from the floor, largely on follow and broken field shots.

Chicago, during the infrequent moments when it had possession of the ball, was unable to work through the husky Gopher guards, Capt. Mike Cielusak and Virgil Licht. It scored only three field goals, one each by Parsons, Stephenson and Evans.

The first half, which ended with Minnesota leading, 15 to 11, could hardly have been called furious. Minnesota, however, dropped in six baskets during the lulls, while the Maroons kept themselves in the running.

In the second half, Minnesota failed to set the fast pace Chicago has been trained in. Attempts by the Maroon forwards, Stephenson, Evans and Rexinger, to drive in with fast, if loose, passing, often ended with Minnesota's veteran guards stealing the ball.

Glenn Bethel, Gopher center, got away from Keith Parsons, who appeared exhausted at the outset, for three goals. Virgil Licht's long shots put him into a tie with Bethel for scoring honors, at seven each. The lineup:

Honolulu Boxer Dies from Blow on Head During Bout

HONOLULU, Jan. 9.—(AP)—James L. Purdy 25, died today from a blow suffered last night in a boxing match with Young Seda. Purdy, hit on the head in the fifth round, crawled out of the ring. He collapsed later and died on an operating table. Seda reported to the sheriff today, but no charges were made against him.

Carthage Beats Bradley in Overtime, 30 to 28

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Carthage college nosed out Bradley, 30 to 28, in an overtime basketball game here tonight. It was Bradley's first Little Nineteen conference game of the season.

ATTENTION SKIERS.

The Tribune's ski meet which was scheduled for this afternoon at Bils park has been postponed until Feb. 7. The list of entries will be published later and complete information will be given during the week preceding the meet.

OHIO, 20; IOWA, 17

Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Ohio State university's basketball team defeated Iowa here tonight, 20 to 17. It was the second Western conference victory for Ohio State and placed it in a tie for first place with a record of two games won and none lost.

Ohio was conceded an easier victory, as Iowa had lost twice and won only from Drake and Nebraska in its pre-conference games. The defeat was Iowa's baptism in the Big Ten race.

The game started out as if it would be a nip and tuck affair, with the lead changing hands a number of times during the first period.

Iowa led, 6 to 5, at the quarter. Ohio then forged into the lead and held a big margin until the closing minutes of the game. Iowa players appeared nervous in the first few minutes and made two successive throws over the back board. The game was featured by close guarding, but many easy shots were missed.

Colburn Leads Ohio.

Colburn, Ohio's right forward, excelled in floor play. In addition he scored seven points. Hoffer scored the same number for Ohio. Moffitt, left forward for Iowa, led his team in scoring with six points. He was closely followed by Rogers with two baskets and free throw.

The attendance was 4,660, the largest crowd at the Coliseum this year.

MICHIGAN WINS, 24-18

Madison, Wis., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Michigan clamped handcuffs on the Badgers in the second half and defeated Wisconsin, 24 to 18, in its opening Big Ten basketball game here tonight. The Badgers were held to one basket and one free throw after leading at the intermission, 15 to 14.

Weiss and Garner, who substituted for Daniels at center, led Michigan's second half offensive that sent Wisconsin to its second conference defeat in two games.

Wisconsin had its shooting eyes in the first half and connected for seven baskets in 19 shots. In the second half it was a different story, the Badgers being unable to locate the net during fourteen scoreless minutes. In the meantime Michigan drew steadily away and played carefully for the last seven minutes with the game safely stowed away.

Bobby Poser and Capt. Marvin Steen played well for Wisconsin, but they couldn't carry the burden alone. Weiss, Eveland and Garner starred for the Wolverines, and their ball handling was superb.

Few fouls were called, Wisconsin being charged with only three and Michigan with four.

Wisconsin meets Purdue at Lafayette Monday.

IOWANS JOIN IN RUSH TO ENTER SILVER SKATES

Cedar Rapids Boys to Race in Tribune Event.

Silver Skates Derby

Please enter me in The Chicago Tribune Silver Skates Derby to be held Jan. 23 and 24 at Garfield park.

Name ....

Address ....

Club ....

Age ....

Place cross in square opposite race you wish to enter. A skater may compete in only one division. Print name plainly in pencil. Entries close at midnight, Sunday, Jan. 17, with Wilfrid Smith, sports department, Chicago Tribune.

☐ Men's Senior, 18 and over.
☐ Boys' Intermediate, 16, 17.
☐ Boys' Junior, 14 and 15.
☐ Boys' Juvenile, 12 and 13.
☐ Boys' Midget, under 12.
☐ Girls' Senior, 16 and over.
☐ Girls' Junior, under 16.

"Although Cedar Rapids, Ia., is considerable distance from Chicago, we are endeavoring to work up enthusiasm out here among the young skaters and hope that every year we will be able to send to the Silver Skates Derbies a good representation."

So writes Mr. L. D. Dennis, a Cedar Rapids attorney. In his letter he enclosed the entries of his sons in THE TRIBUNE's 16th annual Silver Skates races which will be held Jan. 23 and 24 at Garfield park. Larry Dennis, 16 years of age, will compete in the boys' intermediate Derby, while his brother, Robert, 14, is entered in the boys' junior race.

Hundreds File Entries.

Mr. Dennis' letter is indicative of the interest the Silver Skates races arouse in Chicagoland. Hundreds of boys and girls already have signified their intention of competing two weeks from this afternoon, and while the total number of competitors this year may not equal the record established in 1931, when 4,829 registered, it will not be far below.

The program this year is identical with 1931. There will be seven Derbies, two of which are for girls. It is probable that the preliminary races in the three youngest age divisions for boys will be held Saturday afternoon. Last year the number of entries made this imperative, so that the semi-finals and finals could be concluded on Sunday.

What Class to Enter.

The seven Derbies and the age classifications follow:

Men's senior, 18 years and over.
Boys' intermediate, 16 and 17.
Boys' junior, 14 and 15.
Boys' juvenile, 12 and 13.
Boys' midget, under 12.
Girls' senior, 16 and over.
Girls' junior, under 16.

Officials of the Illinois Western Skating association, the governing skating body in this territory, who have sanctioned the Silver Skates races, have requested that all skaters who wish to apply for membership do so at Garfield park on the day of the races. Only those contestants 16 years of age and over are required to belong to the association. The yearly fee is 25 cents and gives permission to enter all other skating meets sanctioned by the association.

There is no fee for entering the Silver Skates Derbies other than this membership. Skaters under 16 years of age are not required to register with the Illinois Western.

Only One Event in 1917.

The number of age classifications have been expanded as interest increased. The men's senior Derby was the only event held in 1917. It has been held continuously since that time. The boys' junior Derby was established in 1919 and was divided into intermediate in 1923, juvenile in 1925, and midget in 1930. As these divisions were made the intermediate became the second Derby with junior, juvenile and midget following.

The first girls' Derby was held in 1921. The following year the girls' junior race was established. Perhaps in some future year a third girls' race will be added to the list.

A skater may compete in only one Derby, and a winner of Silver Skates no longer is eligible in the class in which he won, although he may move up; that is, a Silver Skates champion in the boys' midget division is eligible the following year in the boys' juvenile class.

Entries for this year's races close a week from tonight at midnight. No post entries will be accepted. All those who plan to compete should send their names to Wilfrid Smith, sports department, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, without delay. Their coöperation is urged by the clerks, who must classify all the entries.

SPRING FOOTBALL IS ABANDONED BY HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 9.—(AP)—For the first time in several years Harvard will have no formal football practice this spring, William J. Bingham, director of athletics, announced tonight.

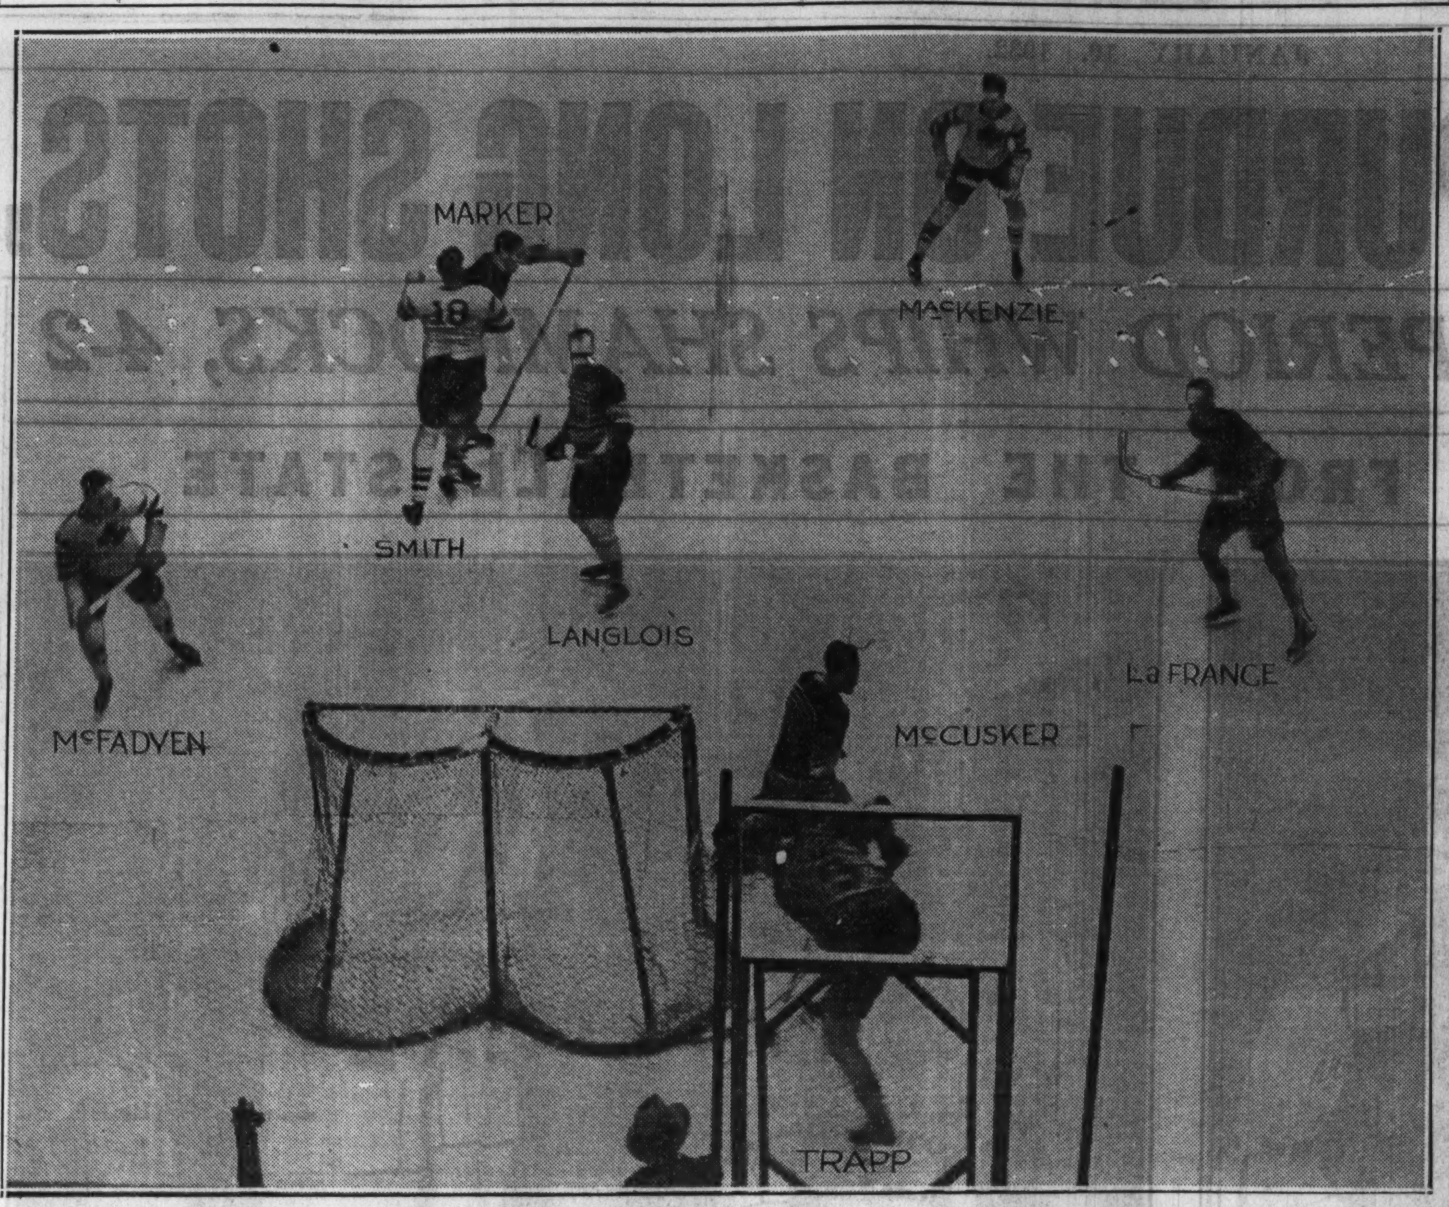
This change in policy, he explained, was in accord with the views of Head Coach Eddie Casey and the athletic committee.

Casey, who conducted a two weeks' practice last spring, concluded that this work was of little value because of the wide participation of football players in such spring sports as baseball, track, and rowing.

Riverside Heavyweights Beat La Grange, 38-36

A field goal by Edward Percival gave the Riverside High school heavyweight basketball team a 38 to 36 victory over La Grange last night. La Grange lightweight defeated Riverside, 26 to 17, in a preliminary game.

WHEN OILERS GREASED SKIDS UNDER SHAMROCKS



Danny McFadyen misses. The Shamrock speedster fired a hard one at Goalie McCusker of the Tulsa Oilers, in the first period of their American league game at the Stadium last night, but McCusker turned it away easily, flipping the puck to Trapp back of the net. The Oilers eventually defeated the Shamrocks, 4 to 2, although the Chicagoans were leading at this moment. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mac Smith 2 Under Par as He Leads Open

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—MacDonald Smith, veteran Scot from New York, today led the opening round of the Los Angeles $7,500 open golf tournament. He posted a card of 37—32—69, two under par.

Smith, who has won the Los Angeles tournament twice, started with a birdie 3 after laying his approach hole high, but he three putted the second after catching a trap. Smith then settled down except for the ninth where he hooked both his drive and approach.

Smith came home with four birdies. He almost made a hole in one on the 16th when his ball rolled dead six inches from the cup. He was on the 18th in two, but took two putts for a 32, four under par.

Smith's card:

In .......................433 444 244—32—69

INDIANS BOOK TWENTY SPRING TRAINING GAMES

Cleveland, O., Jan. 9.—(AP)—A schedule of 20 spring exhibition games was announced tonight by the Cleveland Indians. The only major league opponents will be Brooklyn and Cincinnati.

Brooklyn will be played April 2 and 3 at New Orleans, the Indians' training camp. Cleveland will stop off at Cincinnati April 9 and 10. Other games scheduled are:

Baltimore at New Orleans, March 19 and 20, and at Gulfport, Miss., March 24. Birmingham, April 5 and 6. Chattanooga at Chattanooga April 7 and 8.

Games will be played with New Orleans March 5, 6, 9, 12, 13, 16, 26, 27, and 30.

North Central Hands De Kalb First Defeat

De Kalb, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—North Central outplayed the De Kalb Teachers here tonight to hand them their first defeat of the season, 32 to 27. The score at the half was 14 to 12 in favor of North Central.

Missouri Wins, 32 to 29, from Kansas State Five

Columbia, Mo., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Four baskets by Cooper, sophomore Missouri forward, near the end of the game with Kansas State gave the Tigers their first Big Six conference victory here tonight, 32 to 29.

Woods and Waters by BOB. BECKER

While hunters in Illinois are complaining about the trouble they have because they can't find places to hunt, and because the state lacks public shooting grounds, Michigan starts the new year with more than 1,500,000 acres of land open to public hunting.

This setup for the rifle and shotgun army is the result of a wise, long term policy inaugurated by the department of conservation, aided of course by the fact that Michigan has a lot of denuded forest lands which are more suitable for growing game and trees than for agriculture. But it shows what a state can do for the thousands of outdoor fans who pay good money each year for a license and expect some sport for that investment.

To supplement this state-wide pattern of public shooting areas the state added 2,000 acres of land to the list of sanctuaries during 1931. More than 100,000 acres are being operated as game refuges, state parks, and forests which are closed to hunting.

We have visited some of these areas and have seen how they grow game and help stock the surrounding country where one may hunt. Incidentally, more than 9,000,000 outdoor fans visited the Michigan state parks during 1930, which today number around 55. About 177,000 campers pitched their tents in these parks and enjoyed an outing during the summer months. Of this number more than 8,000 registered from Ohio and more than 6,000 came from Illinois to spend their money in Michigan.

It doesn't take much work with an adding machine to establish the fact that it's a smart state that provides plenty of hunting areas and game and numerous parks for tourists, because the money derived from the visitors runs into millions.

Another tip for Illinois coming at a time when an advisory conservation board is endeavoring to find some plan to increase the recreational assets of the state is found in Oklahoma's quail program.

Whereas Michigan pays considerable attention to wild deer in its wilderness area, states like Oklahoma and Illinois must turn to upland game hunting, with the quail the main attraction. The former has established a state-wide program of quail growing areas by leasing and buying farm lands for that purpose. These inviolate sanctuaries will act as reservoirs of birds which will spill over into adjacent hunting territory.

MAROONS DEFEAT AMERICANS, 4-2, IN THIRD PERIOD

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Outplayed in the first period, the Montreal Maroons came from behind to beat the New York Americans, 4 to 2, in a National Hockey league game tonight.

Nels Stewart scored three of the Maroons' goals, the other going to Baldy Northcott in the third period. Joe Lamb put the Americans ahead with an unassisted goal in the first period and Shields scored the other in the second period. Lineup:

There's Gold in Those Winter Golf Tourneys

There's gold in those winter golf tournaments.

Albert R. Gates, business administrator of the Professional Golfers' association, yesterday estimated that despite business conditions, approximately $90,000 in prize money will be distributed in the winter tournaments throughout the west and south, an estimate only $11,000 short of last winter's purse of $101,000.

"Golf has held more nearly to normal than any other sport through the present economic crisis," Administrator Gates said. "Major leagues report a 15 per cent decline in attendance during the 1931 season. Football crowds fell off from 15 to 20 per cent, and boxing has taken a tremendous drop in popular appeal. Yet tournament golf had a fine summer.

"The P. G. A. tournament bureau has scheduled approximately $90,000 in prize moneys for this winter, as against $101,000 last year. That amount may not seem large when compared to football, boxing and hockey, but it at least indicates exhibition golf is maintaining a healthy status while other commercial sports are suffering from existing conditions."

said, "very little was accomplished at our little luncheon."

Not Much Hope for Chicago.

Mr. Getz is still full of a desire to bring to Chicago that distinction among the capitals of the world which only the holding of a heavyweight championship prizefight can confer, but he said he had little hope of doing this because the Garden firm holds the equivalent of a continuous and constantly renewing claim on the services of the successive champions.

There was no discussion of a plan to produce the Schmeling-Walker bout in Chicago under the joint auspices of the Illinois branch of the Garden firm and the Chicago Stadium corporation. Mr. Carey's determination to promote the fight either in New York or Miami forefended that.

Frank Ryan, an Illinois state senator, sponsor of a bill extending the prizefight limit in Illinois from ten rounds to fifteen, did not accompany Mr. Getz to New York. Instead, he went to Washington to foregather with other statesmen of the Democratic persuasion at the Jackson day boosters' dinner and record his concurrence in the resolutions of sympathy for Mr. Hoover adopted there.

Thinks Law Will Be Passed.

"We will get our fifteen round law next Tuesday," Mr. Getz said.

Mr. Johnston was distinctly subdued this evening.

"Can you imagine a fellow of my experience making a break like that?" he said. "But I don't see very well without my glasses and I just thought it was another of those family groups like people carry around with them, especially when he said 'this one on the end is called Rudolph.'"

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—In less than thirty minutes from the time President H. H. Ramsay bade the delegates to the annual meeting be seated, the United States Golf association today disposed of 1931 and made all its plans for 1932.

Before the hour hand of the clock could get even half way round the dial the parent body of American golf had announced the personnel of the women's team it is sending abroad this year for the "official" international matches, fixed the dates of its championships, made several changes in its method of conducting the amateur and the open, named Francis Ouimet of Boston captain of this year's Walker cup team, reëlected all officials and was ready to entertain the usual adjournment motion.

Mrs. Vare on Team.

Of chief interest, of course, were the announcements with respect to the women's team and the two championships. On the women's team are Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, who, although shorn of her title at Buffalo last autumn by Miss Helen Hicks, still holds rank as America's foremost woman golfer; Miss Hicks, Mrs. O. S. Hill, the western champion; Miss Virginia Van Wie, Mrs. Leona Cheney [formerly Mrs. Pressler], and Miss Maureen Orcutt. Miss Marion Hollins, winner of the championship in 1921, was named team captain and alternate. Mrs. Harley G. Higbie of Detroit is the other alternate.

The matches will be held at the Saunton Golf club in England during May and will be conducted along the same lines as the Walker cup matches, the competition consisting of three 18-hole foursomes on one day and six 18-hole singles matches on the following day. While abroad the members of the team will play in the British ladies' championship.

Walker Cup Play Uncertain.

The appointment of Ouimet, winner of the amateur at Beverly last year and returning to power seventeen years after his former victory in the event, as captain of the Walker Cup team was almost a certainty. It is not at all certain, however, whether Francis will get an opportunity to lead his men into action against the British this year, when the matches are to be played in the United States. No definite word has yet been received from the British as to their plans.

The changes made in the playing conditions of the two championships are minor ones, but changes calculated to help both competitions.

Last year the U. S. G. A. tried out the experiment of holding preliminary elimination rounds throughout the country to make up the ultimate field for the amateur championship.

These were held in twenty different cities throughout the land. There were, however, some defects in the plan. The principal cause of dissatisfaction came in the failure of Donald Moe, the western champion, to qualify. Moe qualified in a district that, while one of the strongest in the country, had but few entries. Moe's section got only four places. It was not enough and he failed to qualify.

Name 1932 Tourneys.

Following is the change made to meet such cases:

"The basis of allocating places to each qualifying district mathematically, as heretofore, will be followed in principle. The committee will reserve the right, however, to vary the allocation in any district, based upon the entries and the playing strength of the district."

The practice of seeding a certain number of players in the championship draw also will be abandoned.

Other innovations are those of exempting the holding champion from qualifying and limiting playoffs of ties in the national open to 18 holes.

The places and dates of the leading 1932 tournaments were announced as follows:

AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP — Baltimore Country club, Baltimore, Md., Sept. 12 to 17.
OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP — Fresh Meadow Country club, Flushing, N. Y., June 23, 24, and 25.
WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP — Salem Country club, Salem, Mass., Sept. 26 to Oct. 1.
PUBLIC LINKS CHAMPIONSHIP — Cherokee park golf course, Louisville, Ky., July 19.

UNIFORM COURTS.

TENNIS authorities, whose efforts look toward the future with constructive suggestions for betterment and development of the game, are launching a movement for world wide adoption of a uniform court or playing surface.

The purpose is to find some substitute for the present clay or turf courts, between which there is wide variation in the bound of the ball and general tennis strategy. Our national title events are on grass courts. So are those at Wimbledon. Most tournament play, however, is on clay courts.

Objection to turf courts is twofold. First is the matter of expense. Second is the fact that no matter how much care is given, even the best grass surfaces become frayed and worn, or what is known as "moth eaten," in spots during a long tourney such as a championship event. This is true even at Forest Hills and Philadelphia.

The idea of uniformity is that experts would not have to change their style when moving from turf to grass and vice versa, as they do now. Moreover, experts from one country would not be at a disadvantage in playing in another country.

The problem naturally is to find some surface or composition which could be laid uniformly. Various suggestions are made with general approval of a crushed rock foundation providing drainage. Composition of the top layer is ground for more argument, with various experiments being made. It probably will be several years before the plan, if approved, can be adopted universally. Sentiment generally is favorable.

Where Coaching Failed.

Sir: Just a neighborly little story of our beloved friend, Knute Rockne. The man across the street from the Rockne home was laboriously putting the finishing touches on a bit of cement work. One of the Rockne boys came tearing around the corner, probably chasing a football, and walked right into the fresh cement. Of course, the neighbor was upset and demanded to know the boy's name. The latter rather sheepishly said he was Coach Rockne's son. Whereupon the irate neighbor expounded, "Well, I think he's doing a poor job of coaching on you." Ln. of South Bend.

GOODWIN, DURAND REACH FINALS OF MIAMI GOLF

Miami, Fla., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Celest Durand of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Tommy Goodwin of Monroe, N. Y., and West Palm Beach, stroked their way to the finals of the annual Miami midwinter amateur golf tournament today by defeating respectively Lee Chase Sr. of Buffalo, N. Y., and Ed Romfh Jr. of Miami.

Durand, with a medal of 78, defeated Chase 2 up. Chase yesterday eliminated Win Day, Chicago schoolboy star and defending champion. Chase's medal today was 80.

Goodwin put together cards of 38 and 37 to defeat Romfh 1 up. Romfh's medal was 77.

Durand and Goodwin will play for the championship tomorrow in a 36 hole match.

AT LAST! KRONE REVEALS ALL-ALL WRESTLING TEAM

None Genuine Without Doc's Signature.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Relax, all you followers of the grand old game of wrestling, and give eye to one of the most profound and searching selections of the year—Dr. John Krone's All-Nations mat team. This long awaited announcement is made possible by special arrangement with the doctor himself, who has been weighing and balancing each of his choices for the ten positions on the honor roll for many moons past.

Several friends of the doctor have been somewhat overeager to learn the names of the fortunate grapplers, but he refused to be hurried. He has bided his time and his selections once more bear out the motto of the House of Krone that truth and justice will prevail.

Of course, this isn't the first all-star selection ever made. There was a time a few years ago, for instance, when every sports writer, society editor, and copy boy used to pick an All-American football team. The practice is gradually folding up, however, simply because it is impossible to see every team in the country play. And that is just where Dr. Krone has a decided advantage, for who better than he is qualified to choose the elect among wrestlers, he who has broken bread with every exponent of the grappling art since the storied days of Gotch and Hackenschmidt?

Gentlemen, the state rests.

And Here They Are.

Lest the suspense about the identity of the ten artists upon whom Dr. Krone has conferred the highest honor in wrestling become unbearable, the names of the chosen ten, together with their respective fatherlands and ranked in the order of proficiency is submitted herewith:

James Londos	Greece [captain]
James McMillen	America
Rudolph Dusek	Bohemia
Raymond Steele	Germany
George Calza	Italy
Kola Kwariani	Russia
Patrick O'Shocker	Ireland
Leo Pinetzki	Poland
Earl McCready	Canada
Herbert Freeman	Palestine

The naming of James Londos, the IT Man of wrestling, as captain, was of course, a mere formality. Who will question the ability of this marvelous specimen of physical perfection? Can Bobby Jones play golf? Can Bill Tilden use a tennis racquet? Can Babe Ruth hit home runs? Must we go on?

The honor of carrying the flag in Dr. Krone's troupe falls to James McMillen, who used to play football with a fellow named Grange or something like that at the University of Illinois before he heard of the call to the higher field of the mat game. James is credited with having as much personal magnetism as El Londos, and assisted the latter in attracting the two largest wrestling crowds of 1931.

What! No Zaharias?

Rudolph Dusek is the doctor's choice as the Bohemian representative, the doctor taking occasion to remark in a polite aside that he will be on display at the Rainbo Fronton on Jan. 19 in a dispute with George Zaharias. It grieved the doctor mightily to omit George from his list, but unfortunately he too is a Greek, and who among all the Greek grapplers could budge Londos from his rightful place?

Dr. Krone expects a storm of criticism on his choice of the German member of the team, Ray Steele, whose family name is Sauer. However, he still is of the opinion that the former Herr Sauer can dispose of those other two Teutons, Ed Lewis and Gus Sonnenberg, at any and all times. Of course, it should be pointed out that Gus and Ed are not playing in the doctor's league this season.

Just Wait for Pinetzki.

There is little doubt about the remainder of the selections, according to their compiler. George Calza, the grinning Italian, who is suspected of posing for tooth paste ads in his spare time, and Kola Kwariani, the Hairless Horror of the Steppes, are unanimous choices for Italy and Russia.

The doctor is confident that O'Shocker, Pinetzki, McCready, and Freeman can attend to matters in Ireland, Poland, Canada, and Palestine, respectively. Pinetzki is the only member of the team who has not appeared in these parts, but the doctor predicted that he will cause no small commotion when he is shipped here, for he stands 6 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 280 pounds.

Now, About a Coach.

When questioned as to who might tutor this splendid array of manhood at its physical best Dr. Krone grew highly embarrassed, and finally sidled through the largest door available with a muttered "Well, thank you—uh—uh—uh—I must be going."

The nomination of Dr. Krone as coach of the All-Nation Mat team is hereby duly moved, seconded, and carried.

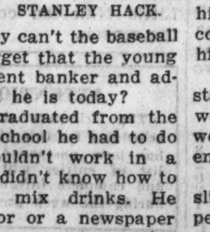
Michigan Wrestlers Win from Toronto U., 34 to 0

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Michigan opened its wrestling season by witewashing Toronto University 34 to 0 here tonight. The Wolverines won two matches by falls and a third by forfeit. Another was conceded when a Toronto wrestler was injured and four were on time advantages.

SOME OLD MEANIES RECALL CUB ROOKIE WORKED IN BANK

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Some of the friends of the Cubs are expressing fear that there is a stigma attached to Stanley Hack, Mr. Hornsby's new third baseman, because he worked in a bank before entering organized baseball.



STANLEY HACK.

If the public looks down on this 20 year old boy just because he worked a few weeks in a bank it will be a dirty shame. Stanley got out of the banking business just as rapidly as he could and is trying to forget the experience. Why can't the baseball fans of Chicago forget that the young man was an incipient banker and admire him for what he is today?

When Stanley graduated from the Sacramento High school he had to do something. He couldn't work in a cabaret because he didn't know how to play a piano or mix drinks. He couldn't be an actor or a newspaper reporter because he was too active to stay in bed till noon. Stanley was proud, but he had no choice. He went to work in a bank.

In the Pacific Coast league, where young Mr. Hack was a star last year, his first season in professional baseball, he was known as "Smiling Stan." No matter how hard the coaches rode the rookie, and they tried it plenty, Stanley would beam his contagious smile and make a complete chump out of the coach who was trying to upset him.

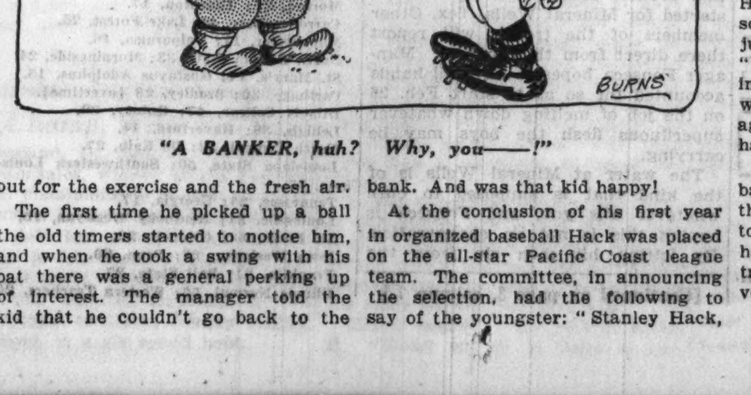
Smile Helps in Baseball, but Not in Bank.

This smile is hailed as an asset in baseball, but it was a liability in the banking business. Stan hadn't worked in the bank a day until he discovered that bankers never smile except when some one is opening a new account.

Stanley realized it would be years before he could wear a carnation in his buttonhole and receive new accounts. Yet he didn't want to junk his personable smile.

This fact, added to the circumstance that even his best friends were snubbing him just because he worked in a bank, irked our hero no end.

So one day early last spring Stan slipped away from the bank and asked permission to work out with the Sacramento Senators. He had no idea of becoming a professional, but just went out for the exercise and the fresh air.



"A BANKER, huh? Why, you——!"

The first time he picked up a ball the old timers started to notice him, and when he took a swing with his bat there was a general perking up of interest. The manager told the kid that he couldn't go back to the bank. And was that kid happy!

At the conclusion of his first year in organized baseball Hack was placed on the all-star Pacific Coast league team. The committee, in announcing the selection, had the following to say of the youngster: "Stanley Hack, 20 year old Sacramento third baseman, is given a place over the veteran third sackers of the league because of his hitting, speed and ability and willingness to hustle."

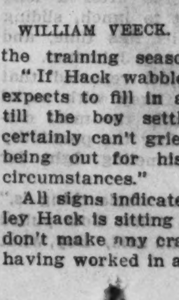
That's the youth whom some wretched persons are planning to drum off the Cubs just because he worked in a bank. If they succeed it will be one of the greatest outrages in the history of sport.

Manager Hornsby Won't Bring Up the Past.

It is to the credit of Manager Hornsby that he is entertaining no such vile prejudice because of the lad's former status. "I never have seen Hack play, but I've had reports from scouts and other baseball men whose judgment I respect," Rogers said. "Hack batted .352 in the Coast league in his first season and must have a world of natural ability to do that against the rather good pitching they have on the coast.

"Right now he is the Cub third baseman and it gives a kid like that the edge to know that his only job is to hustle and protect what he already has. It's a whole lot different from trying to beat out an established veteran."

President William Veeck is sold on Stanley. "I like the way he laughs off those old timers who try to ride him. I'm told that he has a disposition like Woody English's, and Woody stepped into stardom as a rookie largely because he could smile away those taunts of being a busher.



WILLIAM VEECK.

"The Cubs have been looking a long time for a star third baseman and Hornsby tells me that he's going to give that kid all the chance in the world from the very start of the training season.

"If Hack wabbles a little Hornsby expects to fill in at third for awhile till the boy settles down. Stanley certainly can't grieve about somebody being out for his job under those circumstances."

All signs indicate that Master Stanley Hack is sitting pretty. Now please don't make any cracks about his once having worked in a bank.

SCHURZ TAKES PREP SWIM TITLE IN STAGG MEET

Win Both Relays; Senn Finishes Second.

Table of Points

Schurz	27	Lane	7
Senn	18	Englewood	6
Maine Township	14	Fenger	3
Tilden	9	Austin	2
Roosevelt	9	Deerfield-Shields	2
Evanston	8	Morton	1

Its decisive victories in the two relay events, which accounted for sixteen points, gave Schurz High the prep swimming title of the Chicago region yesterday in the finals of the University of Chicago's eighth annual meet at Bartlett gymnasium.

Harry Rieke's first place in the backstroke event, added to Matt Sielski's third in the 100 yard free style, piled up a total of 27 points for Schurz.

Senn Places Second.

Another north side entry, Senn, finished second with 18 points, largely on the performance of Lou Diamond, who captured first in the 40 yard event and placed second in the 100 yard free style to account for 8 points and tie Jim Hickey of Tilden for high point honors. Maine township, defending champion, was third with 14 points.

With the exception of the 40 yard swim and the 160 yard relay, all of the times made yesterday were slower than those recorded in the preliminaries.

Hickey Wins Easily.

Hickey who broke a meet record of six years standing in the 220 yard swim Friday night by covering the course in 2:25.2, was content yesterday to coast to an easy 2:37.1 win. He placed in the other two free style events.

The meet might have gone to Senn had not its 160 yard relay entry been disqualified in the preliminaries. Twelve of the fifteen schools in the meet scored points.

160 YARD RELAY—Won by Schurz [Marberg, Sielski, Strucka, Tischler]; Englewood, second; Maine, third; Lane, fourth. Time, 1:20 4-10.

100 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Larson, Lane; Klein, Fenger, second; Walker, Deerfield-Shields, third; Gibson, Tilden, fourth. Time, 1:15.4.

40 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Diamond, Senn; Tischler, Schurz, second; Hickey, Tilden, third; Strucka, Schurz, fourth. Time, 0:19.2.

220 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Hickey, Tilden; Pettigrew, Maine township, second; Elwell, Senn, third; Johns, Maine, fourth. Time, 2:37 1-10.

100 YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Riecke, Schurz; Spry, Evanston, second; Weckler, Senn, third; Pascoe, Maine township, fourth. Time, 1:07.5.

100 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Ladof, Roosevelt; Diamond, Senn, second; Sielski, Schurz, third; Hickey, Tilden, fourth. Time, 0:57.4.

220 YARD MEDLEY RELAY [40 yard back stroke, 40 yard free style, 40 yard breast stroke, 100 yard free style]—Won by Schurz [Riecke, Strucka, Koch, Tischler]; Senn, second; Roosevelt, third; Maine township, fourth. Time, 2:06.5.

FANCY DIVING—Won by Holland, Evanston; Schmidt, Maine, second; Hayes, Austin, third; Sianta, Morton, fourth.

N. U. WRESTLERS WIN, 29 TO 6, FROM WISCONSIN TEAM

Madison, Wis., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Winning falls in five of the eight events, a decision in one, and a draw in another, Northwestern's wrestling team defeated Wisconsin here this afternoon, 29½ to 6½.

Jack Riley, star Northwestern tackle and Western conference heavyweight wrestling champion, exhibited skill and power in pinning Lloyd Eimerman in two and a half minutes.

Abe Brown, the second Northwestern champion, was awarded a technical fall over Dan Estreen in seven minutes' elapsed time. The uneven match was stopped by Coach George Hitchok of Wisconsin to save the Badger athlete from unnecessary punishment.

The most interesting match occurred in the 135 pound class, in which George Staneck of the Badgers had a 32 second time advantage over Vincent Harris after two overtime periods. Big Ten rules require an advantage of at least one minute and the match was called a draw. Summaries:

118 POUNDS—Wisconsin forfeited.

135 POUNDS—Harris, Northwestern, and Staneck, Wisconsin, wrestled to a draw in two overtime periods.

145 POUNDS—Ferguson, Wisconsin, threw Dunn, Northwestern, in seven minutes and three seconds.

175 POUNDS—Brown, Northwestern, threw Trimberger, Wisconsin, in seven minutes.

30 SURVIVE IN GRAND RAPIDS GOLDEN GLOVES

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—One of the best fields of amateur boxers ever entered in a tournament in western Michigan remains in the Western Michigan Golden Gloves tourney, conducted by the Grand Rapids Press, which ends next Friday night. There are thirty boys left, four in each class except the light heavyweight, where only two remain. The survivors are:

112 POUNDS—Glen Guidebeck, Otsego; Harry Zalewski, Grand Rapids, Joe Belskie, Benton Harbor; Bob Gignac, Lansing.

126 POUNDS—Ray Wirt, George Quackenbusch, Walter Sikerk, Grand Rapids; Anthony Tarchinski, Traverse City.

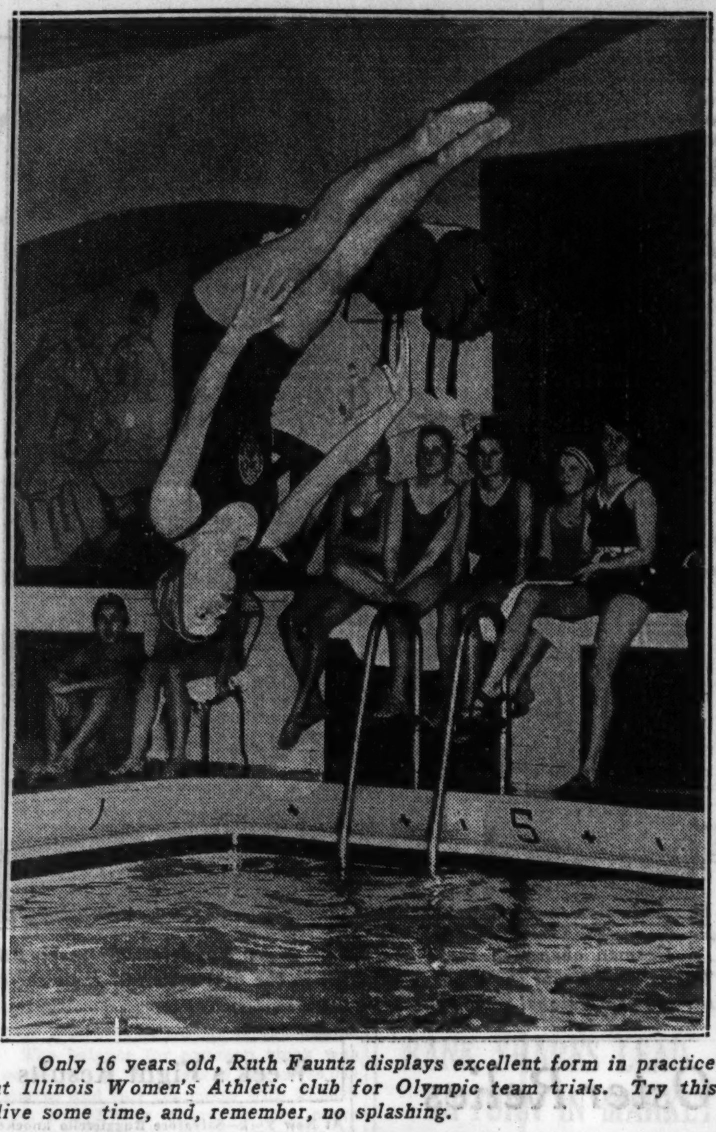
135 POUNDS—Stanley Krannenberg, Robert Crampton, Charles Klinth, Grand Rapids; John Houart, Benton Harbor.

147 POUNDS—Adolph Lapinski, Ward Gogo, Jerry Bassett, Charles Grice, Grand Rapids.

160 POUNDS—Tony Dauksza, Bob Cordes, Grand Rapids; Bob Frakes, Benton Harbor, Charles Baird, Lowell.

175 POUNDS—Al Johnson, Grand Rapids; Bob Whitney, Benton Harbor. Heavyweight—Walter Karpinski, John Ebers, Grand Rapids; Walter Smeltekop, Muskegon, and Edward Ziet, Ada.

WHAT OLYMPIC JUDGE WOULDN'T VOTE FOR THEM?



Only 16 years old, Ruth Fauntz displays excellent form in practice at Illinois Women's Athletic club for Olympic team trials. Try this dive some time, and, remember, no splashing.

Good enough for anybody's Olympic team. That's the unanimous vote of spectators who watch Evelyn Kennedy of the Illinois Women's Athletic club perform a front jackknife dive with half twist in the club pool. The club is encouraging young swimmers to perfect themselves for the Olympic trials. Watching stars like Miss Kennedy ought to help.

Norge Club to Import Snow for Ski Meet

Preparations have been made by the Norge Ski club to assure against postponement of its twenty-sixth annual tournament at Cary hill, Fox River Grove, Ill., Sunday, Jan. 17. The club will bring in several carloads of snow from Wisconsin.

This means, which proved as effective in the past, had a peculiar climax last season when the Norge club held the national championship tournament at Cary. The club had brought in six carloads of snow from the lakes of northern Wisconsin. A heavy snow fall then started early the day of the tournament and lasted until late in the evening.

Blizzard Comes Along.

When the skiers were ready to compete the blasts were driving into their faces so hard that the start of competition had to be delayed until they could prepare themselves against it.

In addition to entries from the best Chicagoland jumpers, several of the leading eastern skiers who will be unable to partake in the Olympic competition because of the citizenship qualifications, have entered the Cary meet.

Oman to Compete.

Gunnar Oman of Ogden Dunes Ski club and Guttorm Paulsen of Norge will head the Chicago competitors. Oman is regarded as one of the finest stylists in the sport. He won the most graceful jump award in the national tournament last year.

Paulsen is regarded as one of the most daring jumpers now competing and appears ready to carry off some of the larger prizes this winter.

COMPLETE CARD FOR 1ST PLAYDIUM WRESTLING SHOW

Gophers Attract 20% More Fans to Basket Games

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Basketball business at the University of Minnesota is better than last season.

The business managers today reported the first five games attracted 18,000 persons, representing a 20 per cent increase over a year ago.

He also said Minnesota's football receipts last fall were $210,008, a 14 per cent decrease from 1930.

WASHINGTON TO CUT SALARIES OF COACHING STAFF

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The high cost of sport coaching at the University of Washington is coming down.

Earl Campbell, graduate manager of the institution, said today three assistant coaches will be released and salaries of all others will be reduced. It was reported the cut will range as high as 25 per cent.

Sport schedules, including track, tennis, and golf, will be reduced and athletic budgets will be revised.

Al Schuss and Steve Anderson, assistant track coaches, will be released. Curly Harris, assistant rowing coach, has resigned and his position will not be filled.

LA PORTE PREPS WHIP LINDBLOM QUINTET, 24-14

La Porte, Ind., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Lindblom High of Chicago was defeated, 24 to 14, by the Laporte High school five here tonight. Piling up a 5 to 1 advantage in the first quarter and making it 14 to 5 at the half, La Porte never relinquished its lead.

La Porte's center, Garrison, was high scorer with ten points. Lineup:

Mild Weather Postpones Olympic Skate Trials

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Because of mild weather and poor ice conditions, the final American Olympic speed skating tryouts, scheduled here tomorrow, have been postponed a week. They will be held at Albany, Jan. 16 and 17, in conjunction with the New York state championships.

Morton Junior College Five Beats Thornton, 21-17

Morton college's basketball team, undefeated leader of the Northern Illinois Junior College conference, defeated Thornton last night, 21 to 17, at Cicero. Thornton led, 12 to 9, at the end of the first half. Sally Carlson starred for Morton.

Oshkosh Flyer Winner of Two Races at Miami

Miami, Fla., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—S. J. Wittman of Oshkosh, Wis., flew his small racer to victory in the two high speed events of the All American Air races here this afternoon, winning both events with an average speed of more than 160 miles an hour. John Livingston of Aurora, Ill., who has won more national air races than any other pilot, finished second and fourth in the two contests.

Tailwind Aids Wittman.

A brisk tailwind helped Wittman win the Glenn H. Curtiss trophy race at an average speed of 166.94 miles an hour. Art Davis of Lansing, Mich., placed second in a Waco powered by Wright and Douglas Davis of Atlanta, third in a Travelair powered by Wright. Livingston fell into fourth place with his less powerful plane. Clyde Pangborn, around the world flyer, was forced down on the first lap by motor trouble, but escaped injury.

Nine women pilots, led by Mrs. Betty Lund of Chicago, Opal Kuntz and Viola Gentry of New York, demanded that special events for them be included on the program, and officials announced they would be included in tomorrow's program.

Rain interrupted the program this afternoon for one hour, and several events were postponed until tomorrow. A novel race was staged by two amphibions piloted by Karl Voelter of Pittsburgh and Duke Schiller of Detroit. They flew to the gulf stream, landed and harpooned fish. Voelter returned first and had the longest fish, so was declared winner.

Winners of Events.

Results of other events:

Bomb dropping — Monroe Bradley, Miami, first; H. L. Woods, Miami, second, and Charles Descomb, Hartford, Conn., third. Distance from mark, 30 feet 4 inches.

Dead stick landing—Art Davis, Orlando, Fla., first; Richard Bennett, Binghamton, N. Y., second, and F. W. Soule, Wilkesbarre, Pa., third. Distance from mark, 5 inches.

Parachute jumping — Roger Don Rae, Lansing, Mich., first; Ace Potter, Miami, second, and Floyd Stinson, Buffalo, N. Y., third. Distance from mark, 11 feet 5 inches.

JOE GRATZ BEATS BILL LENZEN IN BOWLING MATCH

Joe Gratz, turning in the best scores of the day, defeated Bill Lenzen in one of the four matches held yesterday in the All-Star Individual Bowling league at the Randolph alleys. Gratz's margin over Lenzen was 1,725 to 1,670. The winner of the tournament will challenge Joe Falcaro of New York for the world's match game championship.

In the other matches Joe Fliger won from Louis Levine, 1,648 to 1,566; Babe Bunning defeated Eli Maricich, 1,399 to 1,290, and Wallie Freitaz triumphed over Ben Bernicchi, 1,566 to 1,458.

Gonzales, Golden Gloves Champ, Wins Pro Bout

Cleveland, O., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Don Gonzales, winner of the featherweight championship in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's international bouts at Soldiers' field last year, scored another victory in his short professional career last night. Gonzales, ill for more than two months, returned to the ring tonight to defeat Johnny Raible, Cleveland, in a six round bout.

Tales of Tattersall's

[This is the last of a series of articles about old time fights and fighters at historic Tattersall's on South Dearborn street.]

BY FRENCH LANE.

Comedy, drama, and farce had been unfolded on the Tattersall's prize fight stage. Now tragedy was to stalk out from the wings and take its place before the footlights.

An experienced and talented actor played the leading rôle—Joe Gans, the Negro master of boxing science. Opposite him in the cast was Terrible Terry McGovern, once the featherweight champion of the world.

One played the part of an arch villain, the other his innocent accomplice.

McGovern had been brought to Chicago by Sam Harris, who was then beginning his career as a theatrical producer. Soon after his arrival he began rolling up a record which excited every boxing follower in America.

He whipped Tommy White twice. He finished Patsy Haley in one round. He did the same thing to Billy Rotchford. Eddie Santry fell before his vicious slashes in the fifth round, and Turkey Point Smith went down in three. Next he whipped George Dixon and later plastered Kid Broad all around the Tattersall's ring.

Crowds Clamor for a Worthy Opponent.

Crowds at Tattersall's actually tired of seeing him bowl over one foe after another. They clamored for an opponent who would make it interesting for Terry. Surely somewhere there was a fighter who could give him an argument.

So Lou Houseman, the matchmaker at Tattersall's, went out to find such a man. He brought back Joe Gans, who fought McGovern on the night of Dec. 13, 1900.

While Gans was training at Harry Forbes' gymnasium a plot was hatched. It was of such far reaching effect that it is doubtful if the plotters themselves realized what the result would be.

How many there were among the schemers has never been disclosed. Gans was one of them. His manager, Al Herford of Baltimore, was another. Vernon Johns, representing a clique of gamblers, was still another.

McGovern himself was unaware of the plot, and persons who claimed to have been on the inside of what happened at Tattersall's on that December night say Harris and Referee Siler were also innocent of what was going to happen.

Betting on the fight did not indicate any unnatural angles until the large crowd had assembled.

A half hour before the fight Johns, the gambler, with a bookmaker's satchel hanging from a strap around his neck, plodded up and down the aisles, walked into the boxes where the high priced customers were gathering, and offered to bet any amount up to $20,000 that McGovern would win. He found a ready market.

Whisper of "Something's Wrong" Travels Through Crowd.

Fifteen minutes before the fight Johns made the rounds again, and offered to bet the same amount that McGovern would win on a knockout. Once more he wagered an enormous sum, for Gans to all appearances had trained faithfully and was the mightiest foe McGovern had ever been asked to whip. Few fighters had knocked Gans off his feet.

With the fight but a few minutes away, with the fighters ready to leave their dressing rooms, the last preliminary near the end, Johns made the rounds for the third time. He walked upon the rails between the boxes, offering to wager any part of another $20,000 Gans would be out before the end of the fourth round. This time there was a stampede to cover his money.

It was unnatural betting, and finally had stirred the crowd into a turmoil. "Something's wrong," was the rumor which traveled like a wireless message from the high priced seats to the noisy boys in the back row.

Harris consulted the referee about it. "Don't worry; if there is anything wrong they won't get away with it," was the reassurance he got from Siler.

TERRY McGOVERN.

JOE GANS.

Gans did not enter the ring with much enthusiasm. A few seconds later McGovern, in the best condition of his career and keyed for the fight of his life, crawled through the ropes. Although outweighed some eight pounds, McGovern looked the stronger.

When the bell clanged McGovern tore after Gans in his most "Terrible Terry" manner. Gans avoided his wild, furious rushes, but did not endeavor to strike back. He seemed content to dodge McGovern's punches. He ducked and sidestepped, and a few times jabbed lightly with his left to keep Terry out of hitting distance.

The first round was all McGovern's, although he had landed only a few solid punches. If it had not been for the strange betting there would not have been any suspicion as to the way the first round was fought. It looked as if McGovern's attack prevented Gans from steadying himself and punching back.

However, suspicion among the spectators was growing in great volume. There were angry murmurings in all parts of the arena from persons who had wagered on Gans.

The Negro had heard the murmurings, and when he came out for the second round his usual bronze colored face was of an ashen gray and he appeared to be laboring under a terrific strain.

Gans Down for Count as Fans Storm Ring.

McGovern charged toward him with his customary rush. Gans met him with a straight left. McGovern fired a volley of punches in the direction of Gans' head. One of them hit Gans on the mouth and knocked down the Negro.

The referee started to count. As he chanted "three" blood began to trickle out of Gans' mouth. He was in a half sitting position and made no effort to get to his feet. He stayed there until he was counted out.

Scenes which smacked of a riot followed. Spectators who had lost thousands yelled "Robbers!" "Fake!" "Lynch him!" "Get the referee!" "Throw the faker into the lake!" The crowd surged toward the ring. Gans had escaped down a side aisle to his dressing room.

What would Referee Siler do? What could he do? Gans had been hit. He had been knocked down. Blood was ebbing from his mouth where McGovern's blow had landed. Siler had done all he could. He had counted the Negro out.

Once again the tumult and the turmoil subsided at Tattersall's, but this time there was a difference. A disillusioned crowd scattered. The last murmuring stragglers wended their way north and south on State and Dearborn streets. The lights in the famous arena were turned out. The last chapter of Tattersall's had been written, for a short time later the manly art of self-defense was declared an outlaw in Chicago. And it remained an outlaw long after Tattersall's degenerated into a junk heap.

Note—to Nate Lewis, who many times has chatted with me across the tables at the College Inn and the Chicago Stadium grill about old time fights and fighters, I am indebted for most of the information you have found in "Tales of Tattersall's."—F. L.

PREPS START TUESDAY

The north section lightweight and heavyweight basketball teams, which have been engaging in practice games since the season opened, will join the other sectional squads in the Chicago Public High School league competition this week with the lights opening their schedules on Tuesday and the heavies Friday.

Three games will start the lightweight race. Lane meets Lake View, Senn faces Schurz, and Rosevelt plays Waller. On Friday the Roosevelt heavies are scheduled against Lane, Waller at Schurz, and Lake View against Senn.

The south and central teams will play on Tuesday and Friday, while the west division quintets are scheduled to play on Thursday.

In the Chicago Catholic High School league all squads in both the north and south sections, with the exception of De Paul in the north and St. Philip in the south, will see action Friday.

The fourth round of games for the lights and heavies in the West Suburban conference will be played on Friday night. Riverside's teams will meet Downers Grove, Glenbard will travel to Hinsdale, and Maine will be at West Chicago.

Oak Park will be the scene of the feature games in the Suburban league Friday night, playing Morton. Other games are New Trier at Deerfield and Evanston at Proviso.

JAZ AGE TAKES MIAMI FEATURE; 2 MORE FOR MILLS

Jockey Adds a Double to His Record.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Jaz Age scored his second victory in three starts by taking the Clubhouse purse, feature at Tropical Park today. Jaz Age was one of two favorites to win during an afternoon which saw the leading jockey at his course, Hank Mills, add a double to his record.

Two more track records were set at the end of the card when Battling On ran a mile and a sixteenth in 1:45 2-5 in the sixth event, and Tuscan Knight galloped a mile and a quarter in the nightcap in 2:04. Mills was up on Tuscan Knight to complete his double, which was started with Muff in the fifth race.

Comes from Behind.

Jaz Age won by coming from behind in a hard drive. The margin at the end of the six furlongs was three-quarters of a length with Tombereau second, three lengths in front of Single Star. The field was completed by Hamilton, Whileaway, and Noajoyce.

The winner ran the six furlongs in 1:12 1-5 and returned $4.80 for a $2 mutuel ticket. He carried 110 pounds and was one of the slowest to find his racing legs when the break came. Hamilton was off on top, but Tombereau quickly took a substantial lead, with Noajoyce second and Public Choice third.

Muff Beats Putter.

The Jackson County purse, which was fifth on the program, resulted in another victory by three-quarters of a length, with Muff on the front end and Putter second. Outburst was beaten three lengths for second, with Coady, Westko, and Druggist completing the field in the order named.

GURGLER WINS AT HAVANA

HAVANA, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Gurgler turned in a sparkling effort and stood a severe stretch drive to win the 6 furlong feature race at Oriental Park today.

Gurgler's margin of victory was a head over Parties. Flying was a close third. The winner was ridden by Neal and paid 7 to 5.

Cloudy weather prevailed in the morning and a slight drizzle fell during the running of the first race. The drizzle stopped before the third race, but the track became heavy, with the result that Gurgler was clocked in the slow time of 1:15 1-5.

Hawks to Play Bruins Tonight for 2nd Place

Tied for second place in the United States division of the National Hockey league, the Boston Bruins and Chicago Blackhawks meet at the Stadium tonight in a game which has three possibilities.

The Bruins can shake off the lethargy which has gripped them the last four times out and make a goal or two which may win and give them second place. The Hawks may continue their scoring streak and go out in front, or they may tie and remain in the same spot they have occupied for nearly three weeks.

On the basis of past performances the edge should go to the Bruins, who have won two from the Hawks and tied one. However, in its last four league games Boston scored but three times, while the Hawks, in their last four, hit the nets eleven times.

Clapper, Barry Lead Scorers.

Despite the falling off in their scoring punch the men of Boston are fairly well up in the league's scoring lists, with Dit Clapper in third place with 21 points and Marty Barry among the leaders with 15.

It is difficult to figure just how Manager Ross of Boston will manipulate his formations. On the present trip he is carrying only 12 men. Harry Oliver was injured in a recent game with the Canadiens and his absence will cause Ross to shift Eddie Burke to right wing alongside of Bill Touhey and Marty Burke.

Eddie Will Be There.

Eddie Shore is still doing iron man defense duty with his rejuvenated sidekick, Lionel Hitchman. As usual, Eddie is carrying the brunt of the defense work, with Yip Foster, new to Chicago fans, alternating with Hitchman. George Owen, famous Harvard athlete, is seldom seen in games outside of Boston where he plays either defense or forward.

An examination yesterday showed that Taffy Abel had not sustained a fractured rib and the soreness will not keep the big defense man from the Hawks' lineup.

K. OF C. LEADERS FACE FORMIDABLE RIVALS TODAY

Six Teams Undefeated Out of 43.

Leaders in all five divisions of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league face formidable foes this afternoon. With the end of the first round a week away, sectional races are so close that one upset may tumble a quintet to third or fourth position.

Among the outstanding contests on the 19 game schedule are Lafayette vs. Leo XIII, and Quigley vs. Fort Dearobrn in the central division; Damen vs. Carroll, and Feehan vs. Hildebrand in the west; De Soto vs. St. Cyr, and University vs. Marquette in the north; Englewood vs. Calumet in the south, and San Salvador vs. Santa Maria in the south end.

Lafayette, Hildebrand, St. Cyr and University, Calumet and San Salvador are the leaders in their respective sections. Lafayette, Hildebrand and San Salvador are the only teams out of the 43 in the league which are undefeated.

The schedules:

CENTRAL DIVISION.
[39th street and Archer avenue.]

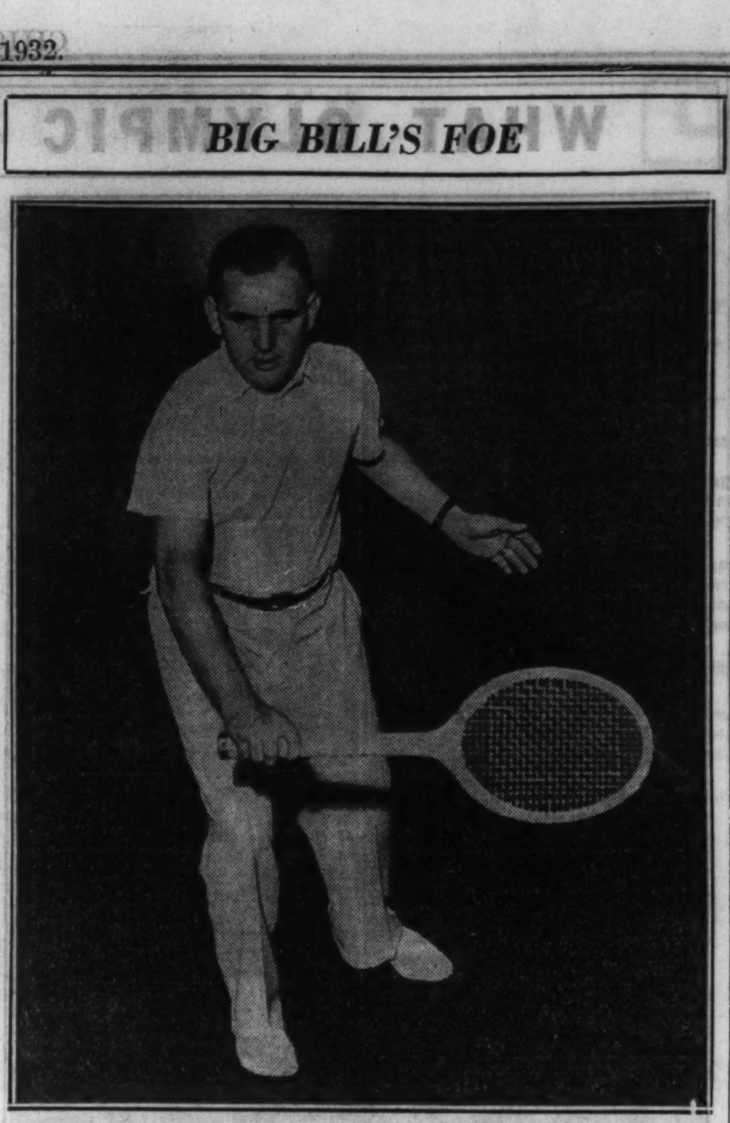
DUFFY FLORALS LEAD MIDWEST BASKET LEAGUE

The Duffy Florals, with two victories, hold the lead after the first week of play in the Midwest Professional Basketball league. The leaders will play two games this week, meeting the Cicero Langners at White City Tuesday night and traveling to St. Agnes gymnasium Wednesday night to face the Igoes. Dillon, Ivers, Bandy, Petrolaitus, Furlong and others are in the Duffy lineup.

Three league games and two non-league contests are scheduled for next week, as follows:

SUNDAY—Waukegan at Whiting, Ind.
TUESDAY—Cicero Langners vs. Duffy Florals at White City.
WEDNESDAY—Duffy Florals vs. Igoes at St. Agnes gym, 39th street and Archer avenue.
FRIDAY—Kaindls vs. Knutsons at Roseland.



German champion seeks pro title. Hans Nusslein will meet Bill Tilden Tuesday at the Chicago Stadium in the first match of their series for the professional tennis championship.

Oster Relies on Right to Beat Firpo

Henry Firpo, Newcastle middleweight who fought his way to the semi-finals in the N. B. A. tournament at Milwaukee, will meet Willie Oster at White City tomorrow night.

The hard punching right hand of Willie is expected to give him an even chance against Firpo.

Firpo lost in the N. B. A. tournament when the judges decided against him in his battle with Gorilla Jones. The referee voted for Firpo.

Mique Malloy plans five supporting bouts. Johnny Lullo, a west side lightweight, faces Al Ries of Logan Square in a four rounder. Red Bruce of the west side takes on Jud Junkins. Johnny Baima takes on Jimmy Murphy in a middleweight fight. Two other bouts will be arranged.

Week's Fight Results

At New York—Salvatore Ruggierello knocked out Walter Cobb [1].

At Flint, Mich.—Eddie Anderson beat Roger Bernard [10].

At Columbus, O.—Steve Demeter knocked out Jack O'Donald [1].

At Detroit, Mich.—Ray Miller beat Maxie Strub [10].

SYRACUSE BEATS PITT.

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 9.—[U.P.]—The Syracuse university basketball team tonight defeated the University of Pittsburgh, 32 to 28.

BUSINESS SLUMP MAKES NUSSLEIN A TENNIS STAR

Tilden's Foe Forced Into Professional Game.

Big Bill Tilden, the 38 year old champion, will meet Hans Nusslein, young German challenger.

Tilden proved he was in top form last week by beating Albert Burke of France, and Vincent Richards in matches at New York. Nusslein did not play singles in New York, confining his efforts to doubles to shake off his sea legs after the journey from Germany.

His Own Best Pupil.

Nusslein is a product of the depression. Tennis was just a pleasant pastime to the young German until about three years ago. When it became necessary for him to earn some money, he turned to the teaching of tennis and promptly found that he was his own most promising pupil.

Hans then turned to big time competition. During the last year he has supplanted Roman Najuch, Polish star, and Karel Kozeluh of Czecho-Slovakia as the leading players on the continent. He hits the ball almost as hard as Big Bill.

Pare to Play Burke.

With Tilden and Nusslein on the Stadium program are Emmett Pare, former Chicago youth and intercollegiate star from Georgetown who turned professional early last year, Najuch, and Burke.

Burke and Pare will open the program with a singles match, two sets out of three. Tilden and Nusslein then will start their championship series, three sets out of five. Tilden and Burke will pair up for a doubles affair against Nusslein and Najuch.

Bruins Play Future Home Games on Thursday Night

Future home games of the Chicago Bruins Basketball team will be played on Thursday instead of Wednesday nights, according to announcement by Manager George Halas. Next Thursday night the Bruins will play the Milwaukee Badgers, made up of former Marquette and Wisconsin university stars at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

Winter Is No Hindrance to Auto Touring

The 1932 National Automobile show opened in New York yesterday and will continue there until next Saturday. The show will be held in the Chicago Coliseum from Jan. 30 to Feb. 6, inclusive. A story of the New York opening will be found in the main news section of today's Tribune.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Winter is no longer a closed season for cross country touring. Modern automobiles, pavements, and highway maintenance ensure year around service.

THE TRIBUNE road car was driven here from Chicago this week through a drizzle and rain with touches of sleet, hail, and snow. Wet pavements reduced cruising speeds, but there was no other inconvenience from the weather. The 855 miles was covered in two and a half days.

Incidentally, this route is one that will be used by thousands of eastern motorists next year in visiting Chicago's World's Fair. Good automobiles and good roads, kept open through the winter, will contribute to the success of the fair.

Over Outer Drive.

The top was down on the roadster and a clean cool breeze from Lake Michigan was filling the driver's lungs as THE TRIBUNE car rolled out of Chicago's loop late Monday afternoon. Through the group of modernistic World's Fair buildings, the route followed the outer drive to Jackson park.

South of the park congestion was encountered on the narrow boulevards and on the marked highway through the industrial districts. This is a weak link in Chicago's gateway to the east. There was also congestion on the Dunes highway, but this will be alleviated this year with the completion of a forty foot relief road from Gary around Michigan City, Ind.

East from Michigan City, through South Bend and Elkhart on U. S. 20, the car met a shower of hail. Little balls of ice, struck while going sixty miles an hour, stung like bullets. There was only a moment's delay to convert the open roadster into a snug coupe. The new convertibles are built that way.

Stop in Toledo.

Approaching Toledo, the U. S. 20 markers by-pass the city, but it was bedtime, so the driver left the federal route for a night's rest in a hotel. The speedometer showed 222 miles.

In the morning, in a drizzling rain, U. S. 20 was picked up again and followed through Cleveland, along the coast of Lake Erie to U. S. 6 at Erie, Pa. U. S. 6 led eastward through foothills and gentle mountains. Curves and grades were moderate, the high compression motor, typical of the new cars, ascending with ease and affording secure breaking on the descents. The pavement was cleaned of snow and cinders gave traction where there was ice.

At high elevations ice coated heavy woods. After dark the branches reflected the headlights, twinkling like Christmas trees. After a night at Troy, Pa., the car swung into the scenic and historical valley of the Susquehanna. The pavement followed the river for miles, occasionaly climbing a cañon wall, giving a vista of brown meadows with a background of white mountains and with dark gray clouds overhead.

At Scranton, U. S. 611 was picked up and followed through wooded hills to Delaware Water Gap. Here the pavement swings along the water's bank, under rock cliffs, to a bridge across the river to connect with N. J. 6 for the run into New York. About 35 miles from the city, the route splits, one route leading to the Holland tunnel and the other to the George Washington bridge across the Hudson river.

THE TRIBUNE car headed for the bridge. After jogging through Jersey suburbs, choked with traffic, the marked route reached a superhighway with continuous grade separation, a pavement with eight lanes for rapid travel with underpasses or overheads for the cross streets.

This led to the largest bridge in the world, a $60,000,000 structure opened to traffic last October. Policemen shuttled cars into lanes for the collection of 50 cents toll and then waved them westward over a mile of suspended concrete and steel. Cables as thick as a man's wrist stretched down from supports above hidden in the fog. The river, 250 feet below, was also in a haze. The lights of skyscrapers broke through the drizzle.

30 Mile Speed on Bridge.

There are two roadways over the bridge and each accommodating two lanes of traffic and with space provided for widening. The speed limit is thirty miles an hour and drivers adhere to this speed. On the east bank of the river, or rather in a rocky cliff above the river, a plaza and an elaborate system of ramps distribute automobiles onto boulevards and streets without cross traffic.

THE TRIBUNE car dropped down from the bridgehead to Riverside drive, thence into and through Central park to the business center of New York, into a jam of taxicabs and chauffeur driven limousines, into blockades that make Chicago's loop in rush hour seem by comparison to be an open country road. This is Manhattan.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

DOUBLE PARKING.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—The general disrespect for parking regulations has become so bad that a salesman calling on trade loses much time and shoppers have difficulty in using their cars in community business centers.

I had a typical experience the other day. I wanted to stop for a few minutes on business at Ohio and Rush streets. After cruising around the block a couple of times I found a vacant space at the curb on Ohio street. When I came back for my car a machine was parked outside mine, locked and with the brakes set. I had to wait until the driver returned before I could get away from the curb.

Can't the police stop this double parking? H. P. PETERS.

A MERCHANT'S VIEW.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Under present business conditions it seems anything that would tend to increase business certainly should be considered and things that can destroy business should be looked into more fully.

We have an investment in our building and business here of approximately $150,000 and every evening between 4:30 and 6:30 o'clock an officer is stationed in front of our building and forbids any parking at all. This seriously interferes with our sales as any one can readily see, and means these two hours are almost a total loss.

As we employ twenty-five people at this store, there is a direct bearing on the employment of these twenty-five people.

We have even had the officer go so far as to come into our store and give a ticket to an offender; yet we cannot blame the officer. He is entirely under orders from headquarters, we know, and must do as he is told.

While we believe in every way possible to speed up traffic, we do not believe it advisable particularly at this time to deliberately destroy business. We believe the parking trouble is nothing new, but believe more consideration must be given to legitimate business. Is there anything that can be done to help a situation such as this? B. LOEB.

ONE-WAY STREETS.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—It's about time our public officials started thinking about one-way streets to relieve the congestion on the boulevards. The construction of the elevated highway has been postponed until now public finances will probably prohibit its being erected for a couple of years. One-way traffic systems can be established with little expense.

The state highway department has refused to build the elevated highway for Chicago because it was a revolutionary step forward in modern traffic facilities. There's no novelty to the one-way scheme to frighten Springfield authorities. Other cities have definitely proved that two streets can work together better than they can work separately. And on the west side we have Warren and Washington boulevards in a one-way system of merit.

NEWS AND VIEWS

The annual sales conference of the Alemite corporation was held at the Edgewater Beach hotel last week, over 125 distributors, and many salesmen being in attendance. Frank Hiter, general sales manager presided at the opening session which was occupied by addresses by executives of the sales and advertising departments, who told of a new sales policy drafted to meet the exigencies of 1932, and a dramatic advertising campaign.

Graham-Paige, which introduced its new eight last month, reports that the effects of the new model are already felt in a large gain in orders, with a corresponding increase in production and employment. Production of the new model eight last month was the largest December output since 1925, and the largest single month's production of eight-cylinder cars in the history of the company, which has been building eights for five years. Nine hundred workers have been added to speed up production.

ALLURING ARRAY OF NEW CARS AT NEW YORK SHOW

Prices Attractive, Public Finds.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The Thirty-second National Automobile show was opened in the Grand Central palace today. As seen by a motorist it was the unveiling of new models, incorporating the latest improvements in gasoline vehicles. As seen by an economist it was the initiation of the 1932 merchandising campaign by America's largest manufacturing industry.

Mr. and Mrs. Public strolled through decorated aisles of shining motor cars, and without being dazzled by brilliant lights or the natty attire for the salesmen, examined price tags. Bargain hunters they showed themselves to be in the first few hours of the exposition, and bargains they found.

1932 Models Cheaper.

The 1932 automobile is cheaper than any of its predecessors. In most makes the list price has been reduced. The other models have received conspicuous improvements with little or no increase in prices.

Better value at lower cost is the formula adopted by the automobile industry to revive normal sales. Statistics released by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce reveal a production of 2,465,000 passenger cars in 1931, as compared wiht 3,510,178 for 1930 and 5,621,715 for the boom year of 1929. Registration figures give a total of 22,450,000 vehicles in the United States at the end of 1931, a loss of 592,800, or 2.5 per cent, in one year.

Production Cost Cut.

The leaders in the industry have confidence in the efficacy of this formula. Vast sums were expended for materials and labor to present the 1932 automobile as an improved product. Extravagance of the boom years was eliminated to reduce the cost of production reflected in the retail prices.

If the automobile industry is able to tap the market of delayed replacements this year economists foresee appreciable benefits to business generally, since the motor car and its allied industries furnish jobs to 4,020,000 persons, a tenth of the gainfully employed in the country.

Steel, glass, hardwood, copper, aluminum, lead, rubber, tin and cotton are some of the lines that would receive direct benefit from any increase in car sales.

The sales appeal of the 1932 car in addition to the low prices, lies in body styles and mechanical improvements that obsolete models five years old, or even the 5,621,715 automobiles sold in 1929.

Free Wheeling a Feature.

A clutch or transmission type of free wheeling is standard equipment on a majority of the new cars, whereas a year ago only three manufacturers offered this aid to operation. Gears have been quieted and otherwise perfected for ease for shifting.

New to stock cars are automobile choke controls, automatic or manual control of shock absorbers, automatic starters that eliminate stalling, rubber insulation against engine vibration, two speed axels, automatic decarbonizers and low pressure superchargers.

There are new sixes, eights, twelves and sixteens. The 1932 car is more powerful than any of its predecessors and capable of faster performance with greater safety.

Exterior Lines Modified.

The exterior lines have been modified to reduce air resistance at high speeds. The lessons in aerodynamics taught by the airplane designers are reflected in slanting or V shaped radiators and windshields, and in the sweeping curves of bodies and fenders. Colors are brighter and there are more convertible models.

Chicago will see these new cars assembled in the Coliseum for the National Automobile show from Jan. 30 to Feb. 6.

SHORT INTEREST IS REDUCED IN STOCK MARKET

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The New York Stock Exchange announced today that the short interest in the market on Dec. 31 amounted to 2,842,072 shares, as reduced from 3,745,642 at the end of November.

The figures were announced in continuation of the practice adopted by the exchange about a month ago in making the figures public.

The first revelation of the short position's extent was made in December after Richard Whitney, president of the stock exchange, had again discussed short selling as a market practice in a public address at Syracuse, N. Y.

Orders for Auto Parts Give Cleveland Men Jobs

Cleveland, O., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Full time operating schedule was made possible for several automobile parts manufacturers here by the receipt of large orders today from Detroit automobile manufacturers.

Among the firms given orders were the Geometric Stamping company, Midland Steel Products, Chase Brass and Copper company, and the Cleveland Hardware company. Several million dollars' worth of the orders came from the Ford Motor company.

The Columbia Axle company announced a night shift of sixty men had been added since the receipt of $2,000,000 in orders, mostly from the Auburn auto plant. The National Acme company is making shock absorbers for 8,000 Ford cars, and the Thompson Products company also has Ford orders for tie rods and chassis parts.

McCarthy to Head Nash Co.; Vote Dividend

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—Simultaneously with the announcement that E. H. McCarthy, formerly vice president and general manager had been elected president, the Nash Motors company made public today its income report for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, showing earnings of $4,807,680 after expenses, reserves, depreciation, and state and federal taxes. A dividend of 50 cents a share, the same as paid in the previous quarter, was declared payable Feb. 1 to stockholders of record Jan. 20.

EARL H. McCARTHY.

C. W. Nash Heads Board.

C. W. Nash, former president, becomes chairman of the board of directors. Harold E. Long was elected vice president and director of purchases, and Robert Elliott was named vice president in charge of operations.

The balance for common stock was equal to $1.76 a share on 2,730,000 shares and this compares with $7,601,164, or $2.78 a share on the same amount of stock, in the previous 12 months. The company disbursed $9,555,000 in cash dividends during the last year and as of Nov. 30 had cash and government securities amounting to $36,550,480. Stocks of cars in the hands of dealers are the lowest in the company's history, the announcement said.

Sets $671,704 Aside.

The company set aside $671,704 from earnings to reduce its United States government securities and treasury stock to a basis of cost or market prices as of Nov. 30, whichever was lower.

The balance sheet as of Nov. 30 shows total current assets of $39,786,731 and total current liabilities of $2,710,153. Total assets amounted to $48,241,180 and surplus $29,122,907.

C. W. Nash reported that "in preparation for the introduction of a complete new line of automobiles, embodying five different wheelbases, which we should be ready to announce around the first of March, it was necessary to go into very heavy expenses, and a large amount of this expense was incurred and absorbed during the year 1931.

"On account of the extraordinary conditions existing in the automobile industry, the management felt it was necessary to consolidate our activities and forces into a more compact position.

"In order to accomplish this, the Milwaukee plant, where the 980 series cars had been manufactured during 1931, has been temporarily closed, and hereafter this line of cars will be manufactured at the Kenosha plant. This, the company anticipates, should save a large amount in overhead expenses."

Sees Brighter Outlook.

Regarding prospects for 1932, Mr. Nash said: "We feel that the outstanding line of new automobiles which will be introduced to the public just as the selling season starts, should bring to the company its full share of the available business in the market, which encourages the feeling that the outlook for the company for 1932 should be considerably brighter than in 1931.

TRADING ACTIVE AS BOND MARKET FINISHES WEEK

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—With only United States government obligations lagging behind, the bond market closed the week today comparatively strong in the most active trading that has been witnessed in a Saturday session for some time.

Railroad issues, as during the last several days, continued to lead the advance, gains of from fractions to 12 points being established. The lower priced transportation liens had the largest following.

Federal loans, while exhibiting some steadiness during the early part of the session, slumped near the close to the lowest prices of the week, the treasury 3¾s and 4s losing more than a point each. Financing in connection with the proposed government reconstruction corporation was believed to have had a depressing effect upon these loans.

Although there was apparently some profit taking in the railway loans, the majority of them scored gains. Central Georgia refunding 5½s were up 10½ points on a single sale. Baltimore and Ohio refunding 6s were up 4 points at one time and closed 2½ points higher. Great Northern 4½s, series D, took on 4½s points; Illinois Central liens were up from 1 to 3; New York Central from 1 to 6½; Wabash second 5s, 8; Tennessee Central 6s, 7, and a number of others from 3 to 6 points. Rio Grande Western collateral 4s gained 12 points.

Industrials and utilities, while somewhat behind the rails, registered moderate advances.

Foreign loans were firm, although the German 7s and 5½s lost from 2¾ to 3 points. Finland Republic 7s picked up 5⅞ points. British and South American bonds were steady, but Japanese governments were soft.

Utility to Spend $2,500,000 on Construction in 1932

Over $2,500,000 will be spent by subsidiaries of the Central and Southwest Utilities company for new construction work in 1932, it was announced yesterday. This work will include the completion of the Central Power and Light company's 16,000 horsepower hydro-electric generating station at Eagle Pass, Tex., as well as extensions to serve any increased business in the east Texas and west Texas oil.

The Southern California Edison company will spend about $11,397,000 in 1932 for improvement of service lines and other betterments.

CENTRAL REPUBLIC BANK SHARES LEAD UPTURN IN MARKET

Trading in Chicago bank stocks gained momentum last week and higher prices prevailed throughout the list. Central Republic Bank and Trust was the feature, scoring the largest advance on the announcement that Gen. Dawes was going to return to the position as chairman of the board. After selling as low as 81 earlier in the week it rallied sharply to a high sales at 105 and closed at 104 bid, 109 asked, up 23 points for the week.

Continental Illinois Bank and Trust, after being wanted earlier in the week at 130, reacted to low sales at 123, then on a good turnover rose steadily to a high of 145 and closed at 141 bid, 144 asked, a gain of 11 points. First National, after establishing a new all time low at 213, improved in the late trading and was wanted at 240 with little interest being displayd among sellers.

Harris Trust and Savings was 3 points easier at 325 bid, 330 asked. Northern Trust was easier and at the close was quoted 315 bid, 320 asked, off 5 points. Peoples Trust and Savings continued in supply at 155 with no interest among buyers. Terminal National remained firm at 13 bid, 15 asked, as also did Personal Loan and Savings at 110 bid, 125 asked. Offerings of Chicago Bank of Commerce at 20 failed to attract attention. Among the miscellaneous securities Chicago Daily News preferred was offered for sale at 36 with little interest displayed among buyers. The common continued firm and at the close was wanted at 7 with little interest being displayed among sellers.

KROGER SALES FOR DECEMBER OFF 14 PER CENT

Kroger Grocery and Baking company reported for the four weeks ended Jan. 2 sales of $17,560,983, against $20,429,975 in the like period of 1931, a decrease of 14 per cent.

Sales for the fifty-two weeks ended Jan. 2 amounted to $244,364,814, compared with $263,567,090 in the previous similar period, a decline of 7.2 per cent.

Sales of the Simmons company in December, excluding subsidiaries, amounted to $1,105,268, as compared with $1,551,410 in December, 1930. For the twelve months the sales totaled $23,494,657, as against $32,007,612. Including subsidiaries, the company reported December sales of $1,567,966, as compared with $1,996,945 in December, 1930. The twelve months' sales totaled $28,975,806, against $39,547,139.

December gross sales of the J. C. Penney company were $2,1269,414, off 10 per cent from 1930. Sales for the year of $173,695,442 show a similar percentage decrease.

Note Increasing Firmness in Market for Copper

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Increasing firmness was evident in the copper market today as custom smelters showed unwillingness to accept business under 7⅜ cents. The most active buying is on foreign account, with sales today running to about 4,000,000 pounds. This more active foreign demand is the primary reason for the firmer price here. It was said in trade quarters today that there were indications of a definite advance from the 7¼ cent level some time next week.

6,723 New Corporations Chartered in Illinois

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—[U. P.]—An increase of 866 domestic corporations was registered in Illinois during 1931 as compared with the previous year, it was announced here today by Secretary of State William J. Stratton.

Charters for 6,723 corporations were granted during the year just ended, and 5,407 dissolutions were made during the same period, leaving a net gain of 866. The year also saw the granting of 328 more charters than the year before.

Weekly Debits Increase, Reserve Bank Reports

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the federal reserve bank of Chicago for the week ended Jan. 6, 1932, by 174 banks in thirty-seven leading clearing house cities in the 7th federal reserve district, aggregate $1,304,735,000, an increase of 56.7 per cent compared with a week ago [832,527,000]. Compared with the corresponding week of last year [$1,427,897,000], a decrease of 8.6 per cent was shown.

EASTERN TRUNK LINES COMPLETE I. C. C. TESTIMONY

Agree on Store Delivery in New York City.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The four great eastern trunk line railroads today completed the evidence before the interstate commerce commission through which they expect to prove that five consolidated systems would be unwieldy.

Chairman Porter immediately adjourned the hearings until Feb. 15, when proponents of the commission's 1929 consolidation plan outlining the five systems instead of four will begin their testimony.

This was done to give opponents time to study statistical exhibits before cross-examining R. S. Marshall, vice president of the Chesapeake and Ohio, the last witness for the four big roads.

Support 4 Party Plan.

Through four days Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio, J. J. Bernet of the Chesapeake and Ohio, W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania, and Patrick E. Crowley, until recently president of the New York Central, supported the four system plan. All asserted consolidation as contemplated by congress could be brought about only along lines they outlined in their petition.

M. W. Clement, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad in charge of operations, today added his voice to opinions the commission's fifth system was not practical.

Turning from the individual lines, Clement said the trunk line railroads have practically agreed upon store door delivery in New York City to meet truck competition.

"The carriers are practically in agreement as to store door delivery in New York," he said. "I predict that what happens to carload traffic will eventually come to less than carload traffic, and what happens in New York will happen throughout trunk line territory.

Claims More Efficiency.

"The fewer the carriers the stronger the carriers, the more nearly equal are their conditions in the larger cities, the cheaper and more economically and more efficiently will store door delivery be worked out. The more efficiently and more economically that store door delivery is worked out the greater the public benefit."

Clement said that "there is not a sufficient volume of business on the fifth system, the Wabash-Seaboard, to compete with the other four, and certainly the object of consolidation is to give the best service at the least possible expense."

BANK CLEARINGS INCREASE OVER PREVIOUS WEEK

Reflecting the large volume of first of the year payments, bank clearings for the week ending Jan. 7, 1932, were up sharply over the preceding week, according to Bradstreet's weekly compilation. The total for the United States was $6,721,132,000, an increase of 32.1 per cent over the previous week, but a decline of 41.0 per cent from the first week of 1931. New York City clearings of $4,369,233,000 made a slightly larger gain of 34.1 per cent over the preceding week, but were 43.9 per cent below a year ago.

The cities outside of New York made a gain of only 28.5 per cent, with a total of $2,351,899,000, but on the other hand showed the smallest decline from the first week of 1931, amounting to 35.9 per cent. Moreover, after allowance for seasonal variation, Bradstreet's weekly bank clearings index for these cities rose from 55.1 to 57.6. This index stood at 90.8 a year ago.

LESSING ROSENWALD SUCCEEDS FATHER AS HEAD OF SEARS BOARD

Lessing J. Rosenwald yesterday succeeded his father, Julius Rosenwald, who died last Wednesday, as head of Sears, Roebuck & Co. At a special meeting of the directors Mr. Rosenwald was unanimously elected as chairman of the board, and the position of vice chairman, which he had held, was abolished. No other changes in officers were made. The directors adopted the following resolution relating to the death of Julius Rosenwald:

LESSING J. ROSENWALD.

"Endeared to us for his high sense of duty and justice, his sound judgment, his patience, generosity, and tolerance, and beloved for his innumerable acts of kindness during many years of service, the death of Julius Rosenwald is a great loss to us, to his family, his many friends, the community, and the world at large:

"BE IT RESOLVED by the board of directors of Sears, Roebuck & Co. that they give this expression of their high regard for Julius Rosenwald as evidence of the greatest esteem in which man can be held; that as former executive of the company, chairman of the board, and as a man he was an inspiration to all who came in contact with him."

U. S. STEEL CORP. BACKLOG DOWN 198,538 TONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation on Dec. 31, 1931, amounted to 2,735,353 tons, the lowest level for any month end since Dec. 31, 1910, when unfilled orders totaled 2,674,757 tons. The net decrease last month was 198,538 tons, which was larger than had been generally expected.

At the end of November unfilled tonnage amounted to 2,893,891 tons, a decrease of 185,541 tons from Oct. 31, when total unfinished business on the books of the corporation was 3,119,420 tons. On Dec. 31, 1930, unfilled orders of the corporation amounted to 3,943,596 tons.

Since 1921 the backlog of the steel corporation has increased in the last month of the year. In view of the fact that the corporation's mills operated at a very low rate of capacity during December, the decline in unfilled orders at the year indicates that few substantial orders were received near the close of the year. The uncertainty of general business conditions and the lack of demand from the railroads were factors believed mainly responsible for the large decline.

The reduction of unfilled tonnage for December was the ninth consecutive month that the steel corporation has reported a decline in its backlog. The corporation reported increases in only two months last year, January and March, the net decline for the full year amounting to 1,208,243 tons.

Northern Pacific Awards $300,000 Coal Car Contract

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Northern Pacific railway today awarded a $300,000 contract for construction of 150 coal cars. The Pressed Steel Car company of Chicago will build them for use between the twin cities and Duluth-Superior.

Realty Bond Committees Are Discussed

BY SCRUTATOR.

"Shall I or shall I not deposit my defaulted real estate bond with the protective committee?"

That is the question that thousands of investors in Chicago and the middle west have been trying to answer for many months.

It is a question that frequently puzzles experts. The individual without much investment experience is completely befogged.

When it is recalled that estimates of the total amount of defaulted real estate bonds and mortgages in Cook county run upward from a half billion dollars and that the average holding per individual of each bond issue is somewhere between $1,000 and $1,500, one gets some idea of the number of persons affected.

Decision Demanded of Each.

All the property securing these bonds must be reorganized and put on a sound basis. That is being done now. The process is under way. A decision is demanded of each bondholder. Even if he sits tight and does not respond to notices he has made his decision, although he may not know it.

The bondholder's dilemma usually arises from one of two causes or from both: first, his own inexperience and inability to interpret the information that he has, and, second, the unwillingness of the committee to give him the necessary information.

Trying to make a decision on the data furnished by some of the committees is like trying to decide whether to buy a company's stock with no more information than that contained in its balance sheet.

But the wheels are turning and the bondholder has to make up his mind. Too often he can do nothing but guess and only time will tell whether he guessed right.

What May Happen.

Here's what may happen if he ignores notices to deposit with the committee:

1. If the committee has a sufficient number of bonds deposited without his it may proceed to foreclose. Usually the sale at foreclosure is at a low figure because of the absence of competitive bids. In this case the nondepositor is likely to be frozen out at a small figure. He may fare considerably worse than the depositors who stay in the picture and take some cash and some equity under the new setup.

2. If he is the sole standout he may create a nuisance value for his holding and force some one to buy him out. This, however, is dangerous and it seldom works.

3. If many bondholders refuse to deposit, the whole reorganization scheme may fall through and some other proposition may have to be devised.

On the other hand, if the bondholder does deposit his bond he confers a great deal of authority upon a group which may or may not be worthy of the trust that he has reposed in it.

Danger in Withdrawal.

Later, when this group has outlined its definite plan of action he may have the privilege of withdrawing if he does not approve of the scheme. But usually by this time the committee has enough support to go along without him, in which case if he withdraws he runs the danger of being frozen out at a low price.

Even a good committee cannot adequately protect the bondholders unless it obtains the deposit of a large majority of the bonds, because if there are too many nondepositors to be paid off in cash it may not be able to make the necessary financing arrangements. It may be forced to make so low a bid at the foreclosure sale that the equity owner can later redeem the property for a song. Also it may be severely handicapped in dealing with holders of junior paper which has only a nuisance value.

How to Test Committee.

In general, if the committee is composed of men of experience and good reputation, the bondholder will help himself best by depositing promptly. He is steering through uncharted seas, but the other course is known to be full of shoals.

"How can I tell whether the committee is honestly attempting to work out a good reorganization plan?" asks the bondholder.

There is no sure test, but usually a group that merits support will give the bondholder a frank statement of facts. When the committee shrouds its operations in secrecy the suspicion naturally arises that there must be some reason for the unwillingness to divulge information.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—Pocketing of profits by traders afraid that the three days' advance was too good to last brought the stock market's little 1932 reform wave to an abrupt halt as the short week-end trading session got under way today. Then along came the cable saying that Germany had balked on further reparations payments and this brought some of the more venturesome of the bear element out of their hiding places.

Between the crossfire the list had its troubles. The close found leading issue down 1 to 2 points with the customary scattering of sharper recessions. Trading was considerably heavier than it has been of a Saturday here of late, the turn over running to 1,151,510 shares as compared with 721,990 a week ago.

List Gets Support.

In spite of the turn about of the market brokers of the street expressed the opinion that sentiment was still on the constructive side. Some of them had no hesitancy in predicting a renewal of the advance on Monday.

Today's set back was generally expected in view of the scope of the rise during the last three days and many observers professed surprise that it did not go further. That it did not do so probably was due to the character of the support rushed to the list when the downward tendency sèmed to be gaining too much momentum. Buying of this character was instrumental in giving the list an upward fillip in the earlier dealings and again toward the last, but each spurt brought out fresh profit taking, especially in the leaders.

Rail Issues Firm.

Once more it remained for the railroad shares to put their revilers to shame by standing firm against the assaults of the enemy. So strong was the resistance in fact that the division was able to display some rather healthy gains when noses were counted at the finish. Union Pacific closed showing a gain of a point with New Haven preferred up 2. New York Central was ahead nearly 2 points at one stage of the game, but realizing was too strong for it toward the close.

This group has been putting up a stout front all week, due, of course, to Wall street's growing belief—bolstered by more than one concrete development—that the carriers of the country are about to rid themselves of 10 per cent of the burden they are carrying on wages to their strongly unionized employés.

United States Steel and a number of issues which ordinarily take their cue from its performance had their ups and downs as the trading fraternity continued to speculate on the showing of the corporations' unfilled tonnage figures due for announcement around noon.

FRESH FACTORS CHECK RISE IN LONDON MARTS

Japanese Situation Starts Liquidation.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 9.—A sudden appearance of fresh complications, just at the period when the stock markets were showing definite signs of recovery, brought a hesitant, unsettling atmosphere to the London Stock exchange as the week ended.

The first session of the new year started quietly, but quickly developed activity. This was mainly due to the welcome change of sentiment regarding the reparations prospects and was influenced by a general feeling that France and Britain may approach the Lausanne conference with greater accord than hitherto had been expected.

Improvement in Wall street consequent upon the hope that Hoover's reconstruction corporation soon would receive the blessing of congress, and thus help halt depression, was also a cheerful factor, causing considerable advances in international and industrial shares.

Sets Clock Back Again.

But Friday's news put the clock back again. The dispute between the United States and Japan over Manchuria and the resignation of the Japanese cabinet, combined with the French cabinet crisis, threw a blanket over the markets, producing immediate dullness and a renewal of nervous liquidation.

Profit taking developed some strength, but losses were not exceptionally extensive, although the British government stocks and foreign bonds lost a fair portion of the gains made earlier in the week. Japanese stocks were especially weak, averaging a point lower, and French and German securities slipped back. The market, however, takes the hopeful view that the difficulties between the United States and Japan may soon be settled.

Before the week-end setback the giltedged market saw better prices than for many weeks. The British funding loan, which reflects foreign opinion to a greater extent than any other gilt edged security, rose over a couple of points, and the 5 per cent conversion of the war loan went over par. German loans showed fanciful gains, the Dawes loan going 13 points higher than on Christmas eve and the potash loan went up 13.5 points.

In Money Market.

Money market conditions remain fairly easy. Temporarily the markets are benefiting from the exceptionally heavy revenue payments. This is likely to continue beyond Jan. 15, when the repayment of the fifteen billion pound sterling India loan is due. Against this there is due the government at the end of the month thirty million pounds sterling to liquidate American and French credits.

Signs point, therefore, to the probability that more difficult conditions have to be faced at the end of the month, especially in view of the political uncertainties. Hope of the reduction of the bank rate is running higher and many are looking confidently for such action in the near future. But hope of such development is very speculative, as the central bank regards the high rate as the most effective weapon under the present conditions with which to fight the danger of inflation at home and depreciation abroad.

PARIS BOURSE RISES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 9.—For the first time in several weeks the Paris bourse closed the week with a record of generally satisfactory advances throughout the week. Prices were on the rise at the week-end. Although efforts at profit taking were shown by a temporary check on Friday, progress was noted today and there were further advances despite speculative selling.

Levels were higher, particularly those of bank stocks. Business was more active and animated. The firmness of the activity was attributed to advances in recent sessions on Wall street.

NEW COMPANIES.

DOVER, Del.—A total of 4,238 new companies were incorporated under the laws of Delaware in 1931, according to the annual report of Charles Grantland, secretary of state. The state received fees approximating $700,000 for the charters. The number granted was 1,273 less than in 1930. In 1929, the banner year for charters in Delaware, 7,537 companies were incorporated.

CITY INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION GAIN SHOWN IN 1931

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago's industrial expansion for 1931 exceeded that of 1930 by $17,021,885, according to a survey just completed by the Chicago Association of Commerce. However, one big job, the $25,000,000 second unit of the State Line Generating company's plant, was responsible for more than half of the figures, which totaled $43,143,500, as compared with $26,121,615 in 1930.

If this one huge construction project is omitted, the total is $7,978,115 less than that of 1930. During 1930 there were 226 projects involving construction of new plants or improvements to existing ones, while last year there were only 131 projects.

There were only two other 1931 jobs that cost more than a million. One of these was the $6,000,000 natural gas pipe line project of the Continental Construction company and the other was the $2,000,000 heating plant of the Union Station company.

Other Large Projects.

There were eight construction projects costing from $500,000 to $1,000,000, with the $800,000 Commonwealth Edison company's Humboldt park station the leader. Second in this list is the $650,000 express terminal of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad. The B. A. Railton company warehouse on Goose island comes third with a cost of $600,000.

Others in this classification are the $550,000 Jefferson Electric company's plant at Bellwood, the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company's plant at 9719 Baltimore avenue, the Pepsodent factory built by the Clearing Industrial district trustees, costing $500,000; the Lever Bros. $500,000 addition to their Hammond plant, and the Western Electric company's construction program.

Projects Under $500,000.

In the $250,000 to $500,000 class there are nine projects, as follows:

Chicago Elevator Properties, Inc.	$380,000
Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.	350,000
Commonwealth-Edison loop substa.	340,000
Commonwealth-Edison outly. subst.	250,000
Sidney Wanzer & Sons	300,000
John T. Cunningham Ice Cream Co.	300,000
Richter's Food Products Co.	275,000
Associated Rabbit Packers	250,000
Petrolagar Laboratories, Inc.	250,000

There were eleven jobs in the class of $100,000 to $250,000 and 100 under $100,000 each.

4 BILLION SPENT IN 1931

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Despite the widespread belief that the building industry is in serious straits, approximately four billion dollars was expended in construction work in the United States during 1931, according to speakers who reported tonight at the launching of a nation-wide drive for prosperity by radio.

Merchants and civic business men and civic workers who have enrolled in the new undertaking gathered in New York at a dinner in the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria. Simultaneously in scores of other cities throughout the country similar dinners were held.

Each of the dinners reported by letter, wire, or radio to the key-function in New York and reports on building were part of the nation-wide response.

Organized under the title of "America at Work," the undertaking is sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Silas H. Strawn, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, reported from Washington on building projects in that district as the first speaker. He called attention to the $2,300,000 addition to the senate and house office building in Washington to contracts for 620 postoffices emanating from Washington, at a cost in excess of $94,000,000. He called attention also to the $65,000,000 worth of public works in which the government is engaged; to the new United States Supreme court building which will cost $8,500,000; and to conditions in Philadelphia and Baltimore, regarded as being in the Washington territory for purposes of the report.

In Philadelphia, he said, Girard college is constructing a chapel to cost $1,250,000, and in Baltimore the Eno Pratt library is being constructed at a cost of $2,000,000.

In addition, he said, the Knickerbocker residential project involves $50,000,000 more.

In New York territory during 1931, he concluded, there were 16,000 new construction projects, valued at $720,000,000.

Similar reports came from other cities.

COTTON MARKET NARROW

Cotton was steady early yesterday with prices fractionally higher, and a better feeling prevailing, a favorable interpretation being given to higher security and grain prices. The early bulge was practically all lost, however, and the close was unchanged to 4 points lower on futures in Chicago, with New York 1 lower to 2 higher on futures and spots unchanged at 6.55c than Friday. New Orleans was 10 points higher on spots at 6.35c, and 8@10 points higher on futures as compared with Thursday, with Galveston 6.35c and Houston 6.20c. Liverpool closed 8@9 points net higher.

While trading was only moderately active, there was a good demand for distant months said to be investment buying and by Wall street. Hedge selling continued light, spot firms and the south being the best sellers.

Weekly statistics showed a continued gain in exports with a sharp drop in the into sight movement, owing to recent rains. The world cotton crop this season is estimated by the department of agriculture at about 2,000,000 bales larger than the previous season, the 1,000,000 bale decrease in foreign countries being offset by a 3,000,000 bale increase in domestic production. "While there will be plenty of cotton in the world next year, getting a supply below the cost of production is another proposition," says Thomson & McKinnon. They feel friendly to the market around current prices. Prices follow:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed steady, unchanged to 5 points higher today. Sales, 21 contracts or 3,150 barrels. Steadiness to cotton and the late rally in lard brought about a better demand for July. Crude oil was steady at 3⅛@3¼c in the southeast and the valley and nominal in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 4.25c; Jan., 4.30c; March, 4.38c; May, 4.51c; July, 4.65c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract with closing prices as follows: spot, 4.25c; Jan., 4.33c; March, 4.28c; May, 4.30c; July, 4.50c.

Planning a Comeback.

Letters coming to the Investors' Guide indicate that many people are watching closely the action of the stock market with the idea of buying stocks as soon as they are reasonably certain that the bottom has been reached.

Most of them have an idea that they will be able to reap enough profits on the anticipated upturn to compensate in large part for losses that they have incurred during the last two years of declining prices.

Mere lack of knowledge of financial and investment matters appears to be no deterrent, for even those who admit their own ignorance want to get back in the market when the storm is over. The latter inquire about financial advisory services and forecasting agencies upon which they may safely rely.

"I have available $10,000 or more for investment in such stocks as combine safety and reasonable promise of advance in value for the long pull to offset losses I have suffered during the slump from bank failures, etc," says one reader of this column.

"I do not want to engage in margin speculation at all, but to buy the stocks outright for income, though I do not insist on immediate income so much as high probability of good future income as well as advance in value."

This sort of reasoning is based on the assumption that there are investments in which "safety" and "reasonable promise of advance in value" are combined.

There is no such animal. Safety implies price stability. And this works both ways. You cannot get a security that promises appreciation and guarantees against depreciation. If the price can move in one direction it can move in the other.

Safety presupposes a minimum of risk. And when risk is reduced to a minimum the market price stays pretty close to par. You can invest for safety or buy stocks in the hope that they will go up. But you cannot combine the two in a single investment.

"If I go into the market with no more knowledge than I now have of values and future prospects I fear I will make serious mistakes," continues the same inquirer. "As you know, there are a number of services for investors. Are any of these worth the high prices they ask for them and if so which are the best?"

We presume that the services referred to are those which supply their subscribers recommendations suggesting purchases or sales and guessing what the market will do.

Such services offer few advantages to the individual whose experience is so limited that he is not in a position to judge for himself the reasonableness of the recommendations that they make.

Any prediction is necessarily a guess. And the person who requires safety cannot afford to gamble on a guess—even a good one.

CHICAGO STOCKS END WEEK WITH MINOR LOSSES

Traders Cheered by Rise in Bank Stocks.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The customary week-end realizing took the edge off an early advance in prices on the Chicago exchange yesterday but only minor inroads were made into the gains accumulated in the last few days. Closing quotations were not far from the best prices of the week and the final wind up was considered creditable.

The sharp upturn in Chicago bank stock prices contributed to the improving sentiment and brokers and speculators left for their week-end in the most cheerful frame of mind in some time.

Trust Omits Dividend.

Directors of Corporation Securities Company of Chicago yesterday voted to omit the quarterly dividends on the preferred and common stock which are due at this time. Officials of the company declined to comment on the action.

The preferred stock which has sold at low at 2⅛ on the Chicago exchange was on a $3 annual basis payable in cash or common stock. The common stock was on a 6 per cent stock basis. The common stock of the Insull Holding company was quoted yesterday at 1½.

The net losses in the active shares were confined to fractions. After reaching a new high quotation on the current movement of 120½, Commonwealth Edison reacted and finished slightly below its previous price. Other Insull stocks followed the same trend in a narrower range. Edison 5 per cent bonds of 1953, however, were 3 points lower at 98 but Commonwealth Subsidiary 5½s of '48 moved up briskly to 67, a net improvement of 4 points.

Finishes on Credit Side.

U. S. Radio was conspicuous in the day's trade and retained enough of its early gain to finish the day on the credit side of the ledger.

Swift International broke out of its narrow trading rut and jumped to 24½ on the heaviest turnover in a week or more. Swift & Co. was steady on light trade.

The closing quotations yesterday represented a gain over the previous Saturday's prices for the first time in many weeks. Reversing the trend of the old year the market turned about sharply and finished the first week of the new year with a substantial gain.

The market value of fifty representative stocks stood at $937,208,952 as compared with $898,778,602 at the close of the preceding Saturday. This was an increase of $38,430,350 or 4.2 per cent for the week. The compilation was made by Paul H. Davis & Co.

Values Off 58% in Year.

A year ago the same stocks had a market value of $2,149,495,302. The depreciation in the twelve months amounts to $1,250,716,700 or 58.19 per cent.

Directors of the Western Power, Light and Telephone company have omitted the quarterly dividend on the participating class A stock, according to word received by the exchange yesterday. In the last quarter the company paid a dividend of 50 cents on the stock.

Announcement was also made of the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the common stock by directors of Balaban and Katz corporation.

WHEAT STARTS OFF WELL, BUT CLOSES LOWER

Hear Greece Seeks to Buy Farm Board Grain.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets fluctuated in an erratic manner, wheat moving up ⅝c in the early trading only to run into selling by cash houses on a scale up and then weaken sharply later when stocks reacted. The finish was at net losses of ½@¾c. March closed at 55c; May, 56½c@56⅝, and July, 55⅝@55¾c.

On the decline houses with eastern connections bought May on a scale down from 57c for the May, and there was also support on the break from holders of bids. Some of the houses that were buyers on Friday were sellers yesterday, apparently getting out of their lines. According to the gossip a leading local professional took considerable wheat at the last, having sold bids on Friday.

Greece After Wheat.

Negotiations were reported under way between the Greek government and the American farm board, the former seeking to buy around 18,000,000 bu of hard winter, but it is understood that the overtures have not as yet reached a stage where it can be said business will result. If the purchase is made it would raise the farm board's total sales to foreign governments recently to 65,000,000 bu, Brazil, China, and Germany having taken 47,500,000 bu previously.

The threat of severe competition with southern hemisphere wheat on the part of North America has become an actuality instead of a theory, and cables from abroad reported Argentina offering grain abroad at lower prices than were asked for either Manitobas or American hard winters. There was hedging by the southern hemisphere in Liverpool yesterday which resulted in the latter closing at net losses of ¼@⅜c per bu with the May quoted at 57c on the basis of $3.40 for sterling. This was ½c below the average price at the opening in Chicago, and compared with ⅜c premium for the English market at the close on Friday.

Orient After Wheat.

The Orient was reported as after Australian wheat yesterday, and according to trade estimates China and Japan have taken 25,000,000 bu so far this season. An official report lowered the estimated yield in New South Wales to 45,000,000 bu, or 6,000,000 bu less than previously, and compared with 66,000,000 bu harvested last year. Buenos Aires finished ¼c higher with March at 43¾c, while Winnipeg eased with Chicago and closed ⅜c lower. May in the latter market was 62¾c at the last with Canadian exchange quoted around 15½ per cent discount. It was finally estimated that 300,000 to 400,000 bu Manitoba wheat had been sold for export during the day.

Corn Leads Decline.

Corn developed independent weakness yesterday and with locals and commission houses on the selling side prices dropped 1¼@1½c from the early high and the finish was at the bottom with net losses of 1⅛c. March closed at 38½c; May, 40@40⅛, and July, 41½@41⅝. Buying on resting orders checked the break. Sellers of bids were forced to protect themselves on the way down.

Colder weather over the belt with a lack of additional snowfall of consequence led to a belief that the movement of corn in Illinois and Indiana would increase. Purchases of 17,000 bu were made by local handlers during the day.

Oats market was easily influenced, and the close was ⅛@¼c lower in sympathy with other grains. May finished at 26c and July at 25½c. Prices had a range of only 1c for the week, and outside interest is at a minimum.

Action of the wheat market continues to be the dominating influence in rye, and the close was ⅜@½c lower with May at 46¼c, and July, 46⅜c.

NEW LOW ON JANUARY LARD

Lard for January delivery was offered early yesterday at $4.97½ per 100 lbs, without trading. There were no sales, however, under $5.00 for cash or January. In the deferred futures there was a little support, with the close unchanged at 2½c lower. January bellies were up 10c and May 2½c nominally. Cash trade was moderate. Liverpool lard was unchanged for spots and 6@9d lower on futures. Exports of lard were 718,385 lbs and of bacon 26,000 lbs. Hog prices were steady, with receipts less than a week ago, but larger than last year at western points. Prospects are for a big run on Monday and all this week. Loose lard was $4.40, leaf $4.25, and short ribs and bellies $5.62½. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

In addition to Greece being in the market for around 18,000,000 bu American hard winter owned by the farm board, there was a scattered foreign demand for Manitobas yesterday, with sales of 300,000 to 400,000 bu reported in all positions. Numerous bids were said to be in the market for more.

Chicago handlers sold 30,000 bu wheat, 24,000 bu corn, 18,000 bu oats, and 2,000 bu barley to the domestic trade. Purchases of 17,000 bu corn were made to arrive.

Basis on cash wheat again showed little change. Offerings were small. No. 2 red and hard winter was quoted at ½@1c under May, with No. 2 yellow hard 1½@2c under and No. 2 mixed 1@2c under the future. No. 2 northern sold at May price. Kansas City reported the basis as steady.

Cash corn basis was unchanged. Offerings were fair, but were readily taken. Country offerings to arrive were smaller than the previous day. Discounts as compared with May follow: No. 2 mixed, 3c; yellow, 2½c; white, 2c. No. 3 yellow, 3¾@5c; yellow, 3¼@4c; white, 3@3½c; No. 4 mixed, 4½@6c; yellow, 4@5c; white, 3½@4½c.

Demand for cash oats was less active and the basis was steady to ½c lower. No. 2 white brought ¾c under to ¼c over, and No. 3 white ¼@2c under the May.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 6 cars; corn, 113 cars; oats, 25 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 3 cars.

NEW LOW ON BUTTER

January butter declined to a new all time low of 22⅞c on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, closing prices being ⅛@¼c lower for the day. Egg futures declined early in the session but closed unchanged. Potato futures were unchanged. Butter prices at the close showed only ½c over the lowest point ever reached on the exchange, February delivery a year ago striking 22½c. The statistical news was slightly bearish, spot markets being weak and the storage movement under last year. Egg news was fairly favorable but buying was light. The cold weather failed to develop any bullish sentiment. Sales: Butter, 75 cars; eggs, 19 cars; potatoes, 10 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 1 car. Prices follow:

HAY PRICES STEADY

End of the week run of hay consisted of 13 cars of timothy and one oat straw; market shows no inclination to firm up, and local handlers are calling attention to the fact that, without colder weather, no improvement can be expected in the situation.

Estimated receipts at Chicago Monday: cattle, 18,000; hogs, 70,000; sheep, 30,000.

The favored light hog slipped down 5@10c on the week-end session, while medium and weighty butchers were firm and in spots sold a shade above the low spot of Friday's market. The top at $4.35 showed 10c loss, while the general average of all grades was unchanged at $4.10.

Pigs and underweights, in good demand practically all week, were hard to dispose of at the finish and some had to be sacrificed at 15@25c reduction. Little action was reported in the week-end hog futures market. A few offers in March and May mediums and heavy were made at $5.25. Bids in these months were at $5.00 mostly.

Hold Strong Position.

While top light weight hogs held a comparatively strong position in the cash trade most of the week, medium and weighty butchers slipped down to new low levels for the last 32 years at the opening and since then have been hovering only a shade above that spot. Some classes at the finish were back to the low, while the daily average at the close only 10c above the bottom established the middle of December.

The general average price for the entire week at $4.15 compared with $4.35 the previous week. The rise in the wholesale market for fresh pork was offset by the unsatisfactory outlet for other product and larger houses made a determined stand to buy hogs at $3.50 in the country and at $4.00 on the market with the result that uncertainty in the trade was evident whenever a slight rise in prices was scored.

The cattle trade has been a changeable affair and several times during the past week the trend was reversed more than once during a day's session. Despite all this unevenness, the average price of steers for the whole week at $7.10 was only 5c under the previous week's average, but only one weekly average has been lower since last May.

Since the ending of the holiday, buying of dressed beef on the wholesale market has converged in plainer grades, and "inside" quotations have moved up sharply during the past week.

Lambs Sell High.

Yesterday ended an unusual week in the lamb market. Prices pushed forward against record supplies for this time of year and despite the immense receipts it was late in the week before the supply caught up with the demand and brought a reaction in prices. Since the ending of the holidays lamb has been in the spotlight on the wholesale trade and gains per pound at Chicago and points east of here ranged from 2c to 6c during the week, markets on the east coast showing the liveliest competition for lamb cuts.

The undertone to the trade near the close was still firm and outlet was broad, but packers regarded the sudden change with some anxiety and did all they could to hold down initial costs of live lambs as the week ended, because of the possibility of the higher level of prices swinging demand to other meats next week, particularly pork which is a strong competitor. The general average price of live lambs on the Chicago market for the entire week at $6.10 compared with $5.60 the previous week. The daily top jumped from $6.35 on Jan. 1 to $6.90 on the 6th, the highest paid for lambs since middle of October. Receipts at Chicago for the week at 123,000 were second largest since early last November.

An all time record slaughter was established in 1931 when a total of 18,070,867 sheep and lambs were slaughtered in the United States under federal inspection, against 16,696,570 in 1930 and 14,023,362 in 1929. Few yearly totals have ever been over 13 millions.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 18,000 cattle, 70,000 hogs and 30,000 sheep, against 19,542 cattle, 54,435 hogs and 19,858 sheep a week ago, and 18,042 cattle, 74,493 hogs and 25,420 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 53,000 cattle, 240,000 hogs and 110,000 sheep, against 45,349 cattle, 254,463 hogs and 75,839 sheep a year ago and 50,337 cattle, 207,582 hogs and 88,367 sheep two years ago.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat traders are bearish on the southern hemisphere situation, as holders there are beginning to market their wheat, apparently regardless of price. On the other hand, there is the belief that the stock market is to do better. In the absence of outside trade, prices on futures move within narrow limits. The cash wheat situation is stronger, with a good milling demand and the largest sales reported in several weeks. Outside trade is light, but local traders are looking forward to their coming in within a short time. Until there is a broadening of the trade, however, the disposition is to expect comparatively narrow fluctuations.

"For speculative purposes it is always well to forget one's wishes and look cold facts in the face," says Fred Uhlmann of the Uhlmann Grain company. "These at the present time are not very encouraging. Take for instance, an important point like Buffalo, which we consider as overburdened with wheat and no place for it to go. At present there is stored there 26,780,000 bu of United States wheat, which include almost 8,000,000 bu afloat. There are also 17,000,000 bu of Canadian wheat. We do not think there will be any difficulty of disposing of the Canadian wheat before the opening of navigation, but it will be difficult to sell the American wheat as we are entirely out of line for export."

The Foreman-State National Bank of Chicago will sell at the Dearborn Street Entrance of the Banking Room of The First National Bank of Chicago on Monday the 11th day of January, A. D. 1932, at 10 o'clock A. M. YOUR "ROOMS-TO-RENT" SIGN BELONGS HERE!

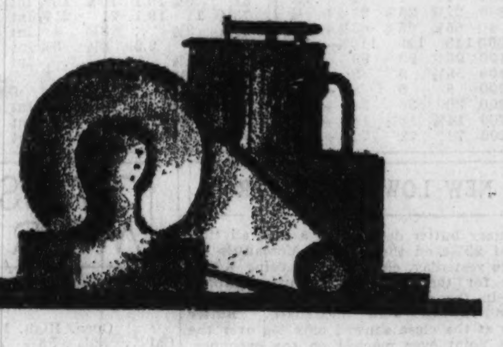
If you want to rent rooms quickly, put your "For Rent" sign where the largest number of prospects can see it. Daily Tribune Want Ads can place your offer before 246,000 more families in Chicago and suburbs than want ads in the second want ad medium. For quick action, call Superior 0100—Adtaker!

INVITE 58% OF CHICAGO'S FAMILIES

Advertising an apartment for rent in the Daily Tribune Want Ad Section is equivalent to sending an invitation to 58% of the families living in Chicago and suburbs to inspect your apartments. 171,000 more families in the metropolitan district read the Tribune than read any other Chicago daily newspaper! If you have apartments to rent, call Superior 0100—Adtaker!

HERE IS A MARKET FOR YOUR USED MACHINERY

Clear your factory and your store rooms of machinery, tools and equipment you no longer need. An advertisement in the MACHINERY & EQUIPMENT column of the Tribune Want Ad Section can put you in touch with hundreds of prospects who shop in this column for practically everything usable in a factory or machine shop.



SELLING BY MAIL? HERE'S A LIVE MARKET FOR YOU!

If your product can be sold successfully by mail, don't overlook the rich market that can be reached through advertisements in the PARCEL POST & EXPRESS column of the Sunday Tribune Want Ad Section. MORE THAN A MILLION FAMILIES read the Sunday Tribune. It is a market capable of absorbing an unlimited variety of products from farm produce to games, electrical devices to wearing apparel. Write for details about this market, or call Superior 0100—Adtaker.

SELLS AUTO THE FIRST DAY!

This Tribune Want Ad was ordered for three consecutive insertions. Its first appearance brought eight inquiries, and among them a buyer who paid cash for the car!

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

OLDSMOBILE—SPORT COUPE; 6 WIRE whls.; can't be told from new; $395; 10 mos. to pay. No finance chgs. Berk. 6374.

If you want to sell your automobile, you'll be more than likely to find a buyer by advertising in the AUTOMOBILES-FOR-SALE column in the Tribune Want Ad Section. More than 800,000 families read the Tribune on weekdays and more than a million on Sundays. Call Superior 0100—Adtaker!

WANT TO SAVE MONEY?

Try trading things you no longer need for the things you want! Practically anything of value can be exchanged—used cars, clothing, radios, real estate, personal services, furniture, cameras, household appliances, musical instruments, and hundreds of other things. To get in touch with people who want to swap, advertise in the BARTER & EXCHANGE column of the Tribune Want Ad Section.

TO RECOVER LOST ARTICLES

When you lose anything of value put Tribune Want Ads on the trail immediately! A description of the lost article in the LOST & FOUND column can reach more than 800,000 families on week days and more than a million on Sundays. Remember this number—Superior 0100—Adtaker!

THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE HAS NEARLY TWICE AS MUCH CIRCULATION AS THE DAILY NEWSPAPER SECOND TO THE TRIBUNE IN WANT ADVERTISING!

I Offer You

GROCERIES

AT WHOLESALE

AND A WONDERFUL CHANCE TO MAKE

$15 A DAY

BESIDES.

Yes, I'll give you groceries at rock-bottom, wholesale prices and a chance to pocket $15 in a day besides! Just send me your name and I'll give you some money-making, money-saving facts that will amaze you. I'll show you how L. C. Van Allen of Illinois quit a $23-a-week job, took hold of my proposition and shortly afterward reported earning $125 in a single week. Gustav Karnath of Minnesota—farm laborer—made $20.35 the FIRST 5 HOURS. And Mrs. B. L. Hodges of New York says: "Making more money than ever before—from $18 to $20 a day." Of course some people make more than others. But these big earnings of a few of my representatives prove the wonderful opportunities. And today I offer you a proposition EVEN BETTER than I gave these people.

No Experience Necessary.

With groceries at wholesale and $15 a day in your pocket, you would have cash to pay your bills, to buy new clothes, a radio, house furnishings or take pleasure trips. You positively don't need any capital. You don't need any experience. You don't have to take any course of training. YOU CAN START RIGHT IN MAKING GOOD MONEY THE VERY FIRST DAY.

$15 a Day for Pleasant Work.

All you do is call on your friends and my established customers in your locality and take care of their orders for my line of groceries and other household necessities. This is very pleasant work. Your own home will be your headquarters. You set your own hours and work as you please. All orders from my customers must go through your hands because I never sell through stores. You alone get all the profits. In addition I will supply you with groceries, toilet goods and household necessities at our LOWEST, ROCK-BOTTOM, WHOLESALE PRICES. Thus you have a wonderful opportunity to SAVE BIG MONEY as well as to MAKE BIG MONEY.

SEND NO MONEY.

If you want to, you can keep your present job and start in spare time. Oscar Stuart of West Virginia reports $18 profit in two and one-half hours' spare time. This shows the wonderful possibilities. So get the facts at once. YOU HAVE EVERYTHING TO GAIN. It costs nothing to investigate. In addition to giving you groceries at wholesale and a chance to clear $10 to $15 in a day, I also offer you a brand-new Ford Tudor Sedan as an extra bonus—IN ADDITION to your large cash profits. Here's a chance you can't afford to miss. Mail coupon now for these amazing new facts.

MAIL THIS.

Albert Mills, Pres., Zanol Products Co.,
8607 Monmouth-av., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Send me, without cost or obligation, all the facts about your new proposition that offers groceries at wholesale and a chance to make $15 in a day besides. Also explain your generous Ford Sedan offer.

MEN

THIS IS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL MONTH OF OUR BUSINESS AND WE OFFER PERMANENT POSITIONS TO 8 MEN WHO CAN QUALIFY AT ONCE!

Do you wish something beyond mere wages? Are you willing to study, practice, become skilled? Are you self-reliant, willing to do a genuine day's work and keep it up?

Such men, backed by character, can learn this work readily, start earning quickly and make from $1,800 to $5,200 a year or more! No magic about it. But it's more than just securing the position. If you can apply and adapt yourself, become master of your time and efforts, then these figures are conservative. We want no applications from temporary job-hunters.

Are you success-minded, worthy of responsibility, free from "inferiority-complexes?" Have you real ambition? Then the success that the next five years can mean to such men is indicated by the remarkable records of this new service idea, that has changed the course of a great industry. While other firms have published loss statements, our business has profited and gained monthly for past 22 months!

Five men who started last week earned $20 to $72 each first two days; another $100 his first week. Here are earning records for single week the past month: J. D. Hawks, $130; O. H. Hunter, $123; C. Cordes, $172; D. Blackburn [new man], $70.20; E. Friedman, $92.80; H. A. Anderson, $148; F. Mann [new], $47.90 first four days; T. N. Lind, C. Glade, H. Krause, N. V. Nyman, E. Anderson, $100 or over for week.

Past experience not demanded. You are trained under pacemakers. Your opportunity the same as biggest earner. If you do your own thinking, investigate. Personal interview Monday only, 9-12 a. m., 1-4 p. m. Ask for:

MR. L. W. FAULKNER,
5967 W. MADISON-ST., SUITE 11-14.

MR. M. M. MEADOWS,
7341 COTTAGE GROVE-AV., SUITE 240.

Why pay more than
low rate?

The nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small loan law. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1928 and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

FOR EXAMPLE:

The average monthly cost of a $200 loan repaid in 20 equal monthly payments is $2.63. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.

Pay LESS for LOANS

$2.95 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

COMMONWEALTH'S rate on amounts above $100 is substantially lower than the lawful rate usually charged.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

The DownyFlake Shop

Occasionally opportunity is offered in a concrete, unexaggerated form, which, when accepted, settles one in a lifetime occupation, where possibility for individual development is unlimited and where basic principles of success are established upon a foundation strong as Gibraltar.

Such an opportunity is now available to one seeking a dignified quality business in a substantially new field as an integral part of a nation-wide chain, where success has been pre-eminent.

The Downy Flake Shop is operated under franchise arrangements in protected territories. Average profits range from $5,000 to $15,000 yearly. Several Chicago and downstate territories have already been closed, but choice locations are yet obtainable. Inquiries should not be delayed to take advantage of the best territory. Modest capital requirement [$2,000-$5,000]. Please state phone number.

Address L B 417, Tribune.

Advertisers in the Tribune Home Furnishings and Household Appliances columns have found these classifications now pulling better than ever. Bargain offers find eager buyers quickly among the readers of Tribune Want Ads. When you want to turn furniture or appliances into cash, get in touch with the largest group of buyers through the Tribune!

SWAP COLUMN WORKS TWO WAYS!

OUTBD. MOTOR, ZEISS CAMERA, FOR LT. car or cash. Address Y M 00, Tribune.

The Tribune Barter and Exchange column offers you a double service. As a reader, you can find opportunities to trade articles or property that no longer have any value to you for something you do want. Or, if you don't see a trade that interests you, you can insert your own "swap" ad and catch the attention of interested Tribune readers.

PEKES, SCOTTIES, GREAT DANES!

Like dogs? You can find the right kind in the Dogs, Cats, Birds, and Poultry column of Tribune Want Ads. Gruff fellows to guard your home or farm, pint size apartment models, and merry companions for the youngsters—they're all offered for sale by breeders and storekeepers who advertise in the Tribune.

Trade Your Real Estate

Would some other type of property be more desirable right now? Would you rather have a residence than your farm? Would an apartment building suit you better than your vacant? Offer to trade the property you now hold for something you would rather have, in the Tribune's Real Estate for Exchange column.

Want to make money with your talent for music, entertainment, drama? Turn these talents to good account! In the Musical and Dramatic column of Tribune Want Ads you'll find numerous opportunities to do so. See these want ads today!

Put a Want Ad on the Trail of Roomers!

When men or women want rooms in Chicago, one of their first moves is to see what's offered in the Rooms column of Tribune Want Ads. Tell room-hunters about the accommodations you offer by advertising here! Let a Tribune Want Ad put more rent in your purse! Call Superior 0100—Adtaker.

Expert Counsel on Want Ad Problems

Do you feel that your present want advertising is not as productive as it might be? Call in a Tribune man! The Tribune's staff of trained want ad solicitors calls every day on scores of advertisers. They are thoroughly acquainted with every angle of want advertising. Their assistance is at your disposal. Call Superior 0100—and ask for the want ad department.

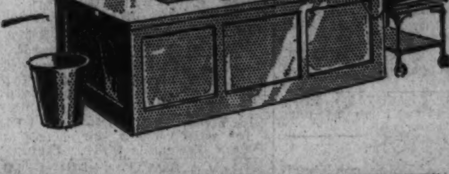
More than 800,000 families read the Tribune on week days. More than a million read it on Sunday. That's why Tribune Want Ads are the most productive in Chicago, are best able to find buyers and tenants for advertisers.

FIRST AID TO LOSERS!

Lost something? Phone a Tribune adtaker and let her help you place a Lost and Found want ad. The daily Tribune, reaching 303,000 more families than any other Chicago daily newspaper, offers you the best method of getting in touch with finders of your purse, your dog, your jewels, or keepsakes.

SAVE MORE ON MANUFACTURING EQUIPMENT!

Before you purchase replacements, consult the Machinery and Equipment column of Tribune Want Ads. You'll find real bargains in lathes, shears, battery chargers, laundry machinery, boilers, motors, and a host of other things. Much of this equipment has been newly reconditioned. Prices are low.



OFFICE EQUIPMENT AT NEW LOW PRICES!

Here's a chance to economize on practically everything you need to furnish or refurnish your office. Tribune want advertisers offer desks, filing cabinets, calculating machines, typewriters, office furniture of all kinds at big reductions in prices. See Office Furniture; Office Devices, Files, Safes; and Typewriters and Supplies.

CASH!

That extra fur coat you don't know what to do with, your children's outgrown clothing—why not sell them through an ad in the Clothing and Furs column? Many Tribune Want Ad readers would gladly buy them.

SIDNEY SMITH
PA- IS THERE REALLY A MAN IN THE MOON?
WHY CERTAINLY THERE'S A MAN IN THE MOON
CAN'T YOU SEE HIM? LOOK FOR YOURSELF- SEE THE EYES- AND THE NOSE- SEE THE MOUTH? LOOK AT HIM GRIN- JUST AS PLAIN AS DAY-
YES SIR-
GEE- BUT HE'S UP HIGH- ISN'T HE? IF HE EVER FELL OUT OF THERE WHERE WOULD HE FALL?
OH- HE'D JUST FALL AND FALL FOREVER- HE NEVER WOULD STOP- JUST KEEP ON GOING-
IF HE EVER DID FALL WOULDN'T HE LIGHT ON YOU?
NO- YOU'D HAVE PLENTY OF TIME TO GET OUT OF THE WAY- IT WOULD TAKE HIM THOUSANDS OF YEARS TO REACH HERE-
WHAT HOLDS THE MOON UP?
WHAT DO YOU SUPPOSE? WHAT HOLDS THE CEILING UP?
THE BEAMS
THAT'S RIGHT- AND THAT'S WHAT HOLDS THE MOON UP- MOON BEAMS-
ALL OF THE PLANETS THAT YOU SEE IN THE HEAVENS ARE MILLIONS AND BILLIONS OF MILES AWAY FROM YOU-SEE THAT BRIGHT STAR WAY UP THERE- RIGHT OVER YOUR HEAD? SEE HOW IT TWINKLES AND HOW BRIGHT IT IS?
YES SIR!
WELL TO GIVE YOU AN IDEA ABOUT THE DISTANCE THAT STAR IS FROM THIS EARTH- IT HAS TAKEN THE LIGHT THAT YOU SEE COMING FROM IT PERHAPS THREE OR FOUR THOUSAND YEARS TO REACH HERE-
BUT THE STARS ONLY SHINE AT NIGHT OR IT WOULD HAVE REACHED HERE IN HALF THAT TIME- WOULDN'T IT?
I'LL BET IT'S BIGGER THAN THIS WHOLE HOUSE- BIGGER THAN YOU ARE-BIG- I SHOULD SAY IT IS BIG- IT'S BIGGER THAN ANYTHING YOU EVER SAW-IS THAT STAR BIGGER THAN THE WHOLE WORLD?
CERTAINLY- THAT STAR THAT YOU JUST SAW ABOVE YOUR HEAD IS PROBABLY FIVE HUNDRED TIMES LARGER THAN THIS EARTH OF OURS- MAYBE A THOUSAND TIMES-THEN WHY DOESN'T IT KEEP THE RAIN OFF?

SAY, UNCLE WILLIE, THERE'S A SUCKER OUTSIDE TO SEE YOU IN REGARD TO THAT ADVERTISEMENT YOU RUN IN TH' PAPER ABOUT DISPOSIN' OF YOUR AUTOMOBILE.
WELL, PET, I THINK I'VE GOT A BUYER FOR MY CAR - A MAN'S TAKIN' IT OUT NOW TO SEE HOW IT RUNS.
WHAT? YOU'RE LETTIN' A UTTER STRANGER TAKE IT AWAY WITHOUT PUTTIN' UP A DEPOSIT OR NOTHIN'?
MAYBE, MAMIE'S RIGHT
IT WON'T HURT TO KEEP A EYE ON THE CUSTOMER - BUT JUST THE SAME I'M GLAD HE DIDN'T SEE ME GET ON HERE — HE MIGHT THINK I'M SUSPICIOUS.
BIJU
WOT IN TH' — ? I'D BETTER GET OFFA HERE.
SMOKE CIGARS
HEY! STOP A MINUTE DOWN THERE!
DRUGS
GOOD GRAVY! THE OLD CAN RATTLES OUT SO MUCH NOISE HE CAN'T HEAR ME — I HOPE HE TAKES THEM CORNERS A LITTLE EASIER.
BONG!
THESE LETTERS IN HIS POCKET ARE ADDRESSED TO WILLIAM MULLINS, 1323 JUNKNEY AVE.
TSK TSK.
THAT AIN'T FAR. WE'D BETTER TAKE HIM HOME.
WHAT HAPPENED, UNCLE WILLIE?
WHERE AM I? - OH YES -- I TOLD THAT GUY WHICH CAME TO LOOK AT MY CAR THAT HE COULD TAKE IT AWAY FOR FIFTEEN DOLLARS AND — YEH - I KNOW - HE'S AT THE DOOR NOW -
WHAT'D HE SAY ABOUT TAKIN' TH' CAR?
HE SAID HE THOUGHT THERE MUST BE A CATCH IN IT SOMEWHERE BUT TO GIVE HIM THE FIFTEEN DOLLARS AND HE'D TAKE A CHANCE ON IT.

HELLO! WHERE ARE YOU GOING, ANNIE?
OH, THERE'S NOTHING FOR ME TO DO AROUND HERE - I THOUGHT I'D GO OUT AND PLAY WITH THE KIDS, OR SEE A SHOW, OR SOMETHIN' -
WHY NOT STAY IN THIS AFTERNOON, ANNIE? THE WEATHER IS BAD AND LOTS OF PEOPLE HAVE COLDS - DON'T YOU THINK YOU CAN FIND SOME WAY TO AMUSE YOURSELF TILL DINNER-TIME?
O.K., "DADDY", IF YOU SAY SO -
GEE! WHAT IS THERE FOR A KID TO DO HERE? NOTHING TO SEE - NO BODY TO PLAY WITH - IT'S AWFUL DULL AROUND HERE - BUT, OF COURSE, "DADDY" DOESN'T UNDERSTAND -
HM-M-M-- JUST LOOK AT ALL THE BOOKS - THOUSANDS OF 'EM - BUT I S'POSE THEY'RE ALL FOR GROWN-UPS AND AWFUL SOLEMN - STILL, I'VE GOTTA DO SOMETHING -
WELL, HERE'S ONE THAT DOESN'T LOOK SO BAD - MAYBE IT'LL HAVE PICTURES IN IT, ANYWAY -
SAY! THIS IS A WHALE OF A STORY - IT'S HISTORY, BUT NOT ALL FULL O' OLD DATES AN' THINGS, LIKE SCHOOL BOOKS - IT'S JUST LIKE A SWELL ADVENTURE STORY, ONLY THIS IS TRUE -
DINNER IS SERVED, MISS ANNIE -
ALL RIGHT, THOMAS - I'LL BE THERE IN A MINUTE - I JUST WANT TO FINISH THIS PAGE - GEE, I HATE TO STOP, EVEN FOR DINNER -
HEY! DINNER, ANNIE - SNAP OUT OF IT -
YES, "DADDY" - I'LL BE THERE RIGHT AWAY - GOTTA MARK MY PLACE -
WELL, ANNIE, WERE YOU ABLE TO AMUSE YOURSELF THIS AFTERNOON?
WAS I? SAY! I GOT TO READIN' TH' SWELLEST BOOK I EVER SAW - IT'S NOT ONLY A SWELL STORY, BUT YOU LEARN SOMETHIN' FROM IT, TOO -
FINE, ANNIE - YOU KNOW LOTS OF PEOPLE NEVER LEARN TO AMUSE THEMSELVES - THEY ALWAYS HAVE TO GO TO SHOWS OR PARTIES OR MUST HAVE A CROWD AROUND IN ORDER TO BE CONTENTED - THEY NEVER TAKE TIME TO REALLY THINK - A SERIOUS THOUGHT BORES THEM - THEIR MINDS ARE SHALLOW - THEY DEPEND ON OTHERS TO AMUSE THEM - BUT ANYONE, WHO IS DULL COMPANY FOR HIMSELF, IS CERTAINLY DULL COMPANY FOR OTHERS -

HUH!
I HOPE THAT CAT GETS PNEUMONIA - IMAGINE LEAVING A NICE, WARM FIRE ON A DAY LIKE THIS - BR-R-R -- THAT WIND CUTS LIKE A KNIFE - IF I ONLY HAD A SQUARE MEAL IT WOULDN'T BE SO BAD -
I'D BETTER KEEP MOVING, OR I'LL FREEZE STIFF - I'LL FLY OVER AND LIGHT UNDER THAT WINDOW - SOMETIMES THAT WORKS -
YEP - THEY SEE ME - WELL, WHAT ARE THEY WAITING FOR? WHY DON'T THEY HURRY UP AND SLIP ME MY DINNER?
BREAD CRUMBS AGAIN - OH, WELL - THAT'S BETTER'N NOTHING - THE WAY I FEEL TO-DAY I COULD EAT SAW-DUST AND LIKE IT - WELL, GUESS I'LL SING A COUPLE NOTES FOR 'EM - THEY'RE NICE FOLKS AND THEY DON'T HEAR MANY BIRDS AROUND HERE IN WINTER - FUNNY HOW MUCH BETTER I FEEL AFTER A GOOD MEAL -
CHEEP CHEEP

LIFE ON THE PRAIRIE.
The Trappers' Defense—"Fire Fight Fire."

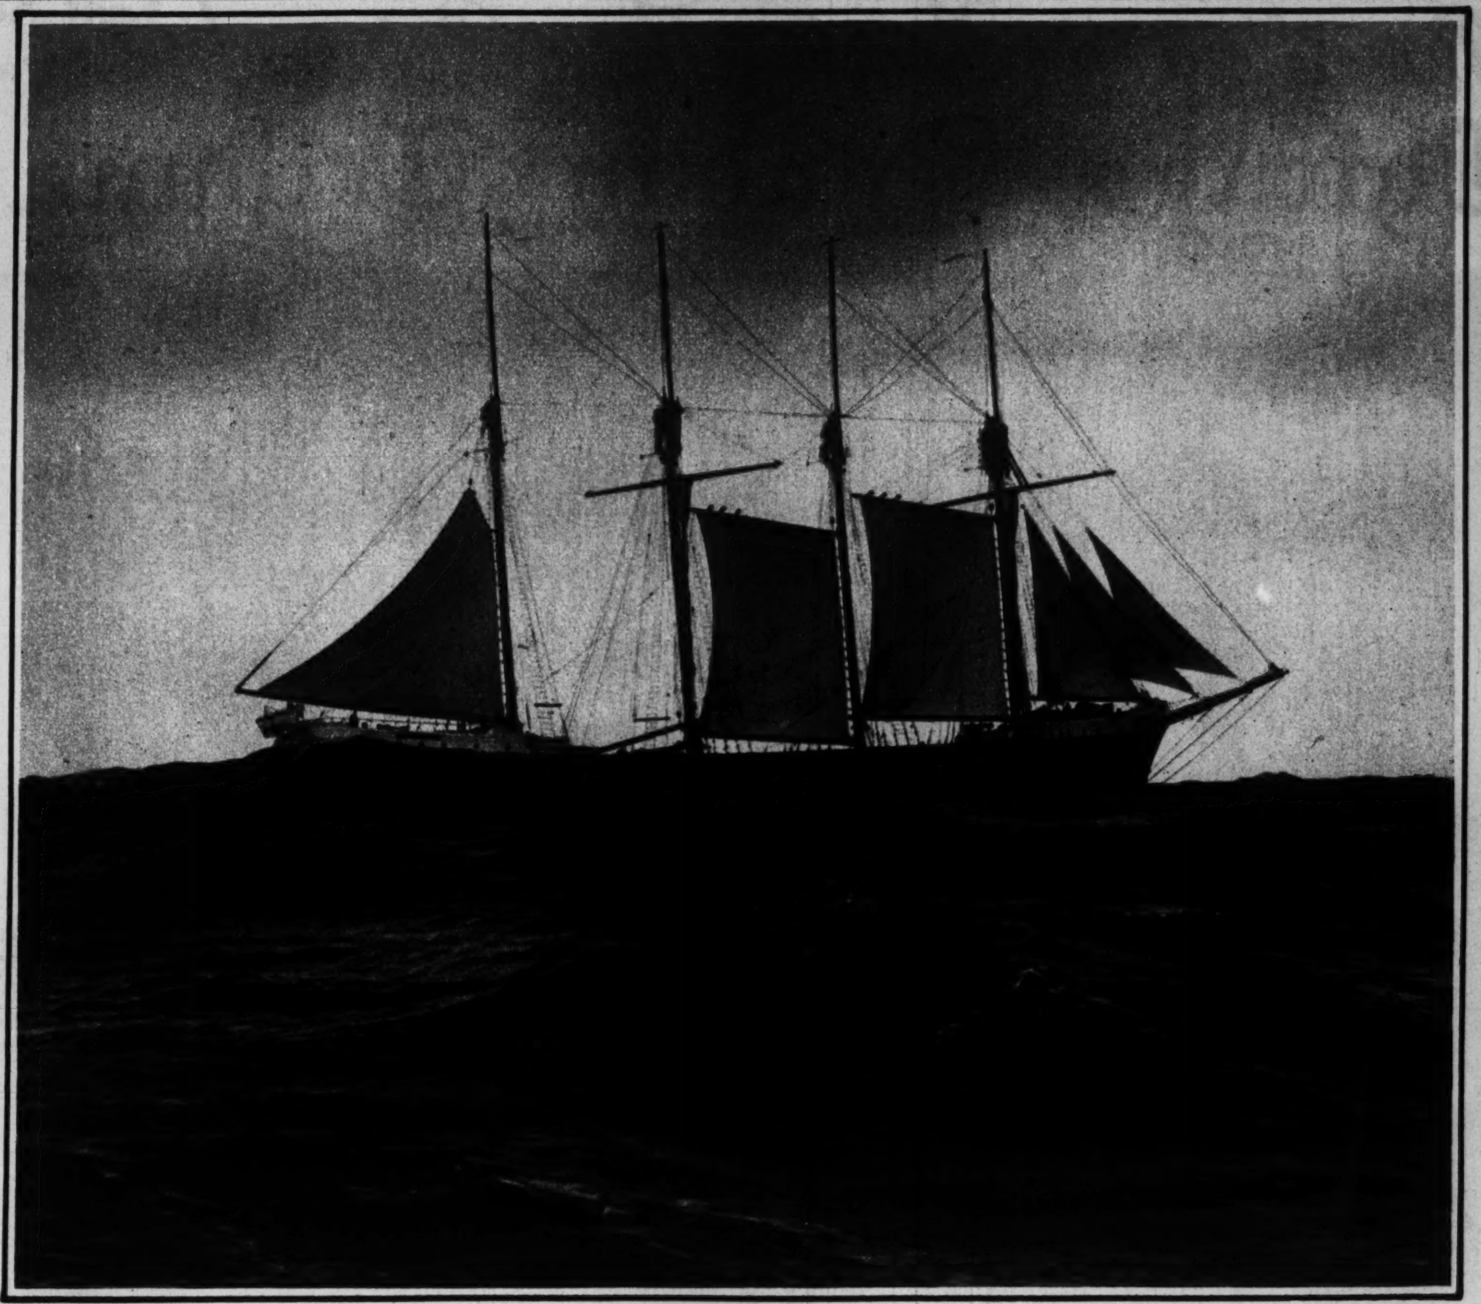
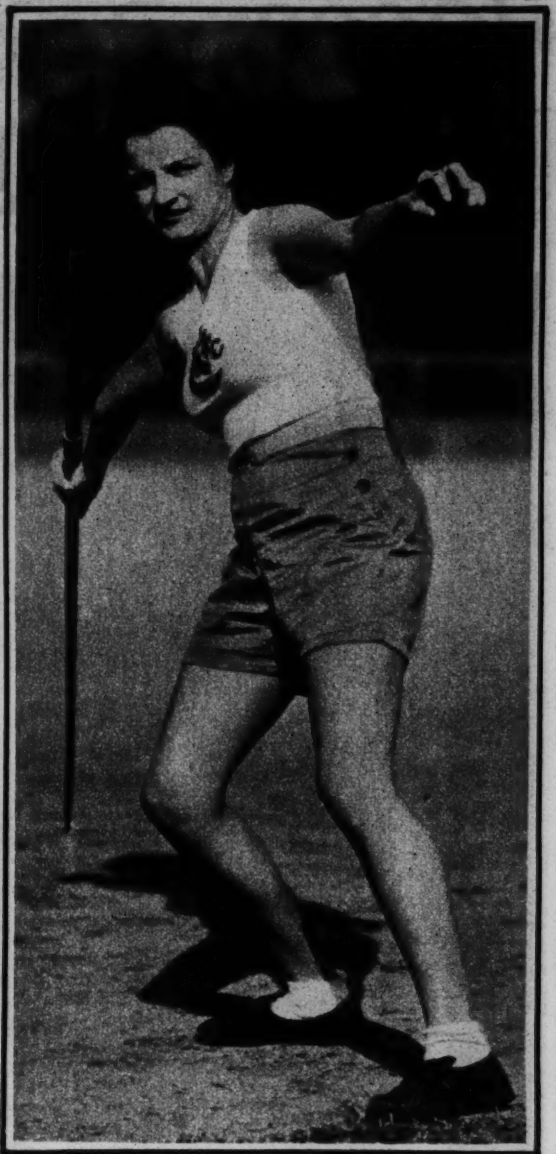
THE PURSUIT.
A lithographic print of 1855 executed by Currier and Ives from another Tait painting.
(Prints reproduced through the courtesy of the Robert Fridenberg galleries, New York City.)

SUGGESTED NAME OR TITLE____ No. 34

R. F. D. 1932—Zero temperatures, snow drifts and icy mountain roads hold little fear for Miss Virginia E. Kirkham, who travels thirty miles a day in her daily work as rural post woman at Woods Cross, Utah. In fact, after six months on this job, she has applied for permanent appointment. (Acme photo.)



POUNDED BY MOUNTAINOUS SEAS, the four-master, Commodore, won a race with the Vigilant from Honolulu to the American mainland. Hammered by terrific gales off Cape Flattery, on the coast of Washington, the vessel awaited the assistance of tugs to tow it through the Strait of Juan de Fuca to safe haven in Puget sound. This picture, made from the deck of one of the tugs on the way to the rescue, shows the Commodore riding the heavy seas with a bare mainmast from which the storm had torn the sail. (Acme photo.)



IN PRACTICE FOR THE OLYMPIC GAMES is Miss Alice Ryden, Los Angeles track star, who is seen here trying out her hand with the javelin. (Associated Press photo.)

BLUE OSTRICH CLOTH is the material of this smart gown worn by Loretta Young. Its close fitting lines are given an added distinction by the superimposed puffs at the shoulders and the detachable ermine cape. The hat is of matching material, tucked circularly, and Miss Young's accessories which accompany the frock are gray and blue.
(Acme photo.)

AN OLYMPIC SKI RUNNER TAKES A TURN—Rolf Monsen executes a Telmark turn at Lake Placid, N. Y., where he is practicing for the ski racing and jumping events of the third Olympic games, which will be held there from Feb. 4 to 13, and in which he will compete as a member of the United States team.
(Associated Press photo.)

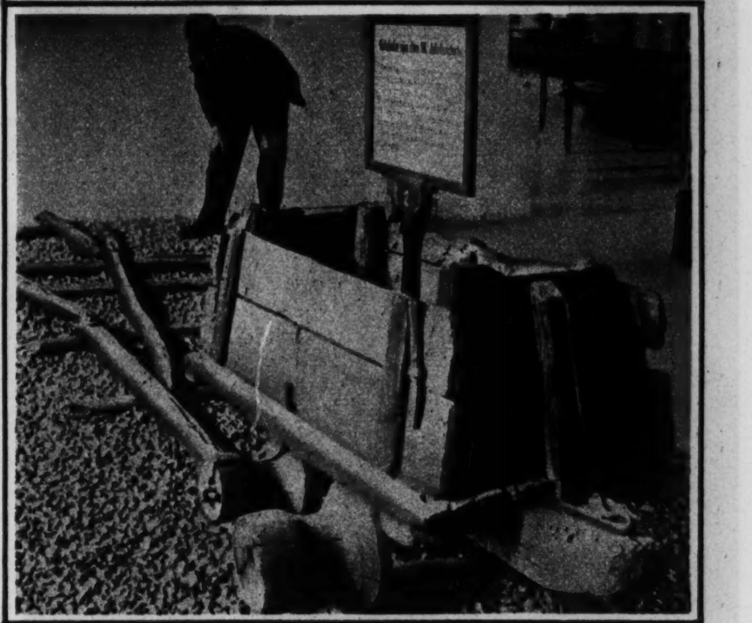
(Associated Press photo.)



THE WORLD'S OLDEST RAILWAY?—This wooden handcar, with its queerly flanged wheels, wooden track, and switch, were recently unearthed in an abandoned mine in Austria. Historians place the date of the construction of this underground road and its rolling stock somewhere in the sixteenth century, which authorities claim makes it the oldest railway in the world.
(Keystone photo.)

IN AT THE KILL—This rarely photographed event, the huntsman whipping the hounds away from the cornered fox, marks the end of the hunt. The photograph was made at the Coombe hunt in Beckford, Worcestershire, England.
(Associated Press photo.)

NOTICE TO ENTRANTS

In The Chicago Tribune's $10,000.00 "Name the Pictures" Offer!

Set No. 14—the last set of pictures in this contest—appears today on the front page of this section. Name or suggest an appropriate title for each picture. Then mount or frame them and send them in together with the sets which have appeared each week for the past 13 Sundays. For convenience an entry coupon is furnished below. Use this or write your name and address on your entry. All entries must be in the Tribune office within 21 days from today. Watch the Sunday Tribune for names of winners.

THE RULES

1. Every Sunday for 14 Sundays the Chicago Tribune has printed on the front page of the picture section color reproductions of famous paintings and other interesting pictures. One or more pictures have appeared each Sunday. The public is invited to mount or frame these pictures and submit an appropriate name or title for each. The Chicago Tribune will pay $10,000.00 in Cash Prizes for the best entries submitted. See prize list below.

2. The pictures may be mounted on paper, cardboard, cloth or any other material. They may be mounted in scrap books if desired. They may be framed if desired. You may draw or paint a frame on each picture if you wish. The pictures may be mounted individually or grouped—as you choose. With each picture must be submitted an appropriate name or title. Each title must be the sender's original thought. In writing your suggestion endeavor to tell what the picture means. Try to be clever and brief. A short title is better than a long one. Be humorous or serious, as you wish.

3. Hold all pictures until you have all that have appeared during the 14 consecutive Sundays. Then send them in. Address your entry "Pictures," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois.

4. This contest is open to every one—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. It does not matter where you live.

5. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill. Titles or names for the pictures may be handwritten, typewritten or lettered. Style of writing will not count. Only the meaning of the titles will be considered.

6. All entries must be in by midnight 21 days after the fourteenth Sunday of publication. Entries may be sent by mail, postage prepaid, by express prepaid or may be delivered in person. If you send your entry by mail, be sure to use sufficient postage or it will be returned by the Post Office Department. If you wish your entry returned enclose sufficient postage and it will be returned to you after the judging has been completed. The Tribune will not be responsible for entries lost in transit or in any other manner.

7. The judging will be based upon the following:
   (a) The cleverest, most original names or titles.
   (b) The best appearing mountings.

8. You need not purchase the Chicago Tribune to compete. You may copy or trace the pictures from the Tribune and send in your copies. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

9. The judges will be a committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree to accept their decision as final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant. Due to the wide interest, the Tribune cannot engage in correspondence on this subject.

COD LIVER OIL . . . ONCE A PUNISHMENT . . . NOW A TREAT

It's the lucky kids that get Coco Cod. They actually lick the spoon and ask for more. That's because of its delicious chocolate taste.

But Coco Cod is much more than a tasteless cod liver oil. It not only has the full force, full-bodied strength of Vitamins A and D, but it contains vegetable extracts rich in Vitamin B—the appetite and growth promoting vitamin so necessary for growing children.

Since most children secure Vitamin C in sufficient quantities from oranges and other citrus fruits, the addition of Coco Cod to the diet insures an adequate supply of all necessary vitamins.

Stop trying to force your children to take nasty-tasting, fishy-flavored cod liver oils. Give them Coco Cod instead and watch their bodies grow daily with vigorous, athletic strength and vibrant energy! See the bloom of health redden their cheeks! They smack their lips and beg for more! At all drug stores.

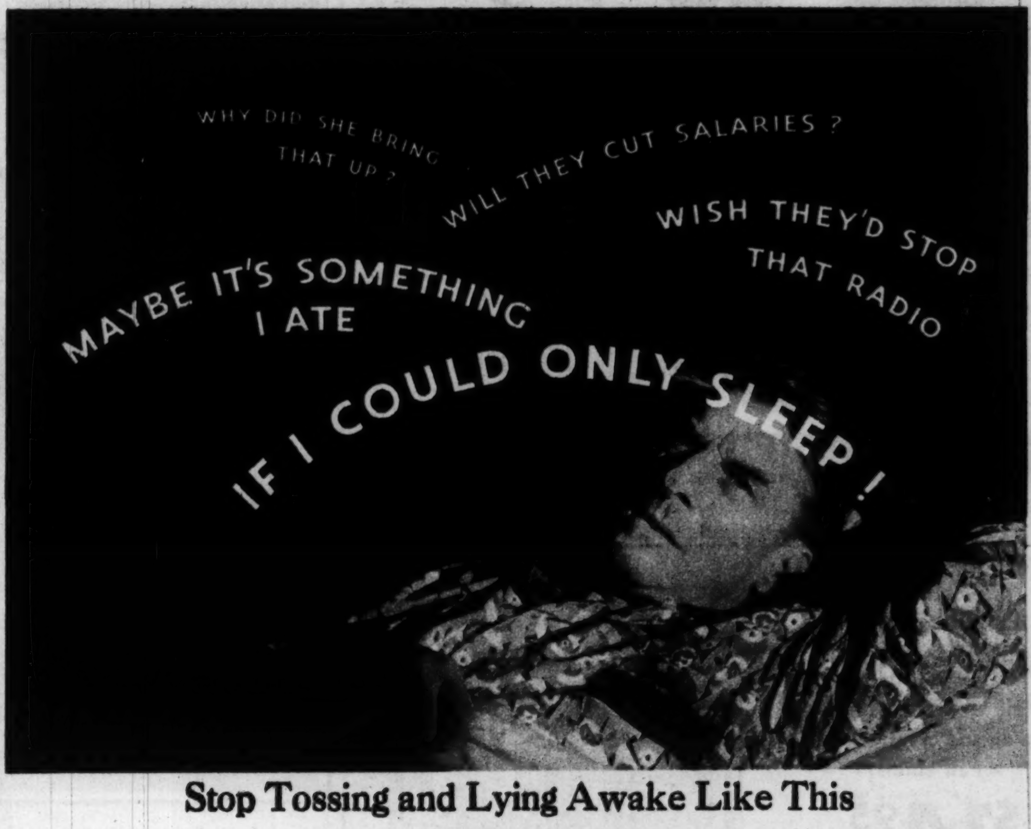
SOUND SLEEP

Instantly Tonight, Without Drugs



WHY DID SHE BRING THAT UP?
WILL THEY CUT SALARIES?
WISH THEY'D STOP THAT RADIO
MAYBE IT'S SOMETHING I ATE
IF I COULD ONLY SLEEP!

Stop Tossing and Lying Awake Like This

Fall Asleep as Soon as You Go to Bed
Feel Like a New Person Tomorrow

THOSE ghastly hours of night-time tossing! Those exaggerated worries that loom like mountains when you cannot get to sleep. How they sap your strength—unstring your nerves—and unfit you for your work.

Why suffer them any longer? Why endure the physical and mental handicaps they inevitably bring?

For 20,000 doctors will tell you that sleeplessness is needless folly now. Will tell you there is now a drugless way that brings you sleep—naturally, quickly.

It is a delicious food-drink that you take before you go to bed. As free from drugs as the bread you eat or the milk you give your child.

You fall asleep almost as soon as you touch the pillow. And you get 8 hours of sound, natural sleep.

Next morning you notice the difference the instant you arise from bed. You feel refreshed—rejuvenated. Nerves calmer—mind clearer by far. No longer a prey to the worries that always seem so mountainous when your system is starved for sleep.

For this new way does more than induce sound sleep. It rebuilds your nerves, your body, your tissues—during the hours you sleep.

Millions are now using this remarkable discovery. Millions are turning to it largely on doctors' advice. In fairness to yourself, your health, your nerves—try it without fail. See how quickly you fall asleep—how vastly refreshed you feel next morning.

What It Is—How It Acts

It is called Ovaltine—a pure food-drink you take at night with warm milk. During the World War, medical authorities made it a standard ration for invalid, nerve-shattered soldiers. They found it does 3 things no other food in the world will do.

First, it induces sound, restful sleep by a wholly natural process.

Second, it rebuilds worn-out nerve and body cells. For, in addition to other valuable food elements, Ovaltine contains (in concentrated form) a natural vital property called "lecithin" which is an important part of nerve and brain tissue. And these special food properties rebuild worn-out nerve, brain and body cells as you sleep.

Third, Ovaltine aids digestion. This is because it contains a high proportion of a food element known as diastase—an element which has the power to digest the starch content of other foods in your stomach. Thus it lifts a great burden from your digestive organs—and helps your stomach "rest." And in this way combats digestive unrest—one of the main causes of sleeplessness.

At the same time—by stimulating and aiding digestive processes—Ovaltine tends to draw excess blood away from the head. And helps reduce the congestion that is present in brain capillaries when a person lies awake at night thinking and worrying instead of sleeping.

Thus a state of mental calm is induced. And normal sleep follows quickly.

You'll Sleep Tonight!

Don't judge Ovaltine merely by what users claim for it. Even disregard, if you wish, the fact that it is endorsed by 20,000 doctors. Forget the fact that its use has spread to 54 different countries . . . Try it and see for yourself.

So start tonight! 'Phone your druggist or grocer for a tin of Ovaltine. Mix 2 to 4 teaspoonfuls in a glass of warm milk and drink it just before you go to bed. You will sleep more soundly than you have, probably, in weeks and months. You'll be delighted with the sound, refreshing sleep you get and the redoubled energy that's yours next day.

(Note) Thousands of nervous people, men and women, are using Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued. It is also highly recommended by physicians for nervous, underweight children—nursing mothers, convalescents and the aged. 874

Mothers adopt Vick "Colds-Control" Plan

Means Reduction of the Number, Severity and High Costs of the Family's Colds

Doubly welcome to mothers is news that the makers of Vicks VapoRub have perfected a Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"—to lessen the number and severity of colds and reduce their costs in money, lost time and health. The plan is introduced along with Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, based on a new idea for preventing colds — companion product to VapoRub, the modern, external method of treating colds.

TRIAL OFFER BY LOCAL DRUGGISTS

You have Vicks VapoRub—now get Vicks Nose Drops and use together as directed in the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"—to reduce their number and severity. Unless you are delighted with results, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

HERE, BRIEFLY, IS THE VICK PLAN:

1. BEFORE a Cold Starts

When children come in sniffling and sneezing, apply a few Vicks Drops up each nostril. Use the Drops yourself at that first scratchy, sneezy irritation of the nose or upper throat—Nature's warning that you are "catching cold." If you or the children catch cold easily, use the Drops after exposure to any condition you know is apt to be followed by a cold --dry, over-heated rooms—indoor crowds—sudden changes, wet or cold—dust and smoke—etc., etc.--and there is the slightest stuffiness. Used in time, many colds can be avoided.

2. AFTER a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Drops as needed for ease and comfort. This gives you full 24-hour treatment—and without the risks of constant internal "dosing," so often upsetting to digestion, especially the delicate digestions of children.

"A little at a time"—instead of in bulk—permits uniform roasting all the time

THE pleasure you find in your first cup of Hills Bros. Coffee will be repeated meal after meal—day after day—even year after year! For Hills Bros. Coffee never varies in flavor. Here is the reason:

Instead of roasting in bulk—the common practice—Hills Bros. use an exclusive, patented process, Controlled Roasting. The blend of choice coffees flows through the roasters in an even, continuous stream . . . a little at a time.

Accurate roasting of the famous blend is assured—accuracy equalled by no other process. No berry is under-roasted nor over-roasted. They are all done to the same perfect degree. Marvelous, unvarying flavor results. It is a flavor no other coffee has, because no one else can use Hills Bros.' patented process.

Make some Hills Bros. Coffee. Inhale that wonderful fragrance which rises from the cup in curling steam. Then sip—and see for yourself what a finer flavor comes from Controlled Roasting. Hills Bros. Coffee is sold by grocers everywhere. Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

HILLS BROS COFFEE FRESH AFTER YEARS OF EXPOSURE IN THE HIGH SIERRAS

A hiking party, tramping in the High Sierras, came upon a deserted cabin. While poking through the wreckage they found an unopened can of Hills Bros. Coffee . . . rusted and faded from exposure to the elements. No one knows how long it had laid in the snow and sun, wind and rain.

The coffee was brought to San Francisco—opened—and found to be as fresh as the day it was roasted! Hills Bros.' vacuum can had preserved all the original flavor and fragrance. The vacuum process of packing coffee is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness—the air is removed from the can and kept out. It was originated by Hills Bros. over thirty years ago. There is no magic about a vacuum can—it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh.

SPORTS STYLES MIGRATE to SOUTHERN BEACHES

French Gob and Peasant Seen in Paris Modes

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Winter's backbone is still in a state of Herculean virility, while the Paris style mongers are rushing around delivering orders for sports styles of the airy variety suitable for southern beaches. There is a mighty packing of trunks and steaming up of luxurious yachts for points south, and these sports styles are going along. What the well-dressed woman will be wearing at the Bath and Tennis club is something with a combined southern and French accent; something that is going to appear next summer up north.

Pajamas and skirts, jackets and coats and sweaters from the midseason shows of the Paris costume couture have a mixed sailor and peasant air inspired by the informal, unpretentious attire seen along the Riviera from Monte Carlo to Toulon, via St. Tropez, last fall. Yachts plying daily up and down this trail, carrying the smartest women of Europe, were under the closest surveillance of the French dressmakers and American clothes industrialists.

The striped shirt of the French gob and his pompon trimmed tam-o'-shanter, the Greek sandals of Raymond Duncan, and the printed cotton handkerchiefs of Italian and Provençal peasants, which were outstanding details of sports clothes seen along the Riviera, are among the smartest features of the new sports clothes for the south.

Platinum blonds are the height of fashion. This ethereal hair looks gorgeous against sunburned skin at the southern resort. Dark haired damsels don't bother to bleach. They turn platinum via Antoine's new waterproof wigs.

Tao-Tai, the smartest sports shop on the Riviera, are making knitted beach frocks with fitted bodices and full skirts (all in one piece) for their smart clients to wear at Palm Beach.

The newest thing in midwinter millinery is the Wagner cap, made of velvet. It comes from Mado.

Fashionable women are beginning to wear Antoine's new coiffure, which resembles the haircut of cherubs in Renaissance paintings, being parted in the middle and curled up in little ringlets at the sides and back of the head.

Patience Is a Vital Virtue Parents Need

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

"MY little girl asks me a thousand questions a day while I'm trying to do my housework, and nearly drives me crazy."

"My little boy is into everything and just gets on my nerves. Why can't he be quiet and obedient?"

"I'm just about frantic. Since I've had my second baby my older daughter seems to be getting on my nerves. I fly off the handle a dozen times a day. She seems to be possessed." And so it goes.

But so it must not go. And so it need not go. I don't mean that you must try to be perfect, serene every minute of the day, never impatient for a moment, never human. But I mean that if you are in the state of nerves, irritation, or faultfinding a large part of the time you're in a fair way to wreck your child's disposition, to alienate his affections. And you really may make, in the course of time, a behavior problem of him.

You can't go around thinking how awful your older children are, or your very little boy or girl, without doing a lot of damage. Because they're not awful. That's not where the fault lies. And you'll never make headway like that.

An Explanation.

Now, right here you may stop and perhaps "sniff," as people are described as doing in novels. I don't know just what a sniff is, physically—but I know what it is to sniff mentally! So you may sniff and say, "Well, it's easy for some one to talk that way, who doesn't know what it means to do all her own work or to have a baby underfoot all day—or to be worried to death about money—or not to feel well—or to be upset about something and still have to carry on. It's easy to tell busy, tired mothers what to do—it's another story to do it. Let her try it!"

Well, we have. The advice given in this column is based on just the sort of experience mothers describe in their letters—though the only reason why I would be so directly personal as to say this is because it seems to me most important that mothers who read these articles should realize it.

For, after all, it is natural to be impatient with advice which you think is ladled thinly with rhetorical effect out of an ink bottle, instead of out of the great vat of personal, absolutely first hand experience, just as it is only natural that a mother who cares for her own children an runs her own house should listen with a more open mind to some one who

What Do Sexes Really Think of Each Other?

By Doris Blake.

AFTER you get through reading the reports on questionnaires that have to do with men and women, their marriage, their likes and dislikes—you begin to wonder how the minister ever does wangle a marrying job out of humans. The antagonism so often revealed in these reports is astonishing in view of the way the sexes keep on depending upon each other for comfort and moral support. In view of the vay they keep on marrying—and hoping for the best!

The latest of these reports to greet our eyes is that of the well known psychologist, Dr. William Marston. The object of his questionnaire search: "What do men really think of women, and women of men?" or words to that effect.

Anyway, Dr. Marston asked students at Long Island university, Radcliffe, Tufts, and Columbia to list the good and bad qualities each found in the opposite sex. The anonymity provided the responses gave the boys and girls a chance to express themselves unreservedly.

Women More Generous.

One gathers from the answers that women do not expect as much from men as men from women. In proof, the girls could only muster up twenty-one unpleasant traits in the male, as against twenty-nine bad qualities registered against women. The pleasant traits found in the opposite sex were permitted entry as well as the unpleasant ones. Here the girls came off a little better. Twelve virtues were allotted them by the men, the girls returning the compliment with a meager eleven.

Among the things that girls deplore in men, it appears from the report, are:

"They're less loving than women.

"They're changeable, brusque, and explosive.

Scalloped Dish Is Tasty Way to Use Left-Overs

By Mary Meade.

WHILE we do our small bit for charity these days, let's give our charitable impulses free rein in our kitchens. For charity applied in the proper cooking spirit to left overs, forlornly shrinking away in iceboxes, works delicious food renovations. Of course, one doesn't have to have left overs for a starting point. On the contrary, there are all the members of the vegetable family, many meats and innumerable varieties of fish which may be improved with the scalloping touch. But, if you're bristling with thrift, and looking for ways and means to cut down budgets—give a thought to this method of cookery.

The word scallop originally meant to bake foods in a scallop shell, and oysters are frequently cooked in this manner. However, now, when reference is made to scalloping any meat, vegetable, or fish, we mean baking it in a casserole or dish after it has been treated with milk, butter, and fied into chic make the newest pajamas. The refusal of certain ultra-fashionable women to wear the trousers which most women wore, and their adherence to skirts, brings back the skirted garment for beach wear. The Honorable Mrs. Reginald Fellowes' gingham dresses, famous along the Cote d' Azur, have their counterpart in cotton frocks of the new southern season.

Bright Colors Popular.

Sports colors for the south are pretty gay, but as they are mixed so largely with white they can be toned to the conservative taste of the distinguished woman. Brilliant red in either geranium or organdy tones, and a blue that Bruyere calls Andalusian and that is also known as Algerian, are two leading southern sports shades. They are often mixed with each other, and they are also combined with white.

Bright yellow united to vivid blue is new, and from the Schiaparelli stables come these shades and also red-brown with pale gray. This last named combination is brand new in beach clothes. The white costume, be it dress or pajamas, with a generous sprinkling of bright red or brilliant blue, will probably be the leader of southern sports styles.

Cotton fabrics get a big hand. Cotton tricots knitted into lacy patterns are going to make some of the smartest pajamas and jackets for the south, and cotton and woolen jersey with a ribbed pattern like the twill that makes uniforms for sailors are second to none in southern sports fabric fashions. Silk in the rustic weaves are chic as chic. Linen in white and natural tones appears.

Straw and Linen Hats.

Sports tam-o'-shanters made of panama, both the real and the paper kind, have pompons of paper or straw at the top, and small draped turbans similar to those worn by Lady Mendl at Cannes are fashionable to wear with skirted beach clothes. Sun hats with gigantic parasol brims are made of starched, quilted linen and also of braided paper straw. These big hats are always white; the tams and turbans match the clothes they appear with.

Greek sandals, made of white or brown calf are worn over stockingless feet, with both toes and heels tinted a natural looking red. Handmade linen sandals are also smart.

Bathings suits are plain one piece garments in plain wool, hand or machine knitted. They usually have high line fronts and low cut bodices, or only straps above the shorts that may or may not be hidden under a brief skirt.

Double Breasted Jackets.

Jackets for the southern resort will be double breasted like those of marine officers, and from bolero to hip-length. These wraps have entirely replaced cardigan sweaters. They are fastened with brass buttons. Schiaparelli's sea-going boleros are fastened with dollar-sign clips, which are the sensation of the season, and buyers insist on all their purchases being thus clipped together, ignoring more conservative fastenings.

The beach ensemble in the center of our sketch today has the dollar clips on the short bolero jacket of red-brown tricot. The overall pajamas that go with this jacket are made of light gray ribbed jersey, and instead of the usual overall top this model has a surpliced effect which you can see in detail on the two figures shown just behind, reclining on the beach. Tucks above and below the waistline give a close fit to this garment. It has only jersey straps at the back of the bodice.

Next on the right is another Schiaparelli sports suit with the dollar-sign clips fastening the double breasted bolero that buttons right up to the neck. It is shown in the background. This bolero is bright blue ribbed silk, and with it is worn a wrap-around skirt of blue, which fastens with a dollar clip at the belt in back.

Skirt and bolero are worn over bright yellow silk B. V. Ds., which may be worn alone for the sunbath. As the skirt is open down the left side it is easily stripped off. The tam that goes with this suit is yellow knitted wool with a pointed top, and there is a braided scarf made of blue and yellow. Cork sabots, like those of Dutch fisher boys, are worn on the feet.

Smart for Palm Beach.

The beach dress that is smart for Palm Beach and other southern resorts is sketched on the extreme left. This is a Bruyere model made of geranium red ribbed wool jersey with no sleeves. The widened shoulders suggest brief cap sleeves. This dress fastens down the left side with red bone buttons and the red belt has a series of steel rings instead of a buckle. At the asymmetrical neckline is a big flap of white silk serge and another sticks out from the buttoned closing.

Under this dress is the one piece bathing suit shown in the background just at the right. It is made of geranium red ribbed tricot with a band of white tricot at the waistline over which is placed a brown patent leather belt. This kind of an ensemble serves for the whole day along the Cote d' Azur, and women change only when they put on their evening gowns.

Swedish Town Citizens Seem to Have Long Lives

KISA, Sweden.—[U. P.]—A Swedish record for longevity seems to be held by the inhabitants of the little parish of Kisa, in central Sweden. The latest figures show that out of a population of 4,000 no less than 92 persons were over 80, and of these 10 were over 90. Some years ago Kisa had Sweden's oldest inhabitant, the farmer Sven Eriksson, who died at 105½ years.

Even Most Modest of Food Budgets Will Provide for Tasty Array of Delicious Scalloped Dishes.

crumbs, as the case may be, and any of a number of seasonings. So, you see, you have quite a bit of latitude for your cooking imagination when you scallop!

Salmon with Vegetables.

Salmon is good with several vegetables. Make a thin white sauce of one cup of milk, one tablespoonful of flour and one, too, of butter before you begin assembling the dish. Then, if you have either peas or green beans already cooked (you may use both if you have a little of each), lay them in layers in the baking dish. A layer of salmon first, next the beans or peas, and continue until you stop with a final layer of salmon on top. The white sauce may be poured over the whole and add a final dusting of cracker or bread crumbs for the top. This dish should be baked in a moderate oven about twenty minutes until it is heated through and the crumbs are an attractive brown.

Leftover remnants of baked or boiled fish may also be used. Bone and flake it and put in layers in a baking dish with cooked tomato, rice, or crumbs. Season with bits of butter and sprinklings of salt and pepper. If you wish, combine the fish with both rice and tomato and add a touch of finely chopped onion or a teaspoonful of lemon juice for seasoning. Bake these dishes in a moderate oven for about twenty or twenty-five minutes. For those of you with oven regulators, your thermometers should register 325 degrees.

Ably assisted by the fine knife of a meat cutter, cold fresh fish or salt cod may be prepared for scalloping. The white sauce for such a dish is the better for small additions of finely chopped onion and a sprig of parsley. The parsley in the finished entrée makes it a more attractive serving and gives it an improved flavor. You will require about one-third of a small onion and one sprig of parsley for a pint of the white sauce. Finish the casserole of fish with a layer of cracker crumbs or bread crumbs. Since the fish is uncooked, the baking will take longer. Use a moderate oven and bake for about forty-five or fifty minutes.

Appetizing Combinations.

Other combinations of fish and vegetables include corn and salmon, shrimps and peas, halibut and tomatoes, and any kind of cooked fish may be used with cauliflower. When cauliflower is so baked it must have been previously cooked and then cooled. Bone, skin, and flake the fish and break the cauliflower into small pieces before placing them in layers in the baking dish. The seasoning may be lemon or onion juice with dots of butter and salt and pepper. Toss the crumbs over the top and bake as usual in a moderate oven until the crumbs are a light brown.

One of the most favored foods among men is scalloped oysters, which, when served with a tart salad, is a perfect supper. This is another instance when the seafood is raw for the scalloping. Take about one quart of oysters, four cups of crumbs, and one cup of melted butter. Measure the butter after it has been melted. Some people prefer bread crumbs for this dish, and others cracker crumbs, but if you truly want a happy flavor, use equal parts of both, making up just four cups of crumbs. Mix the crumbs with the melted butter and then alternate them in layers in a baking dish with the raw oysters. The last layer should be crumbs. Bake for thirty to thirty-five minutes in a moderate oven, the temperature of which should read approximately 375 degrees.

Oysters with Cold Chicken.

Oysters scalloped with cold chicken is a delicious combination. Mince the cold cooked chicken rather fine and then set aside while you prepare the white sauce. To one pint of oysters, use one and one-half cups of milk, one tablespoonful of butter, and one of flour. Cook half a cup of chopped celery in water until tender and add to the white sauce with the raw oysters. Heat the whole mixture thoroughly. Place a layer of chicken in the baking dish, then a layer of chicken dressing, and next a layer of the oyster sauce. Alternate until the ingredients have been used up. Cover the top surface with crumbs and bake in a moderate oven about thirty minutes.

In the poultry division of foods, turkey and chicken left-overs are perhaps the most common. Both may be scalloped with rice, macaroni, or just crumbs. Some cooks like tomato seasoning and use cooked tomatoes or tomato sauce. Again, chicken may be scalloped with diced cold boiled potatoes, and the same procedure followed. Sage dressing, should you have stuffed your chicken with it, is spread in a layer over the first chicken layer, before adding the potatoes. Use the chicken gravy instead of milk for the liquid.

Chicken or turkey baked with eggs makes a good scalloped entrée for supper or luncheon. Take about a teaspoonful of chopped onion, first, and fry it slightly in one tablespoonful of butter. Then add one and one quarter cupfuls of milk and heat well. When hot, stir into the mixture one cupful of fine bread crumbs and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Season to suit your own taste with salt and pepper. While the sauce is cooling, beat two eggs well, and then add them to the sauce. Pour this over the chicken or turkey, which has first been chopped or ground, and finish the top with a light sprinkling of crumbs. Bake the dish in a moderate oven about half an hour.

Suitable for Luncheons.

Meat is favorably combined with vegetables in a manner similar to those given for fowl and fish. Minced cooked ham and chicken, cubed beef, mutton, or lamb with tomatoes, onion, and rice, sliced cooked pork sausage with macaroni and tomatoes, and scalloped sweetbreads with mushrooms are good combinations.

For the housekeeper with either a large or small family who finds herself with cooked foods always on hand, scalloped dishes offer an easy answer for luncheon. They have the virtue, too, of aiding us to incorporate milk in our diets, yet utilize, without waste, whatever we have on hand. You can devise any number of combinations, yourself, depending, of course, on the material with which you have to work. However, remember to use cooked foods with cooked foods, and raw foods with raw foods, in most instances. Otherwise, you will discover that part of the entrée is tender and edible while the other part may not be.

There is just room today for a few vegetable suggestions other than those already given for combinations with meat and fish. Corn and green peppers are good, cauliflower scalloped with buttered crumbs and a dash of grated cheese, if you like, baked corn and tomatoes, scalloped peas, beans, potatoes [slice these thin and bake raw], peas with onion seasoning, parsnips, onions, eggplant—in fact I can't think of any vegetable which may not be cooked in this fashion. If you would like other recipes than those given above or below, I shall be glad to forward them.

ONION SCALLOP.

8 large or 16 small onions
2 tablespoons of butter
2 tablespoons of flour
1⅓ cups of milk
Salt and pepper to taste
4 eggs

Cut up onions, which have been boiled, with meat chopper or dice with knife, and arrange in greased casserole or baking dish.

Make a white sauce of the milk, butter, flour, and the seasonings. Cool and add the eggs. Pour over the onions. Bake in a moderate oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, about half an hour.

SCALLOPED CABBAGE.

One medium sized cabbage
1 cup white sauce
½ cup cracker crumbs
3 tablespoons melted butter
Salt and pepper.

Boil the cabbage until tender. Chop into small pieces and add the other ingredients, with the exception of the cracker crumbs. Put this mixture into a baking dish and cover the top with cracker crumbs mixed with a tablespoon of melted butter. Bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven at 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

SCALLOPED PARSNIPS.

Mash one pint of boiled parsnips and add to them one tablespoon of butter, a saltspoon of salt, pinch of pepper, and two tablespoons of milk. Mix the ingredients, turn into a buttered dish, cover with bread crumbs, dot with butter and brown in a moderate oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

Urge for Culture Gets Popular Aid Throughout Spain

MADRID.—(AP)—A surge of popular enthusiasm for increased cultural and artistic opportunities parallels the rapid political transformation of Spain.

Marcelino Domingo, minister of education in the provisional cabinet and now head of the department of agriculture and commerce, sounded this note:

"Our future nation must be liberal, strong, and rich in culture. Our citizens must be shown the gateway to real education."

A national music junta which functions as a sort of research laboratory is making special efforts in its field. It is cataloging a wealth of Spanish lyrics and is planning a revival of Castillian opera and establishment of schools of music, a Spanish ballet, a national orchestra, and community choruses.

New dramas, many with a political tinge, are being produced and in the field of fine arts Luis Quintanilla, a painter who believes in "socialization of art" as well as government, has aroused enthusiasm by new frescoes which have brought him the title of "artist of the republic."

Teaching Your Dog Tricks

A Little Patience and Kindness While Training Him and Mr. Canine Will Soon Sit Up and "Speak."

By Robert Joos.

Scotty, owned by Rose Wild of 6319 Kenwood avenue, demonstrates a result of canine education by shaking hands with Muriel Rae Smith, aged four.

MOST every one who keeps a dog for pet or companion has a desire to teach him a few tricks and the dog being, as a rule, an intelligent animal, responds readily to such education. In fact, many dogs enjoy this sport about as much as their owners do.

Some dogs are more apt pupils and have a faculty of learning more quickly than others, but almost any dog can be taught simple tricks such as "shaking hands," "sitting up," and "begging" for food. It does not require the knowledge of a professional trainer to teach the dog these simpler tricks, and, as it tends to further the dog's intelligence and affords amusement to the family and friends, there is no reason why every owner of a dog should not devote a little time to this work.

Some people, and it is surprising to note how many, have an idea it requires considerable cruelty and punishment to teach a dog tricks. This is a most erroneous impression, as it is a well known fact that the one who uses the whip, even in teaching the most difficult tricks, will not get far in this work. Patience, kindness, tact, and the faculty of understanding your pupil are things that count in training the dog to do tricks, and the person who lacks these virtues should not attempt to train a dog.

There are certain breeds and even some mongrels that seem to have a faculty for learning certain tricks more quickly than others. Those who have attended performances of trained dog troupes have no doubt noticed that the greyhounds, Great Danes, and the whippets are used to do the high jumping, and the poodles, spaniels, or mongrels do the clowning.

Then, again, we find terriers, collies, and often the mongrels doing some of the most difficult tricks in the show. The professional dog trainer evidently picks his dogs for their adaptability to certain tricks and knows certain breeds and individual mongrel dogs offer the least resistance to education along particular lines.

Don't Start Too Early.

The common mistake is to start training the puppy too early. The puppy up to the age of 9 months is much too full of play and is not receptive to this kind of education. The important point is to teach one trick at a time, making the lessons of short duration so as to make it appear to the dog as recreation and not as a task.

Always reward the dog for his efforts with some dainty which he enjoys and show him by your actions that you appreciate his advancement in his lessons. The dog is quick to realize he is pleasing you and will remember this in his next lesson.

Any dog can be taught to "shake hands," the simplest trick and the most common one performed by canines. To teach this trick simply take hold of the dog's paw, lift it and say "Shake hands," repeating this a number of times. After several lessons the dog will raise his paw and, of course, should then be rewarded with a bite of something he likes. Later on he can be taught to shake hands with your friends by saying the words "Shake hands with the gentleman" or "Shake hands with the lady."

Another popular trick, quite easily taught, is that of sitting up. Take the dog to a corner of the room and squat him down on his hind quarters, showing him a bit of tempting food. Then hold this over his nose with one hand while you place his paws in the proper position, assisting him and repeating the words, "Sit up." Do not expect too quick results. Even with your assistance he may put himself in a limp and awkward position, but he will learn what is wanted and suddenly sit and stay in the right position.

Learns Gradually.

Gradually he will learn to balance himself and will then be able to sit up without any assistance from you or any support from the walls. After that he can be taught to sit up until told to stop or until the count of ten or some other number.

Some dogs become so efficient in this trick that they will sit up of their own accord when they want something to eat, or want to go out for a walk, or when their owners catch them in misconduct and they expect a reprimand for the misdeed.

When the dog has accomplished the feat of balancing himself he can easily be taught to walk on his hind legs by holding the titbit of food a little higher than usual and then advancing a little forward and commanding him in a gentle voice to "walk." The walk, of course, will be in kangaroo fashion, a series of leaps, but as this will be quite tiresome for the dog at first, care should be exercised not to overdue this performance and the distance should be increased gradually.

A dog that becomes proficient in walking on his hind legs can also be taught to dance in a waltzing fashion by holding the appealing morsel of food well above the nose and gently moving it around in a circle, and as the lesson advances the movement of the hand can be reversed, putting the dog through crude dancing movements. In time dogs efficient in this trick seem to enjoy doing this dancing and need little coaxing to start on the "waltz."

It must be understood, however, that not every dog can be made a dancer. Also bear in mind that this latter trick requires considerable patience and perseverance on the part of the trainer and even then efforts may result in disappointment.

A Simple Trick.

Dogs are good little beggars and therefore even the dullest can learn the begging or speaking trick. Simply hold a piece of meat or other appetizing food above the dog's head and urge him to "speak," and when he does give it to him. The intelligent dog will soon learn to use this speaking trick often as time goes on and will make many of his wants known in that manner.

No matter what you are trying to teach a dog, never make the lesson too long and always reward him for accomplishments. Above all, spare the rod! But before trying to teach your dog any trick teach him obedience first, and by that time you and your dog will know each other fairly well, and by this mutual acquaintance your dog will understand you and you will understand him, which is bound to bring quicker results in training.

What Do Sexes Think of Each Other?

"They're too patronizing.

"They're narrow minded about the other sex.

"They're careless and easy-going. They're easy to fool. And they NAG."

[That last named one didn't slip into the wrong list by mistake, either.]

What men don't like about women, among other things, is their fickleness, their weakness; that they are pleasure seeking excitement chasers; tricky, treacherous gold diggers and emotionally unstable exhibitionists. They are mentally lazy and have no ambition, excitable, talkative, and childish and they are PETTY LIARS. [Ed. note: That ought to get even with the Nagging charge.]

However, in spite of the awful things women are, according to the student body admissions, they're still sympathetic, warm hearted, and obliging and they are captivating. And that's why they love 'em.

Granted Some Good Points.

The men have their points, too. They're good workers, according to woman vote, and they're steady of purpose. They have more physical courage than women and they are loyal. Less likely to be upset by little things than women, which is perhaps why they view matrimony without the alarm expected of a group that finds so many things wrong with the opposite sex.

From another question source one learns about the attitude of college girls toward the proposed fifty-fifty amusement expense sharing movement. The girls' attitude is not heartening to the young man out of a job temporarily or living on a reduced allowance. Whether or not this position supports certain charges reported above in the undesirable woman traits you may figure out for yourself. But the problem of entertainment on the Dutch-treat basis or not in the fifty-fifty manner is a matter occupying attention in collegiate circles at the moment. This is due, no doubt, to the suggestion of President George Thomas of the University of Utah that women students share in the expense of social affairs. The suggestion, it must be reported, was received with much greater favor among the men than among the girls.

So, it would seem that the girls were right, who admitted men have more physical courage than women. It requires a great deal of it to ask a girl out these days, with theater tickets, dining, and dancing the total they're apt to mount up to.

The young men in college may have their difficulties with the entertainment problem—but the young men on a salary are in even a more difficult position. The fact that they are earning persuades girls to believe that they can afford to spend. And the young men are not above lending the impression that their earning capacity is greater than it is. They may not say so in words, but to create the impression they will spend more than their incomes, more than an orderly system of budgeting would approve. So, there are faults on both sides.

Salaried Ones at Disadvantage.

If young men, however, would get out of their systems that erroneous impression about golddigging and expensive excitement chasing being synonymous with girls, they might get somewhere in the Dutch treat game. Or, if not the Dutch treat, a little more mercy might be extended them on the evening of the date. So long as they hold to the golddigging idea, they'll meet up with girls who aim to fit the pattern supplied by the male. And there's ample proof offered at the dating hour to support woman's conviction that it does not pay to be too easy on the opposite sex—to support the theory that man appreciates most what costs him the most effort.

All of which is beating around the mulberry bush, and not getting anywhere helpful to young men financially embarrassed.

There is this one fact about the current situation that might be made the main focus of the argument. Girls are sitting home nights lonely and boys are hiding out from contacts that involve expense that they are simply not equal to at the moment. Couldn't a One-year Plan, let's call it, be proposed wherein boy and girl might see a movie together on a straight fifty-fifty basis? Couldn't there be just a little more good hard sense introduced into the social relations of the moment so that both girl and boy be permitted the wholesome companionship that would be involved.

Time to Call a Truce.

I'm for calling a truce, temporarily, so that a young man won't be made to feel he is insulting a young lady if he allows her to share the expense with him. We're going through a period when young women, no doubt, their father and brothers have to curtail on certain of their oldtime "necessities," when a new adjustment to financial facts is demanded of us all, more or less. Couldn't the boy friend be let in on the new scheme of adjustment? In other fields people are finding a satisfaction in this new adjustment they never expected to find. Mightn't the boy friend, under the circumstances, bring something unexpected into girls' lives, too?

Answers to Love Queries

Be a Living Mirror.

"Dear Miss Blake: My girl insists on acting babyish. How can I stop her from doing this? H. B. J."

You might go "babyish" too, in order to give the young lady a close-up of herself.

Ten Year Age Difference.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a girl ten years my junior. Is that too great a difference in ages? JOHN."

It depends on your ages. Is she in her very tender teens? If so, you might hesitate. Otherwise, no.

He Cares.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend and I broke up. He still recalls the old days together. Does he still care? "BLOND GAL."

Yes, I think he does, if he takes pleasure in recalling the good old days.

Objects to His Glasses.

"Dear Miss Blake: My girl will not go out with me when I wear my eyeglasses. What should I do? "ZIP."

I'd use the eyeglasses to spot another girl with.

Timely Attention.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have gone with a girl two years and have yet to kiss or make love to her, but she still insists on my seeing her. Shall I continue? AL."

Now why should I be the one to advise you that a little petting might be timely now?

Hopes Are Too High.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend attended my birthday party and gave me a beautiful gift. Since then he pays only the slightest attention to me. Does he care? D. H. S."

Probably he didn't put into the gift just what you read into it.

Formula for Forgetting.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have loved a girl for three years but she hasn't given me a chance. I cannot forget her. HEARTBROKEN."

The formula for forgetting a girl is another girl.

Artifice Often Fails.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend and I broke up for no reason at all. Would it be a good idea to make him jealous? GIRLIE."

I'd go out with other young men but I wouldn't count too much on making your friend jealous.

No Age Obstacle.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy one year younger than I. Could such a friendship ever mean anything?" "ANXIOUS."

A year's difference doesn't mean anything.

Exercise Finesse.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy who doesn't know it. Would it be wise for me to tell him? J. S."

Put your woman wits to work, and let him know without telling him.

Six Impediments to Love.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a man of 34. I am 15. He loves me, but he has a wife and five children. What shall we do? WORRIED."

Come around here some day, bring a switch with you, and I'll show you what I think of a girl of 15 talking so silly!

Indicates Affection.

"Dear Miss Blake: The one I love has my picture on his ring. Does he care? R. M. A."

He cares a lot or he wouldn't go about advertising his affection that way.

Try Kindly Hint.

"Dear Miss Blake: My boy friend acts foolish when other friends are around. How can I cure him? "P. L. B."

A kindly hint might be given in the form of praise for some other boy's nice behavior.

It's a Moot Question.

"Dear Miss Blake: Is it possible for a fellow to really love two girls? "BILLY."

That's a question that's been troubling the world for æons. It's beyond me.

She's a Wise Girl.

"Dear Miss Blake: What do you think of a girl who loves me, but listens to her mother? GIP."

It proves that she will take good advice.

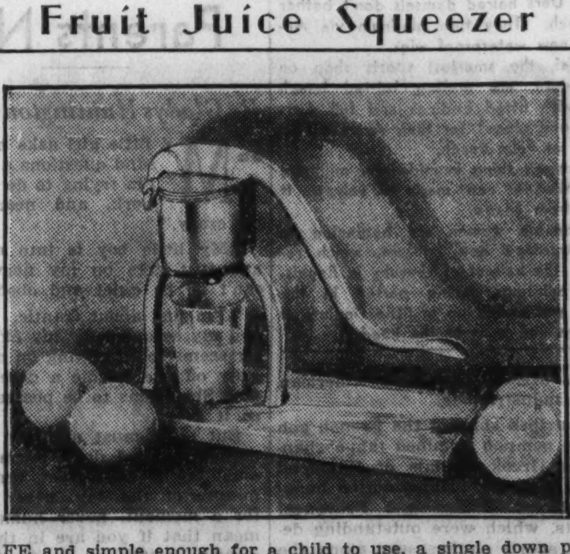
Keep Early Hours.

"Dear Miss Blake: Please tell me what time a girl of 15 should be in at night. WONDERING."

Half past ten, I think, a fair enough hour.

Fruit Juice Squeezer



SAFE and simple enough for a child to use, a single down press of the handle and all the juice from the fruit flows direct into your glass, strained free of fiber and seeds. Because no changing of parts is necessary with this presser, one may squeeze first large fruits and then small ones—one after the other. Just place the fruit in the polished bowl with cut side of fruit towards operator. A downward press of the handle and in eight seconds the juice of the cut orange is in the glass. Quite noiseless the operation, and the fixture is quite easy to clean. It does not clog and may be rinsed under the faucet in a trice.

Moody Bible Institute Holds Its Convention

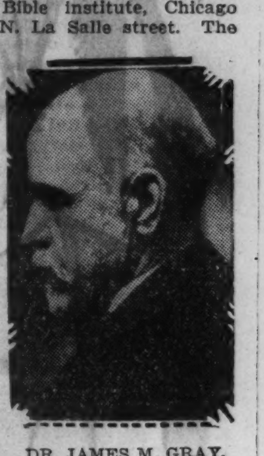
By the Rev. John Evans.



DR. JAMES M. GRAY.

HUNDREDS of missionaries from over the whole world will assemble for the 26th annual founder's week conference of the Moody Bible institute, Chicago avenue and N. La Salle street. The conference will be held from Feb. 1 to 5. The missionaries will come from remote islands and far distant countries to honor the memory of the founder, Dwight L. Moody.

Dr. James M. Gray, veteran president of the institute, will be one of the principal speakers at the conclave. Others who will be heard are the Rev. Charles J. Rolls, Auckland, New Zealand; the Rev. P. W. Philpott, D.D., Toronto, Canada; the Rev. Charles G. Trumbull, of the "Sunday School Times," Philadelphia, Pa.; the Rev. Robert G. Lee, D.D., Memphis, Tenn.; the Rev. Charles P. Meeker, Chicago; the Rev. Charles E. Scott of the Presbyterian board of missions, from northeast China; the Rev. H. W. Hanna of the China Inland mission, Manchuria; the Rev. Paul W. Harrison, Arabia, and scores of other missionaries.

One of the honored guests at the Moody conclave will be Mrs. Arthur F. Tylee, widowed by Brazilian Indians, who at the urging of their medicine men last year, slaughtered the Rev. Arthur F. Tylee, missionary, his daughter and several other white Christian workers in the Brazilian wilds. Mrs. Tylee, herself left for dead, was rescued by a searching party while a spark of life yet remained. She has practically recovered from her terrible ordeal, and is scheduled to speak at various sessions.

Leading exponents of all phases of religious work will be present at Moody to lead discussions, and two of the feature days of the conference will be Feb. 4 and 5, which have been designated as missionary day and alumni day, respectively.

Majority of Corkscrews Made by Women

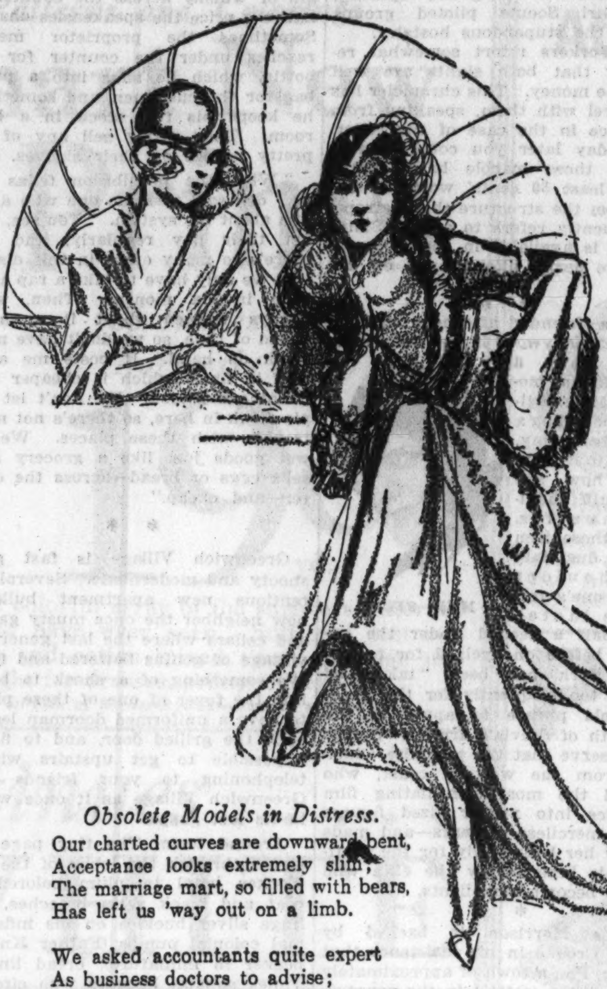
A Debutante Goes to Market.

A sheltered salesgirl schooled for Fortune's guest
Now ventures forth upon her season's quest;
Equipped with lissom youth and gentle guile,
With star eyed glance and glad or wistful smile,
Adroitly must she sign the fleeting male,
And leave him quite convinced he made the sale.

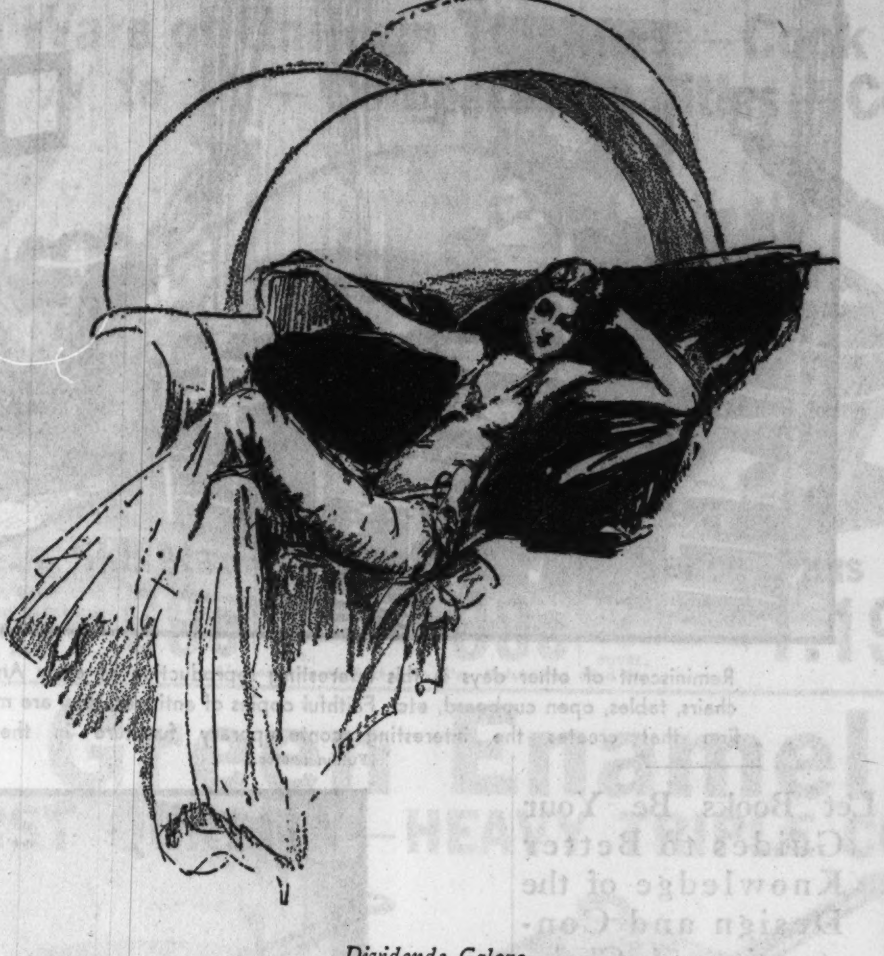


Obsolete Models in Distress.

Our charted curves are downward bent,
Acceptance looks extremely slim;
The marriage mart, so filled with bears,
Has left us 'way out on a limb.

We asked accountants quite expert
As business doctors to advise;
Their audit showed the shocking truth,
We're classed as last year's merchandise.

We've got to be remodeled quick,
Restyled from hats down to our shoes;
But that means refinancing, so
Our symphony is naught but blues.



Dividends Galore.

I'm wearied of statistics, I'm bored by market trend;
The faith I had in futures has met its scornful end;
I'm holding one investment which never can go bad,
They never call for margins on all the fun I've had.

Patience Is a Vital Virtue Parents Need

has been through what she has been through. So, I wanted to stop a moment to assure those who read these articles or those who receive replies, that a real understanding of parents' difficulties lies back of what is written here.

Not Their Fault.

Now, having cleared that up, let's go back. When you really think your children are awful, when you say they're possessed, when they seem to do things on purpose to annoy you; when you punish and spank and scold, when they're driving you crazy—it isn't the children's fault. The fault is somewhere else.

Now, where? It may be all along the line—in surroundings, family interference, outside conditions. But on the other hand, it may be merely that you've slipped up in one very important way—in the way of patience. It is surprising what havoc can be wrought in a family by lack of patience. Even with your 9 and 10 year olds—and also with your adolescents, it's an essential. A certain sort of patience is always needed.

And as for your little children—well, you just can't bring little children up without it. Lack of patience is devastating to them. They need it as much as they need love, as much as they need food. Patience is to a child like sun and water to a plant—it gives him a chance to grow and to flower.

Now, that doesn't mean that you have to go around with one of those sugar-sweet smiles, with an "I-will-bear-anything" expression, with a brand of determined patience. It doesn't mean that you grit your teeth and say nothing.

The kind of patience mothers need is not a passive thing, at all. It is an active thing that has its roots in a rich, warm understanding of the life of a little child.

Understanding Needed.

The need of this kind of understanding as a background for patience was borne in upon me very hard, some months ago. So many desperate letters from mothers, and fathers, too, came in that it was impossible from the point of time to put into each reply all that would prove helpful.

To meet this need I wrote a booklet, "Make Patience Your Handmaiden," with which some of you may be familiar, which is sent out by us in the usual way. As it lay on my desk just now it opened itself at this place: "In fact, when I begin to think about the virtue of patience in a mother or a father or a teacher I feel like bursting into a paean in its praise similar to the one on charity in the Bible. If I did, it would probably go something like this:

"Patience hurryeth not. Patience thinketh not of itself. Patience is not cross. Patience scoldeth not. Patience looketh into young eyes—inquiring, pleading, troubled and above all, wondering young eyes—and counteth the time well lost that it must take from other things to respond to them. Patience alway hath time.

"But, to continue in the language of everyday:

"Patience is something a mother can't get along without. She needs it constantly. But she can't summon patience in a hurry.

Time Is Important.

"Patience is one of the essentials that have to be wrung out of the hands of Old Father Time. You can't live on an exact time schedule and be patient. You must have plenty of time leeway for your children if you're going to be patient with them. Time is probably the first requisite for patience.

"But to be patient with children you need another thing besides time—and that is, understanding. You must understand—not just a child—but childhood, to be patient.

"You must understand how little children know and how much they want to know. You must understand how huge an undertaking each new small act is to them. You must understand that they have no sense of time and cannot comprehend unless you explain and perhaps not even then, why you can't talk or play while the steak is broiling or when you're getting ready to catch a train for the country. You must have understanding to have patience."

That is what real patience is—not a negative thing, but a positive one. It is not a pretty decorative virtue, but a necessity.

There's a great deal more to be said about patience. Did you ever think about it very much? For instance, did you ever ponder over it enough to realize there are two kinds of patience?

Far-Seeing Patience.

There's what you might call a detailed, hour by hour patience that is called upon in the things of ordinary, everyday living. And then there's a big, farseeing patience—a perspective patience which can bear with big crises, and which is more passive in that it can wait for nature to work her way in the development of the mind and body and spirit of a child. This latter kind of patience always reminds me of those two lines of Milton's—in "Paradise Lost" I think they are: "He also serves who only stands and waits."

Patience is altogether quite a large affair. It doesn't concern itself merely with not being impatient. It's much deeper and wider than that. So, when the children grow troublesome or even unbearable look at yourself, and not at them. Then call Patience and say to her, "I need you. Be my handmaiden."

Princess Wears Black Velvet at Paris Teas

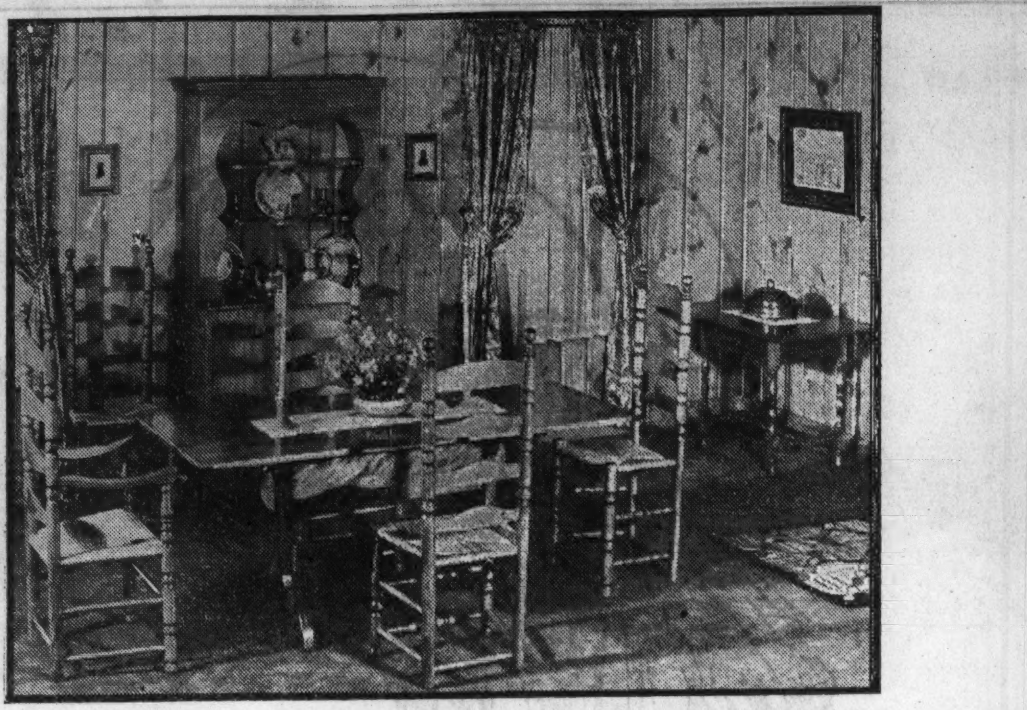
With it the princess wears a long black wool coat trimmed in ermine.

Learning to Know Furniture



Reminiscent of other days is this interesting reproduction of early American breakfast chairs, tables, open cupboard, etc. Faithful copies of antiques, they are made by the same firm that creates the interesting contemporary furniture in the other picture.

[Fulton photos.]

Let Books Be Your Guides to Better Knowledge of the Design and Construction of Chairs and Tables.

By Edith Weigle.

IN answer to recent letters inquiring about books on furniture we went over our list of favorites and are offering some of them today for your consideration. More and more people are asking what is good in furniture design and construction and what is bad. They want to know something about the chairs they sit on every day at home; they want to know if the old spool bed of grandma's is worth anything besides room in the attic; they want to know what period is represented by the handsome table given them as a wedding gift from Cousin Endicott in Boston. They wonder whether to sell the roundabout chair to the "antique man," who has offered them a good price for it, or whether to hang on for a higher sum.

Next best to browsing around among the furnishings of old and beautiful houses, or studying the rooms in the Metropolitan museum in New York and those at the Art institute here, or taking a course in interior decoration and furniture design, or just talking to men who have spent their lives making and caring for furniture—next best to these things is starting your own little library on the subject.

The following books cover a most extensive field and should answer almost any question that bothers you. None of these volumes is heavy or boring. Several are so delightfully written that they may be read aloud with a great deal of pleasure. Let's look over the group of reading matter on antiques first.

A very fine book because of its hundreds of excellent pictures and its extremely clear and concise explanations is "The Collectors' Guide to Furniture Designs," by Edward Wenham, Collectors Press, New York City. If you want to pay over ten dollars this is a grand thing to own and is something you will turn to again and again for reference and study. Mr. Wenham is the editor of the Antiquarian magazine and a recognized authority on old furniture of the English and American schools.

He groups his discussions into classes, one dealing with chests, another with desks, another with chairs, another with tables, with lowboys and highboys, with mirrors, paneling, doorways, mantel fittings, etc. He traces the development of each group in England and this country and gives pictures of typical pieces, so that you can fix firmly in your mind the differences between Chippendale and Queen Anne, between William and Mary and Queen Anne, between Hepplewhite and Sheraton, etc.

A perfectly delightful little book, and one not nearly so expensive, is "Old English Furniture for the Small Collector," by J. P. Blake and A. E. Reveirs-Hopkins, Scribners. It is written for the increasing public that admires the fine craftsmanship of the past and is always on the lookout for some interesting or representative example at a price within the means of the average man. A splendid gallery for reference on design and construction of the simpler types of English furniture throughout five centuries is the collection of 114 photographic examples in this volume.

"About Antiques," by Ella Shannon Bowles, Lippincott, covers a wider field than that of furniture, as her chapters include old textiles, pewter, pottery and a number of other crafts of early New England life. This author has recently written an entire book on textiles called "Homespun Handicrafts," Lippincott.

"Genuine Antique Furniture," by Arthur de Bles, Crowell, and "The Practical Book of Italian, Spanish, and Portuguese Furniture," by H. D. Eberlein and R. W. Ramsdell, Lippincott, are informative and valuable, but not as interestingly written as the other books on our list. They make good additions to the library, where they may be referred to when occasion arises.

Two fascinating volumes that describe old homes in the south are "Interiors of Virginia Homes of Colonial Times," by Edith Tunis Sale, William Byrd Press, and "Tidewater Maryland," by Paul Wilstach, Bobbs Merrill. The former gives 371 original plates illustrating the furniture and interiors of famous old Virginia houses "from the beginnings of Virginia to the Revolution." Reading these chapters is like stepping back into the beauty and quiet dignity of another day. Surely no manor house in old England was built with more masterly conception or fitted with greater attention to every minute detail than were Kenmore, York Hall, built in 1740, the Carter house, built in 1751, Stratford House built by the first of the Virginia Lees and now 197 years old, and many other palatial old homes described in this book.

Mr. Wilstach, whose "Tidewater Virginia" recreated the golden days of that historic section of our country, has written a new book about her twin sister, "Tidewater Maryland." This book covers a whole epoch in the life of a people noted for their hospitality, their courage, their sportsmanship and their graceful manners. There are chapters on ancient Annapolis, Baltimore town, the Potomac, the early voyagers, the customs and costumes of the people, their buildings and their households.

Mr. Wilstach writes with his usual fluency and skill. He is an artist and a connoisseur, an adept at painting a vivid picture of a colorful era in American history. In order to have a better understanding of American furniture one should know much about the American background, and "Tidewater Maryland" presents an excellent cross section of one of the most romantic and glamourous states in the union.

Jumping to the present day and its new ideas on furniture and decoration, one of the most able spokesmen of the contemporary movement in design is Paul T. Frankl, who gives his explanation of modern interiors in "New Dimensions," Payson and Clarke, and in "Form and Reform," Harpers. Both these books are written in an entertaining and informal manner. The pill of theory is well coated with humorous and readable prose. The illustrations are many and typical of modern furniture design.

"How to Judge Good Furniture," a booklet recently published by the national committee on wood utilization of the United States department of commerce at Washington, D. C., and costing 20 cents, is largely the work of Clarke Kelsey and is an extremely valuable little pamphlet for any home owner or for the lover of furniture. It tells you what things to look for when selecting a couch, a table, a bed, a chest of drawers, and what tell-tale marks are the sign of poor construction. It also works out a house furnishing budget for an average income; gives practical advice on arranging furniture in each room, etc.

The pictures today illustrate the two extremes in our 1932 furniture market. The dining room furnished in charming modern reproductions of authentic early American pieces recalls a bygone period; the other dining room, fitted with furniture of modern design, the work of Gilbert Rohde, reflects our own mechanical, industrial era, with its emphasis on simplicity and utilitarianism. It is interesting, we think, to know that both these dining room suites are manufactured by the same furniture company.

The Lake

By Eleanor Jewett.

I know a little girl and she
Talked about the lake to me.
When the sun is bright, why you
Know the lake wears clothes of blue.
When a storm cloud hovers near
Then the waves in gray appear.
On a windy day the lake
Ruffles out of foam will make
And up and down her dress she sews
All those ruffles, rows on rows.
But when she's dressed in party best
She pins great ships upon her breast,
And when there's no one there to see
She goes to bed like you and me.

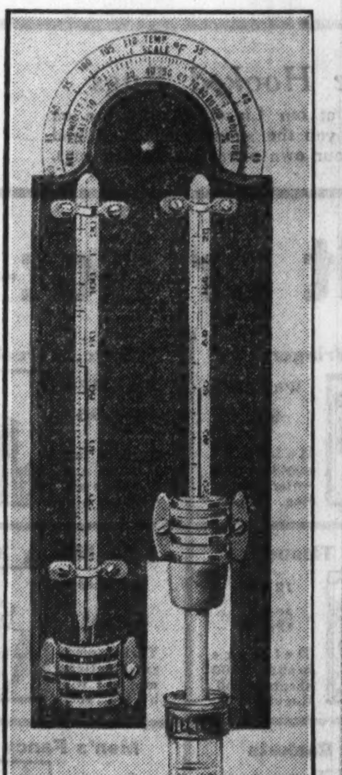
Pyschrometer



HAVE you ever felt that the air in your home was too dry in winter, and wondered how you could find out whether or not it contained a sufficient amount of moisture for the health of your family—and also of your plants and furniture? Well, here is a little instrument, a pyschrometer, by which, at a twirl in the air, the dial indicates the relative humidity in a room. The instrument is equipped with a handle [not shown in picture] and when rapidly twirled determines the true wet bulb reading. Centrifugal action prevents water from spilling from well.

Complicated? Not at all. These instruments are intended primarily for the layman. Equipped with two thermometers, a dry bulb for determining the ordinary temperature, and a wet bulb covered with a wetted wick for determining the humidity, the wet bulb indicates a temperature many degrees below that of the dry bulb, this difference depending upon the moisture in the air. When the mercury in the wet bulb thermometer has reached its lowest point both wet and dry bulb temperatures should be read and the humidity then determined by means of the dials. Full directions and a pyschrometric chart may be obtained with instrument.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—It's always a revelation what New York can get away with because of the label. For example, the one dollar admittance fee to the observatory of the Empire State building, and the same stipend was charged visitors who thronged the new Waldorf-Astoria on its grand opening, when Girl Scouts piloted groups through the stupendous hostelry.

New Yorkers retort somewhat resentfully that both sights are well worth the money. This chronicler has no quarrel with them, speaking from experience in the case of the latter. But—a day later you could wander through those marble halls gratis. And at least 50 cents' worth of the view from the structure this metropolis frequently refers to as the Smith building is available in the lobby, in the huge aerial photographs on display.

MME. SYLVIA.

Just a friendly afternoon call on Sylvia of Hollywood in her hotel suite turned into a panic for a moment. Mme. Sylvia, expounding a point of anatomy, decided to demonstrate how she flexes stiff shoulder muscles. When those iron fingers dug into one's shoulder blades, one's fortitude lasted about half a second under the onslaught before one yelped for mercy.

New York has been "taken by storm" too frequently for the hackneyed old phrase to apply to the aftermath of Sylvia's arrival. Suffice it to observe that the pint size whirlwind from the western coast, who pounded the most scintillating film celebrities into proper sized figures for the merciless cameras—and made 'em pay her bountifully for the treatments—is besieged by the élite who want to become her clients.

Jimmie Morrison is backed by Charles Crooke in his insistence that Reading, Pa., a town of approximately 100,000, is the wettest in the country, with something like 700 speakies. Reading, they explain, is national headquarters for the casual organization known as the "Knights of the Morning." They explain that at the foot of Penn street, the main thoroughfare, is Mount Penn, and that atop Mount Penn is a Japanese pagoda with many tiers and roofs, built as a point of vantage for the superb view. In order to become a "Knight of the Morning," one is required to make the rounds of various speakies every night for seven nights straight, and to hang the sun over the pagoda each morning.

The prohibition farce here gets funnier and funnier. The latest "filling stations" are the cordial shops, which seem to be lacking in Chicago. These are simply little holes-in-the-wall, some of them elaborately decorated and almost always modernistically styled. They are stocked with ginger ales and harmless cordials. Any one is privileged to walk in and purchase gin or whisky across the counter at half the price the speakeasies charge. Sometimes the proprietor merely reaches under the counter for the bottle, which he slips into a paper bag for the customer, and sometimes he keeps his real stock in a back room. They rarely sell any of the pretty bottles on their shelves.

"Why, the prohibition fellas like us," one said to some one who asked him about the system. "You see, they get their pay regularly, and now there's so many of us in this district that we only have to take a rap about once in six months. Then, we're always warned about it a month ahead of time, so we don't have much stock on hand. It costs me about $500 in fines, which is cheaper than running a saloon. We don't let people drink in here, so there's not much trouble with these places. We sell wet goods just like a grocery store sells eggs or bread—across the counter—and cheap."

Greenwich Village is fast going snooty and modernistic. Several pretentious new apartment buildings now neighbor the once musty garrets and cellars where the last generation vintage of genius flowered and faded. It's something of a shock to breeze into the foyer of one of these places, to have a uniformed doorman leap to open the grilled door, and to find it impossible to get upstairs without telephoning to your friends first. Greenwich Village as it once was is in its last gasps.

Around town—The tiny page who struts through the lobby of the New Yorker hotel in plum colored tail coat and black satin breeches, with huge silver buckles on his infinitesimal colonial pumps (Father Knickerbocker in miniature); bread lines in Times square; beggars who circulate through traffic jams and plead with passengers through the closed windows of taxis; theaters jammed to the roofs night after night; throngs pushing and crowding each other in the store aisles while the pessimists protest, "O, but they're not buying—you'd be surprised"; the night club that charged $100 a person for its New Year's eve revelry, with all the champagne you could drink; the incredible number of wrong telephone numbers it's possible to get, probably because there must be an exchange and five numbers given; the rumors that won't down about Ramon Navarro being here from Hollywood to see Garbo, who's in the hotel across the street and has been going about in disguise.

Five Italians Can Be Happy on $1 a Day

ROME.—(AP)—How to be happy on $1 a day with a family of five gets a good demonstration in several million homes of Italy.

Wages were reduced by Mussolini a year ago to keep business going when the world crisis grew worse and new difficulties have further lessened incomes.

Half of Italy is on farms or in small villages, where statistics show the head of the family usually gets about 400 lira a month. That means $21, but the wife and children, working at home or doing small jobs, frequently earn half as much as father or relatives abroad send money.

White Collar Economies.

For a family of five with that income here is how social investigators have found the monthly $31.50 goes:

Food	$17.00
Clothes	3.50
Rent	6.15
Light, heat	1.60
Miscellaneous	3.25

The sums seem small, but the Italian housewife, physically plump and sunny by nature, manages as she has for generations, by using cheap food, sewing many patches and leaving luxuries to those who can afford them.

This is true in the household of the "white collar" worker no less than in the homes of manual laborers. Salaries range from $20 a month for a typist to $65 or $75 for a trained educated man who can hold a place as lawyer's assistant or as an office manager.

Help from United States.

More money came to Italy from the United States in 1931 than in recent years despite the economic ebb tide. Nearly $20,000,000 reached 200,000 families. That average of $100 represents three months' income for a laborer or two months' salary for a clerk.

Food is first on family budgets because last year's clothes are still clothes, but meals must be recurring events. Rent may be a debatable payment in hard times, the sun gives light, and exercise can be substituted for heat.

A miscellaneous fund of 11 cents a day isn't large, but it represents 42 copper soldi, each one of which is made to do its full duty.

Spaghetti and "Minestra."

All Italy often is pictured as eating spaghetti. Much of it does, but there is also the thick, hot "minestra," a soup of cheap vegetables cooked in broth by the rich, and in free water by the poor. Bread, cheese, and oftentimes thin wine supplement these staples.

Even salt must be used sparingly, for it is one of the heavily taxed items in Italy, as in most old world countries.

Aside from making clothes last longer through care and repair, two methods, long practiced, are being more widely adopted. One is "turning" suits and the other is buying the cast-off garments of the more affluent.

Many tailors specialize in turning suits inside out. The breast pocket then appears on the right instead of the left, but that is not accounted vital.

Discarded Clothes Cheap.

Discarded clothes from good homes may be bought cheaply, usually at about 10 to 15 per cent of the retail price for new garments. The white collar man feels he must keep such an economy a dark secret, but the laborer has few such scruples. In fact, there is much trading among workers' families and a woman will frequently get a skirt by bartering a pair of her husband's trousers with a neighbor.

Women, for many reasons, bear the brunt of the new hardships. Their pride in dress may be greater than man's, but their necessity for new gowns doesn't equal the need for food and shelter. So "making over" is the formula for many a new wardrobe.

All this, of course, affects merchants by lessening their business. So they, in turn, must effect economies of their own, often of the same nature.

'Guests' in Reno Fail in Plans to Dodge Press

Newspaper Men Can Find Them Even Though They Go Into Retirement.

RENO, Nev.—[U. P.]—Many and varied are the schemes of prominent and well known eastern divorce seekers to avoid publicity in their divorce cases or even to let their presence be known.

For the most part, such intricately wrought plans come to naught, for newspapermen here are familiar with all the tricks.

Many people arrive with a greatly exaggerated idea of their importance and go through all the wornout procedure of "hiding out." They are amazed—and frequently vastly disappointed—when they emerge from the courtroom on the day their divorce is granted to learn the reporters are not interested.

Go Into Retirement.

Most of the better class attorneys advise their clients, who possess that complex, or even if they are nationally important, to voluntarily issue a brief and compact statement and then lead a normal life. In such cases there is usually one story published on arrival and a second story when the divorce is granted.

One of the favorite tricks to avoid publicity is to disembark from the train at Sparks, three miles from here, drive to Reno in an automobile and go into retirement.

They live under an assumed name and have their case filed under number only and their hearing held behind closed doors. But if reporters are interested they have perfected methods to thwart this.

Attract Attention.

These persons foolishly believe that to prevent publicity they should have closed door trials. But "secret hearings" have the opposite effect, as they attract attention.

During a year in Reno "covering" divorces, this correspondent has yet to see a divorce seeker "rushed" by the press, with a barrage of reporters and photographers to greet one at the train or courthouse.

Divorce coverage by newspapermen in Reno is far more subtle than that.

Women Outnumber Men on European Continent

The excess of women in England and France numbers 2,000,000. There are 3,000,000 more women than men in Germany, and 4,000,000 in Russia. Even such a small country as Portugal has an excess of 500,000 women.

According to the 1930 census of the United States there were 10,778,794 women employed, of whom 3,149,391 were in domestic and personal service, 1,762,795 in professional service, 3,249 in forestry and fishing, 913,976 in agriculture, 10,294 in the extraction of minerals, 2,416,288 in manufacturing and mechanical industries, 447,730 in transportation, 1,716,384 in trade, 123,823 in public service not classified, and 235,364 in industry not specified.

Fashion Expert Warns Against Style Slavery

Says Beauty of American Woman Far Exceeds Her Clothes Knowledge

PARIS.—(AP)—American women are the most beautiful in the world and will be the best dressed as soon as they stop "slavishly following fashion," says one of the most widely known clothes designers in Paris.

"The face and figure of the American woman are as beautiful as a picture," M. Jean Charles Worth, member of the firm which has robed the royalty of Europe, said in a recent exclusive interview with the Associated Press.

"But when she begins to plan her clothes—the frame for that face and figure—she is apt to follow fashion blindly and forget to use her own good sense.

Follows the Leader.

"She reads that some one has created a tilted hat with a feather curling under the chin—and away she goes and buys a hat with a curling feather.

"She pays no attention to whether her nose is long and her neck short, her shoulders wide or her figure athletic. She wears the latest wrinkle willy-nilly—and too often it's a sad misfit.

"When she learns to judge herself and choose her clothes accordingly, she will be the best dressed woman in the world."

"Know yourself!" is the first law in the commandments of chic, M. Worth declares. "Consider your customs!" is a second. "Take your time!" is a third.

Leisurely Parisienne.

The chic Parisienne, he says, never buys a frock without considering where she wishes to wear it. She willingly gives six weeks to the selection of her wardrobe and two hours to the molding of a hat to her head.

"Americans want to rush into a shop and buy a complete wardrobe in two hours," he complains.

"About fifty women — French, American, English, Italian, and Spanish—set the styles of the world."

So says the creator whose clientele includes a number of the smartest Americans and Europeans. "If they say 'No' to bustles, bustles will be out.

"They are not all young and beautiful—indeed, women rarely acquire a reputation for chic until they are past 30. They are style makers because they give time, taste, and thought.

"They dress to set off their personalities rather than to show off their clothes, and when they have assembled their wardrobes the effect is so simple and right that it looks as though it had fallen naturally into place.

"They begin with the choice of a coat and frock, and while making that selection, they concentrate on it as hard as any banker over the world crisis.

"They look themselves squarely in the mirror and buy to conceal their faults. One by one they add hat, shoes, bag, and gloves, and every piece is bought with an eye to its effect on the whole.

"They may have only one or two outfits, but they won't have any mistakes."

Colored Fur Coats Are Paris Winter Novelty

PARIS.—(AP)—Colored fur coats are a winter novelty. One of the newest models is of dark blue pony, with the skins cut in large oblongs.

The overlapping side of the coat, which is cut along slim lines, is trimmed with a narrow band of pony's mane.

Dark blue and dark green moleskin coats are also being worn.

Embarrassing Moments

Included the Visitor.

Student nurses have their embarrassing moments, too. Recently I was assigned for the first time to take the temperatures of the patients in the men's ward. Being new, I assumed all in the ward were patients and went about my task in the usual awkward way of any probationer. Some of the patients were in beds and others sitting up in chairs. After taking the temperatures of those in the beds, I proceeded to attend to those sitting up. I had placed the thermometer in the mouth of one of the young men, and was counting his heartbeat when I became aware of laughing, but it wasn't until he meekly confessed that he was a visitor and not a patient that I realized the laugh was on me, which made the incident that much more embarrassing. A. I.

Avoiding the Sign Painter.

I was out for a walk along a public highway. An automobile slowed up and came to a stop beside me. It was driven by a stranger. I had my ready answer for any "auto masher" who tried to pick me up, but this man evidently had different tactics. Without a word he thrust the door of the car open and was coming for me.

In panic, I ran, screamed, and crawled under a fence. The man walked with a deliberation that maddened me. I ran directly toward a billboard and beyond. Looking back, I saw the man, evidently a sign painter, pick up his tools under the billboard, walk leisurely back to his car, and drive away. I. K.

Duplicity Exposed.

Recently we received a letter from a friend out of town saying that she was coming to spend Christmas with us. Not wishing to be bothered with extra company during the holidays I wrote back telling her that my sister and I were both ill in bed.

A few days later she stopped in on her way to another city where she had decided to go after receiving my letter. She caught us in the midst of our Christmas candy making. I'd have gladly gone without any Christmas presents this year if I could only have taken back the letter I had written to her. J. R. B.

Milady Turns from Angles to Curves

Petite Dorothy Jordan, in this photograph taken some months ago, demonstrates the straight lines of the figure, once fashionable but fast becoming passe. The tendency of over-enthusiastic cultivation of the unwavering line from chin to toe was toward bad posture and the resultant thin neck base, hollows at the shoulder blades, and flat chest.

Billie Dove is a charming exemplar of the undulant curves which once again take the spotlight on the stage of beauty—to say nothing of health.

Hedda Hopper is another star of the screen who exemplifies the advantages to pulchritude of abandoning the straight line standard in favor of the curved line of beauty.

Posture, Exercise and Diet Important in Producing a Figure Marked with Charm of Femininity.

By Antoinette Donnelly

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—My mail indicates beyond the shadow of a doubt the current popularity of the curved line of beauty. Not in years have there been so many requests for information on how to turn straight lines and hard angles into curves. For a time, indeed, it began to look as if the great American woman ambition was to resemble as nearly as possible a straight, unwavering line from chin to toe. That was in the days of lamb chop and pineapple orgies, short skirts and bobbed hair, in what seems now like the dim and distant past!

But now the girls are calling for curved lines, the lines more in favor with nature's own scheme. Especially a curved line of bust.

This doesn't mean that we're on the high road to a return to effulgent bosoms. Nor waddling hips. Nor plump supports! Incidentally, in a Paris note the other day, I read that skirts, as worn at Biarritz, where advance fashions are first shown, are shorter. Ankle length for formal things and quite short skirts for day wear. We'll probably hobble through a winter season in the skirt length now worn in America—but I'm just warning you about the shorter ones due for an early come back because of their influence on the leg. Or, should I say, the leg influence on them. What I mean is that the legs can't go plump in the interim just because they are given more or less of a curtain-drop for the time being.

Value of Massage.

But back to the bust curves, which is the information most commonly asked for these days.

Word seems to have got about pretty generally, I find, that massage is the great system of bust development. The popularity of cocoa-butter as the medium has widest vogue.

I don't disparage massage as a means of developing, nor do I disparge the use of cocoa butter or any other such so-called fattening lotion. But I do believe that the massage work, unless done by a professional expert, is bound more often to fail than to win the wanted curves. It's a slow process at best and few women have the patience or the skill for the work.

Rarely ever do you find the need of bust development where there isn't need of a general weight addition. Sometimes, yes, but the trouble then is usually due to poor posture and corrected by better posture. Or, it may be a case of uneven bodily development, in which event an especially prescribed program will have to be followed.

Correct Faulty Posture.

I note, too, that the hollows at the shoulder blades, the thin neck base and the flat chest invariably are reported on the same individual. Also hollows or unbecoming curvatures appear at the base of the neck in the back. Anyway, the evening gown is spoiled—and the daytime gown isn't worn with the charm that it might have.

Now, trite as it may sound as a recommendation, there simply is not anything better to advise than looking to posture as the first step in getting the curved bust. You can put on weight. You can exercise daily concentrating on the chest, shoulder and neck muscles—but you cannot get the curved line without first practicing posture. The act of lifting the chest and shoving back the abdomen muscles, creates an entirely different line of silhouette, a much more charmingly feminine line. Too, the manner in which the head is carried is important to this line we're discussing. But when you lift the chest you automatically set the head at a better angle and the lines at the back of the neck as well as the front are improved. The hip line comes in for a bit more curving, all of which you can readily prove for yourself.

Those upper chest muscles are pulled up and expanded with the better lift to the head. You breathe better and deep breathing is a valuable aid in bust development.

Eat Nourishing Foods.

The muscles of the chest, shoulder, and neck, no doubt, need strengthening. They need responsibility put on them and so a ten minute course night and morning is needed with arm swinging, shooting arms up, forward and sideways, and the arm movements practiced in swimming. Also making wide, sweeping circles with the arms is advised.

Then, weight must be put on with the food. You'll have to take a chance on putting it on parts that you may now be content with. I know many of you younger women want the curved bustline but you don't want to add a pound elsewhere. And this just can't be done. There's so little danger of your ever being mistaken for a fat girl that you needn't hesitate to eat the foods that turn the flat-chested form into a more feminine mold.

I've observed myself and been told by mothers how these younger girls will diet to preserve the slender waistline, the small hip and leg line but they want the curved line of bust. It isn't reasonable to expect. I'll guarantee to take off the extras on hips and legs that you'll accumulate as the result of eating foods that nourish and develop.

Any good foundation diet is what you will start with, that is a half-pound of some watery vegetables daily; fruit, daily; milk at the end of each meal and between meals, if you can; take cod liver oil daily or olive oil in the raw. Eat cooked cereals for breakfast and add gradually one-half to one pint of cream; eat two or three egg yolks daily for their iron and fat and vitamin A. Increase your butter supply with every food item you can use it on. There's nothing like butter to turn angles into curves. Lay it on thick on your bread, on your vegetables, on your meat, and don't believe you can get the wanted feminine bust contour without the help of fat building properties in the menu.

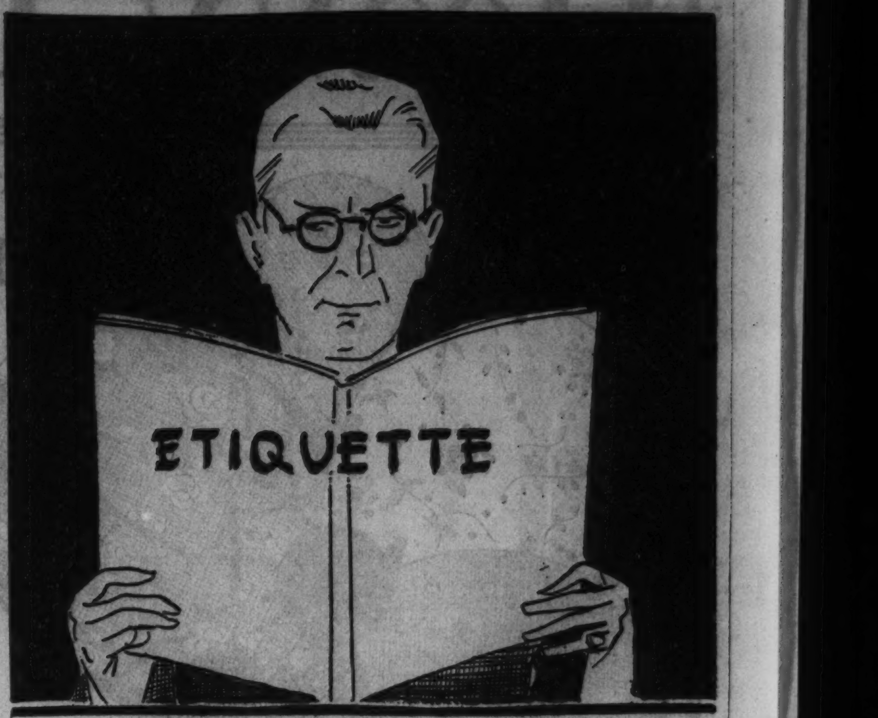
Problems in the Etiquette Editor's Mail



Confused Concerning Points of Social Conduct, Readers Ask Miss Bartlett to Solve Puzzlers.

Etiquette queries should be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope and addressed to Helen Bartlett, Chicago Tribune.

By Helen Bartlett.

"MY daughter received a formal invitation to a subscription dance. Does this invitation serve for her and an escort, or for her alone? The invitation did not say. B. H."

I am almost certain that the invitation is for two, but to be on the safe side your daughter should inquire of one of the patronesses.

"I do not wish my daughter to keep an engagement with a young man. She has already accepted the invitation. Should I telephone the young man, or should she? "Mrs. B. S."

It's an awkward situation. The most graceful way to deal with it would be to have your daughter get in touch with the young man at once, and break the engagement as tactfully as possible.

"My mother would like to be my attendant when I am married in the spring. Is this correct? G. N."

No, it is not.

"Even after my marriage I used cards for business that read 'Margaret Pierce Smith,' although my personal cards read 'Mrs. John Smith.' My husband died recently. How should my cards read now? "N. S."

Just as they did before. You might even give up the personal card, using only the one that reads "Margaret Pierce Smith," but to use both in the form you have would be entirely correct.

"Should shower gifts be returned after a broken engagement? If so, should a note of explanation accompany each gift? F. T."

Gifts should be returned, yes, but the note accompanying them gives no explanation of the broken engagement. Simply state that the engagement is broken and thank the donor very graciously.

"Should Christmas cards be acknowledged? O. M."

Not generally, but if you received a card from a long lost friend an acknowledgment of it would be gracious.

"Is it ever correct to exchange a Christmas present? B. W."

To exchange it simply because it didn't suit your taste would not be correct, but if it is an article of clothing the wrong color or the wrong size it is entirely permissible. The donor would undoubtedly wish it exchanged under those circumstances.

"Is mourning stationery in good taste? S. F."

It is in good taste unless it is flamboyant, but smart stationers tell me it is not the fashion at present.

"May hostess pajamas be worn to an evening party in a hotel? "C. C."

I should advise against it. In California it is much the fashion but in the middle west and the east they have not yet been accepted. Here, only hostesses at private parties wear pajamas.

"If a club has a ruling about tipping must guests who are not members observe it religiously? D. N."

Yes, indeed. If there is a no-tipping rule, by all means observe it. These clubs usually have a tax on charges which takes care of all employés.

"If cigarets are passed after dinner should a nonsmoking guest accept one, just to be sociable? L. D."

No. He or she should decline.

"I have contacts in business with two persons whom I thoroughly dislike; my business relations with them have been quite unpleasant, and quite strained. I was embarrassed to receive a Christmas gift from them. Personally, I don't want it and should like to return it but don't know quite how to do it. What would you advise? L. L."

Keep the gift, writing a rather restrained note of thanks for it. The senders used poor judgment in sending a gift under the circumstances.

"Should a young girl [seventeen] wear earrings in the evening? My young daughter and I can't agree about this. A. A."

No, she shouldn't.

Quick Divorce Marriage Aid, Judge Asserts

Arkansas Official Finds Majority of Separated Couples Remarry.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—Divorce is an aid, rather than a hindrance, to the institution of marriage. That is the opinion of Judge William R. Duffie, important figure in Hot Springs' divorce "industry."

Arkansas, in offering quick relief for difficulties imposed by stricter divorce laws of other states, is not undermining or attempting to tear down the marriage institution, he says, since a majority of those divorced remarry.

On the other hand, Chancellor Duffie looks upon his job of granting divorces as a humanitarian one if he succeeds in taking the shackles off the matrimonially mismated.

No Personal Gain.

Judge Duffie, a widower, presides over the Third Chancery court of Arkansas, which includes, besides Hot Springs, the counties of Garland, Saline, and Montgomery.

From a monetary standpoint, Chancellor Duffie said, he will not profit, for, although he estimates that he will have ten times as much work to do, his salary will not be increased.

"Arkansas," he said, "is only extending to people who reside in states where it is difficult to obtain legal separation privileges we have given our own for over thirty years."

He also made it plain that he would not make any special effort toward reconciliation. For, he said, he believed disgruntled couples who have brought their troubles to the attention of the court have lost both the romance and original affection, and that love is destroyed for all time.

Has Tried 3,000 Cases.

Chancellor Duffie speaks from experience, for during his seven years on the bench he has tried more than 3,000 divorce cases.

He was born at Princeton, Ark., in 1879, graduated from Nashville, Tenn., Law college in 1899, and was admitted to the Arkansas bar in 1901. His father, the late Matthew M. Duffie, was consul to Canada during the Cleveland administration.

Hot Springs hopes to rival Reno, Nev., in the divorce business, claiming its central location in the United States and its mineral water will be among the drawing cards.

Hose of Spanish Lace Popular for Evening

PARIS.—(AP)—Coque feather fans are a new coquetry which smart Parisians are adopting these evenings. The fans, designed with long curled coque feathers and tortoise shell sticks, are almost a yard long. Shaded effects reminiscent of changeable silk, such as rose-yellow and blue-green, are the favorite colors.

Silver Used in White House Has Various Names

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(AP)—Gold plated knives, forks, and spoons at the White House are variously engraved "President's House," "Executive Mansion," and "White House."

It was Mrs. Warren G. Harding who ordered the silver plated with gold, and it was Theodore Roosevelt who restored the original name White House to the mansion.

The glasses and tumblers, of varying sizes, are all stamped with the seal of the United States cut heavily into the glass.

U. S. Girl Who Led Famous Orchestra Back with Medal

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Ruth Kemper, the first American girl to conduct the famous Salzburg orchestra, has returned to the United States after five years in Europe.

During the last three years the young violinist—not yet out of her twenties—led the orchestra three times before critical audiences in Mozart's birthplace.

Distinction marked her again when the Lili Lehmann medal was conferred on her in recognition of her musical gifts, evidenced in recitals at home and abroad.

The medal had been bestowed previously on only two musicians, but Miss Kemper was the first graduate of the Salzburg Orchestral academy to receive the award established by the singer.

Miss Kemper's father came from Virginia stock, while her mother's ancestry is traced to a nephew of William Penn.

Married Women Lose Out on British Dole

Of the 81,000 married women receiving the dole in England, 71,000 have been barred from receiving benefits. In many cases, it is asserted, these married women have been leaving work with no intention of returing while still drawing the dole.

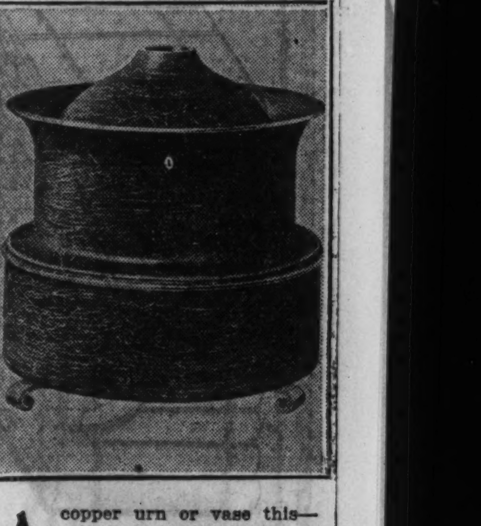
Lattice Dance Frock Is Debutante's Choice

PARIS.—(AP)—Lattice dance frocks are the latest addition to the debutante's evening wardrobe. They are made of pale blue, shell pink, or sea green taffeta and chiffon, with the taffeta forming the lower part of the full skirt and the chiffon the upper section.

Taffeta flowers are appliquéd on the chiffon portions of the gown in lattice design, the whole creating an airy effect when the dancer moves across the floor.

Portable Humidifier



A copper urn or vase this—only it isn't at all what it seems! It is in reality a portable humidifier which may be plugged into any electric socket and will maintain, by the principle of air diffusion, a relative humidity of 45 through five or six rooms. The urn holds three and one-half gallons of water. The waterproof motor consumes less than 60 watts of current. It rotates a hollow shaft which sucks up the water, spins it into a thin sheet between two corrugated discs, impinges it against a fine copper comb, and dispels the resultant fog into the air of the room. pints of water per hour and not

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough due to a cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

WELL fitting costume slips are a necessity, and the pattern given today, No. 3,431, is particularly good. An unbroken line from bust to hem does away with any conflicting lines to the outer garment. The slip is shaped to fit the figure through the bust, waist, and hips, widening gracefully at the bottom.

Another nice thing is the ease with which it is made. Before cutting out be sure that the hip and length measures are right for you, and if it is to be made plain at the bottom, allow the necessary hem length. If you put a lace edge around the bottom, a narrow hem will be all that is necessary.

There is no seam as pretty as the felled one for lingerie. It should be done by hand. The seams are stitched together on the wrong side, then one seam edge is cut off, leaving an eighth inch margin. A scant half inch will be right for the other seam edge. This wider edge is hemmed down over the other one, and care must be taken to see that no fullness is hemmed in.

Lace should be put on by hand, holding the lace towards you as you sew. If you can cut out your lingerie, fit the slips, and stitch the seams you can keep the hand work for pleasant "pickup" work.

Pattern No. 2554 is for a dress for a junior girl—an ideal design for classroom wear. Sheer woolen, wool challis, tweed and wool crêpe are among the suitable materials, and with its jacket like top, it should win the instant approval of girls who know smart clothes. The skirt is a two piece, circular one and is attached to an underwaist to keep it in place.

A little plain waist showing the popular diagonal closing—plain, full length sleeves and a circular peplum—complete this chic frock. The deep cuffs and prettily shaped collar are made of white piqué and, of course, are detachable. Face or bind the neck and sleeves, and set the collar and cuffs into narrow, straight bands.

The peplum is cut in three pieces, and it would be pretty to line it with the color of the patent leather belt that is worn with the dress. When you are ready to join the peplum to the bottom of the waist, pin first the center back of it to the center back of the waist, then pin together at the underarm seams, and then at each front edge. Hold the peplum towards you when pinning, basting, and stitching, and allow just a little "ease" to it.

Isn't a black velvet dress about the smartest thing for Sunday night wear, and isn't pattern No. 3449 an ideal one for this purpose? The design is a smart one, yet it needn't be difficult to make. Take plenty of time in placing your pattern pieces on the material and remember the pieces must all run the same way. Handle carefully when making so as not to mark the material. The little bodice is slashed down the back from the neck, about two inches, and is finished for closing. In addition to this opening, there is the usual one under the left arm. The low, round neck is particularly soft and pretty, and at each side of the center front there are three small perforations, about at right angles from the neckline. A gathering thread is run at this place each side of the front, the gatherings pulled up tight and well fastened. This creates a soft, becoming effect. The short puffed sleeves are set into narrow bands and are untrimmed.

A deep, perfectly fitted hip yoke with an irregular bottom line has a six gored circular skirt attached. This skirt, for size 16, measures at the bottom about 2⅝ yards.

Ribbon is used for the tie sash. This design would be stunning in a crêpe silk in chartreuse green, vivid red, or blue.

Wide Hat Brim Is Revived for Southern Wear

Unexpected Droop, Flower Trim Strike Feminine Note in Chapeaux.

PALM BEACH, Fla.—(AP)—Wide brims that droop in unexpected places . . . flower trimming . . . hats with narrower brims that turn softly at the back and on one side——

So appears the feminine note in the new millinery showings in Florida resorts.

Then there's a Biscayne blue—so named for the bay—a favored color for hats. All pastel shades are popular.

Much of the spring millinery shows flower trim—the flowers either flattened against the crown or placed on the brim near it.

Rough Straws Predominate.

Rough straws in both large and small weaves predominate for afternoon. A new weave combines straw and organdy, and some of the hats are trimmed with loops of velvet in pastel shades.

Shallow crowned panamas are shown for sports wear along with a floppy straw hat, as large as a parasol.

For evening wear draped turbans of silver cloth are attractive, while one evening turban of pink tulle, banded with pearls, featured a saucy nose veil.

Skirts Are Shorter.

There seems to be a definite leaning toward the shorter skirt. The evening frock no longer rests on the floor, an inch leeway being now allowed.

Sports frocks reach the turn of the leg, and afternoon frocks are almost as brief. Ruffled garden party frocks clear the ground by an inch. Evening frocks are pulled tight above the knee, then begin to billow.

Materials favored for day time are rough and crêpy silks, featherweight and spongy woolens, linens and many charming versions of cotton. Buttons and points are used as trimming.

Straight Lines Return.

A sense of humor manifests itself in beach modes by the appearance of the bandanna bodice, tied at the neck and at the waist, or fastened in a variety of clever ways. The back is always left entirely to the mercy of the actinic rays. Bandanna bodices are worn with natty white linen trousers.

Plaited Ornament of Grosgrain Ribbon Adds Distinctive Touch to the Old Felt Chapeau.

By Clotilde.

THE attractive plaited ornament shown is made from No. 3 brown grosgrain ribbon. The same ribbon passes around the crown and ties in a small bow in the back. For the six wheels, five yards of ribbon are required.

To make this wheel, fold the end of the ribbon back one-half of an inch. Then make a plait of the ribbon one-half of an inch deep. Tack the bottom of this plait one-eighth of an inch up from the bottom of the ribbon that was turned back.

Make another one-half inch plait and tack this one-eighth of an inch up from the bottom of the first plait. Continue in this manner until the wheel is finished. Be sure to keep the plait the same size all around the wheel, and keep it the same distance from the bottom of the plait that was made before it.

As you work around, it will shape itself into a complete circle. The edge has a saw effect, quite puzzling when first looked at, but if you follow directions closely there won't be much trouble.

After working with the plaiting your hand becomes accustomed to the work, and in a short time you will make the plaits one-half of an inch deep without measuring each time.

These ornaments may be used on dresses for trimming and are also made up in clusters for the tops of fancy sofa pillows. Hats are so plain this season that any hand made ornament or trimming will give them a a custom made appearance. It is not necessary to have the ribbon drawn through this set, as they can be put on in clusters of threes or fives on the side of a hat, or the whole space in the back of the crown may be filled in solid.

Different colored ribbons are used on the solid colors, such as green ribbon ornaments on brown felt hats, white on black, and startling reds on navy blue. Any pieces of either No. 3 or No. 5 grosgrain ribbon that happen to be in the milliner's scrap box work up well, even though different colors are used.

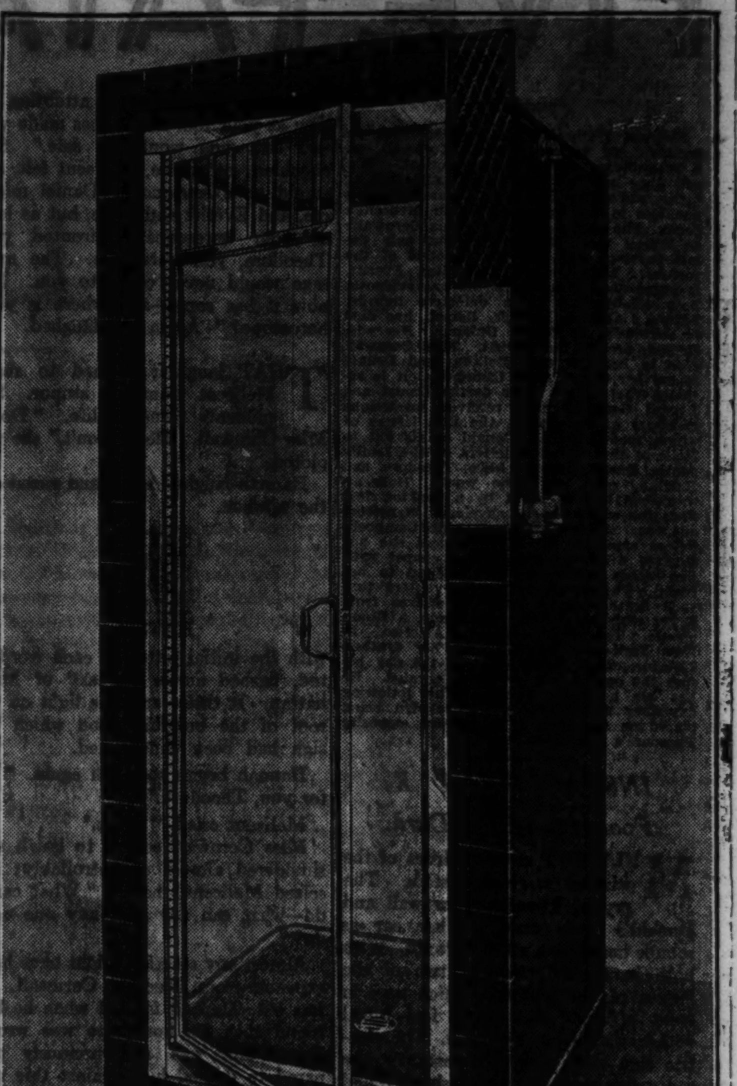
Have You a Shower Room?



THE royal bath of today is the quick, invigorating, comfortable shower bath. Here a shower compartment, a water tight enclosure, forms the room in which the bath is taken. Since this compartment is in no way a part of the building, it is leak proof, as no expansion, vibration, or settling can affect its walls. Whether building or remodeling, whether you live in a new home or an old one, apartment spacious or flat small, such a compartment may be easily installed. Of course, such a compartment may harmonize in color to suit the prevailing decorations of the bath in which it is placed. The walls can be of vitreous enamel or high grade galvannealed steel. A precast terrazo recepter provides a permanent, decorative flooring. Because these compartments are them. This enclosure is equipped with a chromium plated brass door frame to afford maximum beauty and comfort.

FIVE FATAL WORDS

By EDWIN BALMER AND PHILIP WYLIE

Synopsis:

Melicent Waring gets a position with an eccentric old woman, Hannah Cornwall, on a magnificent estate in Connecticut. Her sole duty is to occupy the old lady's bed at night, while Miss Cornwall, unknown to any one else in the house, sleeps in Melicent's room. She learns that, of the six Cornwalls to inherit their father's millions, only the last survivor will have full control of the fortune. Miss Cornwall's brother, Everitt, is found dead in his bath; he has evidently been electrocuted by a defective lighting fixture. Another brother, Daniel, has died mysteriously in Dutch Guiana. His son, Donald, arrives for a visit. Miss Cornwall goes to Belgium with Melicent and Donald to see her sister, Alice Campbell. It is revealed that before their deaths Daniel and Everitt Cornwall each received mysterious messages of five words, the first letters of which spelled death. Donald points out to Melicent that the first letters of the family names, Daniel, Everitt, Alice, Theodore, and Hannah, spell the same word. Melicent, awakened late at night by a choking fog, finds the entire district enveloped in poisonous gas. All escape except Alice Campbell. Before expiring, she tells Melicent she has received a strange message. A paper with five words written on it is found in her room. The words begin with letters that spell death. Lydia Cornwall arrives from Egypt with her friend, Ahdi Vado, a Hindu mystic. The group returns to America. In New York City Hannah tells her brother, Theodore, that his birthday is the day before the one he has always celebrated. He has his horoscope recast. The following day they all watch an electric sign being placed on the roof of a building opposite Theodore's apartment house.

INSTALLMENT X.

Footsteps in the Dark.

MELICENT stood in front of the window as rigid as stone. The cry of Theodore Cornwall and Donald's voice came to her ear as sounds heard at a great distance. With both hands she clutched two of the leaves of the radiator which was in front of her. She could feel blood withdrawing from her head. The electric sign went out; but instantly the red arrow reappeared and shot around the border and again, in huge white letters, except for the initials, which were red, the five words flashed across the night:

DAVIS, EVANS
and
HATS.

Infinities of time ticked away. The others were silent; their voices had ceased. Melicent was telling herself furiously that the whole affair of this sign was accidental and her mind stubbornly replied that the sign was new, they had seen it erected today, and that this was the first time it had been illuminated; it was directly across the street from Theodore Cornwall's windows, and Theodore was next in line to receive the fatal message of five words arranged so that their initials spelled—death.

"So that's it, you think! That's it!" said Theodore Cornwall's voice which Melicent now heard. He was not speaking to her, she realized; he was addressing Donald as he had done a few moments before when she had heard his voice but did not know what he had said, or what Donald had said. But now she heard Donald's reply.

"Uncle, let's not get excited." Donald was struggling for calmness.

"But you're excited yourself!"

"I'm not."

"You are, and I know why. You think that's it—that it, the five words that have been killing off the family, has come to me!"

"No, uncle!"

"Then what's the matter with you, Donald?"

Melicent turned to them and as the glare from the sign blazed again in their faces she saw that Theodore had good reason for his question, for Donald was more aghast than he. Not strange when you recalled that Donald had three times witnessed the consequences of such a message; Theodore had had the effects only told to him. Yet—if this was the fourth message—Theodore was the one now under sentence.

"Miss Waring! Melicent! What's the matter?" demanded Hannah Cornwall's voice.

They all spun about. Hannah Cornwall was standing in the doorway at the opposite end of the room, and at sight of her Donald turned again toward the window and reached for the curtain cord, but his uncle caught his hand and stopped him.

"What do you want to do?" Theodore firmly demanded.

"Pull down the shade so she won't see."

"Leave it up," bid Theodore. "If we've seen it, why shouldn't she?"

HANNAH CORNWALL crossed the room, but in spite of the fact that she had fussed over the sign all day, its flashing light did not now engage her.

"Why are you two struggling?" she challenged her brother and her nephew. "Miss Waring, what is the matter here?"

Melicent swallowed and gained some muscular mastery of herself. Her first impulse was like Donald's when he moved to draw down the shade; she wanted to keep knowledge of the sign from Miss Cornwall, but it was impossible. She lifted her hand and pointed out the window.

"The sign, Miss Cornwall," she whispered. "The new electric sign; it's come on."

At last Hannah saw it. "Davis, Evans and Taylor, Hats," she read it in a whisper; and for her, to whom five word messages had become hideous portends of death that was not afterwards delayed, there was no interval of doubt or wonder over the meaning. Yet her reaction under the circumstances was grim and surprising.

She had to say something; very probably (as Melicent later thought) she did not know what she said; she had to say something or become hysterical. At least, she held onto herself. She turned to her brother and said almost sweetly, "You were going to live to be eighty, Theodore?"

"Eh?" Theodore said. "What are you talking about?"

Hannah now did for Theodore what Melicent had done for her; she pointed to the sign across the street. "You were going to live to be eighty, Theodore. The five word messages about which we told you were unimportant to you. The idea that we were all to be victims of murder was one to which you could afford to pay no attention as long as your fool horoscopes made you feel that you would be safe." She chuckled; otherwise, Melicent felt, she would have screamd. "Daniel might die, and Everitt and Alice, but as long as your horoscope confronted you, Theodore, you were safe. The message would never come to you. But now it has come—and where is your horoscope?" Again she laughed.

THAT laughter seemed to shake Melicent from her stupor. She suddenly came to life. "Don't, Miss Cornwall. Please don't," she implored.

DAVIS,
EVANS

with the initial letter of each word in red, flashed across the sky of Manhattan. It threw an eerie light on the roof of the building upon which the sign had been constructed.

Hannah began to laugh again. "It's for you, Theodore."

Melicent cried, "Don't."

Miss Cornwall ceased to laugh and shuddered almost uncontrollably; she seized Melicent's hand. "What can I do—what can any one, any one do—do?"

Almost any reaction might have been expected from Theodore Cornwall. He was old. He had fainted when he had found that his horoscope was wrong. Every one was subconsciously prepared to defend him against this new and diabolical blow, but he astonished them.

When he turned away from the window he had drawn back his shoulders and lifted his head. He was smiling. "This is what you have told me about. This is the kind of death writing obituaries for the Cornwall family. You know——" and he sat down in a chair with almost youthful indolence—"you know, I have always been an adventurer at heart. I had tied myself down all my life and lived circumspectly. This is the first real thing that has ever happened to me. My new horoscope has told me to be bold, to be audacious. I think I am going to have some fun, some fun at last."

Melicent looked at him with wide incredulity, but when she turned her attention from Theodore to Donald she saw that Donald, in spite of the paleness of his face, was grinning at his uncle.

"That's the old fight."

Theodore Cornwall leaped to his feet. "You don't know how much it means to me to throw away this endless caution of mine. How I have hated the doctors and the diets and the electrical treatments. How I've hated myself. I've never had an enemy. Never experienced a danger, and now perhaps death itself is at my heels. Yesterday the very thought would have killed me. Today it makes me almost gay."

"Theodore!" Hannah exclaimed with dismay.

He stood in front of his sister. "I'm through with it all. You, with your locks and keys and special servants. Lydia with her Hindu fakir. My new stars tell me to be daring. I will dare—anything." He walked across to the window and shook his first at the electric sign.

"He's mad," Hannah said.

"No, he isn't," Donald came to the side of his aunt. "He's not mad. He's waking up. I say, good for him. I say there's something of the old Cornwall spunk in him yet."

Theodore addressed the people in the room again. His voice was almost rapturous. "We'll fight, but we'll fight intelligently. In the first place, we'll find out if this sign is a coincidence. As soon as it's morning we'll investigate it. They've been building it all day. We'll find out who owns it and who is advertising those hats. If it's coincidence, then I'll still have the laugh on you, Hannah——"

"It isn't coincidence."

"——and if it isn't, then we'll fight. If Daniel and Everitt and Alice were murdered, I'll see their murderer in hell myself. And always I will be bold—bold. I will fear nothing."

Hannah stood. She spoke with quiet severity. "Theodore, I believe you have lost your senses. Come, Miss Waring. We'll leave him in Donald's care. I have no wish to participate in this raving." She looked searchingly at her brother and said, "I hope that by morning you will be more self-possessed, if morning ever dawns for you."

With that closing sentence she left the room. Melicent glanced uncertainly at Donald, who nodded at her to follow, and then she, too, departed.

AN hour later Melicent lay in the darkened bedroom which had been assigned to Miss Cornwall. She stared blindly into the night without either the hope or the thought of capturing sleep, although she knew that sometime before dawn awoke the dull grumbling of the city she would sleep. In the Cornwall household one became able successfully to court slumber even under incredibly adverse conditions.

Theodore Cornwall had received his death sentence; and death, as she very well knew, did not delay after the delivery of the five word message.

She tried to argue it away and to say that the sign which was still flashing outside the windows was an advertisement merely—simply a sign advertising hats, but each darkening and flashing of the sign only increased her nervous tension.

The partitions of the apartment were thin and she could hear the ceaseless confusion of small sounds made by Hannah Cornwall. She heard Miss Cornwall rise, move across the room, and there was a knock on her door.

In spite of the fact that Melicent was reasonably sure that it was Miss Cornwall who had knocked, she sat up in bed and turned on the light with trembling fingers. Melicent opened the door carefully and saw Miss Cornwall standing on the other side.

Behind her now was a definite sound. Behind her a door opened.

"Do you mind if I come in?"

"Not a bit," Melicent replied. "Do come in."

Miss Cornwall hugged a silk wrapper around herself and shivered. "That sign is driving me mad . . . We're eighteen floors above the street, so I don't think anybody can molest us directly from the windows, and all the doors are locked; yet— yet——" She paused and found a chair. "I could not stand being alone another instant. Do you realize what may happen to Theodore tonight?"

"Of course," said Melicent. "I've been thinking of that."

"What, do you suppose, will they do to him?"

"I've been imagining," confessed Melicent, "all sorts of things."

"Yet we could never hit it—neither you nor I. There was poison for Daniel; electrocution in the bath for Everitt—who would ever have dreamed of that? and for Alice, the fog which no one could have foreseen. What—what do you suppose it will be for Theodore?"

Melicent shook her head.

"OR for me?" whispered Miss Cornwall. "Suppose now it is for me? It—that—that," she stared once toward the flashing sign, but refrained from mentioning it as one avoids naming a terror, "that is nearly as opposite to my windows as it is to Theodore's; suppose now the five words are for me."

"O," cried Melicent, "I don't think so. They might as well be for your sister, Lydia."

"No; Lydia's windows are on the other side; and Ahdi Vado reassures her. Sometimes I think it must be worth while to be a fool and believe what any sane mind must refuse. Lydia says it is merely an electric sign incapable of harm in itself unless we, in our minds, create the causes of our own confusion. She and Ahdi Vado are attempting, with their own minds, to counteract the terror in ours . . . That sign is driving me mad; where is Theodore now, do you know?"

"I think he's still talking with Donald," Melicent said. "If you listen very closely you can just barely catch the sound of voices. I expect that Donald will spend the night in his room."

"He should; he must. It is awful to wait for something which you cannot possibly be prepared for, anyway. Poison, which no one at first suspected—electrocution—fog. I was wondering if maybe I have been wrong about the police. Perhaps tomorrow we should call them; yet I can't bear to do it. I won't do it."

She gazed at her companion with a mingling of almost childish terror and unearthly resolution. "All the others died a few hours after they received their messages, half a day at most—that is, assuming Alice got her message the day she talked to you. You think it was that day, don't you?"

"Yes," said Melicent.

"So do I. That's why she suddenly had to talk to you. I wish they'd put that sign out; yet what good would that do? Alice burnt up her message, but she died that night. What, do you suppose, can be coming to Theodore?"

"Then you do think it is coming to him and not to you?"

Hannah Cornwall wet her thin lips. "I think that more likely; yes, more likely Theodore before me. I would call upon the police tonight, immediately, if I could believe they could do any good. But would all the police in New York have saved Everitt from dying in the bath or saved Alice from the fog?" She arose, quivering, and fought for resolution. "I did not mean to further disturb you, but my nerves have been shrieking for hours. I will return to my room—your room—but how can I sleep tonight?"

"Yet you must try to," urged Melicent.

"The sign does not come on again. Do you see? It stays dark."

"Yes," said Melicent. They've put it out."

"They—they—they," whispered Miss Cornwall. "But what good does putting it out now do? Remember that Alice burned her message, but she died. Good night, child."

"Good night, Miss Cornwall."

She went through the doorway again; she closed the door firmly and Melicent heard the key turned on the other side.

MELICENT switched out her light; and the sign on the opposite roof remained dark. Melicent could see it vaguely as a bit of shadowy framework in the faint diffusion of the city glow over the roof. As she sat looking out and collecting her thoughts she considered the strangely inert manner of the Cornwalls in meeting their collective doom. It was almost as if they had been trained from childhood to expect some such form of extinction, and as if that early breeding was now showing itself in a resignation that gave way only under the utmost stress. To be sure, there was Theodore at last determined to be bold—to live rashly.

Miss Cornwall's room became utterly silent and the low resonance of men's voices from the other side had ceased. Melicent lay for an hour—for hours—wide awake, listening in a vigil which surpassed in its tenseness even that of her first night when she and Miss Cornwall had exchanged rooms.

She could lie still no longer. She arose and went to the window and looked out. The sign across the street remained dark and all over the city the evening illumination was lessened but the lights of night were sustained. And over all stood the stars.

Strange to look up at the stars over the city and see them the same stars as those which stood over the sea, but there they were—the Big Dipper and the Little Bear, Cassiopeia and the Chair. Stars and constellations so immense and far away that the mind could not encompass their distances, but which—so Theodore Cornwall firmly believed—concerned themselves with petty, individual human fates and affairs. What vanity!

High overhead there was a flash in the sky—a brilliant blue line of light which vanished as swiftly as it had appeared. Now, near the eastern horizon, another. Meteors, shooting stars, for the world in its wanderings was encountering bits of cosmic débris. Last night and tonight, the papers said, we would be sweeping through the path of a comet which had been dissipated long ago but which left behind its scattered fragments.

Melicent forgot the stars. Footsteps approached her door. Just outside they stopped for a moment and then went on. A minute passed. The sound had ceased. Already her mind was playing tricks upon her and she was not positive that the sound she had heard had been footsteps—not sure that she had heard any connected series of sounds at all. A moment later she knew why she was doubting the footsteps—she was afraid to do what she thought she would do if she heard anything at all. Heretofore she had always entered into the Cornwalls' affairs after the alarm had been raised. Now she was determined to make a more intelligent effort. Every member of the family was in danger and every member gave the others some appearance of protection, but she knew that in so far as Hannah Cornwall's generation was concerned each person now living was primarily interested in himself. The sequence of deaths and the terror of the warnings had made Melicent desperate. They roused her to an unnatural courage.

She decided that she had heard footsteps and she rose from her bed. She took off Hannah Cornwall's nightcap and donned her own kimono. She crept across the room, took up the key of the hall door which Miss Cornwall had placed on top of the bureau and slowly turned the lock. The hall was pitch dark. With every sense vividly alert she began to move through it though she had neither weapon nor plan.

WHEN she reached the middle of the hall she began to be able to see faintly. The hall ended at the portière, on the other side of which was the living room. She could hear the faint sounds of traffic in the street eighteen stories down, but now there was no sound within the walls of the apartment. The glow from the street made the room dimly visible. There was no one in it—at least nothing moved. Melicent's eyes ransacked every corner.

Now, though nothing moved, something clicked. A trigger cocked? The latch of a door? Melicent started. She jerked back behind the portières and clutched them. She wanted to scream but she stifled even the gasp of her breathing and stood tense, listening. No sound succeeded the click—when she separated away the noise from outside, within the walls was absolute silence.

She realized after a minute or two that the elevator shaft lay in the direction from which the click had sounded. The elevator communicated almost directly into the living room. Theodore Cornwall's apartment occupied the entire top floor and there was no other reason for the elevator rising to this floor except to serve his apartment. There was, accordingly, only a very small space between the door from the living room and the elevator door.

Was there some one standing in that space now? Some one who had just come up in the elevator and who, after leaving the car, stood there without ringing or rapping?

The door was almost directly across the room from Melicent, and the longer she listened, hearing nothing, the more firmly the idea fastened itself in her mind. Some one had come up in the elevator and stepped out; the car, undoubtedly, had descended, leaving him there, but he neither rang nor rapped.

What was he waiting for? What was he doing? Working on the door? She strained her eyes for sign of the door opening and her ears for sound of a key in the lock. She saw and heard nothing. No one was there, boldly she told herself. To prove it she'd cross the room and throw open the door. Or would she? What madness would that be!

At least she'd cross the room—but she found she could not even do that. She could creep around by way of the wall, so she began to do that, edging along, her back to the wall, her eyes jumping from object to object in the room, her hands beside her and pressed back against the wall for the strange and senseless reassurance of the feeling of something solid with her fingers.

She came to a table against the wall and she had to leave the wall to work her way around that. And as she was doing it the door she was watching seemed to open. Was it opening? Was it an illusion? She could not see surely and her foot caught on something.

She kicked to free it and a lamp beside her swayed. She had caught the cord to it and the lamp toppled and crashed on the floor. It took all her attention for a second—three seconds—five seconds—who could say? For she had tried to catch it but her hands missed it, and then she stared at it on the floor.

THE door! No doubt now that it was partly open. No light came through it—the entry was absolutely black but the door was not closed. But no one appeared, nobody seemed to be at it. There was not the slightest response at the door to the crash of the lamp. It was as if the thud on the floor had jarred the door open.

But Melicent knew that could not be.

Behind her now was a definite sound. Behind her a door opened. It was Theodore Cornwall's door and for an instant light from beyond his door shone down the hallway. Then the light was extinguished.

"Come back!" she heard the loud whisper in Donald's voice, but Theodore Cornwall did not heed him. Act boldly, his horoscope had warned him, and Melicent had seen how he was hypnotized by his stars.

"Stay back!" she cried out to halt him.

"Who's that?" he jerked out, and she knew that she had stopped him. But some one else passed him and approached her. Donald, she was sure, even before he spoke, demanding:

"Where are you?"

"Don't turn on the light!" she cried. "There's some one here,"

He found her then and, seizing her, he thrust her behind him. With his left hand he kept hold of her wrist, with his right he presented a pistol to the room while he whispered:

"What did you see?"

"That door opening—I think."

"It doesn't seem open now."

"No—yes it does, a little."

"I see," he agreed, and for a breathless second together they watched it. Then he asked: "What else was there?"

"Steps, I thought."

"Where?"

"Passing my door. I waited a minute—then I came out. Then there was a click—a distinct click over there and the door opened."

"But that crash?"

"That was me. I knocked the lamp off the table."

"Donald!" called Theodore Cornwall's voice from the hallway.

"Stay there, uncle, a minute," Donald replied, and of Melicent he begged: "Please go back to your room."

"What will you do?"

"I'll only turn on the light."

For answer she reached along the wall and touched a switch and light flooded the room. No one else was in the room and except for the lamp which Melicent had overturned there was no disorder. The door to the elevator entry was closed and the entry was empty, with the door to the shaft on the other side properly shut.

Theodore Cornwall, pistol in hand, assisted his nephew and Melicent in the examination which made all this certain.

"Nerves," he reassured Melicent. "Just nerves, that's all. Natural enough under the circumstances."

The three of them looked at one another—the two men in dressing gowns over pajamas, and the girl in a kimono.

"Just nerves," repeated Theodore, "We'd all best go back to bed."

Melicent went to her room, of which the door was still standing open, while the others watched her down the lighted hall. The room was, of course, that which was assigned to Miss Cornwall and her return to it in sight of the others betrayed the fact that Miss Cornwall and she exchanged rooms. But Melicent never thought of this as she went in and shut the door. She was thinking that, having left the door open she had exposed Miss Cornwall to intrusion through her room, but she found that the door between the rooms was as she had left it. Nothing had disturbed Hannah Cornwall.

SHE returned to bed and sought again to summon sleep. She was lying with eyes closed but facing the window when a queer, sudden flash aroused her.

At least she was later aware of the flash, but probably it was the immediately ensuing shattering of glass and clang of metal which startled her up. The sounds came from Theodore Cornwall's room and she heard cries—Donold's and Theodore's voices.

She ran into the hall and to Theodore's door. She could hear them in the room—both of them—and through the door was a smell of scorching. Theodore was shouting orders to Donald and he was crying: "You stay away, uncle, leave it to me!"

Then there was the hissing of steam, the splash of water, and more hissing, which finally ceased.

At last, after Melicent had been calling and pounding for minutes it seemed, Donald opened the door to her.

"Come in," he invited. "Noboby's hurt."

"What happened? Donald, what happened?"

"Maybe you can tell us," said Donald, trying to smile at her but making a sorry failure of the attempt. "Maybe you can tell us."

Next 255 Rewards	10.00	each	2,550.00
275 Rewards totaling			$5,000.00

In connection with publishing the mystery serial, "Five Fatal Words," the Tribune presents an opportunity to its readers to earn $5,000.00 in cash rewards for a little easy detective work and ingenuity.

Somewhere in this mystery story is an unfinished message containing only one of "Five Fatal Words." You are invited to find the message and complete it by adding four words. The first letters of each of the five words, consecutively, must spell D-E-A-T-H.

Your entry must contain the first word of the message exactly as it appears in the story. The other four words may be of your own choice; to pertain to the story, to express a thought to sound a moral, or for any other purpose. Here are a few samples: "Danger Ends At The Harbor." "Daring Entices All True Hearts." Send your completed message in a letter and explain below it in fifty words or less the meaning of it.

The story will be published serially in the Sunday Tribune. It also will be enacted on the air over W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune Station, each Tuesday and Saturday night at 9 o'clock by an all-star cast especially engaged for this purpose and headed by HERBERT RAWLINSON. Reading the story and hearing it broadcast should help you finish the message.

$5,000.00 in cash rewards will be paid by the Chicago Tribune for the best entries received. The rewards are as shown above.

This offer is open to everybody except the authors, their families, employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families.

The judging will be based upon the thought expressed in the message and the explanation. Only WHAT you say will count. Handwriting, spelling, grammar, or form of entries will not count.

After reading the entire story and hearing it enacted over W-G-N, make up your entry and address it "Five Fatal Words," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1718, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by noon eight days after the publication of the last installment of the story. It will be published in fifteen installments.

No entries will be returned nor can the Tribune engage in any correspondence on the subject.

You need not purchase the Chicago Tribune to compete. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

The judges will be Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Crime Commission of Chicago; Superior Judge John P. McGoorty, twice chief justice of the Criminal court; and Fanny Butcher, literary editor of The Tribune. Entrants agree to accept their decision as final. In case of ties a duplicate reward will be paid to each tying contestant.

Purchase Canyon of Lava Layers to Form Public Park

SPOKANE, Wash.—(AP)—A mile-long, jagged canyon west of here will be made into a public park through its purchase by popular subscription. It will be a part of a 30-mile boulevard following the course of the Spokane river.

With its alternating layers of lava and soil, telling the story of thousands of years of geologic change, the canyon was described as a "textbook on lava flows" by Dr. William A. Davis, dean of geology at Harvard university. The lava layers, he said, were spread by a series of volcanic eruptions thousands of years apart.

Coughs Up Pipe Stem.

MOTALA, Sweden.—(AP)—A young man who swallowed the stem of his pipe two years ago in an auto accident recently coughed up the obstruction. For two years he had been breathing through the stem.

WHEN lazy glands won't open, the hair is starved and faded.

LAZY GLANDS

Foul the Scalp! . . . .

If the tiny glands in your scalp are asleep look out! The consequences won't end with just dandruff! It may take a year or more for all the pore-filth to reach the surface.

Scaly scalps that make you turn away in disgust began with "just a little dandruff."

The next commonest sign of gland trouble is when the color of the hair begins to fade, or becomes streaked with gray.

There is only one thing that will ever help heads in this state of stagnation: you must stimulate the tiny glands that feed the hair and give it color. Massage will do this. Use the fingers, dipped in Danderine to cut through that hard crust and penetrate the pores—and do this daily. One treatment will settle the dandruff. One week will find your scalp as clean and wholesome as a little girl's. The second week will have the glands wide-awake and working. That is when your hair begins to live and begins to grow!

Remember, it's massage that does it. And it's Danderine that gets through to the glands. Just rubbing any old thing on the head won't stimulate lazy glands! Go get a bottle of Danderine today, and start your treatments tonight, and see what happens when lazy glands come back to life!

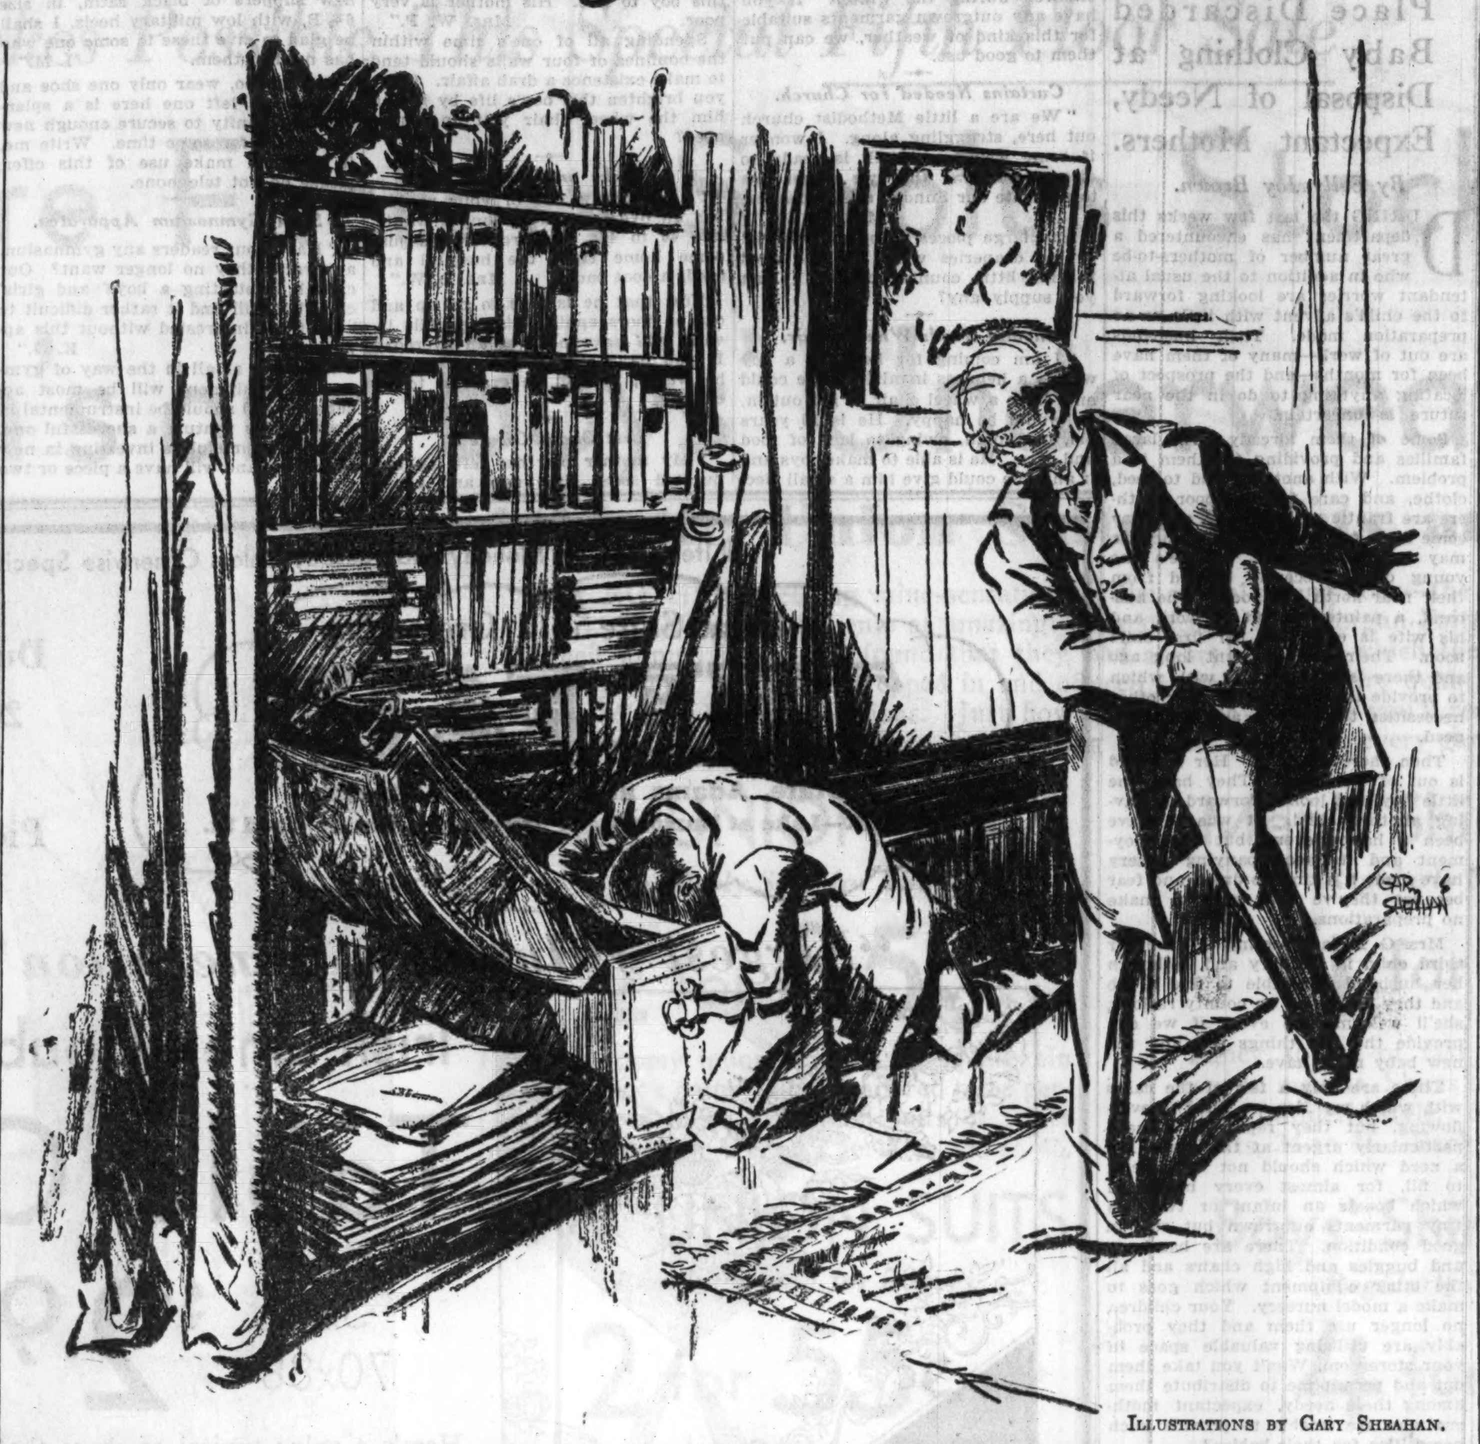
PORTRAIT of a GENTLEMAN

By Michael Kent



ILLUSTRATIONS BY GARY SHEAHAN.

The first blow must have broken his neck. He fell forward with his head in the box and did not move.

Prof. Burtinshaw Rated His Mentality and His Knowledge of Human Psychology So High That He Thought It Would Be Extremely Simple to Murder His Enemy and Get Away with It—So He Set to Work on the Perfect Crime.

PROF. BURTINSHAW did not decide to murder Abraham Garvice rashly. As a professor of mental science, a leading light of Somerville university, famous in a yet wider sphere for his book on “Religion as a Survival Factor in the Human Animal,” it behooved him to be sound in his own mental processes.

The proposition that Abraham Garvice ought not to live gave him no qualms, for modern methods in psychology have referred conscience and the ethical canons to primitive evolutionary origin, so that he regarded his soul, if it existed, as a mere rudimentary survival like the appendix, which no doubt it was. Neither did his god restrain him, for whenever the two met, before a mirror for example, that deity invariably ratified his own conclusions.

The question then was only whether he wanted to kill Abraham Garvice strongly enough to make the job worth while. Undoubtedly he did. No other condition could finally satisfy him since it was in the unfortunate Abraham's power to deprive the professor of most of his fame and all his reputation.

When Prof. Burtinshaw had become famous with the publication of “Religion as a Survival Factor,” though he had carefully copied the manuscript of that work, which he had bought from that disreputable and hootch soddened genius, Garvice, he had left the original with his own blundering marginal queries in Abraham's possession, trusting that Abraham would shortly drink himself to death. On the contrary, however, that erratic scholar, having been convicted of forgery, profited so much from his stay in jail that he emerged, after seven years, a new man He started his new life, however, with the conviction that the surest way to easy money was to offer that intriguing manuscript for sale once more to the professor, who would naturally cherish it above rubies. In default Garvice played with the suggestion of publishing some pages of it, at least in facsimile, in the local press of Somerville.

Naturally, Abraham had to die. Prof. Burtinshaw was not unduly worried as to the means, for he held the comforting belief that a scholar of his caliber was mentally so far above other men that the slightest application would guard him against those consequences which a conventional society reserved for the incautious killer.

In spite of this intellectual arrogance he was diminutive in stature and hesitant in manner. He had adopted a pose of erudite unworldliness because he knew that without it he would hardly be credited with great learning. The world can tolerate a great chemist or an eminent physicist with the ability to whack a golf ball to perdition, but it demands of its leaders in metaphysics an appropriate guilelessness.

You may notice that he had a tendency to megalomania, common to the undersized. Yet he recognized with joy that no one who knew him could ever imagine him whanging his enemy over the head with a club. Now that was just what he had decided to do, for he argued very soundly that the more simple and direct his method the more easily could he control its conditions.

THE excellent simplicity of the club, or rather the sandbag, obsessed him. It was silent in use, simple to contrive, and demanded no purchase of material. Moreover, it could be concealed conveniently inside a coat.

For some days he experimented in the seclusion of his study till he had adjusted the weight to his strength and mastered the rhythm of the swing. At last he made his appointment with Abraham, who, growing impatient, had begun to make provocative references to the possible publication of his memoirs.

The professor would give himself the pleasure of calling on his old friend at his house, Mizpah, next Tuesday at six-thirty. He trusted that Abraham, at last free of his former misfortunes, would start out afresh with a good courage. He, Prof. Burtinshaw, looked forward to a long and undisturbed talk and had come prepared to do anything that Abraham could ask of him. At the same time he hoped that Abraham had all the manuscripts and papers necessary to his proposal.

He smiled as he reread the note When it was found, as it would be, it could only be construed as a well meant effort to help an unfortunate friend, while Abraham would understand it as a surrender to his terms and have the letter at hand. A very judicious letter, indeed.

This stunt of bluffing a stupid world was quite amusing. If one entered into the spirit of the thing it could be very droll. He chuckled as he sallied forth upon the great adventure, shambling, perhaps, a little more than usual, with his bulbous umbrella in his right hand and his sandbag hanging from his left armpit inside his jacket.

Humanity was so futile, so easy to deceive when a first class brain found it expedient. He had only to surround himself with such an atmosphere of harmless futility that no one could dream of him as a murderer.

He got his hair cut on the way to Mizpah. Who on earth would stop on the way to committing a murder to have his hair trimmed?

THIS zest in his work led him to add occasional little subtleties to the main theme. He had always worn a little thatch of hair beneath his lower lip. Now he discussed the question of its removal with the hairdresser. The matter absorbed his whole interest and effectively built up a memory in the barber's mind of a futile, fussy little man entirely law abiding. Would the alteration make him look younger? It might lengthen his face. It gave him an old fashioned appearance as it was. In the end he decided for removal, having assured himself that by then Abraham would have sent his housekeeper out in anticipation of the interview.

“Sure, I could have banked on that,” remarked the barber, when the little man had gone. “He's left his umbrella!”

He was but three minutes' walk from Mizpah.

He rehearsed his simple program. Abraham admits him. He makes sure that they are alone. He announces his agreement to the blackmailer's terms and so gets to know where the manuscript is. Once he knows that, the sandbag comes into play and when Abraham was dead he had but to break a window and unlatch it to give the appearance of a burglary and go off quietly home to his study. He would call at the barber's on the way home, collect his umbrella and, announcing that he had been unable to make any one hear at his friend's house, discuss the advisability of speaking to the police.

Everything was quite simple and straightforward. Not far from Mizpah he passed a bird shop. With a flash of inspiration amounting, as he judged, to genius, he entered and bought a canary in a cage.

“Engaging little creature,” he remarked timidly to the salesman. “Will it distract me with its whistling?”

“Cover him up and he'll be as quiet as the dead,” said the man. “Shall I do it up in paper for you, sir?”

“N . . . no,” he answered thoughtfully. “I am spending the evening with my friend, Mr. Garvice, down the road and the little songster may suffer from want of air if it is wrapped up. I will take it as it is.”

Inwardly chuckling at the effect he must produce, he went on his way to Mizpah. It was now dark. Twenty paces from the gate as he passed a street lamp, a man stepped from the shadows and accosted him.

Startled fury split the professor's complacency like a flash. What was this fellow doing in a usually deserted street? Why did he want to butt in just then? He had just remembered that there was nothing secret about his visit to Mizpah when he began to take stock of the fellow.

He was a hulking brute, obviously a primitive Alpine type, Irish possibly, with a marked frontal ridge, a low forehead capped by stubborn close cut hair. He had small, cunning eyes and a large mouth which, drooping in desperation, he was nevertheless trying to twist to an ingratiating grin as he reckoned “the boss” hadn't “anny” sort of a job about him that was worth the price of a supper and a bed.

Such a type, thought the professor, is predestined to crime. His face alone would condemn him.

Then, all at once, he saw the big idea. For an hour he had been busy with quaint embroideries of the main story, but here was an addition so astoundingly simple and so brilliantly effective that it changed a praiseworthy bit of deception into a masterpiece of crime.

“Job?” said he. “Maybe. What's your name?”

“Burke,” said the man. “Pat Burke. Every one will know Pat Burke at Stretton. I've come from there and it's glad I'd be for anny sort of a handout.”

“What's your job?” asked the professor.

“Anny sort of a job,” returned Pat eagerly. “By the rights of it, I'm a painter. My boss at Stretton fired me. I'd only drawn his picture on the wall of a job we were doing. It sure tickled the boys to death, but the chief—it left him so cold that he flared up and fired me. I footed it in here, but the place where I slept last night was a low down hole and some one pinched my wad. Annything I can do I'll be glad of.”

“Gardening?” asked the professor.

“Wait now.” The man's jaw dropped. “What could I be doing in a garden this time of night?”

Prof. Burtinshaw smiled. His original plan had disregarded what theory of the murder the official mind might adopt so long as he had no place in it, but he saw now how unassailable his own position would be if he provided not only a satisfying explanation of the crime but the criminal, as well.

“Nothing tonight, perhaps,” he agreed mildly, “but I might find a job in the morning.”

“Where'll I get a bite?” asked Pat. “Where'll I sleep?”

“LEAVE that to me,” said the professor. “I'm smashing up a cement path at my place there and I've broken my pick.” He took a note from his case. “Take this. Buy me a good strong pick downtown. Just the iron. I've got the handle. Come back to Mizpah here. I'll have a meal and you can get a shakedown in the kitchen for the night.”

“Gosh,” cried Pat. “D'ye mean it, boss? You trust me with this and all?”

“Of course,” said the professor. “Why shouldn't I?”

“Shake, boss,” cried Pat, offering his huge hand. “You're the whitest man I've met this side Stretton.”

The professor watched him out of sight and hid the canary cage behind the hedge. That type of credulous fool was bound to come back, he reflected, and knocked at Abraham's door. Abraham had taken a bracer or two to help him through the interview.

“Come right in,” he said and led the way to a back parlor. “Do you mean to come across with the stuff?”

“The money is here,” admitted the professor plaintively tapping his pocket. “You're very hard on me. Are we alone?”

Garvice laughed. “Alone? Yes and the blinds down. Let's see your money.”

“Before I pay you,” twittered the professor, “may—may I assure myself that it is, indeed, your original manuscript?”

“Assure yourself anything,” laughed Abraham thickly. “It's locked in that trunk. I'll get it.”

If Prof. Burtinshaw had believed in angels he would have imagined they were on his side. The bending position at the trunk would be more convenient than anything he had conceived.

He stood a little to the rear of the kneeling man. His right hand gripped the weapon inside his coat.

“There,” cried Abraham, opening the box. “There's my little Golconda, my . . .”

THE first blow must have broken his neck. He fell forward with his head in the box and did not move.

Strange! The professor came to himself breathless, hot, tremulous, and fiercely enraged, as essentially an animal as a rat trapped in a drain. He faced himself in the mantel mirror wide eyed, his lips drawn back from his teeth. For at least thirty seconds he had become panicked, mad, smiting again and again without reason.

“It is curious,” he noted. “How the inherited memory of the beast emerges at times of stress, but I seem to have fixed that job.”

There was no doubt of that. The battered head proclaimed it. Never could living eye stare, bulging, bare of lid, hideously unresponsive as that one did.

Rummaging past the flaccid bulk of the man, he found the manuscript in a large envelope. It was unsullied. Except for a lazy drip from the nose and purply abrasions at the back of the fat neck, there was no blood.

The impersonal remoteness of the professor's training began to function once more.

“I won't be bothered with that again,” said he, as a man might who has swatted a blue bottle. “I must get on.”

He stepped briskly into the kitchen and set a table with everything the larder provided. Pat should have a real good supper. He felt quite generous about that.

Then he had to fake the forced entry. A burglar would naturally work at the back of the house. He found a claw hammer and, locking himself outside the kitchen door, broke it open, splintering the frame. Then he replaced the key on the inside and, closing the parlor door on its unsightly occupant, went into the hall to wait for Pat.

Everything was going finely as, indeed, it must when a supermind is in control. From his watch he gathered that eight minutes had elapsed since he had entered the house. As soon as Burke returned he would get back to the bird shop and say that he was uneasy because he could make no one hear at Mizpah. He must do that soon, for not even a simple minded old professor would wait indefinitely at a door where he got no reply to his ring.

At last he heard footsteps on the path and opened the door.

“Burke?” he said. “Come straight through. I've been waiting for you.”

“Sorry, boss,” said the man, blinking and grinning, gap toothed in the light like an amiable gorilla. “First place I found they tried to skin me. Thinks I, my boss is a reg'lar feller, dossing me out and all. He trusts me. I'll see he's not stung.”

“That's real good of you,” returned the professor earnestly. “Now, get down to your supper. You've had a long walk today. You must be ready for it.”

Pat looked at the kitchen table and his face twisted in a sudden spasm.

“I sure am,” said he jerkily. “You're a Christian, boss. For the last two days ‘You hike off’ is all I've been handed out and this makes a feller . . .” His voice broke.

“That's O. K.,” returned the professor kindly. “Now, I've got some writing to do. I'll look you up in half an hour.”

He closed the door on that poor semi-dazed animal, tearful with gratitude, and crept out of the house to deliver him to the police.

Recovering his canary from the hedge, he returned to the shop.

“Do you know,” he commenced with innocent gravity, “I am most uneasy. Ever since I left you I have been ringing my friend's door bell. I can get no reply.”

The professed looked a little reassured.

“But Mr Garvice was expecting me,” he said. “And then—I hardly like to mention it, for it seems like spying on him—peeping round the side of the house, I thought I saw a light in the kitchen. Do you think it advisable to inform the police?”

The shopkeeper hesitated. “That's for you to say, sir. It doesn't look terribly serious to me.” He smiled reassuringly at the worried face of the little professor. “Of course, it can do no harm to tell the police, but I expect when you get home you'll find a note from your friend explaining he had to go some place.”

THE professor thanked him and ambled forth. He now had to call in the police with all speed and he made his way to the nearby station.

Passing a mirror at the side of a shop, he could hardly suppress his amusement at the earnest, anxious little man with the canary cage on his finger. Could any one connect that with murder?

The police were very fatherly.

“Now, sir, explained the sergeant in charge, “if we were called in over every doorbell that won't ring, we should have all of a job, wouldn't we?”

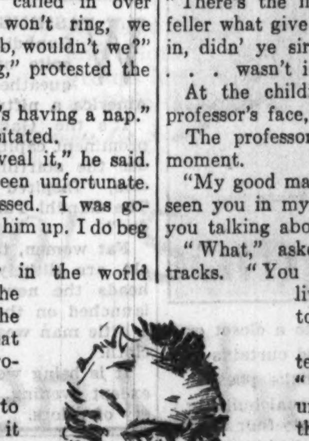
“Maybe your friend's having a nap.”

Prof. Burtinshaw hesitated.

“I hardly like to reveal it,” he said. “But my friend has been unfortunate. He gets terribly depressed. I was going in to try and cheer him up. I do beg you to enquire.”



Had ever murderer in the world before supplicated the police to come to the scene of the crime? That thought pleased the professor amazingly.

He positively had to produce a tip before it was arranged that Police Officer Maltby would walk down the road with him and have a look at the house, just to set his mind at rest. Police officer Maltby set forth accordingly, feeling as if he were escorting a small child home from school.

Passing the hairdressers, the professor remembered his umbrella, clear proof of an untroubled conscience and a scholarly absent mindedness. Also, it filled in the professor's time table, should it ever come to be scrutinized. Between that and the two visits to the bird shop there would hardly seem to be any interval for law breaking.

At Mizpah they found the front door ajar as the professor had left it.

“Queer,” muttered Maltby. “You stay put. I'll look round.” He was back in a minute.

“Guess you're dead right,” he said. “There's something wrong and you're best out of it. Go back to the station and say I've found the back door forced and some one in the kitchen who has no right there, by the look of it. I'll keep the place under observation till they send down. Make it nippy.”

The professor made it nippy. He arrived breathless at the station. It showed his willingness to help.

Reinforcements were sent. An inspector prepared to follow.

“I am most anxious about poor Garvice,” quavered Prof. Burtinshaw. He held up the stolen manuscript. “See, I have brought him some secretarial work which I hoped might prove profitable to him. May I stay here till you return?”

“Sure,” agreed the inspector and hurried out.

Prof. Burtinshaw deposited his cage, his envelope, and his umbrella and sat down. Everything had passed off very nicely. There was this semi-imbecile, Burke. He would be no loss to the community. The police could not fail to discover enough for an absolutely complete case against him. In the course of an hour the professor would see that the fatal manuscript was burned.

“In the end,” mused the professor, “the highest degree of technical skill must bow before the superior intellect of the expert psychologist.” He bent down to the cage. “Tweet, tweet,” said the professor. “I think I'll go and see if they've taken the thief.”

PAT had a very good supper. He needed it after a couple of days' tramping on short rations. The world had been looking very black to Pat before he had met with the “little boss” and then, quite unexpectedly, the clouds had rolled away. He was very grateful. He reckoned, in his thick headed way, that any one who found you when you were clean knocked out and treated you like a man and a brother and all was a regular fellow.

This job with the concrete path, now, when the boss led him to it in the morning, he would make a fair do of that. He'd be only too glad to do something to please the little boss.

So he ruminated as he ate and even afterwards when, having washed his plates so as not to be any trouble, he sat at the table staring at an empty cardboard box that had been left there and awaiting the return of the little boss.

He did not see P. C. Maltby come and peer at him through a chink in the blind. He was just beginning to wonder when the boss would return when he was startled by a shrill whistle. At the same moment two police officers entered by the back door and two by the door into the passage.

“Less you say, the better,” said a policeman, pouncing on his wrists as another seized his collar.

Pat made not the slightest show of resistance. He sat up and laughed.

“Funny!” said a policeman.

“I'll say it is,” agreed Pat “'Cos why? I was as't in here by the boss. He's to give me a doss for the night and I'm to do a job for him in the morning.”

“Get up,” said a policeman. “You're coming with us.”

Pat didn't mind. It would be all right as soon as the little boss found how things were. Why make trouble?

“You won't be so pleased with yourselves when the boss what as't me in turns up to say it's all O. K.,” said he.

They were taking him along the passage to the front door when they came on the inspector and Prof. Burtinshaw talking in the porch.

“There you are,” crowed Pat Burke. “There's the little boss. There's the feller what give me supper and as't me in, didn' ye sir, didn' ye . . . as't . . . wasn't it you what . . .”

At the childish amazement in the professor's face, his voice tailed off.

The professor looked at him for a moment.

“My good man,” said he, “I've never seen you in my life before. What are you talking about?”

“What,” asked Pat, frozen in his tracks. “You ain't the bloke what lives here and as't me in to . . .”

“Of course not,” interrupted the inspector. “The man who lived here until an hour ago is in that room with his head bashed in and I'm holding you for his murder. Take him along, Macarthy.”

The light, the reason, faded out of the man's eyes. His face crumpled into abject, idiotic stupor. Fear had gripped and numbed him. He stumbled forth before the urge of his captors' arms, blind, dumb, insensate, semi-paralyzed, an animal doomed to the slaughter.

“You don't believe he really recognized me, inspector?” asked the professor, turning a mildly worried gaze on the policeman.

The policeman bit off a short laugh. “He saw you without a hat and thought you belonged here,” said he. “As thin a bluff as I've ever met.”

“How you gentlemen of the police understand the criminal mind!” remarked the admiring professor. “Absolutely wonderful!”

The layman always loves to watch the specialist in crime detection. The professor could not tear himself away from the house. Moreover, as he told the inspector, “However irrational vindictiveness may be, I feel that I shall rejoice to see my poor friend's murderer brought to justice.”

“Sit right there,” said the inspector, “and you shall.”

He himself occupied the table in the front room and once having made his survey, was writing up the case.

“Aw,” said he. “A child could see it all with its eyes shut. I can now give you an account of this crime as detailed as if you saw it on the screen straight from a Hollywood studio.” He shuffled his papers. “Man's name's Patrick Burke. He admits that much. He says he came from Stretton, and slept at Garlake last night. We can check that. Coming into town he'd have to pass this house and likely enough saw the housekeeper and her husband go off for the evening.

“He has a look at the place and then gets off up town to buy something to force the door with. There's the back door forced and a brand new pick in the kitchen. We'll find the shop and the man that sold it him. We'll get him identified before the evening's out. He gets in at the kitchen door. He was making a tour of the place and he'd just opened the tin trunk when Mr. Garvice, poor fellow, who was asleep or studying upstairs, comes down and discovers him.”

“Say, inspector,” broke in the police doctor who had just finished his first examination and come in to make his report. “Why did he knock his man out with a sandbag and not bring his pick along?”

“That sort of rat,” explained the inspector promptly, “prefers sand, not so liable to break the skin, easier to dispose of. Likely enough he always carried one.”

“Admirable,” murmured the little professor. “I should never have thought of that. But there is one thing that puzzles me. Why didn't he hear me ringing?”

“Plainly,” said the policeman, “because he was uptown buying his jimmy when you were there and he only got down to the job after you had gone. I suppose, doctor, the body gives no indication of the exact time of death.”

“NOT within a hour,” said the doctor. “Nothing exact to go by, rigor, cooling, that's all. He's been dead perhaps two and a half hours now, perhaps four. Stomach may give us something if we can establish the time of his last meal, poor chap.”

A constable knocked and came in with some things from the kitchen. “Finger marked plate, sir, used knife, the handle hasn't been touched, sir.” He handed over with them a square of cardboad that might have been a white box lid. “Pencil sharpenings. I don't know if they're any use, sir, I found them on the floor.”

“Prisoner sharpened a pencil,” said the inspector importantly. “Now, why did he want to sharpen a pencil?”

“What difference does it make?” asked the doctor. “Perhaps he wanted to write a sonnet. You've got your case anyway, inspector. Why worry?”

The inspector paused with the cardboard in his hand.

“There,” said he portentously, “you are not as thorough as the police, doctor. I've got my case. Nothing on earth can keep this fellow from the chair, but some burglars are accustomed to scribble derisive messages to be left behind. By taking note of these shavings of pencil we may be able to link up this with other similar crimes and so clear up half a dozen cases at once.”

He tipped the cardboard and shot the shavings into an envelope.

“Intensely interesting,” said the professor and turned to his canary. “Tweet, tweet.”

THE doctor lounged to the table and took up the piece of cardboard now derelict. Turning towards the window he looked at the underside which had for a second been presented to his view as the inspector had tipped it up.

“Intensely interesting,” he echoed. “By the way, professor, I've been wondering what was different in your appearance ever since I've been in here. It's your little goatee. You've had it taken off.”

“Yes,” agreed the professor. “As I was coming along to see poor Garvice I had some time to spare. I had my hair cut, as a matter of fact, and got the man to shave my chin.” He gave a rather embarrassed laugh. “Vanity, I suppose. Don't you think I look younger without it?”

“Perhaps you do,” said the doctor. “When you met this fellow Burke on the way down to Mizpah, did he pitch you a hard luck yarn, professor?”

The professor regarded his fellow townsman with mild astonishment.

“You've got it mixed, doctor,” he said. “I never saw Burke in my life till he passed me in the porch after he was arrested. As the inspector knows, he tried to put up a yarn that some one had invited him in and fed him. He pretended to think it was me.”

The doctor came down the room to the side of the professor's chair.

“Well,” he said, “Burke seems to have felt grateful toward some one.” He suddenly presented the piece of cardboard to the inspector. “Not a bad job of work for an amateur, inspector,” said he. “And I like the inscription. Wonder where Burke got the opportunity of studying the subject.”

“By hek,” cried the inspector and raised his voice. “Maltby, Golightly, come here!” suddenly he turned to the professor. “The doctor wants to know how Burke studied his subject, professor,” he said. “Maybe you can tell us.”

With one ghastly devastating swoop the professor slewed from his pinnacle of intellectual arrogance.

Beneath was written with manifest sincerity this humble tribute:

“Portrait of a Christian gent and a regular feller with hartfelt grattitude, Pat Burke.”

“Cells,” said the inspector.

“ . . . has occupied for five years the chair of mental science at the university of . . .”

Inspector Meredith was reading his report to the commissioner.

“Mental science,” said the commissioner. “Guess his next chair will be applied electricity, but he won't hold that so long.”

Bright Sayings

Four year old Dick came to Sunday school wearing a suit I did not remember seeing before. When I asked him if it were new, he replied in his husky little voice: “O no! Why I have had this suit for years and years and years.” D. S.

After a heavy siege of illness the doctor said I could take a little stroll around the block. With the aid of a cane, and accompanied by my 4 year old nephew, we started out. We reached the corner, and I was pretty well fagged out, so I braced up against the fence to get my bearings. My little nephew looked up at me and my 6 foot height very pitifully and said, with his little shoulder pushed up, “Uncle, if you get too tired you can lean and rest up against me.” J. K.

My little cousin had been warned by her mother not to tell her father when she had been to the movies, to which he strongly objected. However, one day after such warning little Judith ran up to her father when he came from work and said quite innocently: “Daddy, I won't tell you that I was to the movies today, 'cause mother told me not to.” J. T.

I had bought my small niece a tiny ice truck for her to play with. She had left it upstairs, and I reproachfully said: “Why did you leave the ice truck upstairs, dear? Why didn't you bring it down?” To which she replied, “Well, I didn't know you wanted to play with it!” M. H.

My little grandson came home from his first day at school and I inquired: “How did you like school, Bobby?”

“O, I didn't like it very well, but I'm going back tomorrow, anyway, because I didn't learn everything today,” he replied. J. H. I.

Feel Old at 40?

Disturbed Sleep, Backache, Stiffness, Loss of Energy, Often Due to Kidney Acidity.

There are few things that sap your energy more, and make you look and feel years older, than functional kidney inactivity and excess acidity. These are also often the cause of other troublesome and worrisome complaints such as miserable Backache, Disturbed Sleep, Nervousness, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Sore Joints, Circles Under Eyes, Headaches, Muddy Complexion, Smarting, and Irritation.

To combat these conditions, when due to functional kidney inactivity, you really need two different kinds of medicine. First, you need a medicine to act as a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, to help them in their functions of filtering and purifying the blood, thus reducing acidity. Second, you need another medicine to soothe and heal irritation and give nature a chance.

These two special kinds of medicine, in one package, known as Cystex, now may be had from your druggist under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. They are in tasteless tablet form, easy to take, and pleasant to young or old, yet work so fast they start circulating through the system in 11 minutes. Sufferers say they begin to feel marked improvement in 24 hours.

Your own druggist — the man you know is reliable—can tell you that these are established facts, and that Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex) is a splendid medicine, containing purest ingredients, which have proved a blessing to many of his customers.

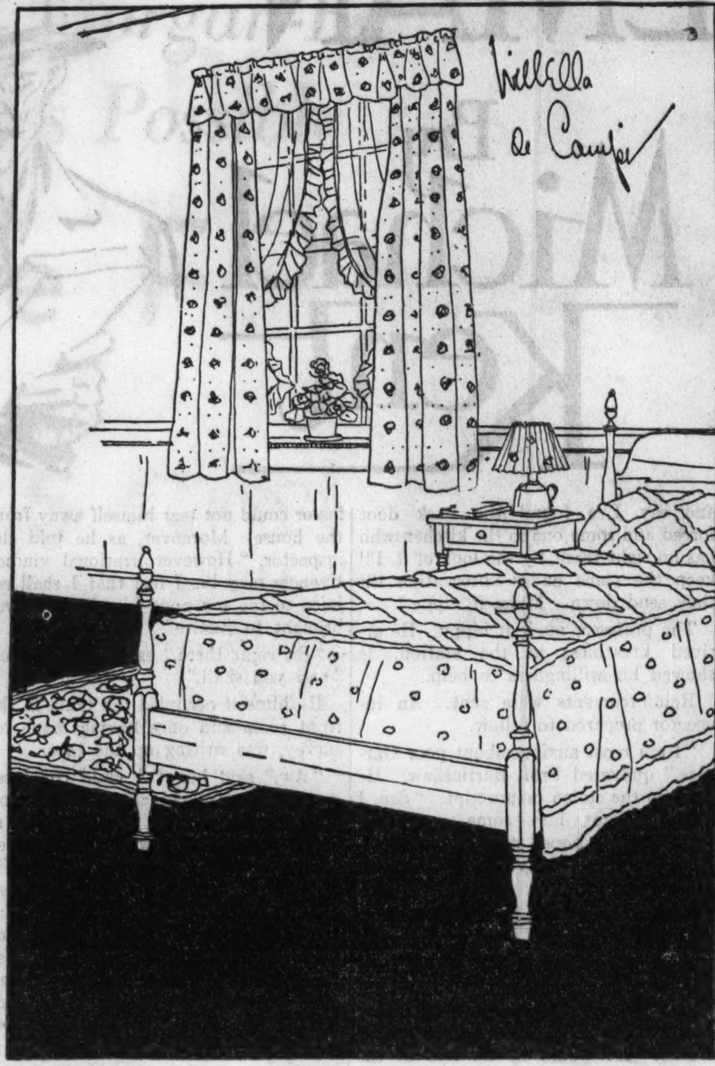
This much is certain: If Cystex makes you feel years younger and stronger by combating these functional conditions, the small cost of 75c is a trifle, but if not completely satisfied, merely return the empty package and get your money back. Why suffer from delay and neglect? The guarantee protects you. Get Cystex from your druggist today.

Decorating the Bedroom

Here Are Four Models from Which to Choose Your Favorite Color Scheme and Furnishings.

By WillElla de Campi.

BECAUSE comfort must be the first consideration in a bedroom the possibilities for creating decorative effects here are sometimes overlooked. Well chosen furniture, fabrics and accessories and an interesting color scheme make the bedroom beautiful to see as well as comfortable to live in. The following groups suggest furnishings and decorations for four widely divergent types of bedrooms.



The window treatment in this bedroom is particularly charming.

French Provincial Bedroom.

Woodwork—White, with a line of blue.

Curtains—White ruffled voile.

Draperies—Bright red glazed chintz piped with white and finished with red accordion plaited edging. These reach to the baseboard and are caught back by matching cuffs.

Furniture—French provincial furniture in fruit woods. Armchair and pouf with cushions of quilted calico showing red flowers on a white ground.

Accessories—Blue and gold tôle side lights. Pewter lamps with accordion plaited calico shades on bedside table and dresser. Red, white and blue woven coverlets on beds. Colorful French prints in narrow red frames on the walls.

18th Century English Bedroom.

Walls—Paper with clusters of field flowers on an ivory ground.

Woodwork—Painted ivory with a line of leaf green.

Draperies—Leaf green silk gauze with ruffled edges reaching the floor, topped by valances, and caught back by cuffs of the same material.

Furniture—Eighteenth century English styles in mahogany. Wing chair upholstered in dull rose damask. Four post bed with green strié rep spread.

Accessories—Side lights in gilt with crystal drops. Green glass toilet set and lamps on dressing table. Pale rose silk lamp shades bound with leaf green. Pair of hanging shelves to hold books and decorative small objects.

Bedroom in Modern Manner.

Walls—Painted French gray.

Woodwork—Same shade as walls.

Curtains—White voile embroidered with white rayon in a modern design. These are made very full, hanging straight to the floor, and one overcurtain of the same material is caught back across each window.

Furniture—Black furniture relieved by white drawer knobs. Bed with low head and no footboard. Two armchairs are upholstered in heavy linen with a design in black, gray and white. The chair frames are painted bright sapphire blue. A low coffee table in chromium plate with a glass top stands between chairs.

Accessories—Side lights hidden behind slabs of mirror, set at regular intervals around the room. White pottery and chromium lamps on bedside stands and dressing table. Modern paintings in sapphire blue frames on the walls. Open book shelves with insides painted sapphire, set into the wall between two windows. Bright sapphire blue velvet bed cover.

Floor—Painted black. Hand tufted rugs in black and tones of gray. Gray fur rugs at each side of bed.

American Colonial Bedroom.

Walls—Upper section finished in yellow, semi-rough plaster, with pale yellow ceiling.

Woodwork—Wainscoting. All doors and window frames are of mellow pine.

Curtains—Yellow organdy with ruffled edges.

Draperies—Glazed chintz with allover pattern of small, multi-colored flowers on a pale green ground. These reach just below the sill, hanging straight, as shown in the illustration. Valances are of the same material.

Furniture—Maple low post bed, high boy, chest with hanging mirror, desk, bedside table and two rush bottomed chairs. Wing chair upholstered to match draperies.

Accessories — Pewter side lights. Pewter, and green glass lamps on bedside table and chest. Parchment shades decorated with tiny flowers. Silhouettes in black frames on the walls. Yellow and white candlewick bedspread.

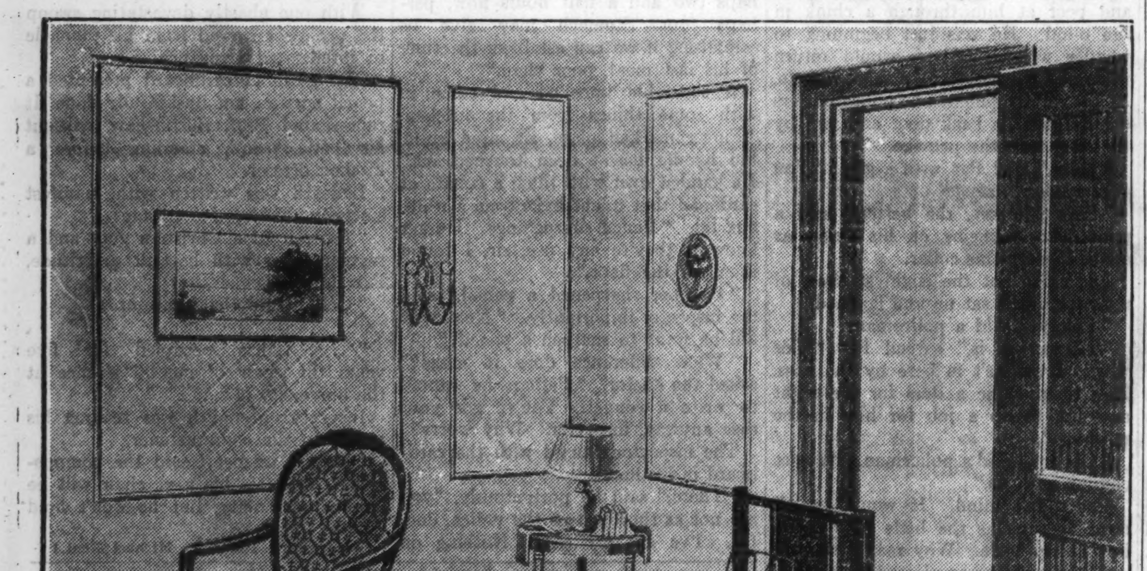
And So to Bed—Unlike Pepys



SO many disappearing, concealed, roll-a-way, in-the-door and closet beds are there, that it would take a big book to show the various kinds—and probably volume two would have to be printed later! Suffice it to say that the modern models of these disappearing beds are a comfortable solution of that extra bedroom or unexpected guest problem. Enough bedrooms for all the family cost a lot of money. But a concealed bed, hidden behind a single door, a double-mirrored door, paneled walls, or even a book case, or a bed which rolls away into a closet or stands folded in becoming modesty behind curtains in some nook or cranny of a hall, does make possible greater room convenience without additional building expense. Rooms do double duty, give twenty-four hour service when equipped with beds which are invisible during waking hours. In the above picture the home of the bed in daytime is visible, the narrow closet with doors hospitably open. Once the bed is in the closet and out of sight, the bedroom space may be used for daytime purposes.

Women the World Over

Mrs. Minnie Tyson of Moore county, N. C., adds $400 to her annual income by making rag rugs from scraps saved at home.

Miss Margie Neal, former school teacher and newspaper publisher of Carthage, was the first woman senator to sit in the legislature of Texas.

Married women, as a rule, have larger incomes than single women in the United States. Fifty-three married women have incomes of more than $1,000,000.

Gertrude Heikes, 16 year old farm girl of Dakota City, Neb., was recently declared the healthiest among 85,000 members of the Four H clubs. She is 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 137 pounds, and was scored at 99.9 per cent, a slight irregularity of teeth being regarded as the only blemish.

La Argentina, the dancer, recently received the Rosette of Isabella the Catholic, the first order bestowed by the Republic of Spain. The award was made in recognition of her service in the interest of Spanish art in the Americas.

Seventy women are members of the Betsy Ross corps, an organization of women airplane pilots in the United States, who have pledged themselves to service in time of war. They are trained for auxiliary work, such as flying hospital ships, doing despatch work, or ferrying airplanes from factory to fields.

A Friend in Need

Sally Asks That You Place Discarded Baby Clothing at Disposal of Needy, Expectant Mothers.

By Sally Joy Brown.

DURING the last few weeks this department has encountered a great number of mothers-to-be who in addition to the usual attendant worries are looking forward to the child's advent with little or no preparation made. Their husbands are out of work—many of them have been for months—and the prospect of locating anything to do in the near future is uncertain.

Some of them already have large families and providing for them is a problem. With another child to feed, clothe, and care for the poor mothers are frantic with anxiety, and they come to us for whatever assistance we may be able to give. There's the young couple recently evicted from their near north side room. The husband, a painter, is out of work and his wife is expecting her first child soon. Their savings went long ago and there is nothing left with which to provide the tiny garments or other necessities the mother and child will need.

Then there's Mrs. S. Her husband is out of work, too. They have one little boy and looked forward to having another child. It was to have been a happy event, but unemployment and its accompanying misery have made it a time to dread and fear because they've been able to make no preparations.

Mrs. G. F. is expecting to have her third child in January and, although her husband is unable to find a job and they are living on county rations, she'll welcome the event if we can provide the few things she and the new baby must have.

These are only a few of the cases with which my files are filled to overflowing, but they represent a need particularly urgent at this time. It's a need which should not be difficult to fill, for almost every household which boasts an infant or two has tiny garments outgrown but still in good condition. There are bassinets and buggies and high chairs and all the other equipment which goes to make a model nursery. Your children no longer use them and they probably are utilizing valuable space in your storeroom. Won't you take them out and permit me to distribute them among these needy, expectant mothers who are unable to provide such necessities for their babies?

You may be certain they will be put to good use and you may be certain, too, that such gifts will do much to relieve the suffering and anxiety in these households.

Asks for Radio, Typewriter.

"I wonder if one of your readers has an old radio in working order which he no longer wants? I should like to have one for my mother who is old and must spend a great deal of time alone. I'd be grateful for a portable typewriter, too, as I've been out of work for more than a year and I might be able to get some work to do at home if I had one. C. C."

Does your list of surplus articles about the house include either of the things this young man wants? His mother would get a great deal of pleasure out of the radio and he may be able to eke a living out of the typewriter.

Request for Cookstove.

"We are two elderly men and have been out of work for two years. We need a cookstove but have no money to buy one. Could you get one for us? "W. A."

These elderly men trying to maintain a home for themselves despite the fact that they have no employment would find good use for the cookstove you are about to discard. May they not have it?

Desires School Clothing.

"My husband is not working, and it is so hard to keep our five children in clothing for school. I wonder if you can help us get what they need for this cold weather. The boys are 12, 11, and 7 years old; the girls, twins, are 8 years old. We would be glad to have anything at all. MRS. J. K."

This is only one of hundreds of families who are beset with the problem of providing warm clothing for the children during the winter. If you have any outgrown garments suitable for this kind of weather, we can put them to good use.

Curtains Needed for Church.

"We are a little Methodist church out here, struggling along. I wonder if some wealthy church is ready to discard curtains that we might use to separate our Sunday school classes. "MRS. J. W."

Any large pieces of heavy material or old draperies would fill the need in this little country church. Can you supply any?

Invalid Needs Wheel Chair.

"I am coming for help for a boy who is a helpless invalid. If he could only have a wheel chair to got out in, he would be happy. He is 16 years old, but small, owing to lack of food and care. He is able to make toys and if any one could give him a small electric saw, such as is used in cutting light wood or cardboard, it would help this boy to live. His mother is very poor. MRS. W. P."

Spending all of one's time within the confines of four walls should tend to make existence a drab affair. Can't you brighten this boy's life by giving him the wheel chair you no longer need?

Lacks an Overcoat.

"I wonder if one of your readers has an overcoat he no longer wants, size 46 to 48. My brother has just come home from the hospital and needs a coat badly. MRS. D. W."

Now that he is able to be up and out of doors again, this erstwhile invalid will have need of an overcoat. If you have one to give in the size he wears, he will be grateful to receive it.

Left Shoes Offered.

"My mother had her left leg amputated some time ago and consequently wears only one shoe. As a result we have on hand three brand new slippers of black satin, in size 6½ B, with low military heels. I shall be glad to give these to some one who has need of them. I. M."

If you, too, wear only one shoe and that is the left one here is a splendid opportunity to secure enough new ones to do for some time. Write me, if you can make use of this offer; please do not telephone.

Seek Gymnasium Apparatus.

"Have your readers any gymnasium apparatus they no longer want? Our church is starting a boys' and girls' club, but will find it rather difficult to keep them interested without this apparatus. K. G."

Anything at all in the way of gymnasium equipment will be most acceptable and should be instrumental in making this venture a successful one. Perhaps your club is investing in new apparatus and will have a piece or two to give.

Gandhi Turbans, Breathing India, Attract Women

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Mahatma Ganhdi, himself hatless in spite of his name, has bequeathed to the women of America a nifty piece of headgear.

It's the Gandhi turban, and one prominent capital store displays it under the startling show window caption, "Inspired by the Great Leader. The Gandhi Turban. Breathes of India."

Fat women, tall women, young and old, are blithely winding round their heads the new creation unwittingly launched on the world of fashion by a little man wearing a shawl and loin cloth.

It is being worn for every occasion except evening, and comes in a variety of colors.

French Birth Records Show Upward Trend

PARIS.—[U. P.]—Marriages in France for the second quarter of 1931 numbered 96,846, according to vital statistics. In the same period there were 5,526 divorces and 186,656 births. Deaths of children less than one year old totaled 14,510 and all other deaths numbered 152,944. Births exceed the deaths for the quarter by 19,202.

The figures, compared with the same period in 1930, show 437 fewer births, 249 more divorces, 1,702 fewer deaths of children under 1 year, 4,347 more deaths above 12 months. This year again the birth of male children exceeded those of female children, and more boys died at an early age than girls.

A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION WITHOUT ROUGE

Do you want a beautiful complexion? Without the use of rouge? And color that is all your own? If you suffer from constipation give your system just a tiny calcium wafer! Don't take that customary pill on Saturday night—just let Stuart's Calcium Wafers, the gentle internal cleansers, help Nature do its magic work for you!

Stuart's Calcium Wafers frequently clear away all impurities resulting from constipation and which keep the skin sallow or dull. They help to keep pores purged and the cuticle clean. Often you feel and see the difference from the first day you take Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

A five-day test is sufficient to prove to you very conclusively the system's need for Stuart's Calcium Wafers, and the decided benefit from the use of these little sugar-coated wafers. Try them this week-end.

In Praise of 'Chauve-Souris' Show Master

Nikita Balieff Returns as Little Father of the Intimate or Little Revues

By Charles Collins.

IT is good to see the full-moon face of Nikita Balieff, the Great Khan of the "Chauve-Souris," emerge once more through the curtains as the overture ends, to bask in the flattery of his wide Armenian smile, which seems to include the entire audience, and to strive to understand the marvelously broken English with which he expounds his entertainment. For this Mr. Balieff, leader of a small troupe of Russian nomads, represents a charming page in the history of the modern stage.

He has made the "Chauve-Souris" a world-famous label; he has carried a message of innocent merriment to the makers of revues; he is the Little Father of all the "Little" shows. Before Balieff, a revue had to be big and brazen and blatant; after him, cleverness and ingenious simplicity came into fashion. So there is reason to rejoice over the return of Balieff and his "Chauve-Souris."

After him, too, came the masters of ceremonies of the night club and vaudeville programs now abroad in the land. He cannot be blamed, however, for their devotion to the trade of "making whoopee"; Balieff himself, although a merry wight at heart, with a jocund twinkle in his dark Asiatic eye, is as solemn and ceremonial in his footlight duties as a Ukrainian owl.

Sixth American Tour.

The tour that brings this celebrated impresario and his group of players to the Selwyn theater is, I think, his sixth. The Balieff tradition in America covers a period of about fifteen years. This is an amazing record for a "novelty" in a foreign language—especially since, no matter how the program was changed, the show always remained much the same. Balieff himself is changeless, untouched by time. The only marked change in the "Chauve-Souris" pattern came this year with the addition of the playlet called "The Queen of Spades," spoken in English, to the bill.

This striking bit of melodramatic fantasy has a history of its own. Originally a tale by Pushkin of the Russian classics, it became the basis of the opera called "Pique Dame," with music by Tschaikowsky. In this form it belongs to the standard operatic repertory. It has been sung here by Russian companies on two engagements, and it has also been offered once, in an abbreviated form, by the Civic Opera. It is an ideal libretto for a romantic opera, if you are willing to waive the heart throbs of an amorous young couple who are so much in love that they finally die of spontaneous combustion.

Hayes of Stratford.

To link this present "Chauve-Souris" up with the past, it may be announced that Tamara Geva, the dancer who makes a striking contribution to the performance of "Three's a Crowd," is an alumna of an earlier Balieff troupe. Also, that Mme. Komisjarevsky, who appears as the scissors grinder's daughter, is the sister of a famous actress of the old régime in Russia—a gifted artist who died in the dawning of an international reputation.

George Hayes, who appears as the hectic gambler in "The Queen of Spades," is a fine Shakespearean actor of Stratford-upon-Avon schooling. If the Chicago Civic Shakespeare society intends to continue the good work next season it would do well to have a talk with this excellent interpreter of Hamlet, Richard II., Richard III., and other major rôles in the classic repertory.

Here Comes Yascha Yushny.

Another Balieff—a rival or a younger follower of the tradition — is on his way toward Chicago. His name is Yascha Yushny, and he will arrive at the Studebaker Feb. 7 with a troupe of entertainers called "The Blue Bird" company. He is also a Russian expatriate with a pan-European reputation, and his programs have been popular in Berlin, Paris, and London. He is now making his first American tour.

The literature that heralds Mr. Yushny's approach gives the impression that his show will be in the "Chauve-Souris" manner — songs, dances and comic sketches, based on Russian folk lore and peasant life, with scenery in the cigar box school of Russian decorative art. Mr. Yushny himself supplies an article on the theme, "My Life and Times," which reveals little except that he is a chronic humorist. He throws some light upon his departure from Russia, however, as follows:

"All the best minds of Europe have made strenuous efforts to learn the reason why I have transferred my theatrical activity from Moscow. This is how it happened: One of the men who was ruling Russia in 1920—he was a lecturer like myself, but a lecturer for the revolutionaries—sent for me one day and said: 'Moscow is really becoming too small for both of us—don't you think that one of us ought suddenly to disappear?'"

Ten years ago he started his "Blue Bird" company in a small cinema house on a side street in suburban Berlin. His players were recruits from the Imperial theater of Moscow. Since then he has visited twenty countries, among them France, Austria, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Italy, Belgium, Poland, Holland, Switzerland, Turkey, and Sweden. He has offered his diversion on Unter den Linden, the Champs Elysées, and Broadway.

On the Docket.

This week represents a vacant period on the Chicago theatrical calendar, so far as first nights are concerned. The stampede of holiday and post-holiday premières is followed by the inevitable lull.

A week hence, however, the "Zieg-

Civic Music Lovers Hold Yearly Meet

By Edward Moore.

MUSIC in figures that would be interesting to big business, and at that having no intimate connection with grand opera or the symphony orchestra, will have its say in Chicago this week. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday the ninth annual convention of the Civic Music Associations of the United States will be in session.

About 1,000 delegates will be here. They represent some 230 cities, mostly of the middle west and south, but with quite an outgrowth into the east on the one side and certain extensions to the Pacific coast on the other. It is a by no means inconsiderable section of the country, and it is this section which, speaking through its delegates, will pass upon the music and the music makers who will visit it next season. Gov. Roosevelt of New York, Mayor Hoan of Milwaukee, Dr. Charles H. Mayo, Harvey Firestone, A. J. MacMillen, Samuel Insull are only a few of those taking an active interest in its operations, and it is expected that several of them will be present at the convention.

Dema E. Harshbarger, a greatly dynamic personality in the world of music, will preside. It was she who created the civic music plan little more than a decade ago. It is she who has inspired its growth, made it one of the most important influences in musical life, led it into an ever increasing success.

Every Concert Pays.

Briefly stated, there are two main points in Miss Harshbarger's plan: one on the commercial, the other on the spiritual side, and with both of them this department is in hearty accord. The business point is that every concert or series of concerts ought to be made to pay for itself. The spiritual point is that music is intended to be enjoyed and not to be a laborious process of education or self-conscious uplift.

The second point need not be discussed just now. That relating to how to make concerts pay of themselves is interesting to all concert givers. Again as briefly as possible, this is the way it works:

Each Civic Music association is established independently with local persons of prominence as officers. Membership is open to the general public, with dues at five dollars per year. Funds derived through dues are used to finance a series of concerts by the greatest artists available. Under this plan the larger the membership of an association the more concerts can be presented. Accordingly, each member is interested in increasing the organization.

When all memberships are in and paid for a certain proportion of the money raised is set aside for local expenses. The rest is available to pay artists, and this is all arranged before the season begins. As a result, the artist gets his fee and he is happy. The local organization comes out with-

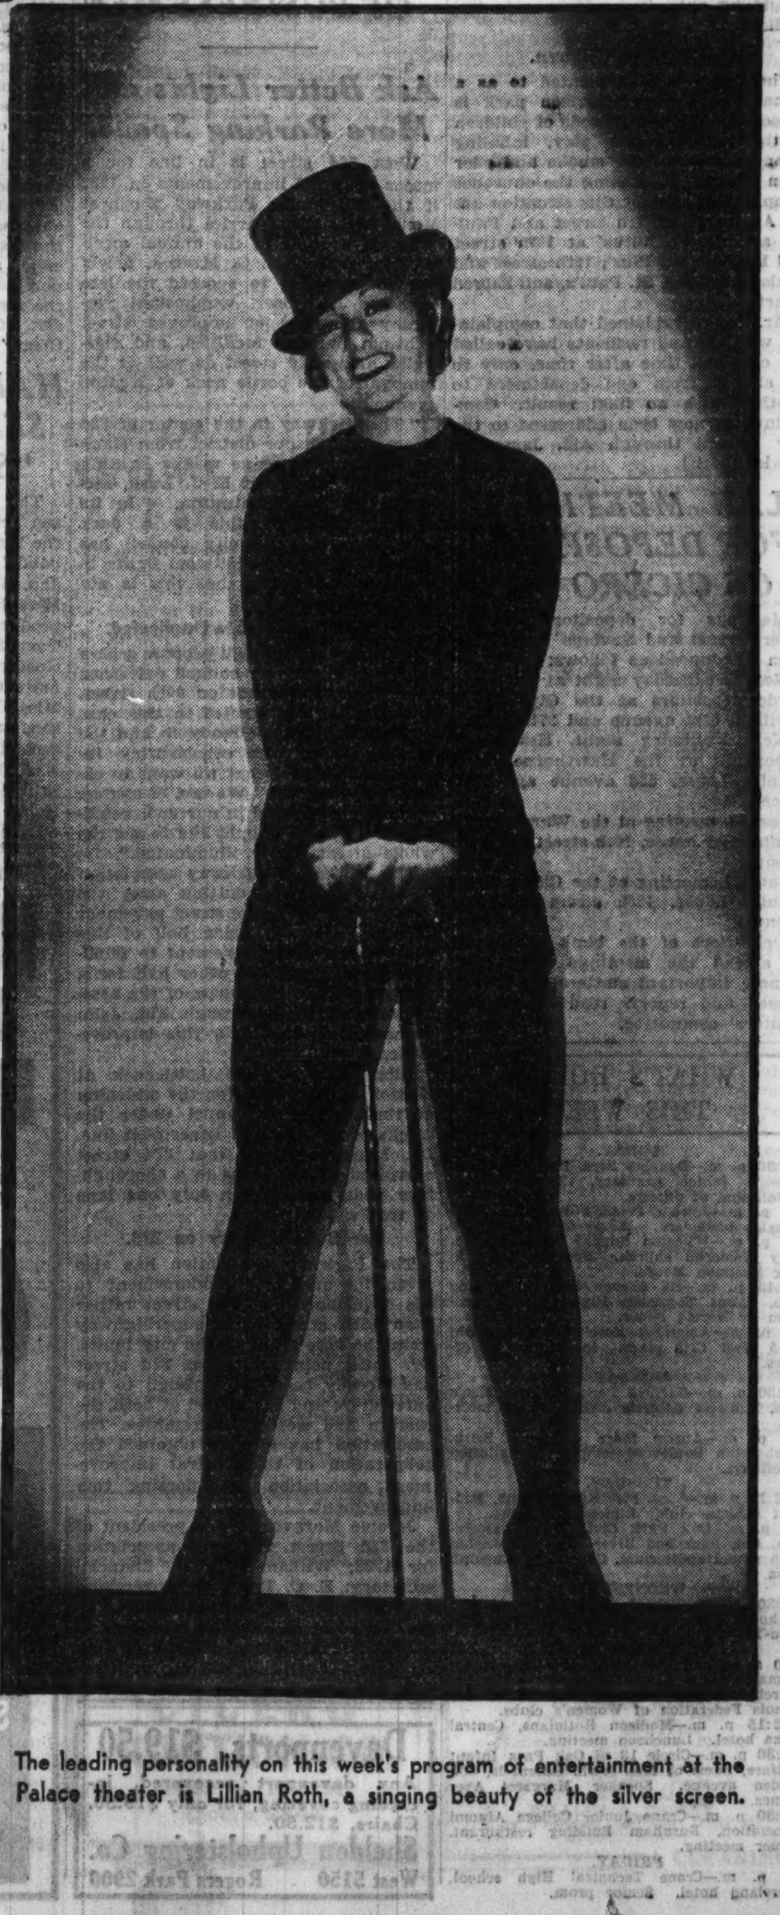
Lotte Lehmann, as Elsa in "Lohengrin," the Civic Opera company's offering for Wednesday evening of this week.

Boola Boola! Boola Boola! of champagne-oola these two seem full-a . . . Chester Morris to the left. Billie Dove to the right. Scene's from "Cock o' the Air," at the United Artists'.



The leading personality on this week's program of entertainment at the Palace theater is Lillian Roth, a singing beauty of the silver screen.

Negro Opus of Deep South Stirs New Yorkers

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—None of the new plays that were rushed into Broadway theaters the week Old Man '31 was taking his palsied leave is more interesting than one called "Savage Rhythm," an all black opus with which John Golden is experimenting. Claudette Colbert's husband, Norman Foster, wrote it with collaboration.

This one goes into the deep south again and picks up a group of colored folk still considerably influenced by the older tribal customs. Their conjure women are much sought after for love potions and corrective prayers. Into this life, at the fringe of modern civilization, a bright young musical comedy yaller girl drifts back from Harlem. Orchid is her name and she has come on a visit. She finds it difficult to believe that her people are still so primitive, that her granny and her mammy are still practicing the voodoo arts handed down to them in a straight line of succession from African ancestors.

A Barbecue in the Woods.

Immediately there is a rush for Orchid's favors. Pete, a stalwart roustabout who had been the girl's favorite before she went north, tries to renew the old relations. Jackson Boone, a flashy fellow who has himself been north, feels that, although he is married at the moment his superior knowledge of the world gives him certain advantages.

The big scene of the play, and one that is strongly moving, is at a barbecue held in the deep woods. The wife of Jackson, jealous of both Orchid and her sister, and backed by the prayers of the conjure woman, stabs the sister.

There are calls for the white sheriff to hunt out the murderer, but the older people decide to settle the matter in their own way. The conjure women will charm the soul of the dead girl back into her body that she may speak and denounce her slayer.

When the spell fails to work for the older women Orchid, feeling the call of the power, takes their place. There are the beat of tom toms and weird incantations. Then Orchid rises to speak in the voice of the dead girl and denounce Jackson Boone, who had deviled his unhappy wife into doing the murder, and Jackson, by an old tribal custom, must wade into the swamps and await death from snake bites and starvation.

The simplicity of the story, backed by the simple directness of the playing, help to keep "Savage Rhythm" steadily interesting, and the incantation scene is emotionally moving. The players are all well known Harlem actors. Vivian Baber is the Orchid, Ernest Whitman the bad boy, Mabel Cartier and Georgette Harvey the conjure women.

Secret Service Play.

There is also excitement in a new melodrama called "Berlin," though the staging of this piece fails to take full advantage of its trickier opportunities. You may be surprised to hear that we have gone back to pre-war Germany and the good old secret service in "Berlin." Nigel Druce, an English spy, is trying in July, 1914, to get the news to England that Germany is preparing for war before the English fleet, engaged in maneuvers, is dismissed and scattered.

His political activities land him in a military prison from which he escapes. On his way to liberty he meets Olivia Dunbar, a frail and pretty English typist acting as secretary to a German professor. Enlisting her aid, he sends her to Berlin to recover certain papers hidden in a gramophone.

Happy Ending.

Thereafter Mr. Druce and Olivia are chased hither and thither by Dr. Grundt, head of the kaiser's secret police. Now they are arrested in a café. Again they are trailed to a meeting place in one of the worst dens in Berlin. Finally, they are held

GOOD MORNING!

Life is strange, isn't it? Just when you think you have it by the tail—there isn't any tail!

Take the case of Lulu Smith and Bob Grover in "Forbidden." Innocently, through absolutely no plan or desire of their own, they are thrown together at a time when both are sad, lonely, and desperately yearning for companionship. Grover is a successful lawyer married to an invalid wife whom he respects, admires, and cherishes as a sister but whom he has never really loved as a husband.

Lulu is a small town librarian who has drawn all her savings and staked them on One Good Time. She's never had clothes, never known gayety—so one day, rebelling at the gray humdrumness of her life, she decides on a two weeks' vacation that shall be the real thing—good hotels, music, smart clothes, smart people—L-I-F-E! She and Grover, who is taking his first rest in years, meet on a boat bound for Havana.

Lulu's stateroom is 66. Grover's is 99. The similarity of the numbers when looked at upside down brings about the meeting of the two and starts the acquaintance that blossoms into friendship which ripens into the love that blesses and curses them all their days.

It is agreed that, while they're play-

Film Year Sees New Celebrities; Old Favorites Stage Comebacks

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Hollywood, like the rest of the world, is in stock-taking mood with the coming of the new year, and while business matters in films have seen upheavals, stress, and changes, as elsewhere, the assets loom large when one reviews the new stars developed during the last year.

Clark Gable of the male stars has come up with a meteoric rush seldom equaled by a masculine star. Close behind him trudges Jackie Cooper, who, of diminutive stature, is an important resuscitator at the box office of sick theaters. Also among the young folks is Master Robert Coogan.

Leslie Howard, who is a bit diffident about devoting himself entirely to Hollywood, preferring the stage, made an outstanding success and is expected back soon for more parts.

Outstanding Hits.

Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi, of "Frankenstein" and "Dracula" fame, have made outstanding personal hits, issuing from the unknowns into prominent places in the starry firmament. Wallace Beery has been issued in a third edition, more popular than ever before, and this year has seen the greatest success of all Beery's three epochs of stardom.

Lionel Barrymore, too, is in another and more successful period of screen popularity, after being almost retired as an actor for some time. Death deprived Robert Williams of the fruit of fame. Arriving in a big way in "other man" rôles, Williams was one of the outstanding new hits of the screen. Robert Ames, also established during the last year in films, died suddenly, too.

Paul Lukas with his charming foreign accent and Fredric March with his amazing versatility, recently exhibited in "Dr. Jekyll," have established their popularity strongly.

Edward G. Robinson and James Cagney, both new on the screen, rode to success on machine guns in their gangster pictures. Recently, Lawrence Olivier has made quite a hit.

Leaving the men for a moment, and this year was certainly heavily laden with successful males, one finds among the new women hits, Ann Harding, who has had the most novel and successful note to contribute to the

MINSTREL GROUP, CHORUS, BAND TO GIVE "GAYETIES"

Lombard Legion - Lions' Benefit to Open Friday.

"Gayeties of 1932," a Lombard Legion-Lions band benefit show, will be given at the Glenbard auditorium, Glen Ellyn, on Friday and Saturday nights.

This band, which won third place in the competition in last year's American Legion state convention at Peoria, has been heard at many Du Page county gatherings. Ralph M. Howell is director; Frank R. Flynn, drum-major; Gerald D. Bassett, president; R. G. Clarke, manager. On the committee in charge of the organization are W. C. Buchholz, E. F. Baethke, G. D. Bassett, E. J. Tomendal, H. W. Lichtenberger, and R. G. Clarke.

The first part of the benefit show will consist of band numbers, the second part a variety program of singing and dancing, with a chorus of 20 girls selected from the glee club of Glenbard High school, and the third part will feature an old fashioned minstrel. Col. Ned Seymour will give a clarinet solo during one of the intermissions.

Cicero post, No. 95, has begun the new year with an Americanism program which reaches into the entire field of education and public service, according to Dr. C. W. Chamberlain, chairman of the Americanization committee, who was recently drafted by Mayor Joseph Z. Klenha for the Joint Emergency Relief commission.

Arrangements have been completed to conduct a George Washington bicentennial essay contest in the six Cicero grade schools as a part of the program. A Sunday Evening club is being organized by the post, and encouragement is being given adults to attend the night schools. The post is also lending its aid to the solution of the unemployment problem. Coöperating with other civic bodies, the post is sponsoring a play, directed by Miss Ann Venddley, to be held during the month at Morton High school, proceeds to be used in welfare work.

New card tables have been purchased by the auxiliary of Berwyn post, No. 422, in readiness for a party to be held Friday night.

By request, John F. Conley post, No. 221, will present for the third time, the war show, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp." The play will be given on the evening of Jan. 22 at the La Follette park auditorium, Laramie avenue and Hirsch street.

The post has enrolled 25 new members since last August.

On Tuesday night the post will hold a smoker at its club rooms, 3862 West Grand avenue.

The permanent charter of Charles Roth post, No. 692, will be presented by Edward McGinnis, fifth district commander, at the post's meeting Tuesday night at Legion hall, 604 Harrison street. The event has also been designated as past commanders' night, and Past Commanders John V. Barry, Arthur G. Allard, Herbert E. W. Bach, and Fred E. Rice will take part in the ceremonial.

Following the challenge of Three Links post auxiliary to a membership contest, Yarmo-De Vere unit, No. 469, has eequaled its enrollment of last year. The result has inspired Mrs. I. Levinson to write a poem lauding "The Unit that Never Fails," and its president, Mrs. Elvira Sweney, and co-workers.

Bell Telephone and Commonwealth Edison posts will be gusts of Advertising Men's post, No. 38, at its meeting tomorrow noon at Hotel Sherman. The speaker will be Dr. J. O. Perrine, who will talk on "Television."

The service department of the American Legion, 209 North La Salle street, reports that the army discharge of Howard L. Erickson has been found and turned in to that office. If Mr. Erickson will call for the certificate it will be turned over to him.

Forges auxiliary, No. 196, will be hostess to Fifth district units on Jan. 20 at Napoleon hall, 3956 5th avenue.

The auxiliary of Lawndale-Crawford post, No. 98, will hold a hard times party and dance on Jan. 23 at Kafka's hall, 26th street and Avers avenue. Proceeds will be used for service work.

Henry Hagestedt was recently elected commander of Schley camp, No. 58, United Spanish War veterans; Miles Butler, senior vice commander; Blaine Barry, junior vice commander; W. R. Schumann, officer of the day; and Charles Herre, officer of the guard. Walter Ivin was appointed adjutant; M. J. Budinger, quartermaster; E. A. Gustafson, historian; Herbert Nessler, chaplain; Dr. Otto Holinger, surgeon; George Boettcher, senior color sergeant; Charles Jahnke, junior color sergeant; J. W. Brady, chief musician; W. A. Bradley, E. A. Gustafson, and William H. Schaeff, trustees.

Joint installation with the auxiliary will be held Wednesday night at the Paul Revere fieldhouse, with Charles Essig, past department commander, as installing officer. John J. Garrity, past department commander, will be master of ceremonies. All Spanish American war veterans are invited to attend.

A concert by the Central Republic bank male chorus, a talking picture featuring Quin Ryan of THE TRIBUNE's radio station, W-G-N, and numbers by opera and radio talent are announced by George R. Apfel for the meeting of Chicago Elevated post, No. 184, on Friday night, at room 1833, in the Edison building. The meeting will be the first to be held under the administration of the new L post commander, James A. Hrubes.

Cicero Rotary Wins Cake in Contest with Oak Park

Members of the Oak Park Rotary club will present the Cicero Rotary club with a cake at noon, Jan. 18, when they visit Cicero. Delivery of the cake to the Cicero group will signify that club's victory in the annual attendance contest between the two organizations. Harry L. Judd will lead the Oak Park contingent.

New Directors of West 22d Business Men

The new directorate of the West 22d Street Parkway Business Men's association met Thursday to discuss the program of community improvements outlined for 1932. Front, left to right: Frank P. Marek, director; Dr. E. J. Lusk, recording secretary; R. G. Mrazek, president; Jerome Moravec, vice president, and William J. Stastny, financial secretary. Rear: Frank J. Kasik, director; E. H. Miller, chairman of the board of directors; John J. Sedlacek, sergeant at arms; Harry E. Benedict, director; E. C. Rahn, treasurer, and Anthony Styblo, director.

PILSEN PROTESTS USE OF QUARRY AS REFUSE DUMP

'Stinking Morass' Stirs Neighborhood.

Residents and business men of the Pilsen district voiced their strenuous objections last week to the use of the old lime quarry bounded by Damen avenue, Wood, 18th, and 19th streets, as a dump for the city's refuse. Protest led by officials of the Schoenhofen company's old plant at 1926 West 18th street, directly across from the dump, has been addressed to various city departments with no result, William Lange, assistant sales manager of the Schoenhofen company, reported.

"People down here in this neighborhood are up in arms about the situation," said Mr. Lange yesterday. "groups of residents, civic organizations, and churches have held protest meetings, but have gained nothing. This is a good Polish community, hard working, but without political pull, so the residents go on suffering. From the standpoint of the smoke and stench alone something will have to be done about it."

Called "Stinking Morass."

The dump which was a lime quarry operated by the Union Lime company until last spring is now rented by the city from the Newman Construction company, owner of the property. It is cut 400 feet deep in solid rock. The bottom Mr. Lange describes as a "stinking morass of refuse and dirty water."

Small fires frequently break out in the refuse, giving off a foul smoke. Once every few minutes during the day, the complainants say, a truckload of rubbish is dumped over the side to go clattering down the rocky sides of the quarry.

"In the summer the dust and smoke from the dump is so strong passersby or persons working in the immediate vicinity can scarcely get their breath," continued Mr. Lange. "Last summer a 17 year old boy searching for pigeons' nests fell to his death in the quarry. It is unsafe from the standpoint of traffic for only a flimsy board wall surrounds it. If an automobile should hit this, it would cave in immediately."

Call Peril to Children.

The dump is also pointed to as a menace as far as Harrison park is concerned. Here hundreds of children in the neighborhood play, inhaling meanwhile all of the smoke and odor from the refuse. Among the churches complaining against this situation are St. Adalbert's at 7th street and Paulina avenue, St. Vitus' at 18th street and Paulina, St. Pius', 19th street and Ashland avenue, St. Paul's, and Sacred Heart.

Mr. Lange explained that complaining workers and residents have called the city hall time after time, only to be shifted from one department to another with no final result. Complaint has now been addressed to the city council through Ald. James B. Bowler [25th].

WHO'S WHO ON WEST SIDE

[Loubell Photo.]

Charles Leslie Rice, vice president in charge of the Western Electric Hawthorne works, is receiving congratulations today upon completion of 30 years in the telephone industry. A believer in mutual coöperation of management and employé, Mr. Rice has built up an industrial force with an enviable record for service in any emergency.

As head of Illinois' largest manufacturing plant, he has become one of the leaders in the Illinois Manufacturers' association. He is president of the Chicago Safety council.

He is a member of the public affairs committee of the Union League club, a member of the Electric club, a member of the Western Society of Engineers, the La Grange Country club, and a number of fraternal organizations, including Sigma Alpha Phi. He is first vice president of the First National bank of La Grange, a director of the Cicero State bank, and a member of the La Grange park district commission.

Mr. Rice was born in Pittsfield, Mass., and holds degrees from Massachusetts college and Boston university. He began as a student with the Western Electric company in New York in 1902 shortly after receiving the degree of bachelor of science. From the engineering department he worked up to assistant superintendent of the New York shops, and from there went to the London factory of the company as works manager. After three years abroad he came to Chicago. His residence is at 300 South 7th avenue, La Grange.

A NEW 22D ST., 1932 OBJECTIVE OF BUSINESS MEN

Ask Better Lights and More Parking Space.

West 22d street is in line for a major share of improvements in 1932 if the 22d Street Parkway Business Men's association carries through the program adopted at the annual meeting last week. R. G. Mrazek, newly elected president to succeed the late Ignatius J. Kaiser, emphasized yesterday the need of improved street lighting, parking facilities, and sidewalks along 22d street as well as the removal of the bottle neck at Kenton avenue.

"The parkway in the center of 22d street through our district from Hamlin to Kenton avenue makes lighting a problem," said Dr. E. J. Lusk, secretary of the organization. "In its present condition this is a dark thoroughfare. The city council has promised us some additional lights in the center parkway, but this is not what we want.

Want 26th St. Lights Duplicated.

"The association will propose a plan this year to the city council patterned after that carried out on 26th street. A new post was erected in this case between the posts already in and the candle power was considerably increased. This is what we want to obtain for 22d street. We are, of course, primarily interested in our own neighborhood, but we should like to see the whole street better illuminated."

The 22d Street Parkway association is also advocating cutting away the parkways between the street pavement and the sidewalk, using half of this width for a wider pavement to facilitate parking and the other half for a wider sidewalk. Members of the association will work through Ald. John Toman [23d] to obtain this improvement.

Elimination of the bottleneck at Kenton avenue calls for the widening of the 22d street tunnel under the tracks of the Chicago Inner Belt line. Dr. Lusk explained that 22d street narrowed at this point to a thoroughfare wide enough for only one lane of traffic.

For Superhighway on 22d.

The Parkway association has also given its unanimous indorsement to the development of 22d street rather than 19th street as a superhighway from the lake front to the city limits. Dr. Lusk points out that 22d street has already been cut through to the outer drive and is widened at both the eastern and western extremities. The association has already obtained the coöperation of the Central Improvement association in indorsing this improvement.

Jerome Moravec is vice president of the 22d Street Parkway association for 1932; William Stastny, financial secretary; E. C. Rahn, treasurer; and J. J. Sedlacek, sergeant-at-arms. The new board of directors is composed of E. H. Miller, Joseph Dvorak, Frank P. Marek, Frank Kasik, H. E. Benedict, and Joseph Styolo.

ASK 250 GROUPS TO JOIN BATTLE FOR CLEAN RIVER

Northwest Walton League Seeks Co-operation.

Two hundred fifty civic, improvement and women's clubs on the northwest side were asked last week by Northwest chapter, No. 168, Izaak Walton League of America, to join in a concerted movement to obtain the cleanup of the polluted Des Plaines river. Dr. Frank J. Smejkal, chairman of the chapter's anti-pollution committee, in a letter pointing to the necessity of early action in solving the pollution problem from a health standpoint, suggested that each organization adopt a resolution similar to one inclosed with the letter, at its next meeting pledging support of the cleanup movement begun by the chapter.

The suggested resolution would also have the organizations go on record asking that "immediate steps be taken by the public authorities having jurisdiction of the subject to prevent the continually increasing pollution of the Des Plaines river and the north branch of the Chicago river, and to restore these streams as nearly as possible to their original pure condition."

Members of Committee.

The resolution further provides for the appointment of a delegate from the organization to act as its representative on the northwest anti-pollution committee. Copies of the resolutions are to be sent to Charles A. Boos, secretary of the anti-pollution committee. Other members of the committee are Dr. Richard F. Greening, John W. Tauchen, and Ald. James C. Moreland [41st].

"It is a matter of common knowledge," Dr. Smejkal's letter reads, "to almost everyone living in the northwestern section of Chicago and Cook county that the polluted condition of the Des Plaines river and the north branch of the Chicago river has been for years a menace to the health of those whose homes are adjacent to them and has had a destructive effect upon the use for recreational purposes of our forest preserves which border upon them for almost their entire length in the northern half of the county. Both these streams are at present and have been for a long period of years practically open sewers, giving off offensive odors and being unsafe for bathing or even wading by children."

Act To Correct Condition.

"Early in 1931 a committee was appointed by northwest chapter of the Izaak Walton league, to take such action as might be necessary looking toward the correction of this condition. The committee found that it would be necessary to deal with various public bodies and officials having jurisdiction over these streams, such as the sanitary district, the forest preserve district, the city of Chicago and the sanitary water board. Most of these have given assurances of their willingness to render such assistance as lies within their legal powers.

"Recently the clean streams advisory committee appointed by the trustees of the forest preserve district has begun an active campaign to work out a solution of this problem, in which they have the coöperation of the Chicago Regional Planning association.

"It is the desire of the northwest chapter to enlist in this movement the interest and active help of every civic and community club in the northwest section of Cook county by the formation of a committee to consist of a representative of each of them."

AUSTIN CHURCH SERIES TO GIVE MISSION SURVEY

Methodist Secretary Is First Speaker.

A school of missions presenting a series of lectures by widely known preachers and special musical programs opened Wednesday evening at the Austin Methodist Episcopal church, 5602 Race avenue, to continue through Feb. 10. Dr. Arthur D. Klontz, pastor of the Austin church, which has the largest membership of any Methodist Episcopal church in Chicago, is in charge of the mission sessions.

Dr. C. P. Hargraves, secretary of the depantent of missionary education in the Methodist church, delivered the opening address Wednesday evening to an audience of more than 1,000. He discussed "The World Service of a Methodist Episcopal Church." One of the features of the program was a display presenting the flag of every nation. The choir of the First Bohemian Methodist church presented the musical program and Mrs. Joseph F. Sefl sang a group of solos in Bohemian.

"China Looks Ahead."

Dr. Klontz announced a stereopticon lecture entitled "China Looks Ahead" for the second meeting next Wednesday evening in the church auditorium. Ren-Shen-Yu will bring a message on "China's Need for Christianity," and music will be presented by singers from the Chinese Church of Christ.

Members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Austin church are rehearsing the dramatic skit "Out of Yesterday Into Tomorrow" to be presented the evening of Jan. 20 when foreign missionary night is observed. A stereopticon lecture the evening of Jan. 27 will show the various types of mission work done in home fields. The Rev. William B. O'Neill, pastor of the First Spanish Methodist Episcopal church, is scheduled to speak the same night on "Christ Among My People." A group of Mexican singers will present the program.

Women to Give Program.

Members of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Austin church will have the meeting of Feb. 3 in charge. They will produce various examples of the work done by Methodist women in this country. The series will conclude with a program entitled "The Striking of America's Hour" the evening of Feb. 10. A pageant of Christian liberty will be presented by Mrs. Laura Scherer Copenhaver, Mrs. Katherine Scherer Cronk and Miss Mathilde A. Vossler. More than 60 members of the church brilliantly costumed are to take part in this production.

SCOUT LEADERS OF WEST SIDE TO DINE ON TUESDAY

West side Boy Scout leaders will gather at the Midwest Athletic club, 6 North Hamlin avenue, Tuesday evening for the 16th annual dinner and meeting of the district scout organization. Homer D. Jones, district chairman, will preside.

The program will include the election of officers for the new year, reports of west side scouting during the last year by committee chairmen, and the presentation of awards and training certificates.

Philip L. Seman, director of the Jewish People's institute, will deliver the principal address, "Modern Leadership for Modern Youth." Perry A. Lint, Chicago scout executive, will also speak, using as his subject "Scouting—1932's Safest Investment."

The executive committee will have 34 eagle scouts as guests at the dinner. They represent the largest yearly group to achieve the eagle badge, the highest award in scouting, since the inception of scouting on the west side of Chicago.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know

CHAUFFEURS will have their day, at least once each month. Fifty Oak Park drivers have formed a social club to be known as the Oak Park Chauffeurs' Social club. On meeting days milady will walk or call a cab and do so quite willingly, for 'tis understood she is quite in sympathy with the purpose of the new association, "the advancement of chauffeurs in every way possible." Though there is no affiliation with the Chicago Private Chauffeurs' Benevolent association, we understand that the new club is patterned after it. Emil Schuber of 531 North East avenue is the moving force in the suburban group.

Fifty years is only a brief span to Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hanrahan, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary the second day of the new year with a nuptial high mass at St. Thomas Aquinas church. Father E. L. Dondanville officiated and the two youngest Hanrahans, Mary and Patrick, took the parts of bridesmaid and best man. There followed a reception and wedding breakfast at the Graemere hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Hanrahan are the parents of Mrs. Frank O'Keefe, William Hanrahan, Miss Margaret, and Miss Joanne Hanrahan. The home is at 146 North Lorel avenue.

THERE'S perpetual sunshine in the Frank Tesnow home out in Oak Park these days, for Mr. Tesnow finds that he can make good use of the sun ray lamp awarded him as first prize in the holiday display contest sponsored by the Oak Park chamber of commerce. The Tesnow yard at 715 Grove avenue was the setting for an illuminated representation of the Nativity. The figures were all carved out of wood and interesting shadow effects were created by vari-colored lights.

One of the first departures for warmer climes was Mrs. Charles Burgess of 5338 Monroe street, who set out for California last week. Before she left the west side Mrs. Burgess was a guest at a number of farewell parties, among them one given by Mrs. John McGetrick of 5238 Monroe street. Mrs. Burgess expects to spend the remainder of the winter in Los Angeles.

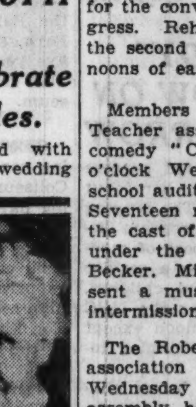
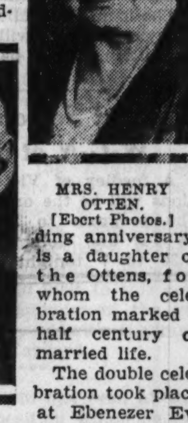
A surprise such as Burt Sandell received on his 28th birthday can only come once in a lifetime, he's convinced. Leo Beck helped put the party over with plenty of tricks, and pretty Betty Shamberg, recently named Miss Portage Park, was there with a merry greeting for all her friends. Burt's home is at 5627 Byron street.

PARENTS' 50TH ANNIVERSARY IS DAUGHTER'S 25TH

150 Friends Celebrate with Two Couples.



MRS. HENRY OTTEN. [Ebert Photos.]



HENRY OTTEN.

Silver decorations mingled with those of gold at the recent wedding anniversaries of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Otten, 1312 South Kominsky avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Max Roegner, 1440 South 56th court, Cicero. Mrs. Roegner, celebrating with her husband their 25th wedding anniversary, is a daughter of the Ottens, for whom the celebration marked a half century of married life.

The double celebration took place at Ebenezer Evangelical Lutheran church, 13th street and Harding avenue, and was attended by 150 relatives and friends. The Rev. William Gahl, pastor of the church, officiated in the renewal of vows, and Max Singer, a teacher in the church school, was toastmaster at the dinner served in the assembly hall.

Facetious Messages Give Laugh.

Mr. Singer read to the assemblage numerous telegrams of congratulations for the two couples, some of them genuine and others purporting to come from world leaders. There was a general belief that these latter messages originated at Mr. Singer's elbow, but this did not detract from the thrill they created.

The Ottens were both born in Germany; Mr. Otten, 76 years ago, and his wife 67 years ago. Mr. Otten came to Chicago at the age of 26, and correspondence with the girl of his choice back in Bremen caused her to make the journey across the seas.

Wedding Guest Attends.

Their wedding in Chicago 50 years ago was attended by seven persons, one of whom, Herman Otten, a cousin, was present at the anniversary. Mr. Otten was a moulder by trade, and he and his wife have lived at their present address for the last 22 years.

Mrs. Roegner is one of the couple's two living daughters, the other being Mrs. Rudolph Greamer, 1245 North Mayfield avenue. There are eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

MILLARD CHURCH WILL HEAR TALK ON TAX MUDDLE

Members of the Millard Congregational church, 2301 South Central Park avenue, will hear John O. Rees, tax expert and director of the joint committee on real estate valuation for Chicago and Cook county, speak at 7:30 this evening in the church auditorium. Mr. Rees will discuss "The Local Tax Muddle." The St. George Choral society, directed by Robert Campbell, will present a musical program. This is one of a series of programs at the Millard church sponsored by the Adult Education Council of Chicago. The first of a series of week night programs furnished west siders by the council will be given at 7:30 Thursday evening at the Shedd park fieldhouse.

IT'S DADS' WEEK FOR WEST SIDE P.-T. SOCIETIES

Safety Leader, Ministers to Be Speakers.

Fathers of boys and girls enrolled in west side schools will be special guests at programs this week sponsored by a number of city and suburban Parent-Teacher associations.

Ralph B. Henley, principal of Nash school, and Mrs. Ernest C. Wegman, president of the Nash association, will greet the fathers at a meeting at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the school assembly hall, 4837 West Erie street. The Rev. J. J. Hitchins, pastor of the Lamon Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, will deliver the address and Everett G. Mitchell, radio entertainer and a graduate of the Nash school, will present a group of numbers. The Nash Boys' Glee club will complete the program.

The Herbert Spencer Parent-Teacher association will hold a fathers' night meeting at 7:30 o'clock Thursday in the school assembly hall, 214 North Lavergne avenue. The Rev. Walton E. Cole, pastor of the Third Unitarian church, has accepted an invitation to speak on "What Every Parent Should Know About Child Psychology." A violin concert will be presented by pupils of the Twentieth Century School of Music under the direction of I. F. Kogan. Mrs. F. L. Otto will preside. Mrs. C. J. Baxter planned the evening's program.

Father's night will be celebrated by the Lowell School Parent-Teacher association of Oak Park the evening of Jan. 19 when community safety is the theme of the program. C. L. Rice, president of the Chicago safety council, will speak.

The Ella Flagg Young Parent-Teacher association will hold its first meeting of the new year at 1:30 o'clock Thursday in the assembly hall, 1434 Parkside avenue. Mrs. Gladys Been will give an illustrated lecture on "Relief Needs This Winter in Chicago." The boys' chorus of the sixth and seventh grades at the Young school will give the musical program.

The mothers' chorus of the west side council of the Illinois congress of parents and teachers will rehearse at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the La Follette park fieldhouse. Mrs. Harry Dumke announced yesterday that the chorus would rehearse songs for the convention of the Illinois congress. Rehearsals will continue on the second and fourth Monday afternoons of each month.

Members of the Delano Parent-Teacher association will present the comedy "Crazy to Reduce" at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening in the school auditorium, 3937 Wilcox street. Seventeen mothers will take part in the cast of the production, which is under the direction of Miss Esther Becker. Miss Pauline Sachs will present a musical program during the intermissions.

The Robert Burns Parent-Teacher association will meet at 1:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the school assembly hall, 2524 South Central Park avenue. Mrs. Walter Truc, a member of the association, will give a reading and pupils of the school will present a dramatic sketch. Mrs. Mamie Fritsch is chairman of the program.

The Parent-Teacher association of Farragut Junior High school will hold a business meeting, followed by a program, at 1:30 o'clock Thursday in the school auditorium, 2336 South Spaulding avenue.

CITY OF BOYDOM SHOWS HOBBIES AT FAIR TONIGHT

Frank Annunzio was named mayor of the American Boys' commonwealth for 1932 in a closely contested election last week at the west side self-governing boys' club. Young Annunzio will be installed tonight when the club celebrates the first anniversary of the opening of the headquarters at 3415 West 13th place.

A boys' fair, with exhibits of all the activities promoted by the commonwealth, will be the feature of the evening. There will be examples of woodwork, art, clay modeling, photography, metal craft, journalism, stamp collecting, and Boy Scout activities. A stage show produced by the dramatic and glee clubs, the orchestra and the gymnasium classes will complete the program.

Other boys who will take office tonight include Jerome Cutler, elected the new city clerk, and Norman Spilky, the corporation counsel. Norman Berman is the chief justice with Isadore Cutler and Charles Sutler as associate justices. George Gubov was elected bailiff and Sam Sandler, clerk of the court.

Victor Sikevitz will serve as commissioner of public safety this year with Eddie Marcus as the new commissioner of public welfare. Members of the supreme council are Phineus Indritz, Meyer Sheffris, and Alex Goldman.

The near west side neighborhood served by the Boys' commonwealth is divided into ten wards with an alderman representing each ward. Elections to these positions last week were as follows: Abe Singer, 1st; Leonard Sindler, 2d; Max Wizer, 3d; Joseph Matlin, 4th; Jack Ott, 5th; Sol Greenspahn, 6th; Sidney Small, 7th; Milton Lidovsky, 8th; Alvin Goldberg, 9th; and Harold Udkoff, 10th.

NEW LEADERS OF WEST TOWN CHAMBER

Otto F. Profant will be in touch with the affairs of more than 900 west, northwest, and southwest side community organizations this year as the new president of the Chicago West Town Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Profant was selected Wednesday evening. Left to right: Harold W. Hawes, vice president; Mr. Profant; H. J. Ruggles, executive secretary; Thomas M. Chisholm, chairman of the board of directors; Frank J. Bilek, secretary, and John G. Zelezny, treasurer. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

SOUTH OAK PARK BODY WORKS FOR RAIL DEPRESSION

Keating Outlines 1932 Projects.

A. J. KEATING. [Ebert Photo.]

Several hundred residents of south Oak Park boosted their neighborhood at a community rally sponsored by the South Oak Park Improvement association Thursday evening in the assembly hall of the Washington Irving school. A. J. Keating of 1028 South Harvey avenue, president of the association, outlined some of the improvements the organization has obtained for this section of the village during the last 18 years and outlined the program the association has indorsed for 1932.

Depression of the tracks of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad and of the Rapid Transit lines heads the list of projects included in the new program. Mr. Keating emphasized that the association would bring all the pressure possible to bear on railroad officials to abolish the grade crossings that are "a menace to traffic and pedestrians."

Want Gas Plant Removed.

Closely linked with the railroad improvement is another calling for the removal of the gas plant at Lombard avenue and Garfield street by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois when the company's franchise expires. The association will urge the Illinois when the company's franchise that it may lay out a park on the site, Mr. Keating explained.

"In all of the improvements we have sponsored we have had the enthusiastic coöperation of President Willis McFeely and Dudley C. Myers, commissioner of public works," Mr. Keating said, "and we hope for their continued support this coming year. One group will also take increased interest this year in keeping undesirables out of the neighborhood, both residential and business."

Commended for School Project.

Officers of the association were commended Thursday evening for their work in behalf of the $250,000 bond issue voted last April which made possible the erection of an addition to the Irving school. Defeated at an earlier election, the South Oak Park Improvement association launched a strenuous campaign in behalf of the issue at last spring's election. The organization also sponsored the $50,000 bond issue which has made possible the development of a playground in the south end of the village at Lombard avenue and Garfield street. The recreation house is nearing completion and provisions are now being made by the Oak Park playground board for ice skating this winter.

W. SIDE CHURCHES TO TAKE PART IN NORMAL SCHOOL

West and north side Episcopal churches will participate in a normal school project for church school teachers and clergy, which is to be held in the community house of St. James' Episcopal church, 666 Rush street, for six consecutive Monday evenings beginning tomorrow. This was announced by Miss Vera C. Gardner, supervisor of religious education of the Episcopal church in Chicago.

The Rev. Gerald E. Moore, rector of the Church of the Advent, 2610 North Francisco avenue, will conduct a class on the "Life of Christ"; the Rev. Phillip W. MacDonald, rector, St. Martin's church, Austin, will have charge of a study group on the "Outline of the Bible," while the Rev. John B. Hubbard, rector, St. Mary's church, Park Ridge, will have a class on "Psychology and Religion."

Mrs. Cleon E. Bigler of Western Springs, will assist George C. Kubitz, executive secretary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, in conducting a course on "Boys and Girls' Work." The Rev. Mansel B. Green, rector, Church of the Good Samaritan, Oak Park, will be treasurer of the school.

50 GOLDEN YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Dietrich Goltermann.

Mr. and Mrs. Dietrich Goltermann of Lombard recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a reception for relatives and friends. Both Mr. and Mrs. Goltermann were born in Du Page county and for 33 years after their marriage resided in the old Goltermann homestead in York Center. They are the parents of Mrs. Frank Steben of Elmhurst, the Rev. Paul F. Goltermann of Hammond, Gerhard F. Goltermann of Detroit, Mrs. Edward Stafford, Ernst Goltermann, Miss Anna Goltermann, Miss Ida Goltermann and Miss Emma Goltermann, all of Lombard.

CRANE TECH HIGH GRADS TO HOLD PROM ON FRIDAY

Midyear commencement festivities for Crane Technical High school graduates will begin Friday evening when the annual senior prom is held in the grand ballroom of the Shoreland hotel, 55th street at Lake Michigan. This event will be followed in turn by a dinner given by the staff of the Crane Chronicle, student publication, numerous departmental club parties, and the graduation exercises the evening of Jan. 27 in Bartholf hall.

Bernard Shapiro, president of the graduating class, will lead the grand march at Friday evening's prom with Miss Esther Brill,

Norman L. Samuelson, sponsor of the graduating class, selected the members of this year's prom committee on the basis of scholarship and leadership in activities. OTTO F. PROFANT NAMED TO LEAD W. TOWN C. OF C.

H. W. Hawes Chosen Vice President.

Otto F. Profant was elected president of the West Town Chamber of Commerce to succeed Thomas M. Chisolm at the annual meeting of the board of directors Wednesday evening at the Midwest Athletic club, 6 North Hamlin avenue. Mr. Profant is owner of the drug company that bears his name at 5200 West Madison street.

Born a west sider, Mr. Profant has been active in community affairs for the last 20 years. For five years he has devoted his attention particularly to the work of the West Town chamber. Early in December he was elected to a second term on the directorate of this body which, in turn, selects the four executives.

Heads Madison Rotarians.

Mr. Profant was named president of the Madison Rotarians last fall. He is a director of the Austin Federation of Clubs and a charter member of the Austin Kiwanis club. He received his early education in the west side grammar schools, and later at Medill High school. He attended the school of pharmacy of the University of Illinois until 1911, when he established himself in the drug business. In this he continued until 1925, when he sold out to spend a year in California and Florida. It was in 1926 that Mr. Profant established his present business.

Harold W. Hawes will assist Mr. Profant in 1932 as vice president of the West Town chamber. Frank Bilek is the new secretary and John J. Zelezny, treasurer. Frank R. Campbell, president of the Austin federation, was named chairman of the ways and means committee. The members of this body are William F. McHugh, J. L. Friedman, Mr. Hawes and John Klunder.

Members of the Board.

The new directorate, from which the officers of the chamber were selected, is composed of the following men: George Mattmiller, Eben Stanley, K. C. Koltz Jr., Frank J. Bilek, J. D. Allen, John F. Miller, Dr. Edward L. Heintz, Otto H. Berz, A. L. Koehler, F. W. Murray, Otto Schulz, J. L. Friedman, George D. Gaw, M. J. Sasgen, George R. Boyles, W. F. Schmidt, Thomas R. Heany, M. I. MAY BREEN MAPS NEW FIGHT FOR FAMED UKULELE

Spurned by Music Union, She Plans Appeal.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

MAY SINGHI BREEN

When Walter Damrosch was asked what he thought about the ukulele as a musical instrument he said that he was totally unacquainted with the species.

But when May Singhi Breen played "When Day Is Done" for him the dean of American conductors observed, "It is delightful—charming — like raindrops in sunshine. In your hands the ukulele becomes a console."

Deems Taylor, No. 1 American composer, ranks the ukulele high. At least it's better than triangles, snare drums, blocks, gongs and such.

And the dictionary says it's "a guitar-like musical instrument with four strings."

However, Miss Breen and the Musicians' union have been fighting for months over recognition of her radio famed ukulele as a musical instrument. And at last the union bosses have decided that the ukulele just doesn't belong.

"Well," countered May, "what is the theremin but an electrical dog that howls when you stroke it?"

The union fathers want May in [dues $50 a year] so they said in effect: "The theremin got in because the thereminists play other things, too. The players got their recognition on legit instruments and sneaked in their pets. Now, you play the piano; come in as a pianist and we'll list the uke."

But May balked at that and so the union said no. Now she has taken her case to the "supreme court" of the union. It looks like another battle of the century.

Nomination for the program of the year up to now: Lawrence Tibbett on NBC at 7:30 Monday evenings . . . Vaughn De Leath, on CBS two weeks, is booked for a seven weeks' vaudeville engagement . . . Vaughn is due for a brilliant comeback . . . "Ham" for amateur, is just English for the first syllable of amateur, we have just learned . . . Paul Whiteman shifts from paint to motor cars next Friday evening . . . Keeps the same hour and net . . . Rudy Vallee tugs at his ear just before going on the air and Graham McNamee is nervous until he gets going . . . Tony Wons has put out another book and "Are You Listenin'" is the new number played to his nightly recitation.

Capt. Billy Bryant's little speech over W-G-N Sunday about his show boat company and why they can't put on Hamlet was a mirthquake—and you would never have guessed that it was Bryant's radio debut and that he was frightened almost to paralysis by the microphone.

When the networks get an idea, they play it hard. The fortnight sees the opening of three "behind the microphone" programs—two on Columbia titled "Broadcasts Rehearsals," and "Back Scenes," with NBC announcing its "Dress Rehearsal" hour . . . There probably won't be any room for such spirited music as "The Ride of the Valkyries" on the new "Contented Program" or "Music that Satisfies."

SECOND MENTAL HYGIENE SERIES READY TO OPEN

Plans have been completed for a second series of talks on mental hygiene over W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. These talks are to be presented from 11:50 a. m. to 12 m. Thursdays by national authorities on their subjects.

A variety of subjects are considered in these talks and remedies for mental conditions suggested.

Among the speakers are: Miss Agnes A. Sharp, consulting psychologist of the Central free dispensary; Dr. Douglas Gordon Campbell, psychiatrist at the University of Chicago Student Health service, and Dr. Ralph C. Hamill, president of the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene.

The list of speakers and their subjects follow:

Jan. 14—"Fears. Imaginary and Otherwise," Miss Sharp.

Jan. 21—"That Inferiority Complex," Miss Sharp.

Jan. 28—"Why a Chip on the Shoulder," Dr. Campbell.

Feb. 4—"Do You Feel That the World Is Against You,"—Dr. Campbell.

Feb. 11—"Those Secret Ambitions," Miss Elizabeth C. Davis, chief psychatric social worker of the Child Guidance Clinic of Chicago.

Feb. 18—"Do You Feel That the World Owes You a Living,"—Dr. Hamill.

Feb. 25—"Love, Hate and Jealousy," Dr. Hamill.

March 3—"Why Worry," Dr. David B. Rotman, director psychopathic laboratory of the Municipal court of Chicago.

March 10—"That Tired Feeling," Dr. Rotman.

March 17—"Day Dreams," Miss Davis.

March 24—"Facing Yourself," [speaker to be announced].

Writes Fair Song

ART KASSEL.
[Bloom Photo.]

Members of the World's Fair committee have been invited to listen to a new song, "In 1933," written by Art Kassel, to be presented on W-G-N at 9:40 tonight and again at 10:15 o'clock Wednesday night by Kassel and his orchestra playing from the Bismarck hotel. Although a popular song, if it proves a hit, usually rewards the writer amply in royalty, Art has made it clear that if the song is accepted by the World's Fair committe, they have the privilege of distributing it as they see fit.

The words and chorus of the song are printed here so that listeners may sing along with Art Kassel as his orchestra plays it.

IN 1933.

Verse.

Hello! Central Station
Connect Ev'ry nation,
Chicago is sending the call.
And when they're connected
Tell them they're expected,
And sing this message to them all:

Chorus.

Where will you be in nineteen-thirty-three?
Where will you be, you'll be along with me—
We'll pack the old kit bag that we use to know
And whoop-whoop-whoopee for Chicago-go.
What'll you see in nineteen-thirty-three?
What'll you see, a new prosperity—
We're gonna hitch it—hike it—
But nevertheless, we're gonna like it
In nineteen-thirty-two,
In nineteen-thirty-three.

"HELLO, EUROPE" PROGRAMS TO BE HEARD ON W-G-N

The second of a series of typical American programs, entitled "Hello, Europe!", which the Columbia Broadcasting system is transmitting to Great Britain and the continental countries, will be heard on W-G-N at 3:15 tomorrow.

Performances by several of radio's best known entertainers will contribute to the international program, which will be opened by Freddie Rich and his Columbians orchestra playing a symphonic jazz arrangement of "Way Down South in Heaven."

Morton Downey, Tony Wons, and Jacques Renard's orchestra will follow with several selected favorites. Others of the array of talent to be introduced to Europe include Toscha Seidel, the Mills Brothers, Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer, the Boswell Sisters, Kate Smith, and Howard Barlow, conducting the Columbia Symphony orchestra—all to be heard in their characteristic offerings.

DR. LYNN HOUGH WILL BE SUNDAY EVENING SPEAKER

The Chicago Sunday Evening club will have Dr. Lynn Harold Hough of Drew university, Madison, N. J., as its speaker tonight in Orchestra hall. "Certainty in a World of Change" will be Dr. Hough's topic. Beginning at 7:30 p. m., the program will be broadcast by WMAQ.

Becker Will Give Fans Taste of Bass Fishing

Giant black bass, swaying palms under a hot sun, bait casting from the running board of an automobile—who doesn't want to go to Florida this winter and have some fun? Bob Becker will give sportsmen a taste of bass fishing in Florida tonight at 7:30 o'clock over W-G-N when he and his friend, Bill, get together for a fanning bee on southern angling, with the black bass playing the hero rôle.

Double Piano Recital Schedule Is Shifted

The double piano recitals by Allan Grant and Del Owen have been moved to 7:45 on Monday and Wednesday evenings. These popular programs present modern and diverting arrangements of piano music.

GABRILOWITSCH WILL CONDUCT N. Y. SYMPHONY

OSSIP GABRILOWITSCH.
[U. & U. Photo.]

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, celebrated pianist and conductor of the Detroit Symphony orchestra, will be the third guest conductor of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra to serve during the interim between Toscanini's departure for Europe and Bruno Walter's arrival. For the concert to be broadcast over W-G-N and Columbia from 2 to 4 p. m. Gabrilowitsch has chosen as the major work Beethoven's Fifth Symphony in C minor. As a fitting frame to this great work Gabrilowitsch will open the concert with the overture to Schubert's delightful opera, "Rosamonde," and as his concluding selection will interpret the beautiful symphonic suite, "Scheherazade."

"SINGING LADY" TO MAKE BOW ON NBC TOMORROW

Following her phenomenal success on W-G-N, where she made her debut about eight months ago, "The Singing Lady," who presents a program designed according to the best of modern kindergarten theory as a service for mothers, teachers, and children, is to make her debut over the NBC Blue network every afternoon except Saturdays and Sundays, beginning tomorrow.

Coming on the air just before children's evening meal, when the average mother is busiest and when it is of most importance that the children be quiet and restful, "The Singing Lady" will broadcast every afternoon, except Saturdays and Sundays, from 4:30 to 4:45 over eastern stations, from 5:15 to 5:30 over midwestern stations, and from 6 to 6:15 over W-G-N.

JUNGLE HUNTER SPEAKS FRIDAY THROUGH W-G-N

Frank Buck, jungle explorer, who brings back wild animals alive, will tell of his years of adventures to radio listeners at 1 o'clock on Friday, when he addresses the Executives' club at its weekly luncheon. His talk will be broadcast on W-G-N. Mr. Buck has brought back to this country over 100,000 specimens of birds, over 5,000 monkeys, hundreds of snakes, antelope and deer.

DAYS OF 1891, FIRST AUTOS, TO BE RECALLED

The days of 1891 and the appearance of the first automobiles will be recalled in today's edition of Musical Memories, over W-G-N and the Columbia network from 5:30 to 6 p. m. Tribute to the pioneers of the industry, Charles E. Duryea, Elwood Hayes, Elmer Apperson, and Henry Ford will be paid by the Melodymasters and Harry Disbrow in a program of musical selections of that day.

Broadway Threatened.

With all her reputation as the Great White Way, Broadway is on the defensive. Saratoga's 29.1 candlepower per capita is rated as the highest in the east.

CHICAGO'S STARS WILL PERFORM AT 10TH RADIO SHOW

Artists Will Appear on Television Screen.

Chicago's radio stars, performing before the microphone, in the Crystal studio at the 10th Annual Chicago Radio-Electrical show, in the Coliseum, from Jan. 18 to 24, will provide tens of thousands of Chicagoans an opportunity of viewing broadcasting as it is done in 1932. At the show which opens next week, programs put on before show visitors will be broadcast over local and net work stations.

Many of the radio artists will also appear on a giant television screen, along with celebrities of stage and screen who are already booked. The six ton television apparatus required to produce the great television pictures has a record of 155 successful television presentations.

U. A. Sanabria, the Chicago inventor and theatrical television specialist, will be in active charge during the week of the show. Carveth Wells, explorer of Africa, and an outstanding radio personality, will be master of ceremonies.

Dog to "Woof" on Televisor.

The Twentieth Century quartet is coming from Cleveland to make a television debut. "Timmy," the English bulldog owned by Col. William Roche, is to put on his famous "Woofing" act over television. The Chicago Business college girls' quartet is one of the acts scheduled for every day of the show, and the entire cast of Al Jolson's "The Wonder Bar" will be on hand Tuesday afternoon.

A. J. Carter, president of Carter Television corporation, and Arthur T. Haugh, general sales manager, Zenith Radio corporation, and officials of the Century of Progress, will be hosts to a large group from the membership of the Radio Wholesalers association and the National Federation of Radio associations at the exposition headquarters at luncheon, Tuesday.

Louis Buehn, Philadelphia, president of the Wholesalers, and James Aitken, Toledo, O., president of the Federation, are expected to arrive by the middle of the week to complete the details for the annual conventions of their respective associations. The Institute of Radio Service Men will also hold its convention concurrently with the show at the Congress.

Special television events will feature the show. One is the search for "Baby Television," now being conducted by the Fair stores in Chicago and Oak Park, among youngsters from one to five years old. Semi-finals are scheduled for each afternoon in the Coliseum.

Wade Offers Prizes.

Chicago's first television kit building contest will also be staged at the Coliseum, beginning at 2 p. m. opening day, just as soon as the doors of the Coliseum swing open. Clem F. Wade, president of Western Television corporation, has provided kits as prizes for the first four technical high school boys who can put a television kit together in the shortest space of time and with the best workmanship. Three heats will be run off each afternoon and evening.

The identity of Miss Radio and Miss Television, who will reign over the exposition, is to be announced this week.

Herbert Selections on W-G-N at 6:30 Tonight

A medley of Victor Herbert selections will be the orchestral feature of the program to be presented over W-G-N and Columbia network from 6:30 to 7 tonight.

BARITONE

"ABYSSINIA" IS HAROLD TEEN FOR "BE SEEING YOU"

Try This Schoolegiate Language.

Does young America talk English, or does it talk American? The answer, if you can believe Harold Teen, is for 100 per cent American. Of course, a few English words do slip in now and then, but the average Briton is all at sea when he tries to listen to the Harold Teen broadcast on the air from W-G-N at 6:15 each evening except Sunday.

A distinguished English visitor at the Drake hotel dropped in at the W-G-N studios recently just in time to hear a program originating from Pop Jenks' Sugar Bowl. As the program went on the furrows in his brow grew deeper and deeper, until he finally turned to an American friend and asked in a distressed tone of voice, "What on earth are they saying? It sounds like English, but the words don't make sense."

"Highschoolegiate Slanguage."

The visitor was politely informed that he was listening to "English as she is spoke" by the youth of America. One learned lexicographer has called it "the American language in the making," for more than one of these synthetic expressions has eventually found its way into the dictionary.

Blair Walliser, writer of the script, sums it up in the phrase Highschoolegiate slanguage" and traces its origin back to the days when Carl Ed, creator of the cartoon, popularized such famous phrases as "flaming youth," "hot pups," and "little lamb's lettuce."

Here's the Dictionary.

"Slanguage" styles, however, change as rapidly as styles in women's hats, and yesterday's pet expression may be a bromide today. Consequently, Bill [Harold Teen] Farnum, Jack [Beezie] Spencer, and Wally [Lilacs] Colbath have collaborated with Walliser in preparing a dictionary of current Americanese, which is appended herewith:

Abyssinia—I'll be seeing you.
Angel pie—Term of endearment [fem.].
Au reservoir—Good-by.
Aw, bugs—Expression of dissatisfaction.
Boople Doople [hey, hey &]—Greeting.
Comforter-comf [exclam.] — Polite variant of blanket-ty blank.
Dim wit—A dull fellow.
Empty sleeve—Same as dim wit.
Gangster date—Go for ride.
Huh-huh suit—Two pants suit.
Hay—Money, lucre.
Hotcha—Expression of pep.
Icy elbow [to give the]—Be indifferent to.
Igbay umbay—Big bum [from Pig Latin].
Jitters—A case of shaky nerves.
Malted milk maestro—A soda jerk.
Misprint—An unimportant or stupid person.
Nertz till it hurts [exclam.]—Expression of displeasure.
Nestle nymph—Term of endearment.
Olive oil [exclam.]—Good-by.
SLG on GGE [abbrev.]—Sweetest li'l girl on God's green earth.
Tin can cowboy—Driver of flivver.
Two fisted canary—One lacking in physical prowess.
Unsophisticated oyster — Very innocent person.

Neighborhood Theaters

"Blonde Crazy" keeps "Corsair" company this week at the Marbro theater. This bill offers everything from a racketeering film to another football yarn.

Kubec Glasmon and John Bright turned out "Blonde Crazy," replete with snappy lines. James Cagney leads the cast and Joan Blondell is his partner in crime. Cagney portrays the small town bellhop with big city ambitions. Miss Blondell is a hosteiry linen girl who agrees to assist the bellhop in lifting urban bank rolls from their owners. There follow some unbelievable episodes.

From football hero to hijacker on the bounding main is the course laid out for Chester Morris in "Corsair." Alison Loyd, once known as Thelma Todd, is pretty and sarcastic as the girl in the case. Fred Kohler is the villain.

"Frankenstein" Takes to Screen.

"Frankenstein," at the Paradise theater this week, is a blood-curdling movie—that's the only way to describe it. It's an adaptation of the novel by Mary Wollstonecroft Shelley, wife of the poet, which tells the morbid psychological romance of the man who decided to play God and create life. Colin Clive, the Capt. Stanhope of "Journey's End," is magnificent in one of the leading rôles, and Boris Karloff is a terrible, terrible monster.

Lamar Has Double Bill.

For west suburban residents there is "The Deceiver" on a double bill with "Rich Man's Folly" at the Lamar theater, Oak Park. The first picture is a mystery melodrama designed to keep you guessing. Lloyd Hughes, Dorothy Sebastian, and Ian Keith head the cast.

"Rich Man's Folly" brings George Bancroft back to the silver screen. He plays the principal rôle as a successful middle aged man who thinks along just one track—business. For the story, the picture is best.

"Five Star Final" at Byrd.

"Five Star Final" and "Flying High" are billed together again this week, this time at the Byrd theater. Take some of the hectic yellow journalistic story "Five Star Final" with a grain of salt. t's good entertainment, nevertheless, with a cast headed by Edward G. Robinson. Charlotte Greenwood leads the cast of "Flying High," with Bert Lehr, Kathryn Crawford, and Pat O'Brien.

Civic Music Delegates Hold Annual Meet

They're Here to Discuss Artists and Concerts for the Season of 1932-'33.

By Edward Moore.

out a deficit at the end of the season and it is happy. If by chance there should be a surplus it is carried over and applied to the costs of the following season. For these Civic Music associations are strictly not for profit, except the profit of bringing music into their communities.

The associations are all nationally affiliated through the Civic Concert Service, Inc., of which Miss Harshbarger is president. This office handles the tremendous volume of business incidental to supplying the various cities with desired artists, arrangements with piano companies, railways, etc., and in addition directs the extension of civic music into new cities.

To Discuss New Season.

The convention this week will concern itself with the music of 1932-'33. Every artist, every group of artists is discussed in detail. All who have appeared during the present season are named, and delegates relate to the convention how well they have been liked, whether they are under consideration for reëngagement, whether they can be recommended to other cities of the organization. The only way in which the situation could be improved would be for some of the artists to be present, for comments, whether of praise or blame, are both earnest and pointed.

What is most to the point is that the civic music plan has worked. It has grown from a single city, about ten years ago, to the present huge group of 230. It has gone into the field of big business, both as business and art. That is why it is the most interesting manifestation of the age.

When the Chicago Civic Opera company gives its special performance of "Aïda" on Friday night the delegates to the convention will be invited guests.

"Lohengrin" Scheduled.

Richard Wagner's "Lohengrin" will have its first performance this season as one feature of the eleventh week of opera at the Civic Opera house. It will be sung by the same cast that presented it during the early part of last season, and will mark the return of Lotte Lehmann, last of the regular members of the company to arrive.

Mme. Lehmann's Elsa last season established a new standard for the rôle with the Civic Opera. It was one of her most successful creations, and it is a fitting part for her reintroduction to the Chicago public. The cast also presents Maria Olszewska in her brilliant characterization of the baleful Ortrud; René Maison as Lohengrin, Hans Hermann Nissen as Telramund, Alexander Kipnis as King Henry and Eduard Habich as the Herald, with Egon Pollak presiding over the performance in the orchestra pit, and Dr. Erhardt directing the staging.

Writing of the performance by this cast last season, I had occasion to remark that it gave quite the best performance of the work that has been given since Chicago began having its own opera company twenty years ago. We had known and measured the work of Mme. Olszewska, Mr. Maison and Mr. Kipnis in this opera, but Mme. Lehmann and Mr. Nissen were both new and both promptly registered hits with the rest of the cast, giving the performance a balance it had never before achieved. Among other things that made it a pleasant performance was the excellent staging.

Three popular priced offerings are included in the schedule for the week which lists eight performances. They are "Parsifal" this afternoon at 2 o'clock, "Aïda" on Friday evening at 8 and "The Barber of Seville" on Saturday evening at 8. They bring before the opera going public some of the most popular artists in the company, for the casts include the names of Frida Leider, Claudia Muzio and Margherita Salvi, sopranos; Cyrena Van Gordon, contralto; René Maison, Charles Marshall and Tito Schipa, tenors; Hans Hermann Nissen, Eduard Habich, Augusto Beuf, Vanni-Marcoux and Salvatore Baccaloni, baritones, and Alexander Kipnis, Chase Baromeo and Virgilio Lazzari, bassos. The conductors are Egon Pollak for "Parsifal" and Roberto Moranzoni for "Aïda" and "The Barber of Seville."

Paul Althouse in Concert.

Paul Althouse, through with opera for the present, is out in the concert field and apparently doing quite as well there as he did at the Civic Opera house. His first assignment was with the St. Louis Symphony orchestra on the first and second days of the present year, when he sang solos from "Lohengrin" and "Die Walkuere," and for encores "Am Stillen Herd" and the Prize song from "Die Meistersinger."

His engagement with the Philadelphia orchestra for the first performance in America of Schoenberg's "Gurre-Lieder" on April 11, 12 and 13, in Philadelphia, and April 20 in New York has just been announced. This monumental work has never before been performed outside of Germany and Austria. It requires the services of four choruses and soloists in addition to a greatly augmented orchestra.

During the coming week Mr. Althouse will be in Philadelphia for three Wagnerian concerts with Stokowski, in which the Philadelphia conductor will cover excerpts from "Tristan und Isolde" and the complete "Ring." An invitation to sing for two months at the Municipal theater in Berlin during February and March had to be refused because of already existing contracts. The offer resulted from the splendid notices Mr. Althouse received for his first performance of Tristan with the Chicago Civic opera.

News of the Singers.

Jan Kiepura, tenor, is now on the French Riviera where he is doing the "location" work on a picture in which he is starred by the German makers of sound pictures—Ufa. Following completion of this picture, Mr. Kiepura goes to La Scala for a number of guest appearances and then to the Vienna State opera.

Rudolf Bockelmann, baritone, had his first performance of the season with the Hamburg opera on St. Stephen's day, two days after he landed at Hamburg from his American stay. In the near future Mr. Bockelmann is to sing in the State opera in Berlin, appearing as guest artist in "Die Meistersinger" and "The Ring."

Noel Eadie, coloratura soprano, is in the midst of a concert tour which is taking her to practically every important center of Great Britain.

Iva Pacetti will arrive in Milan during the coming week and take up her work at La Scala, where she remains—except for a few guest performances at the Royal opera in Rome—until the conclusion of the season.

Music Notes.

This is Rachmaninoff week as far as the Chicago Symphony orchestra is concerned. The distinguished composer and pianist is to appear in both capacities on both the Tuesday afternoon and the Thursday-Friday concerts. In fact, with one exception, the program will be identical. Mr. Rachmaninoff will play the solo part of his second concerto on Tuesday afternoon, and his third on Thursday evening and Friday afternoon.

Other Rachmaninoff works will be a symphonic poem, "The Island of the Dead," and "Five Picture Studies," piano pieces that have been arranged for orchestra by Ottorino Respighi. The only thing that keeps these programs from being all-Rachmaninoff is the first number, the introduction and fugue from Tschaikowsky's First suite.

Mary Wigman, creator of a new trend in the art of the dance, will come to Orchestra hall for the first time this season on Saturday afternoon. As was the case last year, she will do her demonstrations to the music of a piano and a large assortment of primitive instruments.

The collection of instruments to which she dances is a curious one, consisting of five Chinese gongs, two gamelan gongs from Burma, four modern jazz drums, one set of Indian bells, one Negro drum, one pair of cymbals, and one huge hand drum.

They are played by her two assistants, Gretl Curth, a young girl from the Hamburg school, and Hans Hasting who has specially composed the simple music for Miss Wigman's dances. One would expect savage and incoherent sounds from these strange instruments. But this is not so. They emit harmonic sounds, rhythmically timed and of great variety. During one dance, called Seraphic Song, a humming as of some choir fills the theater. Actually, the sound comes from a gigantic Chinese gong, continuously tapped with a little hammer until the whole beautifully tempered bronze disc quivers and vibrates.

The Negro drum is nothing but a hollowed log, but even it has two distinct tones. Across the open top are two little wooden tongues, both of the same piece of wood, separated from each other by a narrow crack. Each tongue, when struck, speaks with its own voice. Miss Wigman travels everywhere with this two person primitive orchestra.

The soloist for the Saturday night popular concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra is Harriette Price, winner of the American Society of Musicians' award. Miss Price, a contralto, will sing Gluck's aria, "Divinités du Styx" and Elgar's "Sea Pictures" for contralto and orchestra. Mr. Stock has also arranged to play Gluck's overture to "Iphigenie en Aulide," and "Dance of the Happy Spirits" from "Orfeo ed Euridice" Schumann's Symphony No. 4 in D minor; Ravel's "Spanish Rhapsody" and Glazounow's Valse de Concert, No. 2, in F major.

Vladimir Horowitz, whose performances at the piano are always greatly worth while because they are always a stimulant, will give a recital at Orchestra hall this afternoon. His program is simple in outline but quite otherwise when its playing is considered. The first part will be by Liszt, the "Funerailles" and the sonata in B minor. The second part will be in three sections: Chopin, in the two Mazurkas in C-sharp minor and the Scherzo in B minor; Rachmaninoff in a prelude and two Etudes-Tableaux, and finally Schubert's "Marche Militaire," in the Tausig version.

Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson will demonstrate their finely wrought art of playing music for two pianos at the Studebaker this afternoon. Their list of music strikes a comfortable balance between the old and the new. A duettino concertante by Busoni, Hubert Foss' "Newcastle Dance," "The Poisoned Fountain," by Arnold Bax, Infante's "Spanish Dance" classify among the new works. A Bach sonata, the Haydn-Brahms variations Arensky's "Romance," the Scherzo from Mendelssohn's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and the Chopin Rondo are among the pieces better known.

Henry Purmort Eames will lecture on "Parsifal" before the Bryn Mawr Woman's club tomorrow morning at eleven o'clock.

Gustav Holst, the English composer, and Chalmers Clifton are to be the guest conductors of the Boston Symphony orchestra this month, while Serge Koussevitzky takes a brief midwinter vacation. It will be Mr. Holst's second visit to this country. For the remainder of the year he will be connected with the music department of Harvard.

George Gershwin has been at work on a new composition which he calls his Second Rhapsody. It was announced for performance in Boston, but for some reason has been postponed to an unknown date.

They are trying, even in hard times, to establish a permanent symphony orchestra in Kansas City. Arnold Volpe discovered that a full sized orchestra with complete instrumentation could be formed out of Kansas City musicians without importing outsiders, and conducted two demonstration concerts in the city's Convention hall a few weeks ago. The first was attended by an audience of 3,800 and the second by 4,500. Wherefore, hopes are arising.

This contrasts with what recently happened in Seattle, where after several seasons of effort the conductor, Karl Krueger, resigned and the orchestra was disbanded because sufficient funds were not forthcoming for the proper upkeep of the organization.

Something new in the popularizing of opera is being tried in Cologne, Germany. Before each performance a sound film is shown, depicting the "birth of a new opera," the rehearsals and daily life of the singers, and what other details may have occurred to the man who made it. Whether it tells the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth or not, it would seem that the plan has unbelievably big possibilities, if only for ballyhoo.

Legal Satire

OTTO KRUGER, who has just completed a tour in "Private Lives," will be featured in the special company of "Counselor-at-Law," which is being assembled preparatory to opening in Chicago at the Selwyn theater, on Sunday evening, Feb. 7. Mr. Kruger will have the rôle that is being played by Paul Muni at the Plymouth theater, New York.

The company will play a preliminary engagement at the Hanna theater, Cleveland, during the week of Feb. 1. Mr. Rice will stage the production. Kruger will be remembered for his performances in "The Boundary Line" in which he was co-starred with Katherine Alexander; "The Great Barrington," "The Royal Family," "Easy Come, Easy Go," and "The Nervous Wreck."

Elgar Suite Recorded for Music Lovers

New Stravinsky Work Denies Tonal Conventions and Lacks Magnetism.

By Edward Moore.

COLUMBIA has been doing some ambitious recording during the last few months, or, to speak more accurately, has been releasing during that time some ambitious recordings made some time before. As usual when one contemplates a number of large pieces of music, one finds some of them extremely likable and others considerably less so. Two of the Columbia output, for instance, are in violent contrast, one being persuasive, even charming, the other needing an adjective of another kind.

In the four disks numbered from 67999-D to 68002-D, inclusive, Sir Hamilton Harty, one of the most noted of British conductors, and the Halle orchestra, also of considerable repute, have made a recording of Sir Edward Elgar's "Enigma Varations," a suite in which he composed an original theme and then wrote variations, appending to several of them the initials of various of his friends and associates, leaving the public, or such part of it as might be interested, to guess the names. Rather more important to concertgoers and record buyers, however, is the fact that it is a fairly notable piece of music, one of the best that Sir Edward ever wrote, full of good melody, complex though not overwrought harmonizations, and bright instrumental colorings. The last side, played by the same interpreters, concerns itself with Elgar's "Dream Children," opus 43.

Stravinsky's New Opus.

Too bad as much cannot be said musically, in spite of its many technical virtues of recording, of the other Columbia output. It is a performance three records long, 67962-D to 67964-D, of Igor Stravinsky's recent work for orchestra and chorus which he calls "Symphonie de Psaumes." It is conducted by the composer, played by the Orchestre des Concerts Straram, and sung by the Alexis Vlassoff chorus of Paris.

Stravinsky has composed so much and so brilliantly that one is inclined to view his later manifestations with something like dismay. He has changed his manner so often that a new work from his pen is sure to arouse the desire to investigate, for whatever he does he is seldom stupid. But the Symphony of Psalms displays neither the persuasive magnetism of "The Fire Bird," the glittering sheen of "Petrouchka," nor the incessant, driving, hypnotic, rhythmic fervor of "The Rites of Spring." Perhaps a symphony of psalms should contain none of these. The trouble is that this one contains only Stravinsky's musical gauntness, his somewhat raucous denial of the tonal conventions, and not very much else. He may be headed for a definite goal, but it is difficult to find out what it is or whether it is worth reaching.

Record from France.

There is another recording from France, issued this time by Brunswick, which has distinct and well tested merits. In 90210 and 90211 Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Capriccio Espagnol" is played by the Lamoureux orchestra under the direction of Albert Wolff. Possibly a true Spaniard might say this is Spanish music with a Slavic accent, but probably Rimsky-Korsakoff thought less about his accent than writing pleasant music, and in that respect he succeeded. The tone coloring comes through the disks unusually well.

Three sides are required, the fourth, played by the same artists, being given to Chabrier's "Scherzo Valse." This is a piece so attractive in its lively jollity that there will be no disposition to grow quarrelsome over whether Chabrier was thinking of the true waltz rhythm when he composed it.

In Lighter Vein.

Four issues have been received from the Durium Hit of the Week company, which incidentally records popular music uncommonly well. Two are sung by Rudy Vallee with his Connecticut Yankees. M-4-5 is "A Faded Summer Love"; MM-4-5 is "You Try Somebody Else." M-5-A-1 contains "River, Stay 'Way From My Door," and "Some of These Days," by Erno Rapee's orchestra with singing by Helen Rowland; A-1-2 has "When It's Sleepy Time Down South," and "Sailing," by Phil Spitalny's music, also with assistance from Miss Rowland.

Columbia familiar tunes records:

15712-D—The Convict's Return, and Woodman, Spare That Tree, by Jack Mahoney.

15718-D—Walking in the King's Highway, and Beyond the Clouds Is Light, by the Gordon County quartet.

Columbia race records:

14627-D—Doggone Blue, and Can't Be Bothered With No Sheik, by Rosa Henderson.

14626-D—Sweetest Daddy in Town, and Men Sure Are Deceiving, by Ora Alexander.

14630-D—This Sweet Reedie Brown, and Jumpin' Judy Blues, by Wiley and Wiley.

14628-D—They Put the Last Clean Shirt on Bill Today, and Don't Let Love Make a Fool of You, by Clarence Augustus Williams.

14629-D—Brown Baby, and Hot Stuff Red, by Eddie Edinborough and his New Orleans Wildcats.

Brunswick Dixie records:

562—Gulf Breeze Waltz, and Mineola Rag, by the East Texas Serenaders.

561—When the Leaves Begin to Fall, and Perished in the Snow, by McFarland and Gardner.

563—Steamboat Bill, and Neapolitan Two Step, by the Kessinger brothers.

564—The Boys in Blue, and The Little Old Sod Shanty, by March Williams.

565—Sweet Freedom, and I'm on My Way to Heaven, by the Nance family with the Traphill twins.

534—Medley of Scotch Strathspeys and Reels, and Medley of Highland Flings, by Colin J. Boyd.

Victor dance records:

22816—I'm With You, and Sing Another Chorus, Please, by Black's orchestra.

22825—Good-Night, Sweetheart, and So Close to Me, by King's orchestra.

22820—Blue Kentucky Moon, and My Moonlight Rosary, by King's orchestra.

22817—Guilty, and I Don't Know Why, by King's orchestra.

Jolson's Repertory.

Al Jolson, star of "The Wonder Bar," at the Apollo theater, has resurrected fifty of his former song hits, so that he may comply with requests from the audience. Among others he now sings, "Where Did Robinson Crusoe Go with Friday on Saturday Nights?" "I Miss You Most of All," "Rum Tum Tiddle," "Dirty Hands, Dirty Face," "Yacka Hula Hicky Dula," and "Antony Spigony, the Toreador." He is prepared to sing any number he has ever used.

"Grand Hotel" Actor

SAM JAFFE.
[Mitchell Studios Photo.]

THERE is much admirable acting in "Grand Hotel," now at the Grand Opera House, but there is none better than Sam Jaffe's characterization of Kringelein, the poor bookkeeper who wants to enjoy a dash of high life before he dies. Mr. Jaffe was unknown a few years ago, but now he is famous on Broadway.

La Argentina Dances to Filled Hall in Gotham

Artist of the Castanets Adds Classic Novelties to Old Favorites.

By Joan King.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—La Argentina is back again fresh from new triumphs in her native land and bringing to her American admirers a long list of dances. This incomparable artist of the castanets commenced her fourth New York season at Town Hall recently, and again every seat was filled and the back of the hall was lined with standees. Indeed, from the moment the dancer parted the curtains which formed the background for her stage setting and flashed her bewitching smile, depression lifted, and the occasion became a gala one.

To lend a bit of familiarity to the program, La Argentina opened with the Granados dance No. 5. Then came two dances from the ballet, "La Romeria de Los Cornudos," by Pittaluga; a shawl dance, and dance of Granada. Followed another, well known to most of those present, the dance of terror [from the ballet "El Amor Brujo"] by Manuel de Falla. Then came a classic bolero, "Puerta de Tierre," with music by Albeniz; the familiar gypsy dance, "El Garrotin," to a popular melody; two new numbers, to music by Albeniz, Almeria and Malaguena [fish vendor of Malaga]; Charrada [popular dance from the province of Salamanca] to a popular melody, and the miller's dance [Farruca] from the "Three Cornered Hat" by De Falla. The popular "La Corrida" [impressions of a bull fight] with Valverde music concluded the list.

Enjoy Humorous Dance.

The most interesting of the new dances were, perhaps, the classic bolero, "Puerta de Tierra," and the "Charrada." The "Charrada," which is an old, old dance from Salamanca, is a recent discovery of the dancer. She learned of it from an old man who is among the few who still remember it. The audience, however, seemed to favor the more humorous of La Argentina's offerings, as the "Malaguena," in which the dancer portrays the fishwife with her wares. Encore was demanded, as for the "Miller's Dance," in which the extremely feminine Argentina plays at being a man. The new accompanist, Luis Galve, Spanish pianist, proved a welcome addition to the program.

Carnegie hall entertained its annual "Messiah," given by the Oratorio society each year during the Christmas season, with another capacity audience. Albert Stoessel conducted the society's chorus of 250 voices and the symphony orchestra of 60 men. Dan Beddoe, veteran tenor of many Handel readings; Irene Williams, soprano; Marie Powers, contralto, and Robert Crawford, basso, were the soloists, and Hugh Porter the organist. The occasion was the fortieth anniversary of the presentation of "The Messiah" by the Oratorio society in Carnegie hall, and the one hundred and eighth performance of the work, as well as the opening of the society's forty-ninth season. It was also Dan Beddoe's fortieth year of public appearance.

This year's performance was an excellent one. The work of the chorus showed considerable improvement over previous seasons and the soloists were in good voice.

Exhibits Mature Talent.

For the first time in several weeks another youthful violinist entertained those of Gotham's musical habitués who frequent prodigy events at a Town Hall matinée this week. Although a bit past the prodigy age, the youthful artist is 16, Ralph Schaeffer is still young enough to intrigue those looking for "discoveries." Like Menuhin and Ricci, Schaeffer is also a pupil of Persinger.

Schaeffer does not wish to be classed as a child prodigy and, as a matter of fact, after hearing him play the Tartini D minor concerto, the Concerto in A minor by Vieuxtemps, and the Dvorak A minor concerto, those present were quite willing to accord him the credit due a mature player. Critical opinion adjudged him a well grounded, technically competent artist. His complete poise and sureness and the verve with which he played completely won his audience, and he received a great deal of applause from a crowded house. As a closing group he chose short pieces by Sarasata, Bloch, Bator, and Gresser-Franko.

Wallenstein in Concert.

Alfred Wallenstein, first cellist of the Philharmonic symphony; Mme. Nina Morgana, soprano of the Metropolitan, and Robert Goldsand, young pianist from Vienna, entertained a large and élite audience recently at the season's last but one artistic morning at the Plaza.

Mr. Wallenstein opened the program with "Nina," sung usually by sopranos under the title of "Tre Giorni Son Che Nina." Cello versions of Chopin's "Raindrop" prelude and "Aubade" from "Le Roi d'V's," and pieces by Lao, Horsanyi and Boulanger completed his share of the program. He also accompanied Mme. Morgana in "Ave Marie."

screen, and Marie Dressler. While Marie is not exactly new to the screen, having made pictures years ago, her astounding popularity is new. She is, undoubtedly, the biggest single box office find of the year.

The return of Pola Negri can be counted as among Hollywood's assets, for although her first picture is as yet unreleased, Pola promises much in her return via the talkies. Helen Hayes, also new on screens of the land, has won her place with her "Sin of Madelon Claudet." Sylvia Sidney, in "City Streets" and "American Tragedy," has arrived. Sidney knocked 'em for a big success in her "Strictly Dishonorable."

Amateurs Line Up.

While all-American football teams are being named and teams from all over the world are lining up for the Olympic games in Los Angeles, 1932 [adv.], it will, perhaps, not be amiss to mention a few Hollywood champions.

Champion boxer—Myron Selznick. Title awarded to Mr. Selznick for two bouts, one at the Zanuck wedding anniversary party and another at the Embassy club.

First runner-up will be Ernst Lubitsch for taking a crack at Hans Kraley for dancing with his wife and [Ernst says] for making naughty faces at Ernst because of his discomfiture. This was also at the Embassy.

Wrestling champion—Norma Shearer. For all her trick holds in her recent series of naughty girl stories she gets the palm and we were too out of breath after watching her do her stuff even to consider a runner-up.

Grand sweepstakes taken by Henri de la Falaise et de la Coudraye—For the second year running Hank has taken the highest paid female star of the year. Last year, Gloria; this year, Constance. Some producer would do well to watch any glimmering of interest in Hank's eye and sign the girl. She'll be a big money-maker in time, as his judgment is unerring.

Chief runners-up—Gene Markey and Joan Bennett. Gene also ran after Ina Claire and Gloria Swanson, and Joan also was pursued by John Considine, now engaged elsewhere.

Long distance runner — Marjorie Rambeau, who, after a fourteen year engagement, finally got her man and married him.

Champion jumper—Mary Astor, who catapulted herself from widowhood into another marriage so fast, she astounded even herself.

How Gray Hair Streaks or Patches Now Go Like Magic

Now, BY SIMPLY BRUSHING YOUR HAIR, every trace of grayness disappears so perfectly that no one will suspect you ever had a gray hair in your head

TODAY, you can easily and quickly get rid of every gray hair in your head. You can see those ugly gray streaks or patches, which make you look years older than you really are, completely vanish and a youth-like color appear. You can work this transformation right in your home—easily and inexpensively. And the results will be so perfect that no one will suspect you have a done a thing to your hair.

ALOPECIA AREATA is a scalp disease that first causes the hair to fall out and then to grow back white or gray sometimes in peculiar looking patchy deformities. This new discovery quickly makes patches of white look natural again.

DISFIGURING GRAY PATCHES over the ears give many men the ridiculous appearance of having cut their own hair with a bowl on the top. Now a way has been found to quickly and easily give a man a sensible looking head of hair again.

What You Do

This has been made possible by a remarkable, scientific discovery called—KOLOR-BAK. While absolutely colorless itself—and as easy to use as water—it will actually banish every trace of grayness from your hair, and impart a youth-like color to it. And this is all you have to do. Simply sprinkle a few drops of KOLOR-BAK on your hairbrush for a few mornings. Then brush your hair as usual. Nothing could be easier. Yet!—almost before you realize it, your gray hairs will disappear and a new, youth-like color will appear. And as your gray hairs become youth-like in color again, you will find yourself looking years younger, far more attractive.

End Your Gray Hair Handicaps Now

Don't endure the handicaps that gray hairs cause for another day. Don't run the risk of ruining your business career; don't lose out socially because your gray hairs make people think you are "too old." It is now utterly needless. Obtain a bottle of KOLOR-BAK at any drug or department store. Use as directed. Your gray hairs will quickly disappear; a youth-like color will appear. Refuse all substitutes offered as "just as good." Insist upon KOLOR-BAK, the scientific discovery which ends gray hair the most natural way known.

FREE—50c Box Kubak Shampoo

Get a bottle of KOLOR-BAK—send the top flap of the carton in which it comes to Kolor-Bak Co., Dept. 71A, 303 E. Illinois St., Chicago, Ill. You will be sent a full size 50c box of Kubak Shampoo, free and postpaid.

Fate Pulls the Strings in This New Photoplay

ing in Havana, neither shall reveal their real identity. Two carefree, mysterious characters they shall remain to one another, thereby increasing the glamour of the holiday.

At last, back to the city go both of them—for it has become unthinkable by this time that 66 shall ever again be far away from 99. And now the truth comes out. Grover is married and will never divorce his wife. And after Lulu recovers from her shock divorce is the last thing she would permit him to think of. They agree that they will just go on loving each other and helping each other and that their affair shall never spell a moment's worry or unhappiness for the gentle woman who bears the name that can never belong to Lulu Smith.

A daughter is born—to be adopted later by Mrs. Grover, who is, of course, ignorant of the child's real parentage and who loves and rears Roberta like an own daughter. Lulu secures employment on a newspaper where she becomes the heart's desire of a reporter who, later as managing editor, brings about a crisis that is sodden with tragedy.

Grover Succeeds.

Grover goes up and up in the world—lawyer, congressman, senator, governor. And, always, in the "back street" of his life lives Lulu, to comfort, advise, and inspire him. She is perfectly content, she tells him, and you are very sure she means it.

"Your success is my happiness and reward," she insists when, conscience stricken, he grieves over things as they are.

There comes a time, however, when he declares that he will no longer be a hypocrite; that the world must know what part Lulu Smith has had in the making of Gov. Grover, and that in the eyes of the world she must take her place by his side even though public opinion shall force them to go away together.

It is here that Lulu proves how big she and her love are—and where the picture's great big punch comes in.

There's a lot more to the story, but I mustn't give it away, for "Forbidden" is a splendid moving picture that should be allowed to spin its own narrative and spring its own surprises.

The remarkable thing about the film is the sympathy it inspires for all the principals. They may be wrong—but never would you throw a stone at them!

Menjou at His Best.

Adolphe Menjou never did anything better than his portrayal of Grover. It is a distinct departure from his usual sophisticated man of the world rôles and he plays it with warmth, understanding, and a grave sincerity that are mighty appealing. Barbara Stanwyck again rings the bell. How that girl can act! Ralph Bellamy delivers a great piece of work as the hard bitten editor, and Dorothy Peterson is dear as Mrs. Grover. Minor parts are beautifully put over and the direction is the best to be had. Never once does "Forbidden" lose its hold on your interest. It is as human as life.

Bits aBOUTem.

WALTER HIERS, former comedian—maybe he's still funny—has been signed by Paramount for a featured rôle in "Dancers in the Dark." He's been out of pictures for quite some time. . . . RIN-TIN-TIN is working on a new twelve chapter serial called "The Lightning Warrior." . . . DEPRESSION is blamed for the fact that Hollywood divorces were 25 per cent under the previous year. . . . AVID MANNERS is rumored to be taking ROSE HOBART to all the best places. . . . Photoplay says:

"HELEN HAYES—and you'll be hearing more and more and more of her—went to see her picture, 'The Sin of Madelon Claudet,' when it was playing on Broadway. It was the first time she'd seen it and she was being critical of her own work, wishing she'd done that scene another way, knowing she could have gotten more out of that one, when suddenly she became conscious of stifled sobbing. She looked up to see seated next to her a large man with tears running down his cheeks. He looked at Helen and, not recognizing her, saw only that her face was tearless.

"In quite a pet he said, 'Haven't you any heart? How can you sit here and look at this picture without crying?'" . . . And FLORABEL MUIR tells this one in the Hollywood Herald:

"Paramount daily routine offers no bigger moment these days than that solemn one which marks the arrival of Josef Von Sternberg and Marlene Dietrich for luncheon each day. In dignified stride, looking neither to the right nor to the left, recognizing no one, bowing and speaking not in the least, these twain make of the luncheon ritual a sort of unscheduled personal appearance among mortals. Recently there was lese majeste committed, though doubtless Joe and Marlene haven't heard about it yet.

"Happened that young Robert Coogan was having luncheon with his mother at the time the grand entrance was made. Robert is a serious kid and never says anything he doesn't mean.

"Perceiving Joe stride in leaning on his stick, he turned to his mother and said: 'Look, mother, that's Harpo Marx.'"

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Help for Hard of Hearing.

My dear Miss Tinée—In your column, "Peggy" asked for the locations of theaters wired for the hard of hearing. Besides the Adelphi at 7074 N. Clark street, there are three other movies. One each in Lake Forest and Highland Park and one in "No Man's Land"—extreme north end of Wilmette—just west of Sheridan road. The Goodman theater on East Monroe street is the only legitimate one equipped with phones for the hard of hearing. If "Peggy" wishes more detailed information, she can write or phone the Chicago League for the Hard of Hearing at 1022 De Paul building, 64 East Lake street. F. B. C.

Editor's Note: There are many who will be grateful for your kindness in replying to "Peggy."

Faults of "Frankenstein."

Dear Editor: I went to see "Frankenstein" the other day because away back in 1910 I had seen a silent picture of it made by the Edison Film laboratories, and I wanted to see the advances made in moving pictures as evidence by two pictures on the same subject made twenty years apart.

Is this picture an indication of the progress made by the industry in that length of time?

My regrets are that we have any critics depraved enough to say it is good. When I use the adjective depraved, I don't mean it in the sense of describing that state of mind that revels in the horrors of the yellow journal tabloids. I mean it to describe that mentality that is so ignorant as not to know when it is insulted—for it is an insult to an intelligent person to offer such a film on a regular supposedly first class program.

In the first place, the story of "Frankenstein" is considered one of the classics of English literature, and it would have been much better to have had the introduction to it consist of a short sketch of its history and how it happened to be written than the silly one that is given.

Secondly, the picture reeks with anachronisms that any 10 year old child would detect. The scenery is so crude that it is obviously "stage stuff" even to a person sitting well back in the audience. With one exception, the actors are poor, and one must always draw the conclusion that they directed themselves.

The whole thing shows lack of art, technique and even mechanical skill. It is clumsy, inconsistent and gives one the impression of being a cheap production. I paid 35 cents to see the picture and have been "sore" about it ever since. If I had paid more I would have brought suit against the theater for running a confidence game.

I was so outraged at the brazen effrontery of any producer attempting to put over something so obviously crude that I didn't get one single thrill out of it. C. W. LAWRENCE.

Editor's note: Too bad!

Equipped with Hearing Aids.

Dear Miss Tinée: Recently there was in inquiry in your column about theaters equipped with hearing aids. I enclose a list cut from the December bulletin, Hard of Hearing league, 64 East Lake street:

Adelphi theater, 7074 North Clark street.

Alcyon theater, Highland Park.

Goodman theater, Monroe street at Grant park. [This theater is not giving regular performances, but devices are in operation when special programs are given this winter.]

Indiana Harbor theater, Indiana Harbor.

Teatro Del Lago, in No Man's Land, near Wilmette, Ill.

The league has on file a list of Catholic and Protestant churches and Jewish synagogues equipped with hearing aids. Members may refer to this list or telephone for information. Central 4559. MRS. O. H. P.

Editor's Note: Thank you, ever so much, Mrs. O. H. P.

On "Frankenstein's" Trail.

Dear Editor: Could some one who has seen the picture "Frankenstein" please explain something to me?

First: When they were pursuing the monster, why didn't the bloodhounds smell him? A man like that would naturally have quite an odor.

Second: When the mob set fire to the windmill [with the monster in it] why did the flames in it shoot straight up while the blades were still turning? Windmills in those days had no motors, I am sure.

Third: When the doctor was listening to the respiration of the monster, believing him to be dead, why didn't he know the monster was alive and going to kill him? I would be obliged if these questions were answered.

Yours truly, J. E. R. JR.

Editor's note: Why, oh, why! Producers, please answer J. E. R. Jr.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have never written in before, but I have just viewed "Heartbreak," myself and family and friends. We thought it was beautiful, in fact, one of the most beautiful we have ever seen.

I saw it first with a friend at the United Artists, then again with my husband, daughter, and son, and I was thrilled just as much the second time.

Madge Evans is beautiful, charming, and a wonderful actress, and, of course, as usual, Johnny Farrell is adorable, and O, how he can make love.

The picture left me in a beautiful dream, and please, Mae Tinée, let's have Johnny and Madge together again. I like reading your corner and I like you, too.

Your constant reader,
MRS. CATHERINE B.

Editor's note: It was a sweet little film. Thank you.

HISTORIETTE

NORMA SHEARER is a Canadian girl. She was born in Westmount, a suburb of Montreal, Canada, one August 10th. She received her education in the Montreal public schools and Westmount High school and began acting in school plays at the tender age of 14. In 1920 she went to New York to try to break into the movies and nearly starved while waiting for an opening. At last she was picked as one of twelve girls to be used in a college picture to be made in New York. Then she was handed the lead in a western.

After that she starved some more until she was discovered and given leads in "The Stealers" and "Channing of the Northwest." Her work in these pictures brought her a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. On to Hollywood! Her best known pictures are "Strangers May Kiss," "The Trial of Mary Dugan," "A Free Soul," and "The Divorcée."

She is the wife of Irving Thalberg, production boss of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. For her work in "The Divorcée" Miss Shearer was given the award of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences for the best performance by a screen actress in 1929.

She plays the piano, cares tenderly for an ageing Persian cat, loves to ride horseback, swims and plays tennis. Speaks French and reads everything she can lay her hands on. Is 5 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 115 pounds and has brown hair and blue eyes.

In Praise of 'Chauve-Souris' Show Master

Nikita Balieff Returns as Little Father of the Intimate or Little Revues

By Charles Collins.

feld Follies," said to be the richest and most spectacular production in this famous series of revues, will begin an engagement at the Illinois theater. Thus the flesh pots of Ol' Massa Flo, veteran master of the revels, will follow on the religious heels of "The Green Pastures." A week from tomorrow night Rachel Crothers' comedy, "As Husbands Go," will be offered at the Blackstone under the auspices of the Theater Guild.

The week of Jan. 24 will bring two single handed entertainers into Chicago in opposition—Cornelia Otis Skinner at the Studebaker, and Maurice Chevalier at the Erlanger. The fifth play in the subscription series of the Dramatic League of Chicago will also arrive that week.

The week of Feb. 7 will contain Mr. Yushny's "Blue Bird" amusement, as noted above, and also Elmer Rice's new play, "Counselor at Law," which will be offered at the Selwyn. Otto Kruger will lead a cast that has been specially organized for a Chicago engagement. The play deals satirically with the sharp practices of unethical lawyers. Paul Muni, who plays the leading rôle in New York, is credited with a brilliant characterization.

Leslie Howard in New Drama; Gotham Stage

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Seven premières are listed on Broadway's calendar for next week. Special interest will be attracted by Philip Barry's new play, "The Animal Kingdom," with Leslie Howard as its star. Here are the announcements:

"Son of Satan"—Opens tomorrow night at the Ambassador. A play whose announcements describe it as "about a maniac and by a maniac." It is the work of Ernest and Louise Cortis who had a play on Broadway several years ago. The players will include Robert Strange, Peg Entwistle, Alan Ward, Zola Talma, Benedict MacQuarrie, C. Edwin Brandt, and Conrad Cantzen.

"The Gondoliers"—Opens tomorrow night at Erlanger's. Mr. Aborn's singers in another Gilbert and Sullivan operetta.

"Black Tower"—Opens tomorrow night at the Sam H. Harris. A mystery play by Ralph Murphy and Lora Baxter, the latter an actress who will appear with Mr. Howard in "The Animal Kingdom." The players will include Walter Kingsford, Mabel Grainger, Raymond Bramley, and John F. Hamilton.

"Three Men and a Woman"—Opens tomorrow night at the Lyceum. Walker Whiteside, who has been absent from Broadway for three years will be the star of this melodrama, the action of which takes place in a lighthouse off the coast of New Zealand. In London the play, by Frank Harvey, was known as "Cape Forlorn." In Chicago it was called "Surf."

"The Animal Kingdom"—Opens Tuesday night at the Broadhurst. Philip Barry's new comedy, with Leslie Howard as the star. Frances Fuller, Lora Baxter, Ilka Chase, Harvey Stephens, G. Albert Smith, William Gargan, Frederick Forrester, and Betty Lynne will also be in the cast.

"Jewel Robbery"—Opens Wednesday night at the Times Square. Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis are the stars of the play by the Hungarian, Mr. Fodor. Bertram Bloch made the adaptation. Others in the company will be Eugene Powers, Cora Witherspoon, Stuart Casey, Clarence Derwent, Robert Vivian, Lionel Braham, and Harold Johnstrud.

"Papavert"—Opens Thursday night at the Vanderbilt. A revised version of the play, a Parisian success, that recently was withdrawn from the Vanderbilt after two performances.

Critic's Hobby

THE traditional cry, "Half hour!" behind the scenes inspired Alexander Woollcott, the critic who lately turned actor, to present to Katharine Cornell and Margalo Gillmore half-hour glasses for their dressing room tables.

For years, Mr. Woollcott confesses, hour glasses have been to him what stamps are to King George. There are, he laments, only twelve perfect hour glasses in existence; and these are not for sale. On the market, one finds wretched examples, entirely uninteresting from the hour glass lovers' point of view.

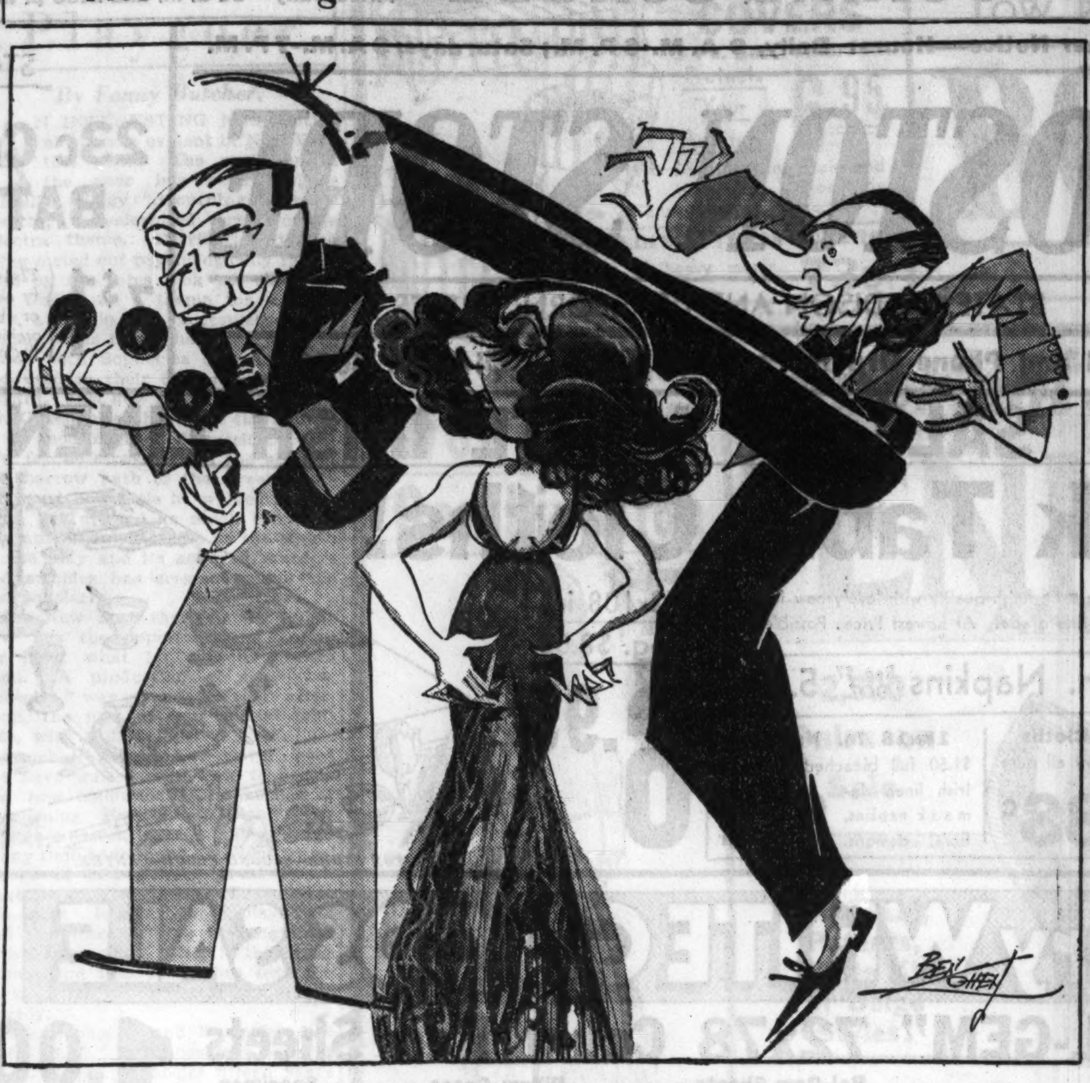
Deems Taylor designed the monograms that deck the ends and patterned the shape and the carvings of Mr. Woollcott's gifts to Miss Cornell and Miss Gillmore. The erstwhile drama critic discovered just the wood carver, unknown and hitherto unsung, to execute Mr. Taylor's ideas.

And so when the call boy in the Empire theater in New York announces that in thirty minutes the curtain will rise on "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," Miss Cornell and Miss Gillmore turn up Mr. Woollcott's half hour glasses, knowing well that when the sands have dropped one by one the play must begin. But Mr. Woollcott, preparing for his "Brief Moment" appearance in the Belasco theater four blocks distant, must keep an eye on his watch.

Good-By, B'way!

Six productions were withdrawn from Broadway after last night's performances. They were "Sentinels," at the Biltmore theater; "Adam's Wife," at the Ritz; "Bloody Laughter," at the Forty-ninth Street; "Coastwise Annie," at the Belmont; "The House of Connelly," at the Mansfield, and "The Mikado," at Erlanger's.

Trio of Big Shots in "Three's a Crowd"



FRED ALLEN, LIBBY HOLMAN, CLIFTON WEBB.

HERE are the Dauntless Three, formerly of the "First Little Show" and now of "Three's a Crowd," at the Erlanger theater, as sketched in Ben Cohen's stage laugh-book. Fred is juggling billiard balls in his "Curse of Versatility" monologue; Libby is moaning warmly through her famous song, "Body and Soul." Clifton is waving his storklike legs, with their ample British trousers, in the dancing number called "The Moment I Saw You." A trio of clever entertainers—and so modern and sophisticated!

Roller Stages Put Speed in "Grand Hotel"

How Eighteen Changes of Scene Are Made in Five Minutes or Less.

SO SWIFT are the scene changes in "Grand Hotel" that it has been assumed by almost every one, including many dramatic critics, that they are effected by means of a revolving stage. However, the changes are made by quite another method—by the use of two platforms that are rolled off into the wings.

As soon as he had acquired the American rights to "Grand Hotel," Herman Shumlin evolved a plan of his own for the eighteen rapid shifts called for by the manuscript. In Max Reinhardt's original Berlin production a revolving stage was used, but experience led the German stage director to advise against it as being too clumsy.

Platforms on rollers are a common stage device for quick changes, but "Grand Hotel" called for a new treatment to effect the necessary speed. Ordinarily the platforms are either split in the center and rolled off on each side or else placed alongside of one another and pushed sideways. Neither of these methods solved the problem for "Grand Hotel."

The changes required two separate platforms, so that while one scene was being played another could be in the process of scene setting. No time could be spared between scenes to set the stage, so that "flying" some of the scenery and splitting the platforms in the middle had to be ruled out. Everything with the exception of a few incidental pieces had to be placed on the platforms, and the size of the sets which they were to carry made it impossible to use more than two.

The chief problem was an interchange of settings which did not allow the permanent assignment of certain ones to either of the two platforms. This was finally solved by the duplication of those sets which repeated but which came in such an order that they could not be shifted from one platform to another.

Instead of operating the platforms on tracks, Mr. Shumlin's technicians evolved a system by which they could be kept in a fixed course by putting them on casters and pivoting them on kingpins at each front corner of the stage. These platforms required enough offstage space and enough depth so that they could be swung off in a quarter circle until they rested at right angles to the proscenium arch.

There are eighteen changes of scene in "Grand Hotel," none of which takes more than twenty seconds, with the simplest ones reduced to as little as eight seconds. As soon as the lights fade out on a scene, the platform on which it has been played is swung to right or left on its corner pivot. As one platform passes a fixed point in its outward course, the opposite platform, with the actors in the following scene already on it, starts swinging toward the footlights.

It is illuminating to compare the time taken out of the performance for scene changes and intermissions in "Grand Hotel" with that taken out of the normal one, two, or three scene play. All changes during the three acts consume approximately four and a half minutes. The two intermissions are five minutes each. Thus there are only fourteen and one-half minutes during which the spectators are not watching the play.

Hamlet's New Job.

Raymond Massey, who came from London to play Hamlet in the Norman Bel Geddes production, has signed a contract with the Paramount company for a few chores as film director.

Boston is expected to accord "the divine comedy in blackface" a longer stay than Chicago. New England may absorb the rest of the attraction's third season.

Vaudeville Magnate.

Martin Beck, former president of the Orpheum circuit, who left vaudeville several years ago when he built the New York playhouse bearing his name, will return to that field immediately, according to an announcement from the Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation. Mr. Beck will become affiliated in an advisory capacity with that circuit, into which the former Keith and Orpheum houses have been merged.

In the days of "big time" vaudeville Mr. Beck and the late E. F. Albee, as heads of the Keith and Orpheum organizations, were virtual rulers of that field. The building up of the Orpheum chain, extending from Chicago to the Pacific coast, was largely due to Mr. Beck's efforts.

Barrymore to Manage Self; B'way Gossip

Dennis King to Act in Hungarian Drama; Two More Plays for Theater Guild

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Ethel Barrymore, whose stellar career has been under the direction of Lee Shubert for a number of years, sends word from Philadelphia that she will be her own manager next season. Thus she will follow the example of Katharine Cornell.

The old system of self-management by the stars has fallen into decay during the last ten years, but the ladies seem to be reviving the custom. When Miss Barrymore joins the list there will be three of them—Eva Le Gallienne being the third. Among the men, Walter Hampden is the only survivor—he is swinging into action on his own once more, after a period of rest from executive duties, with a cross-country tour in "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Miss Barrymore plans to make several productions next season. Among them is a play called "Woman of Destiny," which was tried out last summer with Mary Young in the leading rôle.

Dennis King, who hasn't acted since last spring's revival of "Peter Ibbetson," wants to become an actor manager. He has taken an option on a play from the Hungarian of Melchior Lengyel, called "Angel." The leading feminine rôle in this opus is of great importance, and Mr. King hopes to secure some lady of fame to play opposite him. Of course he is thinking about Ina Claire—it's a habit this season . . . Leslie Howard is beginning to qualify as an actor manager; at any rate, he is in partnership with Gilbert Miller in "The Animal Kingdom," due on Broadway a few nights hence.

William Harris Jr., a manager who is never in a hurry, has found a play that suits his fancy. It is James Bridie's "The Anatomist," which was highly praised on London last October. The central character is a Scotch doctor of the 1820's, Robert Knox by name, who was mobbed because his scientific zeal for anatomy started a body snatching epidemic. . . . Mr. Harris's last production was "The Greeks Had a Word for It." He is trying to engage either Lionel Barrymore, Walter Huston, or George M. Cohan for "The Anatomist."

The Theater Guild's schedule calls for two more productions in New York this season. Thus far the organization has scored two hits out of three productions—the lucky ones being "Reunion at Vienna" and "Mourning Becomes Electra." The Guild is hoping that Bernard Shaw's latest work, "Too Good to Be True," will reach this country in time to fit into its winter plans.

Films Announce a Big Program for New Year

Motion Picture Industry in Better Financial Condition than at Start 1931.

By Tom Pettey.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Now that every one is through talking and writing about the best pictures of 1931 it might be a good idea to sift a lot of information and see what lies ahead. Anyhow, it seems like a good idea at this stage of the sifting.

Among other things this department has information that the year 1932 finds the motion picture industry in better condition as far as finances, organization and material are concerned than at the beginning of 1931, which was not such an awfully bad year itself, in moviedom. There will be fewer, considerably fewer, pictures made but they will be better planned and more carefully put together.

There will be a continuation of salary adjustments in the studios as fast as contracts run out, but stars of both sexes who have box office appeal will continue to make enough money to live in marble houses and move the ocean into their back yards for swimming purposes.

Stage Hits Will Be Popular.

Efforts will be made to find original stories for the more popular film players, but the majority of the pictures will be taken from stage, magazine or publishing house hits just as they have in the past. The film making industry on the eastern coast will make another comeback effort and feature pictures will continue to be made in Long Island studios by the big producing companies and the independents, but the east will in no way offer a real threat to Hollywood. The talkies are firmly intrenched in their native orange groves.

The bankers will exert more and more influence in the management of the picture industry and this will favor production on the eastern coast, but the trend toward Long Island will be so gradual that anticipated expansion of the talkie business will take care of both the east and the west.

In 1932 you are going to see more love interest and less gang fighting in the feature films. There will be a drift away from too faithful realism. Aviation will continue to furnish thrills, but the recent success of several "horror pictures" probably will result at least in a half dozen gruesome features before the fourth of July arrives.

There will be a minimum, producers say, of musical shows and color pictures, but both will be produced in about the same quantity and quality as last year. There will be a move toward more action and less dialogue in the more carefully constructed pictures and, on the whole, the trend will be upward in the tone of the pictures. The talkies are growing up and expect to give the blood and flesh stage its greatest fight in 1932.

Buddy Rogers Out of Films.

You will not see Buddy Rogers in the talkies this year. He has joined Mr. Ziegfeld's song and dance artists and will sing and pluck a banjo at $1,650 per week when he is not picking up a few dollars on the radio. You probably will have the opportunity to see Maurice Chevalier and Marlene Dietrich playing together for the first time. Anyhow, M. Chevalier has expressed a desire for the German lady as his feminine co-star.

Some time between now and next March there is likely to be a row between Greta Garbo and Metro about a boost in salary. Miss Garbo, who has recently been expressing herself incognito as well as on the screen in New York City, draws down a reported $7,000 a week. She wants $10,000, and that is a lot of money in times of piping prosperity, to say nothing of 1932. Garbo may find herself with an even smaller pay check.

Hard on Old Favorites.

Now comes a list of the boys and girls of filmland who will have to fight like the devil to get back anywhere near the peak of their old popularity. The present year may be a bleak one for some of them.

To begin with there are the two Johns—John Barrymore and John Gilbert. Recent months and recent pictures have been unkind to them. Adolph Menjou closed the year sliding down into the independent ranks. Clara Bow had a law suit and faded. Even a secret marriage couldn't get her very much publicity. You may not see much of Jack Oakie, although I still list him among my favorite film actors. Douglas Fairbanks has dropped to the level of travel pictures and Mary Pickford is reported to be planning to retire.

Conrad Nagel, Lew Ayres, Norma Talmadge, Marion Davies, Buster Keaton, Bebe Daniels and a host of other one time headliners are, as "Variety" expresses it, "finding their fan mail dwindling."

This year is going to be an interesting one for the censors. Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago closed the old year fighting with the board of censors in his city with the Fairbanks travel pictures as the sore spot. The mayor did not like Fairbanks' wise crack about "passing over Chicago to the accompaniment of shots." There are rows brewing in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey with the censors and in Ohio as well as this state there has been considerable complaint from the censors concerning bawdy or rough dialogue.

This year we are promised a real invasion of America by the foreign film makers. England, Germany, Russia, and France are going to endeavor to place their movie products in the smaller cities as well as the metropolitan centers. The closing months of 1931 found New York City showing an average of four imported films a week in the big time, midtown talkie houses. Chicago saw some of the foreign films. Now every one may have a chance to compare them with the home-made products. German pictures have the strongest appeal, but they are not yet up to the American standard of perfection.

Coming Talkies Listed.

One may write specifically concerning seven paramount offerings for the next two months. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" with Fredric March playing the dual rôle is being shown this month; "The Man I Killed," a post-war story with Lionel Barrymore and Nancy Carroll, will follow and then Marlene Dietrich will be seen in "Shanghai Express."

Ruth Chatterton will be offered in "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," from the play by Philip Barry, and a Broadway night life talkie to be called "Two Kinds of Women" will be released in February. In "Two Kinds of Women" Miriam Hopkins and Phillips Holmes will have the leading rôles.

Chevalier will step out in the seventh picture of this series. "One Hour with You" is the name of the Frenchman's picture. He probably will be seen with Jeanette MacDonald and Genevieve Tobin.

Some time in the spring you will have the opportunity of seeing Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in "Love Is a Racket" from the typewriter of Rian James, a Brooklyn columnist. The picture will follow "The Goldfish Bowl" in the First National Studios.

"Grand Hotel" will, after a lot of discussion, appear on the screen this year. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has decided Garbo will definitely play in it. "Strange Interlude," the O'Neil masterpiece, also is to be screened by Metro.

for questioning in Grundt's headquarters.

The papers are recovered in the end and the English hero and heroine are making their escape at the curtain, having done for Grundt with a whack on the head.

"Berlin" was extracted by Valentine Williams and his wife, Alice Crawford, from Mr. Williams' spy story, "The Crouching Beast." But they have taken occasion to deny that they are responsible for many of the things done to the play as it stands.

Sydney Greenstreet makes a real character of Grundt, the most sinister force in melodrama since Prof. Moriarty performed in Mr. Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes." G. P. Huntley Jr. is the English hero and Helen Vinson the heroine. Katherine Wilson, Moffat Johnston, Charlotte Granville and Charles Richman all have short parts

Melodrama Again.

I suspect the fact that we seem to be running strongly to melodrama just now is because this type of play sells best to the picture folk. The screen drama demands broad strokes and simple people.

William A. Brady has uncovered one called "Adams' Wife" that fairly calls for a prairie setting and hundreds of acres of room in which to go night-riding with the Ku Klux, and huge wheat fields in which to work a threshing outfit.

"Adams' Wife" tells the familiar story of the touring farm hand and the farmer's wife. Peter Barrett is a young New York collegian who goes in for threshing in the summer to pay for his schooling in the winter. At the Adams place he finds Jennie Adams a kind but thoughtless man's drudge His pity for her wakens into love.

There are numerous complications to be hurdled, however. In the benighted section of Kansas which is the play's locale the Ku Klux Klan is a moral force. Bigoted and shallow minded farmers take their offending women folk out and flog them, and lynch colored men on suspicion.

Flogging Threatened.

Peter and Jennie, observed in their love making, call down upon themselves the wrath of the reformers. The farmers gather to flog them the night they have planned to elope, but Jim Adams, being convinced in his own mind that Jennie and Peter are not really to be blamed for the love that has overmastered them, holds his neighbors at bay until his wife and her lover have a chance to escape.

Eric Dressler and Sylvia Field play the lovers in "Adams' Wife," and Victor Kilian the husband. It is not a probable story, but the acting and the direction help it considerably. There are two exciting scenes, one in which the mob lynches a colored boy seen kissing a white girl [at the girl's suggestion, according to the boy] and that in which the lovers escape while the husband holds back the mob. It should make a good picture. It always has.

Coward Farce Revived.

Constance Collier has revieved Noel Coward's farce, "Hay Fever." It was played originally six years ago by Laura Hope Crews, ran for something like six weeks, but never became popularly established.

Miss Collier, for whom it is said to have been written, is better suited to the chief rôle—that of a retired actress who must pad her vanity with vagrant love affairs and considerable home posing. But I doubt if ever the Collier performance, completely supported by practically an all-English cast, can win the local public over to the play. It is grand fun for an act, while it is getting under way. but there are strained and dull stretches and a deal of theatrical extravagance after that.

The story is that of a surprise week-end party. Each member of the actress' family, her erratic novelist husband and her two lawless children, has invited a friend down from London without consulting mother. The result is a fine mixture of extravagant characters, rudely received, rudely threatened, and glad to run back to town first thing Sunday morning.

Betty Linley and Anthony Kemble-Cooper play the children and Eric Cowley the husband in Miss Collier's support.

"Experience Unnecessary."

There has been the usual sprinkling of light sex stuff. Walter Woolf and Verree Teasdale are playing in one called "Experience Unnecessary," in which Walter advertises for a traveling companion for a European trip, gets Miss Teasdale and is forced to submit to honorable marriage before he can win her.

In "Society Girl" Claire Luce, bored with society, adventures with a young prize fighter who is forced, finally, to knock her out and carry her to his training quarters before he can make a woman of her.

Only 212 Movie Theaters Are Found in Paris

Americanization Bogey Is Hit by Statistics on Cinemas in France.

By Alex Small.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Here is some statistical information which should bring a crumb of comfort to Georges Duhamel and others who fear that the French people are having the life Americanized out of them. It concerns the most American of all institutions, the movies, our national opiate and it may be assumed to be accurate since it is put out by Tout Cinema, a paper of the "Publications Filma." Obviously they would represent the industry to be as flourishing as possible.

This authority tells that the total number of movie houses in France today is 4,530, of which 1,027 are equipped for "sonorous and talking films." You will notice that that means approximately one for every 9,000 of population.

In distribution the absolute numbers seems to follow fairly well the population of the various departments, though there is considerable variation in proportion to population. Thus the highest absolute number of movie houses is in the most populous department, that of the Seine, which might be called Greater Paris. There is exactly 400, of which 212 are within Paris proper and 188 in the suburbs.

One for Every 10,000.

Now, if the population of Greater Paris be taken at 4,000,000 [it is really a bit more], that means there is one movie house for each 10,000 of the population, below the national average of one to 9,000, which is rather surprising. Probably it can be accounted for in that Paris and the suburbs possess, in general, cinemas with larger seating capacity than those of the small towns.

After the department of the Seine, it is that of the north which has the largest number, 262, which is to be expected in a highly industrialized region of dense population. Third place goes to the department of Sein-et-Oise, surrounding Paris, with 174, and fourth to Pas-de-Calais, which has 169. This latter department also comprises a big section of the manufacturing and mining region of northeast France.

The three biggest successive numbers are those of the department which include the three biggest provincial cities, and they follow in order the size of those cities. Thus the Bouches-du-Rhône, the department of Marseilles, has 157 cinemas; the Rhône with Lyons, 117; the Gironde, with Bordeaux, 103. The next highest number, 100, is in the department of Meurthe-et-Mosselle, the heavy iron industrial region about the city of Nancy.

As between the Rhône and the Gironde, the difference is not nearly so great as would be expected, for Lyons has more than double the population of Bordeaux. But the more numerous rural population of the Gironde probably accounts for the discrepancy.

At the End of the List.

For the rest of provincial France, 71 departments out of the total 90 possess between 15 and 100 movie houses each. Below these come Deux-Sévres [city of Niort], and Haute-Loire, in eastern Auvergne with 14 each; Indre, including the barren region of Sologne and the city of Châteauroux, with 13; Mayenne [city of Laval], with 12; and Creuse [ancient province of the Marche], with 11. The island of Corsica also counts 11.

The hill-billy department naturally come at the end of the list. The departments of Lot, Cantal, and Corrèze have but nine movie houses each; that of the High Alps, 7; and the lowest rank is held by the poor relation of all French departments, the Lozère, with 5. This department also comes last in number of automobiles and has the highest idiocy rate in France. Out of this conjuncture it would seem that one could prove many things. M. Duhamel would have it that the idots are not idotic after all.

Mostly in the Cities.

It would seem to result from these figures that the devastation of the movies is being primarily done in the cities. Caluculating that 60 per cent of the population is of movieable age, each one could go to the cinema once a week in regions like Paris and the north, provided the houses hold a minimum average of 900 spectators.

In the rural regions there must be very little movie going; places like the Lot, Lozère, and Cantal have less than one house to each canton. It is incredible that the peasants in the remote villages bother going to the cantonal center for the movies, especially when one considers that all performances are at night.

There are approximately 36,000 communes in this fair land of France. There are 4,530 movie houses, 1,482 of which are concentrated in eight [out of 90] urban or industrial departments. It does not look as if the cultural messages of Hollywood are being widely distributed.

In Vaudeville

THE vaudeville part of this week's program at the Palace theater will consist of the following acts:

Lillian Roth—The singing beauty of the screen returning to the field where she was originally half of a child sister team. Until recently Miss Roth was one of the stars of the new New York edition of "The Vanities."

Nina Olivette and the Nine Cheerleaders—A revue comedienne and collegiate entertainers.

Hal Jerome and Gloria Gray—A wit and a pretty girl.

Charles [Slim] Timblin and Company—A comic who works in blackface with several assistants.

B. and B. Harris—A novelty in gymnastics, with Loretta Allen assisting.

The Loop End theater offers six acts of vaudeville this week. Next Friday its policy will change to burlesque shows.

Armchair Playgoer

By Fanny Butcher.

AN INTERESTING juxtaposition of plays is evident in New York this week. The sensation of the year has been Eugene O'Neill's trilogy "Mourning Becomes Electra," a modernized version of the Electra theme. Retributive justice being meted out psychologically rather than by the fates took the fancy of Mr. O'Neill as a theme for a great play, a classic idea modernized.

The classic theme he chose was one which both Sophocles and Euripides had used in their day, the theme of Electra. Just how much of that theme Mr. O'Neill used has been the subject of a good deal of discussion. Just how far he strayed from the straight and narrow path of the Greek tradition, just how little he walked in that path, has created as much conversation among intellectuals as the length of the play and its assorted murders and suicides has created among the less scholarly.

The New York theater-going public now has the opportunity of seeing for itself what Mr. O'Neill worked from. A production of Sophocles' "Electra" was given last Friday afternoon, the first of four special matinée, with a distinguished class.

Armchair playgoers, however, need not have waited until now to decide just how traditionally the author of "Mourning Becomes Electra" has written a Greek tragedy. They could at any time have found excellent translations of both of the great Greek tragedies on that theme. It isn't too late, now. Reading those plays will lead you into thrilling investigations of that tremendous period in the Greek drama, and into researches into the work of its two greatest writers of tragedy.

Both Sophocles and Euripides died in 406 B. C. Euripides was born in 480 B. C. and Sophocles fifteen years earlier. It was said that it was on account of the ridicule of the populace induced by the attacks of Sophocles and Aristophanes that Euripides left Athens for the court of Archelaus, the King of Macedonia. There is a doubtful tradition that he was torn to death by a pack of hounds set upon him by two rival poets and was buried with great pomp by King Archelaus, who refused a request of the Athenians for his remains. To such lengths went literary rivalries in those days!

Euripides was 25 went his first play was produced and during the forty-nine years of his creative life he wrote seventy-five plays, of which eighteen are extant. At the age of 29 he defeated Sophocles for the prize in tragic poetry.

Sophocles had defeated Aeschylus for the same prize in 468 when he, Sophocles, was 27, so perhaps there is, or at least was in ancient Greek days, a close connection between youth and creation of great tragic poetry. As the years settle themselves upon a man perhaps he is mellowed by life into less direly tragic creation.

However, up to the age of 89 Sophocles remained always one of the three great tragic poets of his day, and after his death he was worshiped as a hero under the title Dexion. According to Mahaffey's "History of Classical Greek Literature," "Most modern critics have agreed with them [the Attic public] that the tragedies of Sophocles are the most perfect the world has ever seen."

Tour for Hampden

WALTER HAMPDEN has decided to make a transcontinental tour of his greatest success, "Cyrano de Bergerac." Only cities outside New York have seen the renowned actor-manager in the famous heroic comedy by Edmond Rostand, in which he won a triumph when he produced it at the National theater, New York, eight years ago.

Opening in Richmond, Va., Jan. 30, and then going to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, Mr. Hampden will "jump" the production to St. Louis and Kansas City. He will then visit the principal cities of Oklahoma, Texas and Arizona, and will arrive in Los Angeles on March 7. Two weeks will be devoted to that city and two more to San Francisco.

The company then will proceed to the Pacific northwest and will return east by the Northern Pacific route into Minneapolis. After the twin cities, "Cyrano" will touch Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, and thus will practically have girdled the United States when the company reaches New York.

With the exception of Los Angeles, San Francisco and Chicago, no city will be visited for more than half a week. The complete original production, requiring three baggage cars, will be carried, and the full acting company of 75, to say nothing of two trained horses. A special train of seven cars, including a diner, will have to be chartered for the company.

Jobless French Musicians Razz Foreign Rivals

PARIS.—(AP)—Unemployed French musicians, irked by the strains of American jazz or Russian gypsy bands as they tramp from café to bar in search of work, have a new form of protest.

One by one they enter a café where foreign musicians are employed. In unison they begin to shout, drowning out the music. Then one of them jumps on a table and makes a speech.

Customers are asked to demand French music from French bands.

Russian Exiles in Paris Live in 'Collective'

Bolshevik Colony Dwells in Huge Apartment, Safe from Corrupt Capitalism

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—In the heart of one of Paris' most bourgeois quarters—Buttes Chaumont—there is a "little Kremlin" where some thirty soviet functionaries and their families are living in collective content, safe from all influences of corrupting capitalism.

The Buttes Chaumont dwelling—spruce modern apartment on the Rue Botzaris—is collective No. 1 of the bolshevik colony here. There is a larger one in the suburb of Boulogne and a very swanky apartment just being finished near the Porte des Ternes. Soviet authorities are now negotiating for land just outside the city to erect two more collective apartment buildings.

The first experiments have proved successful and it is the ideal of the bolsheviks now to house all employés of the embassy and commercial representation and all soviet functionaries in Paris generally in these collective apartments where they will not be subject to "demoralizing contacts" with French bourgeoisie and where they will be under the eye of Cheka checkers.

Supervision Needed.

Close supervision is deemed necessary owing to the large number of comrades who backslide into capitalism when they get out of Russia. In Paris particularly where the lures of wine, women and song tempt the most fervent marxists, hardly a week goes by without the French press announcing a new defection.

While no information about the collective homes could be obtained from tight mouthed soviet officials here, some information was obtained by a visit to the Butte Chaumont stronghold. Outside the building several comrades' wives were nudging baby buggies back and forth along the walk in a very bourgeois fashion. The interior of the building had nothing to distinguish it from any other middle class French apartment except signs in Russian on every floor. They read "Messieurs les locataires are obliged to call out their names when entering after 9:30 p. m."

Make Good Lodgers.

This was not put there by the Cheka but by the concierge who was in the business long before the word Cheka had ever been heard. It was from the concierge, supreme symbol of French bourgeois life, that the reporter got the lowdown on this little transplanted corner of communist paradise.

The concierge, a stocky, capable middle aged Frenchwoman, was anxious to make it clear that the stern decorum of Paris apartments was in no way relaxed just because the inhabitants of this particular apartment happened to be foreigners and have queer political theories.

"They are good lodgers for the most part," she conceded, "and I have little trouble with them. Of course, they are strangers and do not know the customs of the country, so I have to explain to them what is comme il faut and what is not. I never let them play phonographs or radios after 11 p. m. and make them wipe their shoes when they come in, and take care of their garbage and such. They cannot justly be called bad characters. Further they have their own leaders and policemen in the building, who see that order is maintained."

She went on to explain that all the comrades occupied two or three room apartments, according to the size of their families. The building is owned by a French firm, but is farmed out to a soviet corporation which actually operates the building, fixes the rules, and collects the rent from the individual tenants. All the furniture is the property of this collective.

"Have they a collective kitchen?" the concierge was asked.

Marketing Committee.

"I should say not. The proprietors would never permit any such fantastic goings on as that in their building. However, the tenants have a marketing committee which buys most of the food for the whole building and sees to it that nobody gets more luxurious fare than his neighbor.

"Few of the tenants ever go out in the evening and although I don't think they have any formal regulations about it they are supposed to stick around their apartments most of the time when they aren't working. Strangers are never admitted without consent of the house chiefs and I have orders to report to them as soon as any visitor arrives."

"Do you have any trouble getting your New Year's etrennes [present] from your bolshevik tenants?"

"I did at first, but when they realized I was in charge of the furnace and a few cold days came along everything was all right. This year I am told the collective will give me a 'bonus.' It's all right with me what they call it. In general I repeat they are really nice folk, but they make a lot of fuss about the central heating in winter. To hear them talk you'd think they had heat in Russia."

Soldier-Actor

SIEGFRIED RUMANN, who plays the bluffing manufacturer in "Grand Hotel," was an actor in Berlin before the war. After the armistice, with nothing to show for his fighting but two bullet scars, he came to America. He could speak no English [and here he parallels the career of Eugénie Leontovich, who was also struggling through an English dictionary at the same time], and so he became a "singing waiter" in a "brauhaus" in the German section of New York City—Yorkville. As soon as he got established he enrolled with a German theater in New York

He reached Broadway under Arthur Hopkins' management, and, although Mr. Hopkins' two plays were not successes, Mr. Rumann carried off high honors for the vitality of his acting and the sincerity with which he attacked difficult rôles. Then came "Grand Hotel," which enabled him to realize his dream of a motor launch on Long Island sound.

Mr. Rumann has become a naturalized American citizen.

Washington in Pre-Lent Rush of Festivities

Hostesses Hurry to Issue Invitations to Last of the Season's Gay Functions.

By Genevieve Forbes Herrick.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special.]—Ash Wednesday is just one month from tomorrow, an observation, you will say, which more properly belongs in the column of my colleague, the Rev. John Evans. Not at all. Around here Lent is social as well as ecclesiastical and senators who aren't seen alive very often in church wouldn't be seen dead at a formal party during those forty days. So, just now hostesses are rushing around engaging caterers and sending out invitations in order that they may negotiate the maximum number of give and takes before February 10.

"Such a shame," you'll hear the ladies mourn; "Lent comes so early this year." Don't believe a word of their sorrow. They're tickled to death at the respite. Then they can get some sleep and some facials. Although a politically minded Ohio wife chided her companions to "forget your facials and get busy campaigning for your husband; that's what I'm going to do."

Others whose husbands aren't up for election can spend their Lenten leisure getting to know the people on their calling list. For in this town of "carding" instead of calling, it is perfectly possible to exchange calls with a woman for an entire season and never recognize her face. Just send in your cards before 3:30 in the afternoon. She won't be expected to receive you and you won't be expected to ask to see her. But you've done your duty.

Problem for Wives.

Speaking of cards and calling, I wonder what some of the senate wives are going to do if Senator Borah's proposal to reduce senatorial salaries from $10,000 to $8,000 a year goes through. At a recent meeting of the Senate Ladies' club three or four of them were bemoaning the terrible annual expenditure on white kid gloves and white engraved pasteboards. It's no mean figure.

All is not gold that glistens on the diplomatic uniform. . . . The other evening Sesostris Sidarouss Pasha, the Egyptian minister, was guest of honor at the Sears-Roebuck art galleries where he had loaned his really fine collection of porcelains. . . . And that wasn't all. . . . Near the diplomatic exhibition was an array of "soap sculpture."

Add amusing juxtapositions: On Sunday a Miss Mary Howry gave a luncheon for Harlan Fisk Stone, dignified justice on the Supreme court; and on Tuesday this same Miss Mary Howry gave a luncheon for Ted Shawn, agile dancer.

Pretzels and Beer.

The other day at a White House party I got to talking to one of the attachés about the good old days I had heard of when they served supper at the White House receptions. . . . Nowadays, you know, a chilly tankard of ice water is the substitute for sandwiches and coffee.

"Best party I remember," recollected the attaché, whose memory goes back a long way, "was the one President Roosevelt gave for Prince Henry of Prussia. . . . Roosevelt served beer, real beer, in big kegs set up on the tables, and pretzels, and dozens of hot dogs. . . . The prince said it was the best party he'd been to in this country. . . . Guess it was, too."

Here's one more problem in precedence . . . the Arlington Vernon Memorial bridge will probably be opened next Saturday . . . and the directors want President Hoover to be the first one to drive across. . . . That was all nicely settled when somebody started trouble by pointing out that if the President drove across it it would be his chauffeur, and not he, who would have the initial honor. . . . That's something to worry about until next week.

Newport Horse Show Is Canceled

NEWPORT, R. I. — [Special.] — This resort is somewhat saddened to hear that for the second year in succession there will be no horse show this season. Until conditions are better the equine showing will be banned.

Many notable cottagers who were here for the post-holiday rest are leaving to visit other cities. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster are still at Pen Craig, but will leave shortly for New York. Mrs. Samuel P. Colt has closed Twin Beeches until spring.

Also returning to New York were Frazier P. Jelke, who was the guest at Eagle's Nest of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. Bartholomay Jelke. Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Van Beuren, who were guests of Mr. Van Beuren's parents, are also in New York.

Remaining here are among others, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Pell, Mr. and Mrs. Gustave J. S. White, Mrs. Paul FitzSimon and Mrs. Henry G. Davis III.

Winter Season Opens at Aiken

AIKEN, S. C.—[Special.]—The season here opened formally today when the Highland Park hotel opened its doors. Among the annual visitors now here are Mr. and Mrs. Huston Rawls, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Hunt of Brooklyn, Conn., Alan Rutherfurd Stuvesant, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Stuyvesant, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Parrish, Allen G. Wellman, Palen Snow, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. William Taft Pitkin, and Mrs. Frederick A. Snow.

when society watched the tennis stars scintillate

Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr. and Joseph T. Ryerson were among the most interested spectators in the fashionable audience that attended the all-star tennis macthes held recently at the Chicago Stadium.

Mrs. Samuel T. Chase (on the extreme left), who, as chairman of the tennis benefit, was responsible for much of its success, is pictured in the box adjoining one occupied by a group of her Lake Forest neighbors, including Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy, Jr., Mrs. William A. P. Pullman, and Mrs. Dexter Cummings. The benefit was in behalf of the Joint Emergency Relief fund.

Miss Lucy Fairbank (left), who returned last week to studies at Bryn Mawr college, attended the tennis matches with her mother, Mrs. Dexter Fairbank (right), and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis. Miss Fairbank will make her debut in Chicago next season.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn, who seldom miss a sports spectacle of any sort, took a group of guests to the tennis matches following a dinner.

John Simpson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson, and Marshall Field III., who was in Chicago for a holiday visit, at the tennis games.

Miss Louise Brewer, Miss Barbara Neff, and Miss Ruth Elting, all of whom are prominent in the social and philanthropic activities of the younger set, were snapped while giving serious attention to the highly exciting tennis matches at the Stadium.

First Week of New Year Full of Gay Events

Last Afternoon in 1931 Given Russan Flavor by Eugenie Leontovich.

By Cousin Eve.

NEW YEAR'S DAY passed off, thought I, with a lot of charm in spite of everything. Good, brisk, sunny weather would have garnished the scene perhaps more gayly, but what mattered that in passing from one warm, bright house to another?

In spite of the croakings and warnings and gloomings that 1932 is going to be a terrible year there are many who are optimistic and feel that life is what we make it and that we have at least a fighting chance of making it a good year. It's a queer little world, anyway, and the queerest thing at the time is that those who have smashed seem happier than they did before. And nicer. It would seem that the act of smashing makes people more considerate and friendly. Off the gold standard and on to something easier to understand.

One reason I thought so well of life and all its trimmings on New Year's day had to do with that rare exotic, Eugénie Leontovich, Russian actress. I had lunched with the divine creature the day before, on the last afternoon of the year, at a Russian luncheon given by Vovo at a place up north conducted by a Russian officer.

Back from Brazil.

Vovo, be it said, is a Cossack officer of other days, Capt. Vladimir Perfilieff, who was Gordon McCormick's guest over the holidays. He had just returned from fourteen months in the Brazilian forests with a cargo of jaguars, pumas, ocelots, and whatnots, and was wishing to unload them upon John T. McCutcheon. Not for household pets, but for the zoo.

Thus, the celebrated Vovo wished to give a real old time Russian celebration with gypsies, marvelous Russian food, zakuska and everything. It was one of those leisurely continental luncheons that went on and on. On one side was the zakuska or table of hors d'oeuvres, beautifully laid out with flowers, where everybody ate a very large meal preparing the way for the major event, which was entirely after the Russian manner, very hot and most intriguing. Between every course of the luncheon the gypsies came in and sang in an unrestrained and exciting way, beginning of course with "Black Eyes," the dear love song of every true Russian heart.

As the afternoon advanced the gypsies got wilder and more Slavic in their songs, singing strange lyrics and refrains that even Vovo and Mme. Leontovich could not translate nor understand. Charmingly dressed and very gay, these Russian singers entered wildly into the spirit of the last afternoon of the year and passed to each guest a fruit cup or wassail bowl. As a beautiful gypsy girl passed the cup and the guest drank it, the gypsy songs rippled and beat the air with a rollicking rhythm.

A Charming Person.

All this time I was sitting near Eugénie Leontovich, who was like a lovely old English print, in a floppy black felt hat and a tight little white bodice. With skin white as milk, eyes like aquamarines dazzling through thick lashes and delicately carved features, hers is a fragile and appealing loveliness.

As she delicately sipped some coffee she told without affection what coffee meant to her—indeed, all food, since the days of the Russian revolution in Moscow. No heat, and nothing to eat. "Nothing," she said, with a note of sombre intensity. And so we both celebrated the last hours of 1931 thinking how lucky we were to be in Chicago eating breast of chicken larded with ham and enjoying such an unusual and charming party.

I have not said anything of the other guests, who were all interesting, however. Aleka Galitzine, lovely being, too, came in late, and an architect named John Cromelin, whose career had taken him adventuring to Russia and had just brought him back. I would have adored to hear his story. But nobody tells adventures any more. George Voevodsky, with great brilliance, played something of Tchaikowsky's, and the party adjourned elsewhere at 5 o'clock.

Guest of Cyrus McCormick.

Capt. Perfilieff always stays with the Cyrus McCormicks when in town. He was, it seems, aide to Gen. Denikin during the world war. He carried messages from Denikin to Admiral Kolchak, passing through Chicago in 1919, but it was too late. Later he settled in Princeton, took a course at the university, and began to pine for the Balkans. Organizing a few Princeton students to study the Balkans in general and Albania in particular, he sailed with his college mates.

Soon the cables and mails were full of frantic appeals for help. The Albanians, it seemed, had fine large jails waiting for just such an emergency. No sooner did the Princetonians emerge from one splendid jail than they were clapped into another. After that Vovo studied art in Philadelphia, taking many prizes and painting portraits of numerous wealthy persons at Newport, Bar Harbor and about. He has since explored various wilds. Gordon McCormick says his friend is the greatst daredevil horseman in the world.

An Unusual Party.

The chic dance of last week at the Blackstone was the one given by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rinaker for Marjorie Horton and her debut. It was different in this way. Walter Frazier, entrusted with the decor, did something young and daring and the results were perfect—beautiful, in fact.

Greatly addicted to Paris, Mr. Frazier decided upon a French interieur,

News and Gossip of Chicago Society

MRS. RAYMOND FRANCIS KENNEDY.
[Grinsted Photo.]

Mrs. Anne Cuddigan of 6587 Lakewood avenue announces the marriage of her daughter, Dorothea, to Raymond Francis Kennedy of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kennedy of Traer, Ia. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy will reside in Chicago.

MISS LAURA JEANNETTE POND.
[Gordon Photo.]

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Laura Jeannette Pond, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marvin B. Pond of 2111 Sunnyside avenue, to Lawrence W. Wilson, son of Mrs. Rachel Wilson of Washington county, Ohio. Mr. Wilson is a graduate of Ohio State university.

everything else having been done recently from the north pole to the equator. So the crystal ballroom was disguised, metamorphosed, and the balcony entirely cut out by a black ceiling. The side walls were hung with amusing French posters, and instead of the usual lines of gilt chairs, there were small tables covered with checked cloths and lighted by big red candles where dancers could relax and perhaps smoke a wee cigaret.

Lanterns hung from the black ceiling, but the real lighting was done by colored spotlights that were flashed alternately, bringing into strong relief the dancing figures. The musicians, dressed as French artists, played all the new music rather softly, singing not so often—and really why should these orchestra men sing so much, I ask the world?

And the doorway was rather sensational, too. Above, this sign: "Le Rat Rigolo," and on either side two huge, fat, white rats, looking too jolly for words in dinner jackets, with walking sticks and silk hats, showing all their teeth, and flashing their eyes.

Mrs. Rinaker and her daughter received before a wall of poinsettias, the blond hostess in black velvet and scarlet satin sandals. The lovely debbie, who has had a great recent whirl in eastern society, wore white crêpe with a tiny little jacket of dark blue. Her bouquet looked to me like a first cousin or forerunner of a bridal bouquet, being a long sheaf of palest pink orchids, whitest gardenias and showers of lilies of the valley.

During the early hours of the ball an artist in blue smock and beret stood in the foyer at an easel sketching in crayons bold portraits of any one who chose to posture. Very amusing likenesses they were.

The ball supper was served about 2 o'clock upstairs in the picture galleries. At 1 o'clock a large number of younger guests had arrived from the Benjamin Behr party at the Casino, who had stayed late owing to entertainers, and special features. This dinner dance was for Miss Edith Behr and was also her debut.

Gate Crashing Grows.

Among the most conspicuous indoor occupations of last week seemed to be gate crashing. A little gate crashing amuses. It shows an odd, adventurous spirit, a dashing desire to be where not expected, where, indeed, not wanted. Which, after all, demonstrates courage, nerve and qualities which if used in a worthier cause might lead to worldly success and many cordial invitations.

Petty gate crashing is really too sordid a matter to mention, but when it is done in a big way, it deserves a line. A hostess of the last days of 1931 had acceptances and expected 275 guests. She actually entertained 383. In these depressed times, too!

At another ball a woman was observed to be galloping about in an evening dress and hat. At supper, served in the main large dining room of the Blackstone, the hat again attracted the attention of the host, a leading citizen of the near north Riviera. Its owner was one of a party of four. After a little quiet talk with a waiter the strangers vanished and were seen no more.

Visitors from Boston.

Among the many interesting visitors in Chicago into the New Year were Mrs. Marshall Fabyan of Boston and two of her children, Marshall Jr., and her daughter, Eleanor. Mrs. Fabyan is the former Eleanor McCormick, a daughter of William G. McCormick of Baltimore and a sister of Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Herbert Stone, Mrs. Louis Slade and Ruby, who is married and lives in Baltimore and whose married name I forget.

Mrs. Fabyan is charming with a little red in her hair and a fresh, rosy complexion. Her daughter had a great whirl here and so did her brother. Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick had a tea one afternoon last week for Mrs. Fabyan in their Lake View avenue apartment overlooking the park. Quite informal, this was a delightful party where the guests could enjoy and exclaim over the magnificent El Grecos and two glorious Goyas, which have been loaned and have been on exhibition at the Art institute for a year or two. The El Grecos are in their original old Spanish frames, richly colored with age and after the old Spanish manner with strips of mirror inset.

These are hanging in the dining room, which with its glowing curtains of ruby brocade was the ideal place for these strange, somber, rather small paintings, enamel-like in their quaint antiquity.

An Animated Group.

Tea was being poured here to an animated group by Mrs. Waller Borden and Mrs. C. B. Goodspeed. It seemed as if all the Chicago McCormicks might have been there—non-McCormicks were in a minority.

The drawing room of this house is also a glowing place full of beauty, with not a modernistic thing in it. Mrs. McCormick, who is tall and fair, was seated under a Goya of a Spanish beauty with a bushel of black spiral curls and a tiny red sashed waist. After the pranks of the duchess of Alba one never knows if a Goya subject is a dancer or a duchess.

On another wall is a narrow faced nobleman in gold laced coat, a great example of this painter, and over the chimney place with its cheerful fire an important El Greco, a strange, medieval rider on a white horse. The hallway contains other Goyas and a unique Sargent, a beautiful interior with an exquisite woman in dark green velvet, painted in miniature.

Mrs. Charles Deering was at this party for Mrs. Fabyan, and the consul general from Poland, Titus Zbyszewski; Mrs. W. McCormick Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ayer, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Paul Welling, Mrs. Prentice Porter, Miss Gwethalyn Jones, and Mrs. Howard Linn.

Dinner for the Kruegers.

Many parties were given for Mrs. Fabyan, one of twenty-four at dinner at the Linns, who also had a dinner Wednesday night for Mr. and Mrs. Karl Krueger of Vienna. Mrs. Krueger, Mrs. Linn's cousin, is the former Emita Jewett of Chicago, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Jewett. She has been married for some years to Karl Krueger, a popular and widely known orchestra conductor with great personal charm and extraordinary ability. Mr. Krueger has gone from Vienna to Seattle for six winters and there conducted a symphony orchestra, which now ranks among the several great ones of the country.

He recently resigned and is returning to Vienna with his wife and two tiny but very lively babes. There is something old world, distinguished, and tranquiling about the Kruegers. They live in an atmosphere of art and beauty, and while they are both American in their hearts, they are European in their ways, intense, yet alive to the passing moment.

Dr. Stock's ears should burn. Karl Krueger finds that we have the great American orchestra here in Chicago and that Frederick Stock has educated the greatest audiences. He feels that the Boston, New York Philharmonic, and Philadelphia are 'way behind us and able to perform only in one style, while the Chicago orchestra leader maintains the three styles. It is a great thing to hear all these superlatives about our own symphony from a specialist.

Mr. Kureger, it seems, was discovered years ago by the great Schalk and was a cellist and also an organist before he took over conducting with success.

Ruth Hanna McCormick Here.

Among the other noted visitors of last week was Mrs. J. Medill McCormick, who eased into town with the delusion that nobody would know she was here if she took a room at the Drake and wore a big hat. Everybody soon knew that Ruth Hanna McCormick was in town, was looking very well, and was on her way to the Byron farm from Colorado. She has been in the west for three months with her son, John, who needed mountain air.

In that time she got a very good start on the book she has had in mind, lo these many years, and will soon send her transcript to her publishers. Although I think that politics is usually dry reading, I rather believe this may be the exception.

One of the liveliest benefit meetings I ever attended was held Monday afternoon in Mrs. Charles S. Dewey's drawing room. Coming in late, I found to my delight that all the tickets had already been distributed in bunches to sell among the audience. This benefit is to be held Jan. 24 at the Erlanger theater for the French unemployed. It will be given on a Sunday afternoon and will be the début in Chicago of Maurice Chevalier, the French music hall favorite.

Ira Nelson Morris was there, and he seems to be the chairman of the event, very properly, as he spends much time in France and likes the French people. Mrs. Francis Johnson made a speech electrifying those present into action, and Mr. Bougearel, acting French consul, was there. Also Mr. Allais, president of the Alliance.

Women Wear Decorations.

All the women in town who are wearers of Legion d'honneur were asked. Of course, if this had been Paris that would have been impossible, for the wearers of the decoration are said to be a majority of the population of France. But being where it was I saw about six who are so decorated.

Mrs. Edward I. Cudahy and Mrs. Barrett Wendell poured tea at the end, and I saw and talked with quite a number of co-workers, namely Mrs. Borden, Mrs. William Baum, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. William Bush, Mrs. Robert Dunham, Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mrs. Bryan Reid, Countess Cardelli, Mrs. William A. Yager, Mrs. Byron Harvey, Mrs. Howard Fenton, and some French people, quite numerous, belonging to different collaborating societies.

Among the coming events of importance and interest is the wedding of Hortense Henry and Gordon Kelley on Saturday at St. Chrysostom's, with a wedding reception at the Casino.

This afternoon the Town Hall series recommence after a holiday interlude with a person called Jehan Warliker. Whether it is a he or a she, or whether it is a concert or a talkie, I know not. But I am sure of one thing, that it will be interesting.

And on Thursday night the Democratic dinner at the Stevens! From what one hears, the dear Democrats are hardly able to get into their own party, for the stampede of Republicans anxious to be present at Robert Carr's banquet.

Chicago Colony at Coronado Beach

CORONADO BEACH, Cal.—The large colony of Chicagoans who make their winter home in Coronado Beach has been assembling for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mandel are staying here before continuing their trip to Honolulu. With them is Miss K. Brewer. Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Schaeffer made a motor trip to the coast. Mrs. Frederic Perry Hanson has returned for the season after a visit of two months in her home city.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar S. Eiger and their daughter, Marjorie, are stopping here before going to Agua Caliente, Mexico, to join friends.

Luncheons Are Gala Events of Florida Week

Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock Entertain for the Elisha D. Hubbards.

PALM BEACH.—[Special.]—Life here has settled down to a more or less even tenor although during the last week it was punctuated by several festivities of pre-depression proportions. Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock gave a luncheon at the Gulf Stream club which was one of the largest affairs of the season thus far. This and a somewhat smaller luncheon at the McKinlock home were in honor of Maj. and Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard. For several seasons prior to her marriage of several months ago Mrs. Hubbard, then Miss Muriel McCormick, made the McKinlock home her winter residence here.

Mrs. McKinlock does not incline toward making long and elaborate guest lists public, so, although her luncheons drew many of the most important residents, they cannot be elaborated on. In that respect they differed radically from the receptions given by Mayor and Mrs. John Shepard Jr. of Lenox, Mass., and that at which Addison Mizner, the architect, was host.

Long List of Notables.

Notables of Chicago and elsewhere invited to Mr. Mizner's include Mr. and Mrs. Rex Beach, Mrs. Mary Duke Biddle, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel-Biddle Jr., Mr. and Mrs. McKinlock, Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Chrysler, Vincent Bendix, Mr. and Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld, Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Thomas, Harold Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. John Ringling, Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fatio, and Mrs. E. Beal McLean.

The Shepard affair included Maj. and Mrs. Hubbard, Mrs. Charles Curry Chase, and many others who were on the Mizner guest list.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil H. Sawyer were among those who attended the buffet supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Clawson of Buffalo. Young Teddy Sawyer was noted at a party at which Miss Marie Antoinette Bassett and Harry Hood Bassett of Flint, Mich., entertained the younger set, and also at a party given by Miss Gloria Baker and by George and Alfred Vanderbilt. Teddy also gave a party of his own.

The regular Thursday and Sunday night dinner dances at the Everglades club were started during the week. Another event that occupied many of the important householders was the first regular meeting of the Garden club.

Grand Duke Arrives.

The grand duke Dimitri of Russia and the princess Illynski were among important arrivals. They came to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan Jr., who are occupying the home of Mrs. Ryan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kahn. Mr. and Mrs. Kahn were expected to join the party there this week.

Joseph Moscicki, son of the president of Poland, and Stephen Poradzewski, chancellor of the Polish embassy at Washington, with Mme. Poradzewski and Mme. Sofia Rekowska, departed for Washington after a holiday visit.

New arrivals from Chicago and those expected daily include William Waller Jr. and his house guests, Peter Berkey, P. W. Johnson, Alden B. Swift, and Donald McMurray. Also, Samuel Cole and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Price N. Williams, are coming to join Mrs. Cole. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arthur Klotz of Winnetka, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chadwick, and Donald D. Boothby are soon to arrive.

Others coming from Chicago were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kubin and Mrs. W. W. Andrews, who came to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hall.

Guests List Grows.

William R. Sweatt of Minneapolis is due next week with Mrs. Sweatt's daughter and son-in-law. Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Swift Strong are not coming here this year but Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baxter Swift will be here for the late season. Ward Ames Jr. of the Sailfish club and Mrs. Ames are expected daily from Duluth.

George Gershwin, the composer, also has been expected.

At the Sawyer home it is said the resort is soon to lose that family, which will leave on the 16th for a cruise to the orient and the south seas.

The coming week looms large on the social calendar. The Palm Beach Playhouse opens for its second season under the guidance of Mrs. Hubbard and Mrs. Harry Shearson and their co-workers; the Palm Beach Country club begins its season that will be marked by several golf tournaments of wide importance; the Royal Poinciana will welcome its first guests; and the Colony-Ambassador Beach, another smart bathing club, will come into existence.

Riviera Gigolos Face Hard Winter as Business Wanes

CANNES, France.—(AP)—Riviera gigolos are tightening their belts and preparing for what promises to be a hard winter.

Elderly matrons are reported united in the thought that professional dancing partners are unnecessary luxuries in these times. The tribe views the situation with alarm.

The recognized head of the racket is a Frenchman who for four years has been steering the elderly widow of one of America's trade barons around Riviera dance floors. Her health permitted three hours a night, two nights a week, and for this he was paid $400 a month.

His total earnings exceeded $1,000 a month. Now all his old clients are back, but they tell him they can't afford to carry on.

There are at least a thousand professional dancers on the Riviera. Being optimists and thinking that the tide of wealthy, elderly women would not ebb they saved nothing.

Postcards May Aid Schools.

BUCHAREST.—(AP)—Picture postcards would help educate the children of Rumania under a bill before parliament. It proposes making the sale of these souvenirs a monopoly, the proceeds to go to the school budget.

Miami Gives First Florida Hunt Breakfast

Thirty-five Miles of Bridle Paths Ready for Devotees of the Saddle.

MIAMI, Fla.—[Special.]—The "something new under the sun" in greater Miami resort lives of numerous Chicagoans now here came with the staging of the first hunt breakfast ever seen in Florida. Stables of the Biltmore club, with forty thoroughbreds waiting for the members, were augmented by two loads of horses from Miami Beach the afternoon before the hunt.

Ten miles of new sod bridle paths, winding around the thirty-six hole golf course, gave the party plenty of room for cantering and galloping. In addition there were numerous fences and hurdles to test the ability of the riders.

With the new paths completed, there are now more than thirty-five miles of paths ready for devotees of the saddle, and interest of club members in the first hunt indicated this would be the outstanding sport of the Miami season.

Out at 8 A. M.

The call to saddle for the first hunt came at 8 a. m., and the start followed soon afterward from the stables at Giralda and Salzedo streets. After the gallop over the new trails the party returned to the Biltmore for breakfast.

Swinging across Biscayne bay to Miami Beach, we find the season initiated there by the first of a series of gala, informal parties for members of the Florida All Year club and their friends given recently at the Roney Plaza hotel. Known as "Nautical Night Aboard the S. S. Cabana Sun club," the event attracted more than 1,000 of the winter colony. The Sun clubs are headed by Henry L. Doherty of New York and include a large number of Chicagoans and New Yorkers. The governor of Florida, Doyle E. Carlton, was the first member of the club.

Boots and Saddles Frolic.

A second frolic will be held Friday. It has been designated as "Boots and Saddles" and will anticipate the opening on the morrow of the Miami Jockey club at Hialeah and will be in the nature of a tribute to Joseph E. Widener, Jockey club president, who will be an honor guest.

To Mr. and Mrs. John B. Delaney of Chicago went the distinction of being the first guests to register for the 1932 season at the Flamingo hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Krum and their family of Chicago arrived at the Flamingo last week for the season.

Chicago Clubs Offer United Aid to Unemployed

Practical Assistance Gives Immediate Relief, Provides Self-Supporting Work for the Jobless.

By Roberta Nangle.

ONE of the most practical and constructive forms of the many kinds of relief measures being carried on today is the work of the Federated Council of Professional and Business Women. This organization is composed of twenty-five of the largest business and professional women's clubs which banded together six months ago for the sole purpose of giving aid to unemployed women.

Through the coöperation of the Chicago Woman's club the Good Will workshop was established where unemployed women work for wages which enable them to support themselves. The aim of the council has been to give assistance to the jobless woman in a manner that will not injure her self-respect. This has been done by giving immediate relief to penniless and hungry women, and then finding employment for them.

At present all of the affiliated clubs are giving benefits to raise a workroom fund with which to pay women who work for charitable institutions that otherwise would be unable to pay for their services. The women's division of the Electric association recently raised $500 at a card party for this fund.

Given Immediate Relief.

A member of the Joint Emergency Relief committee has said that the council office is the only place where women can obtain immediate relief. Every day since Oct. 15 thirty-five women, selected by Miss Susan Koch, manager of the relief headquarters, have been given dinners in the main dining room of the Allerton hotel. Mrs. Frances Rosenberg, chairman of the food committee, is developing an extension of this plan through the coöperation of hotels and restaurants. Some clubs in the group are asking each member to bring to meetings a pound or a package of food to be distributed to the unemployed or part time employed women who have cooking facilities in their rooms.

There is no limit to the help the council gives to women. Clothing, as well as services, such as dry cleaning and beauty treatments that will better fit a woman to secure a job, have been donated. Temporary work other than that in the Good Will workshop and the Federated Council headquarters at 140 South Dearborn street has been found for a number of women, and over 50 have been placed in permanent positions.

Council Officers.

Miss Jessamine Hoagland is president of the council; Miss Grace Tugwell, vice president; Miss Mary Coffey, secretary, and Miss Elva B. White, treasurer.

The following clubs compose the council:

Alliance of Business and Professional Women, Altrusa club, Association of Bank Women, Chicago Association of Public Stenographers, Chicago Business and Professional Women, Chicago Club of Women Dentists, Chicago Dietetic association, Chicago Home Economics Women in Business, Chicago South Side Zonta, Fortnightly Business and Professional Women's club, Hotel Women's association, Illinois Filing association, Italian Business and Professional Women's club, Law Office Managers, Osteopathic Women's club, Pen and Pencil club, Railway Business Women's association, Republican Business Women's club, Stenographic Supervisors' association, Medical Women's club, West Area Business and Professional Women's club, Women's Advertising club, Women's Division of the Electric association, Zonta club, and Chicago Filing association.

The Chicago Philanthropic club will hold a regular meeting Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Congress hotel.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

A GROUP of club members were having an after dinner chat in the club lounge.

"Have you heard about the new woman's club that's being started?" asked the north side member. "They're going to have a big membership, a big building, and they have a man in charge of their membership drive."

"I don't think much of that," commented the east side member. "A woman's club should employ women. Otherwise, it looks as though they didn't have any confidence in their own sex."

"Good for you, Mary," cheered the west side member. "How about the night watchman? Should he be a woman?"

"And the chef, Mary. Did you ever hear of a woman chef?" teased the south side member.

"No matter how well a woman can cook, you never hear of her as a chef because some man has her corralled," came back the east side member. "But if she had half a chance she'd make good as a chef."

"How about the engineer of your woman's club building, Mary?" asked the west side member. "Should he be a woman?"

"No reason why not," answered Mary. "If women knew such jobs would be open to them they'd qualify if they had a leaning that way."

"Mary may be right," the south side member reflected. "I know in my home town club the janitor used too much grape juice once in a while and our members had to run the furnace. Some of them were expert at it."

"A few years ago there was a man who put on a pageant for women's clubs," recalled the north side member. "He did the training, the women sold the tickets, and they split the profits. The funny thing about it was that a woman had written the pageant."

"Team work," pointed out the south side member. "After all, it shouldn't be a matter of a man or a woman, but a matter of which can do the job best, all things considered."

Question.

"How many times a year should a member be allowed to bring the same guest to program meetings?

"P. M. T."

Reply.

Most clubs limit guests to two visits a year. If guests were allowed to come often they would get the benefit of the club without any responsibility.

Paris Starts January in a Quiet Mood

French Aristocracy Leave Town for Chateaux and Hospitality of Country

By May Birkhead.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The capital's social activities as the new year opens have not been at such a low ebb in a long time. The worldwide economic and political uncertainties are reflected in private conversations echoed at rare gatherings where fashionables meet for charity.

New Year's eve revels, while not so uproarious as hitherto, still showed traces of their old time gayety and the buying of New Year's gifts was brisk. Indeed, Jan. 1 still has the edge on Christmas here for exchanging presents.

Comparatively mild and fair weather has not yet induced any marked trek to the Riviera, North Africa, or other sunshine resorts. The disposition to spend moderately is widespread. Many of the best known families of the French aristocracy and the upper bourgeoisie repair around January to chateaux or accept the hospitality of friends in the country. Thus the city, socially speaking, is relatively quiet. This calm is emphasized particularly in the purlieus of the American colony through the absence of many compatriots who have drifted homeward in recent months.

Interested in Exhibition.

Both native and adopted Parisians, however, are taking considerable interest in the grandiose exhibition of French art in London. One of the most admired pictures was lent by Martin A. Ryerson of Chicago. Several well known American residents of Paris also contributed.

Mme. Jacques Balsan, formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt, later the duchess of Marlborough, sent from Paris a landscape by Pissarro and Renoir's "Baigneuse." Mrs. Cooper Hewitt lent "Portico of a Country House," originally forming part of the decoration of Voltaire's Ferney theater near the Swiss border. This picture was executed by Hubert Robert, the same artist who is represented at the Chicago Art institute by four panels which he did just before the revolution for the court of the banker Laborde's country show place at Mereville, sixty miles south of Paris.

Plans Chicago Visit.

A French lecturer will visit Chicago in March in the person of Comte Serge Fleury of the ministry of foreign affairs, director of the "Revue d'Histoire Diplomatique." He knows many Americans and among his closest Chicago friends is Daniel H. Burnham. He has been invited to speak in many leading American cities. He has made a special study not only of the evolution of French society, but of its present tendencies. He treats the modern influence of women now as well as in the old régime, recreating vividly from an extensive erudition the setting of famous literary and social gatherings.

The Comte Fleury has traveled widely in Europe, Africa, and Asia, and has lectured at the Sorbonne, at Oxford, and at Cambridge. He knew intimately the Empress Eugenie.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reeves of Highland Park, Ill., who were married in Paris a few weeks ago are spending their honeymoon in Venice and are registered at the Royal Danieli.

Return Stolen Cross.

TOULOUSE, France.—(AP)—A 13th century processional cross, property of the church of St. Amans, has, for the second time within a few years, been stolen and returned, convincing churchgoers that the cross exerts a penitent influence on thieves.

Spain to Repair Old Castles.

MADRID.—(AP)—The republic is going to repair and preserve the most famous of the old castles in Spain as artistic monuments, charging that aristocratic owners allowed the buildings to decay.

New Year Introduces Art Exhibitions

American Moderns of New York Contrasted with Those in Chicago; French Show at Arts Club.

By Eleanor Jewett.

SEVERAL exhibitions, each different from the other, introduce the new year to us. In the Knoedler galleries there are paintings and sculpture by contemporary American moderns, chiefly from New York. At the Chicago Galleries association, 220 North Michigan avenue, there is an exhibit by six Chicago painters and one wood carver, Carl Hallsthammar. At the Arts club we are reintroduced to Picasso and Charles Dufresne, both of whom have been met in pleasanter circumstance. The Palette and Chisel club offers a one-man show of water colors and oils by Louis Weiner; the Studio gallery, Increase Robinson, director, invites us to one-man show of abstractions by Raymond Jonson; the Walden gallery, 919 North Michigan, presents an exhibit of water colors and small portraits of children by Hazel Hannell; the Indian Trading Post offers us a group of water colors by Jorge Murillo, a Mexican boy; and at the Art institute there still remain the decorative Mexican crafts exhibit, the delightful Swedish peasant wall paintings, the international lithography show, the Russian icons, and the Eddy paintings.

We are not as concerned today with the Art institute shows, all of which have been reviewed before, but many of which are worth seeing again, as we are in the 1932 exhibits. The Knoedler gallery has done an interesting thing in bringing the work of New York modernists here. No one can say that this exhibit is fully representative of New York art; it is representative of a certain branch of art being perpetrated in New York by those men whom many persons consider to be the new blood of American painting.

A Few Individualists.

Personally, it may be felt that these people are not altogether correct in their judgment. There are many of us who want more in American painting than photography or abstractions, imitations of Ferdinand Leger, our own early primitives, Derain and other French individualists.

You will find a few American individualists in this show. "Pop" Hart, for example, that marvelous tramp who has spread his canvas under nearly every sun on the globe, is here with "Street Fair, Fort Lee," and "The Oasis, Africa," two water colors that stand out. Of all the friendly, vigorous, gifted men painting today, "Pop" Hart leads. His very nickname shows the love in which he is held.

Charles Demuth is another painter whose work awakens an immediate response. His brilliant "Poppies" and delicate "Yellow Iris" have a singing quality that is refreshing. Peggy Brook is almost invariably irresistible. Here she is found in a self-portrait "Me," a caricature that is carried so far as to be amusing in its absurdity. Her other pastel, in more serious vein, is of Alexander Brook, "Casual Ablutions," and Mr. Brook very nicely is turning his back to wash his face. The detail in this picture is worth observing.

Annie Goldsmith is one of the moderns who first started modernism in New York. Apparently she is now in a gentle eddy which permits her to paint likable pictures. You will enjoy "Cabin in Alabama," a pleasing arrangement in gray with a comforting donkey in the foreground. Alexander Brook carries off full honors with his "The Broken Pitcher." It is a beautfully painted piece of still life. William Zorach has two impressionistically inclined water colors, both charming in color, "Embroidering" (the spell of old Japan) and "After the Rain." Marguerite Zorach has an interesting design in "Candle Light," a study of flowers and shadows.

Paints Meticulously.

Charles Sheeler is an artist who paints with meticulous care. He gives us, perhaps, a reason for his photographic exactitude, his philosophy: "Nothing is so astonishing as truth." Therefore he does not need to go beyond the visual truth, the plain matter of fact world by which we live, to find subjects for his brush. Literature has long made us aware of the obvious "fact is stranger than fiction," but in both literature and art the author should realize that his public is looking for more than the mere statement of an accomplished fact. The atmosphere, the spiritual forces aroused, and what throw a crowd into a frenzy; the written statement often leaves them cold.

During the war the best posters were those which struck below the surface and made men realize the truth that beyond the fact of death there were left the thousand cut ends of pathos and tragedy: orphans, widows, bereaved mothers; fathers who must grow old without their sons. The truth is that the fact is merely a glass on the surface of life; you must get under it for the real values.

Charles Sheeler is still cleverly skating on the surface. His picture in the exhibit is called "Home, Sweet Home," but never in this world was there as clean and precise a segment of floor and furniture called to mind when that song was sung. Home is a warm, hurried, friendly place where things, except before breakfast, are more apt than not to be out rather than in place. Niles Spencer in "The Camp Chair," has come nearer to the warm feeling of use than has Sheeler. His arrangement is less forced, freer and with greater depth.

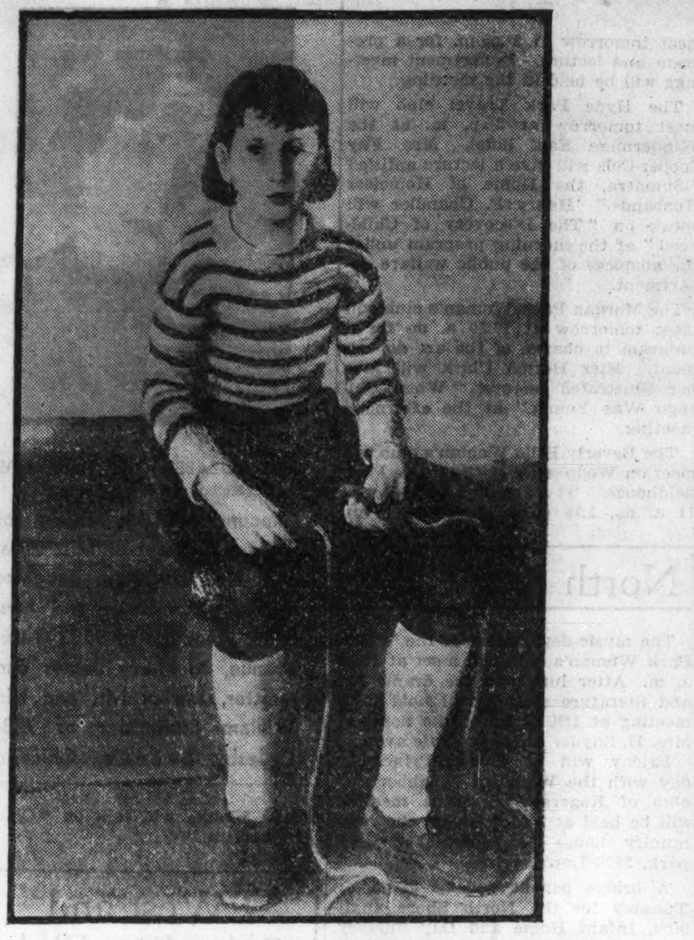
Work of Chicagoans.

The paintings to be seen at the Chicago Galleries association are also by contemporary American painters, but Chicagoans. In spite of the difference in habitat this exhibit should be considered as representative of modern American art as the exhibit at Knoedler's. It is very different in character and atmosphere. The Paris studio is in the air at the Knoedler gallery, and in the corners lurks a sense of strain.

The Chicago Galleries exhibit is quite simply straight-forward painting. The urge to be different is entirely lacking. One would never know to walk through this exhibit, that the men who have made history in French art during the last seventy years had ever lived. There is nothing "like" Derain here, nor "in the school of" Picasso. It is distinctly refreshing to stop for a moment and see life, see things which have appeared beautiful to men in life unflavored by a Gallic touch.



"BELINDA WITH JUMPING ROPE," by Alexander Brook, in the exhibit of New York moderns which opened Tuesday in the Knoedler galleries. Alexander Brook is married to Peggy Bacon, an artist whose clever and amusing caricatures have spread her fame wide and far, and this "Belinda" of the painting is their daughter. Mr. Brook has been the recipient of many prizes during the last few years. He is looked on as one of the most promising of our contemporary painters. His "The Broken Pitcher" in the Knoedler exhibit is a fine piece of painting.

Oscar Gross takes a stronger position in the ranks of portraiture by this showing of several very fine, little portraits of various men, most of them artists, and the brilliant large canvas of his two sons, a stunning piece of group portraiture excellently handled as a whole and in detail.

Edgar Forkner develops in picturesque colors his liking for boats and flowers. He has several interesting water colors and a number of colorful oils. Most lovely of his flower paintings is the one in which an old fashioned china pitcher figures.

Landscapes Show Similarity.

John A. Spelman shows again the spoils from a trip to northern Wisconsin. It may be that similarity clouds the effect of these landscapes, but Mr. Spelman has proved himself many times as a painter with vision. Randolph Coats has succeeded in getting a little away from the candy box cover and one or two of his girls in costume are charming. For some reason one wishes a little of the modernist iron would strike through the sentimental prettiness of unmodern painting; conservative or academic or even sane art does not need to be soft. Where the modernist revolt is seen justified is in this tender-flower school painting of the non-modernist.

Thomas Hall apparently is feeling his way into abstractions with various flower studies, the color of which is more than a little dull. A group of drawings by Conrad Albrizio introduce a new man to us and one who possess great strength in delineation. These drawings have a sweep, a feeling for space, distance and grandeur that is compelling.

The wood carvings of Carl Hallsthammar are always amusingly human. His new groups, the football squad and the baseball squad, are excellent. His single figures are very fine. He presents life under different ordinary guises that usually go unnoticed. Nothing is too big nor too small for him. The race track, the immigrants, the funeral, the sermon, the street band, the college jitney, the dentist, the photographer, the door-to-door salesman, the cowpuncher, the rodeo rider, all of these different figures that weave into and out of the web of ordinary living Mr. Hallsthammar portrays keenly and vividly with his clever fingers and sure tools.

At the Arts Club.

The Arts club is showing paintings by Pablo Picasso and Charles Dufresne, both names of importance in the development of French modernism. The Picasso paintings are extreme examples. They are ugly in line and color, valueless to any one who looks for beauty or inspiration in pictures. As documents relative to his progression in painting (though very little progress except backward seems to have been achieved) they may be of importance. As paintings to be enjoyed and to be lived with, one fears they do not fit the requirements.

The pictures in the larger gallery by Charles Dufresne have greater merit inasmuch as they are colorful. One needs more than color in a painting, doubtless, yet between a colorless and a colorful canvas the balance would sway, were the other characters equal, toward the vivid picture. Color is exhilarating, and its lack, when consciously ugly, is intolerably depressing.

So, from the standpoint of color, the Dufresne paintings make their claim. The paintings are chiefly of flowers and fruits. Two or three portraits of women, not particularly well done to eyes looking for more than the modernist portrait painter gives, break the wall. A large garden scene with an interesting red cow standing near an interesting yellow cow, and a number of fat cherubs cutting cunning capers while merrymakers linger in leisurely sport is fascinating for various reasons and is guaranteed to bring a laugh or a frown of boredom from the spectator.

If Dufresne had been more sparing of his color his paintings would have profited. As it is, the most charming canvas in the exhibit is a little still life on the left hand east wall, "Still Life with Pot of Flowers."

Paintings of the Southwest.

The water colors and oil paintings by Louis Weiner at the Palette and Chisel club are, for the most part, paintings from the southwest. A touch of Emil Armin modernism flavors many of them. They are rapid, scintillating, jig-saw blends and contrasts in color; orange, red, pink, yellow, and blue predominating. "Los Cerrillos Formations" is one of the more sober paintings, and it is strong and forceful, the composition losing nothing of its strength when deprived of its color in lithograph form.

The "San Ildefonso Eagle Dance" is superb, brilliant in action, color and composition. Among the others which are most interesting either in subject, color or arrangement, are "T-Omo Hill," "Road to Otowi," "Ship Rock," "At the Foothills," "County Store," "Road to the Mountains," and "Roof Tops, Galena."

The paintings by Raymond Jonson in the studio gallery, Diana Court, must be reserved for discussion next Sunday. They are chiefly abstractions and possess power in color and sweep of design.

News of Art and Artists.

The department of museum instruction at the Art institute offers series of informal lectures on the appreciation of art and on the Art institute collections, which are intended to be an aid to the layman in the cultivation of his ability to understand and appreciate art. The lectures are most interesting as well as being instructive and are well worth hearing. The fee is small.

The winter schedule opened last Monday with the following subjects, hours and days: Mondays at 11, the current exhibitions; Mondays at 6:15, the Art institute collections; Tuesdays at 6:30, the history of art; Wednesdays at 11, the history of architecture; Thursdays at 11, personalities in art; Fridays at 11, modern art; Fridays at 11, beginning Feb. 19, art centers of Spain. There is also a sketch class for amateurs on Mondays from 10 to 12 o'clock under the care of Anita Willetts Burnham.

Another extremely worth while class is that on modern painting, which meets Tuesdays from 10:45 to 12:45 in charge of Assistant Professor Driscoll of the University of Chicago. Further details concerning any of these classes may be had by addressing Miss Helen Parker, the department of museum instruction, the Art institute. It is not too late to join now.

The Chicago Artists exhibition will open at the Art institute on Jan. 25. In addition to the usual prizes a prize of $200 will be given by an anonymous donor to the work of art receiving the most votes. The voting will be limited to the 17,000 members of the Art institute.

Germany to Have Huge War Shrine in Pine Forests

BAD BERKA, Germany.—(AP)—Despite the times, Germany is going ahead with an ambitious project for a great national memorial to her war dead.

It is to be situated in the Thuringian forest, the very heart of the fatherland.

About twenty square miles have been placed at the disposal of the organizing committee. Mysteriously dark pine woods, with a belt of undulating meadow land, all girt by gently sloping hills, make the site peculiarly Germanic.

In the midst of the forest will be a "sacred grove" where, on a huge model of the iron cross, will burn an everlasting flame. The approach will be guarded by a statue of Germania 35 feet high, holding a laurel wreath. An inscription will remind the visitor: "Our dead fell for a free Germany. Remember!"

Nearby will rise an amphitheater of five semi-circular terraces, one for each war year. This is intended as a place for commemorative meetings.

At the other end will stand a chapel whose bell will toll for vespers each evening.

The entire site will be enclosed by a Cyclopean wall with entrances guarded by stone sentries in the full field equipment of the German soldier.

The work is to start next April, provided it can be financed by a popular subscription.

Adams on Official Contract

Doubles, Informatory and Business; What They Mean and When You Should Make Them.

By Charles True Adams.

"DOUBLE, double, toil and trouble." I think all bridge players will agree with me that there is no one subject in the game of contract, or auction, either, for that matter, that causes as much hard feeling and as much general discord among partners as this subject of doubles—informatory and business.

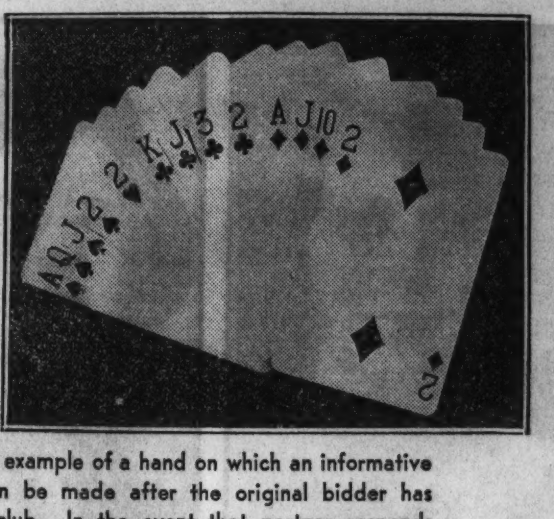
The general rule for doubles is this: A double of one, two, or three of a suit or a double of one no-trump is informatory when the partner of the doubler has neither bid nor doubled. If the partner of the doubler has bid or doubled a double of one, two, or three of a suit or of one no-trump is business. The double of four or more of a suit or two or more no-trumps is always business, regardless of previous action by the partner of the doubler. A few illustrations may make this clear.

Let us suppose that North bids a heart, East passes, South passes, and West doubles. This is clearly informatory. West's partner has neither bid nor doubled. Suppose North bids a heart, East bids a spade, South bids two hearts, West doubles. This is business. West's partner has bid. Suppose North passes, East bids one club, South one heart, West doubles. Again this is a business double, since West's partner has bid.

Again North bids three hearts, East passes, South passes, West doubles. This is clearly informatory. West's partner has neither bid nor doubled. Suppose North bids one no-trump; East, pass; South, two no-trumps; West, double. This is a business double. True, West's partner (East) has not bid or doubled, but West has doubled two no-trumps and a double of two no-trumps is always business, regardless of partner's previous bid or lack of bid.

It is very hard, indeed, to give workable rules which will contain hard and fast strength requirements for either informatory or business doubles. We may say that for an informatory double of one of a suit the hand should contain as a minimum the strength necessary to make an initial bid of one no-trump, i. e., a count of 12; to double a one no-trump we should have as a minimum a little more than the necessary strength of an initial one no-trump, i. e., a count of at least 14.

To double a suit bid of two our hand must be quite strong. As a general supposition I believe that it should hold at least six tricks, of which four should be sure tricks. Playing against opponents using the Official system and using three as a forcing bid rather than the alternative two club forcing bid, we would do well never to consider doubling a forcing bid of three as an informatory double. However, playing against opponents that do not use three as a forcing bid, we may at times find instances where we wish to double such a bid informatively. It would, of course, follow that an informative double of three of a suit would necessitate an extremely powerful hand containing eight or nine or more tricks.



Here is an example of a hand on which an informative double can be made after the original bidder has said one club. In the event that partner responds with a heart bid, you can then bid no-trump.

There are other elements that we must take into consideration in making informatory doubles. It has become the modern practice for the partner of the doubler to take the double out in a major suit if he has one (provided it is not the suit that has been doubled), even though he has a stronger minor. In other words, he will take out in a major suit if he possibly can. Since the best the doubler can ordinarily hope for from his partner is a four card suit bid, the ideal hand with which to double a bid of one no-trump or a bid of one club or a diamond would contain four hearts and four spades, with top strength in both, the entire hand, of course, containing at least the minimum strength requirements. Similarly the ideal hand with which to double a bid of one spade would contain four hearts with top strength, and the best hand for a double of one heart would contain four spades with the top strength. In each case the entire hand would contain at least the minimum strength requirements.

Many hands, however, justify the making of an informatory double which do not conform to these ideal major suit holdings, but it must be constantly kept in mind that our partner will answer the double with a major suit if possible and that it seldom will have more than four cards in it and that consequently we cannot deviate to any great extent from the ideal situation unless we can take care of our partner by a change in declaration should our partner's answer not fit our hand.

Let us suppose, for instance, that we hold the following hand and the opponent on our right has bid one club:

♠—A,Q,J,2
♥—2
♦—A,J,10,2
♣—K,J,3,2

This hand obviously is too strong to pass and yet we have no five card suit to bid. True we would have, if we were in the initial bidding position, a justifiable bid of one spade on the four card suit. Almost any four card suit bid is, however, based on the fond hope that partner will also hold four cards of that suit. Now when we hold this hand after an opponent's bid of one club we have the good fortune of being able to determine, by the use of the informatory double, whether or not our partner has a four card spade suit before we in any way commit ourselves to a spade declaration. We know that if we double a one club bid our partner will not answer in spades unless he has at least four spades. We are, however, unfortunate in that our hearts fall far short of the ideal situation. But we are not entirely lost if our partner does answer in hearts, for we can shift to a no-trump—a declaration in which we probably will be safe, though one in which we are unlikely to make game. If the answer should be in diamonds we are likewise safe and may find a game, provided our partner's holding is decidedly above average. This hand then, though falling short of the desirable holding in both majors, is, nevertheless, a hand in which an informatory double is more than justified.

It must be remembered that no double is an absolute command by the partner to be left in if it appear business, or to be taken out if it appear to be informatory. Calling a double informatory or business merely allows the partner of the doubler to classify the type of hand on which the double is made. In many cases it may benefit the best interests of the partnership for the partner of the informatory doubler to pass, thereby transforming the informatory double into a business double. A pass in such circumstances is the same as a business pass and when properly used is often very effective. Suppose the bid has been as follows: One no-trump, double, pass, and the partner of the doubler holds this hand:

♠—J,10,x,x
♥—Q,x,x,x
♦—K,10,x
♣—A,x

With the information conveyed by the informatory double it might very well be that it would be worth while to pass and inflict a large penalty than to take out with a possible chance for game. Let us suppose, on the other hand, that the auction had been as follows:

South	West	North	Our hand
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Double	Pass	?

and we hold the following cards:

♠—None
♥—K,2
♦—J,10,9,7,6,5,3,2
♣—4,3,2

This hand obviously contains no defensive strength and could scarcely be expected to give our partner one trick in aid of his business double. It would, however, seem very probable that our partner holds some top strength in diamonds and if his business double is sound he must hold side strength in either clubs or hearts. It would then seem quite possible for us to make a five diamond declaration, while it would seem very probable that if we pass our opponents will make four spades. We might then take out this business double with a bid of five diamonds with excellent results.

While it is not wise in the majority of hands to change the effect of our partner's double—refusing to take out when it is informatory or taking out when it is business—there are, nevertheless, numerous instances in which we must remember that a double is a flexible thing and in which a business pass of an informatory double or a take-out of a business double will bring far better results than to follow our partner's suggestion since our partner has no definite knowledge of our own holding.

A HAND FOR THE ADVANCED PLAYER

While there is some doubt of the success of the Lenz-Culbertson bridge tournament as a test of systems, it has brought out some very brilliant playing on the part of both pairs. It really is an interesting match. Looking at it from a standpoint of a test of luck, wit, bluff, and ability to manipulate the cards, the bridge public seldom has seen its equal.

At the beginning of the match Mr. Culbertson executed a backward squeeze which enabled him to make four spades. This is an end play of great rarity. This was the hand:

NORTH (Mr. Lenz)
♠—7,5
♥—K,Q,10,3
♦—Q,5
♣—J,10,8,7,3

WEST (Mr. Culbertson)
♠—K,Q,J,10,9,6
♥—J,8,6
♦—K,8
♣—Q,2

EAST (Mrs. Culbertson)
♠—A,2
♥—9,7,5,4
♦—A,7,4
♣—A,6,5,4

SOUTH (Mr. Jacoby)
♠—8,4,3
♥—A,2
♦—J,10,9,6,3,2
♣—K,9

Mr. Culbertson dealt and passed. Mr. Lenz passed. Mrs. Culbertson, though not holding a biddable third hand under the system she professes to play, nevertheless, bid one no-trump. South passed. Mr. Culbertson now bid two spades and Mr. Lenz passed. Mrs. Culbertson, possibly frightened because of her weak original bid, now passed and allowed her partner to play the hand at two spades.

Mr. Lenz opened the ♥ K. Mr. Jacoby took his partner's K with his A and led back the ♥ 2. This trick Mr. Lenz won with the 10, leading back the ♥ 3, which was trumped by Mr. Jacoby. Mr. Jacoby returned a diamond, which dummy won with the ♦ A. Mr. Culbertson now proceeded to lead out five rounds of trumps. This left the hands in the following situation:

North	East	South	West
♥ Q	♥ 9	♦ 10	♠ 6
♦ Q	♦ 7	♦ 9	♦ K
♣ J	♦ 4	♣ K	♣ Q
♣ 10	♣ A	♣ 9	♣ 2

Mr. Culbertson now led the ♠ 6. Mr. Lenz was compelled to discard either a club or a diamond in order to keep dummy's ♥ 9 covered with his Q. Mr. Jacoby, of course, had to discard either a diamond or a club. If he discards the diamond Mr. Culbertson then will lead his ♦ K and go over to his dummy with the ♣ A and lead the diamond in dummy, which now is good. If, on the other hand, Mr. Jacoby should discard the ♣ 9, Mr. Culbertson can lead the ♣ 2 to dummy's A and lead back the ♦ 4 to his own ♦ K and then lead out his ♣ Q for the last trick.

This is one of the prettiest plays in the game and, queerly enough, the exact type of play that most delights Mr. Culbertson's opponent, Mr. Lenz, and which is continually found in the various problems by means of which Mr. Lenz has delighted thousands of his followers.

Find Russian Raid Relics.

WARSAW.—(AP)—Workmen excavating the cellar of a little church in Praga, a suburb, unearthed 114 skulls and a case of church silver. It is believed this was a mass grave for victims of a massacre of civilians by Russian troops in 1794.

New York Notables on Their Way to the Southland Resorts

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—With the passing of the holidays, the winter season enters into its final phase. From now on there will be gradual but numerous desertions on the part of members of society, and those who remain at home will partake of the only item the social bill of fare has to offer—the annual balls and dances.

The season in town is obviously short, and its shortness is not a matter for regret, since it permits one to forget the lack of interest the schedule holds for the socially inclined. The debutantes make a deal of noise and fun in the Thanksgiving to New Year's comings out, and after that there are nothing but charitable performances, charity dances, the Beaux Arts, and the still rheumatic charity ball.

Already the exodus is taking place. The south is receiving daily batches of New York notables. The members of the Meadow Brook colony, who cling to their Long Island homes as all year residences and fairly scorn town save for an evening's fun, are off for Aiken, where they fraternize until spring. Among the lot who are soon to make for South Carolina are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Mr. and Mrs. J. Averell Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. Devereux Milburn, Mr. and Mrs. F. Skiddy Von Stade, Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Garvan, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Grace, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Kent, Mr. and Mrs. W. Deering Howe, and Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis.

Palm Beach Group Leaves.

Then there is the more effete and less outdoors inclined group who flee to Palm Beach as soon as possible. Phippses, Huttons, Biddles, Warburtons, all are vanished from town, lingering about the Bath and Tennis, and on the beach at Sea Spray, and utterly oblivious to the very existence of Gotham.

Here, then, is naught but affairs of charity. The first of a series of eight dances known as the Sert dances, got under way this week at the Waldorf in aid of the New York infirmary for women and children.

Incidentally, Jose Maria Sert is the only celebrity the winter has produced. The room at the Waldorf named after the Spanish artist and filled with his amazing murals is most popular with notables. The artist himself, who sailed for his home in Paris this week, has been fêted royally. Sert is a queer looking person, far from romantic, being short, chubby, bald, and possessing a huge black beard. None the less, he is the only lion who has roared through the few salons of the winter.

At any rate, the Sert dances under the leadership of Mrs. Edwin Main Post Jr. will be repeated on each Thursday of January and February, and among the women heading the invitation committee are Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Harry Payne Bingham, Mrs. Irving Brokaw, Aileen Burden, Mrs. Loew Burrill, Mrs. Philip Acosta Carroll, Mrs. Carroll Carstairs, Mrs. Duncan Dunscombe, Doris Duke, Betty Gerard; her mother, Mrs. Julian Gerard; Mrs. Robert Goelet, Princess Hohenlohe-Schillingfurst, Mrs. William Deering Howe, Mrs. Ector O. Munn, Mrs. John T. Pratt Jr., Mrs. T. Markoe Robertson, Mrs. Harriman Russell, Sarah Jane Sanford, Mrs. Cameron Tiffany, Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse, Mrs. George D. Widener, Mellissa Yuille, and the countess di Zoppola.

Ball Aids Hospital.

Next Friday will see the annual Bal Guignol at the Ritz in aid of the reconstruction unit of the Post Graduate hospital. Here the debs will get in a lot of work, and the dance committee will have the fun of running things. In this group are Penelope Borden, Mrs. Kenelm Winslow, Mrs. Antoin-Ponvert, Leila Delano, Mrs. George N. Gardiner Jr., Eugenia Morris, Katherine Ogden, Alice De Peyster, and Cornelia Ingersoll.

On the 19th is the annual charity ball in aid of the New York nursery and Child's hospital. Mrs. W. Thorn Kissell heads the ball with Mrs. George Henry Warren, and Mrs. F. Burrall Hoffman occupying the dais with her.

Among the patronesses for this, the oldest of charitable affairs, are Mrs. Henry A. Clark, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mrs. Oliver H. P. La Farge, Mrs. Henry Irish, Mrs. Charles Elliott Warren, Mrs. Winthrop W. Aldrich, Mrs. C. Whitney Carpenter, Mrs. Jay Gould, Mrs. L. Gordon Hammersley, Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledyard, Mrs. Edward R. Stettinius, and Mrs. Augustus Van Cortlandt.

Beaux Arts Ball.

As a fit finale to the month will come the Beaux Arts ball on the 22d, for the first time at the New Waldorf, and it will undoubtedly be one of the most brilliant and successful affairs of recent years.

The pageant of old New York, which is to precede the "first inaugural ball of the United States of America," will be divided into four divisions. The Indian, Dutch, and English colonial, and the American revolutionary periods. Some 500 people will take part in the pageants, and the costumes of all the courts of Europe of the pre-revolutionary days will be displayed. As much as possible, direct descendants of colonial characters will portray their forbears. Mr. and Mrs. C. Kenneth Clinton will be governor and Mrs. Clinton; Viscomte Henri di Sibour will be his ancestor, the marquis de Lafayette; Francis A. Nelson will be Gen. Thomas Nelson.

The A. Coster Schermerhorns will be Jacob and Vrauw Janse Schermerhorn; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Suydam will be Ryck and Vrauw Suydam; T. R. Pell will be John Pell of Pelham, and many others will portray noted characters in the history of New York. It does appear that with the Beaux Arts an otherwise dull season will go out in a blaze of glory.

"Dutch" Uncle in Trouble.

BATAVIA.—(AP)—The Dutch East Indies have a pawn shop crisis. The Dutch government is "uncle" for the natives, and revenue from the pawn shops has decreased about $12,500,000 in the last year. Dismissals of native employés have resulted in meetings of protest.

Massachusetts Lake Has Name of 46 Letters

WEBSTER, Mass. — [U. P.]— Lake Chargoggagoggmanchauggaggogg chaubunagungamaugg traces its remarkable name back to the days when Indians peoples its shores.

The name of 46 letters, including 16 g's and 9 a's, developed from the facts that the Redskins liked to fish, and the lake had three divisions—upper, middle, and lower.

The fishing was best in the middle lake, and two Indian tribes, living at opposite ends, used to dispute over which had the right to fish there.

Finally they got together and drew up a treaty providing that those living at the upper end could fish in the upper lake, those living at the lower end could fish in the lower lake, but neither could fish in the middle lake—a decision fortunate for the fish.

So they named the lake after the terms of that treaty:

Chargoggagogg, "You fish on your side."

Manchauggaggogg, "I fish on my side."

Chaubunagungamaugg, "Nobody fish in the middle."

Baden Sees Feudal Times.

KARLSRUHE, Germany.—(AP)—Feudal times have returned in some parts of Baden, where all males above the age of 16 have been conscripted for road making. The pay is one mark, or 25 cents, a day.

Asheville Plans Many Sports and Social Affairs

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—The year 1932 will witness events of interest to the thousands of visitors who annually spend some time in Asheville and tour through the western North Carolina mountains. The tentative schedule includes many sports and social affairs, together with conventions and a program of festivals and exhibitions.

As usual, golf will occupy a position of first importance in the calendar. It is expected that the 1932 tournament list will follow much after the pattern of 1931, with some two score members tournaments and special matches at the two major clubs, culminating in the annual invitation tournaments to be held at both clubs in August.

Conventions and special parties will number probably beyond 100.

Equestrian events during the year should include horse shows at Tryon, N. C., in the spring and at Blowing Rock, N. C., in midsummer.

The Rhododendron festival, which has become in four years a point of high interest in the calendar, probably will be held this year in June.

Among recent arrivals here were Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Piehl, H. A. Webster, Theo Smetana, all of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Schwenneke of Evanston, who were guests at the George Vanderbilt hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Platt of Highland Park and C. L. Speed of Chicago were arrivals at the Battery Park hotel.

Mrs. John R. Ryan of Chicago was listed among sojourners at the Asheville Biltmore hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Long of Chicago were among registrants at the Hotel Asheville.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 5, 1879.

DEAR JULIA:

Lent has arrived, and I believe I am glad of a respite from social duties. I find I cannot go at the pace which I enjoyed twenty years ago, and we have had quite a brilliant season here. I quite appreciated quaint old George Herbert's stanzas on the forty day fast period, which mother asked me to read to her today. Do you remember his poem called "Lent"? It begins:

"Welcome, dear feast of Lent,
Who loves not thee,
He loves not temperance nor authoritie,
But is composed of passion."

And a little further on:

"Yet, Lord, instruct us to improve our fast
By starving sinne, and taking such repast
As may our faults controlle;
That every man may revell at his doore
(Not in his parlor), banqueting the poore,
And among those, his soul."

I heard some minister [I can't remember whether it was Bishop McLaren or Dr. Locke] say recently that every child should be required to learn every word of "The Church Porch," as a preparation for life. Rather a task, but it is fine. Will taught young Martha when she was just a little thing the couplet from "The Church Porch":

"Dare to be true. Nothing can need a lie.
The fault that needs it most grows two thereby."

I have attended today a meeting of the Chicago Exchange for Women's Work, in which I have become quite interested. I have been asked to become a member of the board of managers, and think I shall enjoy it. Today quite a number of new members were added—the best known and liked women of the city. Some of these were Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams (who was Emma Blair, daughter of our friends, the Lyman Blairs), Mrs. Judge Lawrence, Mrs. Judge Beckwith, Mrs. Gen. Chetlain, Mrs. H. H. Porter, and Mrs. R. W. Patterson Jr. (Those are north side ladies.) From the south side were chosen Mrs. Nelson Ludington, Mrs. Henry Keep, Mrs. Edson Keith, Mrs. L. Z. Leiter, Mrs. Albert Keep, Mrs. J. C. Hilton, Mrs. Jesse Whitehead, and young Mrs. Henry Blair. From the west side of the city: Mrs. A. A. Sprague, Mrs. William Waller, and Mrs. Prof. Haven. The suburbs contributed to the roster Mrs. J. Y. Scammon of Hyde Park, Mrs. Jessie Bross Lloyd of Winnetka, and Mrs. J. V. Le Moyne of Lake View.

This organization helps women who need to earn money but are not able to leave home, for it sells the product of their home work, and at quite good prices. It is a service that is twice blessed, too, for we all are delighted to get such beautiful hand sewing and such excellent canned goods and cakes.

Martha has just interrupted me to show me her new coiffure. The change in hairdressing seems quite revolutionary to me, and yet I believe I shall like it. Will asked if she had been converted by some sermon and told her the story—an old one, of course—of the minister who disliked women's hair done on top of the head and, to combat it, preached a sermon from the text, "Topknot, come down." Martha was certain that these words could not be found in Holy Writ, but when, at Will's suggestion, she looked up Matthew 24:17, she had to admit, with laughter, that the old minister might have found his text there.

Martha isn't the first to adopt the new style. All our Chicago girls are taking "Topknot, come down" for a motto. Vanished are the once fashionable puffs, bows, braids, and general fussiness of their headdress, and all the stylish set are wearing their hair parted simply in front and waved or crimped, as best suits the face. The coil at the neckline is very becoming to Martha. She has placed a Jacqueminot rose (sent by an admiring swain) at one side of the knot, and it droops on her shoulder in a very fetching fashion.

Martha's new cavalier (the one who sent the roses) is rather an interesting young fellow, to me. I can't divine yet how Martha feels toward him, but the young man himself seems to be much in earnest. His name is Angus Alexander MacLeod, a good Scotch appellation. He is the son of a Scotch minister—Presbyterian, of course—and come over to America to stay with an aunt down in Illinois and to attend school. The aunt was not a rich woman, but was able to help him through college. Last summer she died, leaving him a small legacy, which he is devoting to a course in the Chicago Medical college.

He goes out very little, not only because he is a great student, but also, I suspect, because he can't afford it. Cyrus McCormick brought him in to call about a month ago, and since then he has called twice. He is a real gentleman, and I believe he will succeed in his profession, he seems to love it so.

Another interruption. Will wanted to read me some epitaphs composed by Charles Lamb while he was employed in the East India office. Will enjoys "epitaffy," and always clips any such contribution from the papers. He has a great envelope full of these clippings in his office.

He wants me to copy one of these for you. It is called "Tom Dix's Mother," and there is an explanation that Margaret Dix had been born on the 29th of February, a leap year, and thus, though she was really 76 years old, she had had but nineteen celebrations of her natal day:

"Ci-git the remains of Margaret Dix,
Who was young in age, I ween;
Though Envy, with Malice, cried 'Seventy-six,'
The Graces declared her Nineteen."

I seem to be "lisping in numbers." I'll try to be less poetical and more newsy next time.

Your old friend,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Footnotes.

George Herbert [1593-1632] wrote mainly on religious subjects. "The Church Porch," a rhymed homily on right conduct, is still well worth reading, couched as it is in the quaint language of the seventeenth century.

The Woman's Exchange of Chicago has had a long and useful career, for it was founded in 1872. Its first president was Mrs. William Penn Nixon. The present president is Miss Helen Gurley.

It is odd to find Lake View denominated a suburb, but it was so called in 1879.

The mention of John B. Drake's game dinners has stirred the memories of many correspondents. Among these is Frank M. Cary of Lafayette, Ind., who says: "These famous dinners were given in the spacious dining room of the Grand Pacific hotel. The name 'game dinner' is right, as I could attest had I saved my menu card. . . . From about 1885 to 1894 I was in Chicago half my time, living always when in town at the Grand Pacific, the best and the best known, nationally, in the country at that time.

"'If you can't get what you want, especially in the dining room, at the Grand Pacific, try San Francisco,' was what the railroad people said.

"My business associates were among the first tenants in the Rookery building, which was to Chicago in those days what the Empire State building is to New York today. Many hundred people visited the Rookery daily, and they weren't charged $1 per for elevator service, to get a wonderful view of the city and the lake."

Edward J. Koch of Chicago writes of the great game dinners at the Grand Pacific. Mr. Koch was born in Chicago in 1861, his birthplace being the site of the present Dearborn station.

Today's contribution to the Beloved Little Home Town corner is in rhyme.

THE OLD HOME TOWN.

'Twas far away from the ocean's roar.
No murmuring river flowed
By our country town's prosaic door;
No mountains there were to lend their lore
To the tale of the prairie road.

But its stunted grove and muck rimmed pond,
And the courthouse that grimly frowned
On the sterile clay bound fields beyond
Seemed under the spell of a magic wand,
And, somehow, enchanted ground.

'Twas an everyday sort of an old home town.
Its streets were not paved with gold;
But our feet, though dusty and bare and brown,
Trod with pride its byways up and down,
As conquering yeomen bold.

Dear us! We have forgotten about the jorum. It means an old fashioned drinking vessel, or its contents.

Answer to question No. 26: Dr. Robert H. Clarkson of St. James' Episcopal church, later missionary bishop of Nebraska and Dakota, fired his congregation with patriotic zeal during the civil war.

Question No. 27: What priest, pastor of one of Chicago's oldest Roman Catholic churches in the '60s, helped organize what was known as the "Irish Legion," which later took the field as the 90th Illinois regiment, with Father Kelly as its chaplain?

Send proverbs, Victorian wisecracks, and Beloved Little Home Town contributions to Herma Clark, care of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Snowden Ranks Eighth in List of English Peers

LONDON. — (AP) — Philip, Viscount Snowden, stands eighth on the roll of peers of the new parliament, preceded only by the prince of Wales, duke of York, duke of Gloucester, duke of Connaught, the archbishop of Canterbury, the lord chancellor and the archbishop of York.

He gets his high position by virtue of being lord privy seal.

The roll contains 756 names, but two new peers haven't chosen titles, so the total number is 758.

Paris Fogs Begin to Rival London's

PARIS.—(AP)—Paris fogs are making a determined effort to climb into the place long held by London's "pea soupers," and health officials are worried about it.

For twenty years the continued industrialization of the Paris suburban area has filled the low lying clouds with smoke and gas. And now reports come across the channel that London fogs are getting lighter.

Sculptor Objects to Statue's Place in Trade Exhibit

LONDON. — (AP) — Jacob Epstein's marble statue, "Genesis," which aroused criticism in many quarters when first exhibited last spring, hasn't found peace yet.

Now it is the subject of controversy between the sculptor and the owner, Mrs. Alfred C. Bossom, wife of an architect.

Epstein became wrathy because the statue was taken to West Bromwich and exhibited at a trade show. He said his masterpiece had been made part of a "model bungalow" exhibit.

Mrs. Bossom replied that wherever shown the entire proceeds had gone to charity and that more than half a million people had gone to see the work.

Epstein rejoined: "I am not interested in being regarded as a benefactor to mankind. I am an artist. The reference to charities does not concern me in the least."

Austrian Artist Paints Cabinet Members' Wives

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the secretary of the interior, is the second cabinet officer's wife to pose for a portrait by Prof. Josef Sigall, Austrian artist.

The portrait of Mrs. Patrick Hurley, wife of the secretary of war, was viewed in Prof. Sigall's studio recently by Mrs. Hoover and wives of cabinet members.

Peppermint Attempt.

MUNICH.—(AP)—To make the German market independent of Indiana and other foreign peppermint, experiments are being conducted in growing the herb on the Erdinger moor near here. A peppermint oil distillery may also be built and fueled with peat from the moor.

Town of Cognac Has a Grievance Against World

COGNAC, France.—[U. P.]—This town, home of Three Star Hennessy, has a grievance.

It's all because everybody has been picking on cognac as a good commodity to tax. Even Siam, which always showed a great partiality for the liqueur, has doubled its import duties.

India recently increased its revenue tax on cognac by 25 per cent. Australia imposed several successive increases in its taxes. Russia banned cognac. Then Central and South American countries issued decrees against it.

To add to the trouble, cognac producers in the vicinity of Cognac claim to have discovered that Spanish and Greek producers of a similar beverage have been selling their product under the name of "Cognac." This, they allege, is a breach of international treaties.

Winter Sports Hold Stage at St. Augustine

Six Major Golf Tourneys and Five Tennis Events Have Been Scheduled

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla.—[Special.]—Society here turns from a busy week of social affairs to join the winter program of sports. The schedule is the most elaborate ever planned for this resort.

Dates have been set for six major tournaments for men and women in golf, and in tennis at least five events will be held, including the tenth annual Southeastern championship for men. This latter tournament is sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis association and will be played on the Alcazar courts.

The first golf tournament of the new year will be held on Jan. 19 to 23. This is the annual Florida East Coast men's championship. The tournament will serve as a preliminary to the National Amateur championship of golf club champions, an event which in its fifth year has become one of the major golf attractions and the outstanding amateur tournament of the season. This winter's golf classic will include club champions from all sections, who will compete for the Walter J. Travis memorial trophy. The tournament will be contested on the St. Augustine links Feb. 1-6. A number of leading amateur golfers will participate.

Favorable Start for Cup.

The cup is to become the permanent possession of the club whose representative wins this tournament three times, not necessarily in succession. The players who have already won one leg on the trophy are Robert E. Wingate, representing the Jacksonville municipal links; Carl Dann Jr., representing the Plymouth Country club of Florida; Howard A. Tryon, representing the Elmira Country club, and T. Philip Perkins of the Fox Hills Golf club, former British amateur champion. All four are expected to compete again in February.

Perkins and Tryon will be backed by a large contingent from New York. One of the outstanding Empire state contenders is John B. Ryerson of Cooperstown, former Yale star and champion of the Cooperstown Country club for the last three years. Another is Johnny Plantier, titleholder of the Van Schaick Island Country club.

A number of social affairs will be given in connection with the competitions.

Topping the week's social activities here was a bridge party given by Mrs. George Miller at her home on Bay street. Later egg nogg was served. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Philip B. Jennings, Mrs. Elbridge Gerry Snow, Mr. and Mrs. J. Duncan Puller, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Buckner Barret, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lamont, Mrs. William T. Durrett, Mrs. Robert Erskine Wright, Mrs. Theodore M. Livesay, Miss Amey Macmillan, Mr. Edward B. Mears, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Henderich, and Mr. George Worthington.

Will Present "Loyalties."

The Play Readers will entertain at their second performance here on Jan. 19. Mrs. Philip B. Jennings is president, and is assisted by members of the managing board, who are Mrs. Robert Erskine Wright, Mrs. Theodore M. Livesay, and Miss Amey Macmillan. The cast for the play, "Loyalties," by John Galsworthy, includes Mrs. Robert Neil Dickman, Mr. Fred A. Henderich, Mr. Bertram C. Mickler, George B. Lamar, Miss Edith Taylor, T. Rogero Mickler, Mrs. Knight McClintock, Mr. Charles F. Hopkins Jr., Mr. Tyler Van Campen, Mr. Sterling Marsh, Dr. J. R. Moseley, Mr. Albert J. Watt, Mr. Malcolm Leslie Stephens, the Rev. L. Fitz-James Hindry, Judge W. A. MacWilliams, Mr. J. W. Hoffman, and Mr. Edward B. Mears.

Miss Macmillan is the producer, and the entertainment will be at Dream Harbor, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barret. Mrs. Barret is the official hostess.

Recent luncheon guests at the Ponce de Leon included Mr. Garrett Chatfield Pier, author and archaeologist, and Mrs. Pier of Greenwich, Conn. Mr. Pier's latest book is "Jeweled Tree," which was produced on Broadway. He is now writing a book named "Sicily." Prior to devoting all of his time to the literary world, Mr. Pier was associated for eighteen years with the Metropolitan museum in New York.

Mrs. Elbridge Gerry Snow and her son, Sterling Marsh of New York, who opened their winter villa on the sea wall early this season, have returned from a short motor trip to the southern part of the state.

Other Winter Guests.

Mr. William R. Kenan Jr. and Mrs. Kenan are expected soon at the Ponce de Leon to remain for the season. Others who are planning to arrive this month are Mr. and Mrs. Ten Eyck Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Merriam of New York; Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall Allen of Convent, N. J.; Miss M. E. Clift, Mrs. Howard P. Cornell, Mrs. Edward Halsey Peck, Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Carr, and Mr. and Mrs. Eben H. Ellison. Mr. and Mrs. August Heckscher and Mr. and Mrs. William Fahnestock of New York will arrive soon to open their respective homes for the winter.

Mrs. Robert Neil Dickman, who has been visiting with her brother, William M. Wherry, in New York, plans to open her cottage on the Bay Front in the near future.

The program of social activities at the Ponce de Leon is in full swing. Three concerts, held daily, are played in the loggia in the morning, for tea in the afternoon in the patio, and in the evening in the rotunda.

Mrs. Milton W. Kirk entertained Miss Marian Potter for the week-end. They motored to Jacksonville, where they called on Sister Mercedes at St. Joseph's academy. On their return in the evening Mrs. Kirk attended the concert at the Ponce de Leon.

A most delightful luncheon party was given at the St. Augustine Links clubhouse by Mrs. James L. Barber. Her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney E. Farwell, Mrs. W. Thornley Dickson, and Miss Margaret Grannis.

Cyril C. Spades of Chicago entertained at luncheon recently at the St. Augustine Links clubhouse, and the party played golf before and after luncheon.

Mrs. J. J. Nagle of Milwaukee has arrived here for her usual winter stay.

Historic Lima Blend of New World and Old

TO the person who seeks a new travel experience, as well as an escape from winter, the west coast of South America has much to offer in its 5,000 miles of spectacular coast line off the beaten bath, with ports and places rarely seen except by those who demand the unusual in their travels.

Leaving New York, you cruise down amethyst seas to Panama, where your great liner is smoothly raised and lowered through the locks of the canal, a thrilling experience in itself.

Then out into the broad Pacific. The air becomes cooler as you approach the equator, for the gentle breezes from the antarctic stream caress the decks of your spacious ship. As you cross the line Neptune comes aboard. The traditional ceremony of initiating those who are crossing for the first time is hilariously carried out by the bewhiskered king and all his court.

* *

Make Interesting Stops.

En route there are interesting stops at Talara, Buenaventura, and Guayaquil. And, then, one morning your ship swings majestically into the beautiful harbor of Callao. A private car speeds you inland seven scenic miles to Lima.

Lima is Paris. It is Madrid, as well. In fact, it is everything which is superior in those two cities. You sit in charming sidewalk cafés; you dine in the smartest hotels and cosmopolitan clubs. At night you dip into a brilliant after dark gayety, night clubs, the opera, strolling along the superb promenades where Peru and Poiret have achieved the quintessence of feminine charm.

Lima has its Lido, too. A short distance from the city, Barranco sports a superb bathing beach, where you may dine and swim in the Pacific's opalescent surf which rolls in from the South seas. At the smart Jockey club, social Lima is at its best, with dining and dancing in a beautiful clubhouse and betting on the thoroughbreds which feature in every exciting program.

* *

Proud of Its Sophistication.

Lima treasures its modern sophistication as much as its old world charm and romantic history. Historians have called Lima the "city of kings," and with good reason. Pizzaro founded it in the 16th century, and ever since its career has been one of brilliance and luxury.

Broad, palm shaded boulevards, narrow streets with grilled windows and balconies of cedar lead to buildings freighted with the glamor of a glorious past.

Peru has no peer in pure travel adventure. And although it is definitely off the beaten trails of the world, you may travel in trans-Atlantic luxury aboard fast modern ships.

If Peru has whetted your appetite to see more of the fascinating west coast, you may continue on to Chile. In Valparaiso and Santiago you will find two beautiful, modern cities. From Santiago the railroad will take you on a thrilling trip across the Andes to Buenos Aires in the Argentine. A voyage up the east coast will complete your round South America tour.

Stop Salvaging of Sunken Fleet at Scapa Flow

LONDON.—The work of salvaging the vessels of the old German fleet sunk at Scapa Flow in June, 1919, which has been going on for the last seven years, now will be abandoned as unprofitable. Already thirty-two have been raised. Of these six battleships are of 20,000 tons or more, and include the Hindenburg, the largest vessel ever raised from the bottom of the sea. But the salvage company has decided not to attempt to raise a dozen or so more large vessels. Their salvage is not impossible, but as they lie on their sides or bottom up in depths twenty fathoms or more, the heavy cost of raising them would not be met by the price obtained for wrecks as scrap metal.

The last raised was the battleship Prinz Regent Luitpold, which, with the battle cruiser Von der Tann, now lies bottom up on the shore near the old naval depot on the Island of Hoy, in the Orkneys, where the remains of the German mine laying cruiser Bremse, salvaged in 1929, still is being demolished. The battle cruisers Moltke and Seydlitz and the battleship Kaiser were among the others salvaged.

Some $2,250,000 has been spent on the work of salvaging, with an average pay bill of $2,500 weekly. The margin of profit is small. Now that the actual work has ceased, the employés are gradually being paid off.

East Africans Up in Arms Against Locust Invasion

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony.—(AP)—A reward worth $4,800 is being offered for a method to kill off the second generation of locusts which thus far this year have done $1,500,000 damage in Kenya colony.

Squads of the king's African Rifles have gone into Masai territory to warn of the advance of the insect armies.

Other scouts are in the northern areas of the colony, where settlers and natives are threatened with complete ruin.

Virtues May Remain Unsung

COLOMBO.—(AP)—Two crimeless villages have been discovered in Ceylon by the Prevention of Crime association. Their names are Kadugannapahalawalatara and Urugodamivanapalana, which may explain why their virtues have been unspoken hitherto.

Prussia Reclaims Land.

DANZIG.—(AP)—Germans in East Prussia have taken a leaf from Holland's book and at the estuary of the Nogat, where 4,000 acres were under water, constructed dams and drains which dried the entire tract of arable land.

Baron to Build a Great Winter Resort in Egypt

He Thinks Monte Carlo Is Too Old Fashioned for This Modern World.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS.—Monte Carlo is old fashioned. Who wants to lose money in a setting that dates back to 1880? The snobs and gamblers of 1935 will migrate to Heliopolis—if Baron Jean Empain of Brussels realizes the ambitious dream he is dreaming just now.

North Africa being the fashionable winter resort for the ultra-chic, now that the Riviera is being decreed "so common," Baron Jean Empain, 30 year old heir to the biggest Belgian fortune, feels Egypt ought to come in for her own. A provident father, the first Baron Empain, handed down to young Jean the ownership of a palatial hotel close to Cairo. The hotel is built in a modern pseudo-Arab style, has cost millions, and nets the young baron an annual income of millions. Around "Helipolis Palace" has grown up an entire Cairo suburb of smart bungalows, restaurants, villas, and shops. A few miles beyond Heliopolis begins the desert.

Plan to Aid "Zip."

Now, peeping out of one's Heliopolis hotel window at the Pyramids in the close neighborhood, may seem fun for a day or two, thinks young Baron Empain. But if visitors are made to stay and spend more than ordinary sums, at the Empain hotel, they must get their money's worth of entertainment. Egyptian veil dancers, desert sheiks, Pharaoh tombs, and camel rides are all right. But to put some "zip" into that entire Heliopolis desert winter cure business, Baron Empain seems to think there ought to be some gambling.

Heliopolis Palace was built some fifteen years ago and knocks your breath out as you enter it, nothing but marble, carved wood, semi-precious stones, oriental rugs, palm-tree niches, Egyptian statues, and liveried valets, every one a sheik à la Valentino.

In that gorgeous setting on which the Sphynx squints from afar, the melodrama of Monte Carlo will be reënacted in the near future, if young Baron Empain has his way. There will be baccara and roulette tables underneath the crystal chandeliers, and the ladies and gigolos of the demi-monde will mingle with cosmopolitan society. Ways to spend money at Heliopolis in the desert will be plenty. And if one is broke, he only has to walk a few miles into the desert and get himself eaten alive by a willing lion or buried by an opportune sandstorm, rather than do the sensational leap from Monte Carlo's bridge which has become such a bore to Monaco newspaper readers.

Enthusiastic Gambler.

Baron Empain wouldn't act like those Monte Carlo puritans who manage a gaming casino, but never do any gambling themselves and think their visitors are fools. Baron Empain is said to be an enthusiastic gambler himself. He is also a sports enthusiast. His enthusiasms will benefit Heliopolis. If recent newspaper statements are correct, the baron has bought a quantity of thoroughbreds in Belgium and France and will ship them to Helipolis to open the grandest race course on the sands of the desert. Dozens of pretty women in Brussels these days are hoping they will be shipped to Heliopolis like the thoroughbreds, to become part of the "snootiest" winter resort of the future.

There is but one fly in Baron Empain's ointment; English prudery. Heliopolis being under British "protection" like all Egypt, the British government may put its foot down when it comes to turning a Cairo suburb into a 1935 Monte Carlo. The British government can't keep its citizens from going broke in Monaco, quasi-French territory. But it may veto their wasting their money in quasi-British territory, at Heliopolis.

Accompanied by a staff of active young gentleman-secretaries, Baron Empain will nevertheless depart from Brussels in the near future, and try and talk Egyptian pashas and British officials in Cairo into acquiescence. The baron is a super-salesman when it comes to realizing a pet idea. Though he did not help his father make the huge fortune he now owns, he has done a great deal to expand it. People here who ought to know, believe that young Empain will win out with his Heliopolis entertainment plans.

10,000 Ton Liner Launched in East

NEWPORT, NEWS, Va., Jan. 9.—With several thousand guests and employés of the shipyard cheering and waving flags, the new steamer Saint John, built at a cost of $3,500,000 for the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., was launched here this morning.

As the 10,000 ton liner started on its journey down the ways Mrs. Robert G. Stone cracked on the bow a bottle of water from the Reversible Falls at St. John, N. B. Mrs. Austin was escorted to her place on the launching platform by Capt. Eugene E. O'Donnell, president of the steamship line, and officials of the shipyard. Also on the platform were guests from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Washington.

Arabia Finds Old Quarry.

AMMAN, Arabia.—(AP)—A meleke stone quarry, last worked shortly after the Persian invasion of Arabia 1,400 years ago, has been discovered near here. King Solomon's quarries under the old city of Jerusalem produced meleke stone, supposedly for his temple.

Vienna Trolleys Steady.

VIENNA.—(AP)—No less than 122 employés of the Vienna street car lines have held their jobs since 1906 and are celebrating a quarter century's service through years in which dynasties were derailed but in which the trolleys kept on the tracks.

White Sulphur Fine Half Way Stopping Place

Night's Trip from Chicago Offers Healthful Rest and Enjoyable Holiday.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va.—"Where shall we go for a short rest and recuperative holiday?" is easily answered for northerners when Palm Beach and the far south resorts are to far away or for other reasons impracticable. Over night from Chicago on through compartment cars is the Greenbrier at White Sulphur Springs, and here two or three weeks may be passed with pleasure and benefit, even in winter.

Extensively rebuilt and refurnished since last year in early American style, this hotel is a luxurious country home, with sunny suites and lounges and a sun terrace, with golf and horseback riding for outdoor recreation. Perhaps its greatest attraction at this season is its famous bath department, with the best that America has to offer of hydrotherapeutic equipment and care from skilled attendants. After a complete three weeks "cure" of special baths, massage, and rest one returns home with increased resistance and refreshed nerves and body.

Comfort for the Ailing.

Beside an expert medical director, the personnel of the Greenbrier medical department consists of a chemist, X-ray laboratory technician, and trained nurses. Special treatment is possible in all forms of electrotherapy and diathermy and there is an inhalation room with modern pressure vaporizers. Laboratories are equipped to make the ordinary clinical tests, pathological and bacterial examinations and chemical analysis of the blood and tissues.

The bath house has medical baths comparable to those of the health resorts of Europe and these are prescribed according to individual indications. Local paraffine wax baths are administered and the so-called "foam baths," or bubbling baths, valuable among other things for reducing, have recently been introduced from England. Various applications for the administration of heat are employed, such as electrical cabinets, hot air and steam rooms, electric blankets, packs, and local mud packs. There is a newly built Turkish bath and massage is given by trained Swedish masseurs when indicated. Of treatment in general, there are few disease states that will not be benefited by a carefully planned health régime here for a few weeks.

Movies and Concerts.

Motion pictures are given nightly in the auditorium and there are daily organ concerts. Dinner dances are given in the terrace dining room, where there is music and an excellent dance floor. There are also a beautiful mosaic tiled indoor swimming pool, an archery room, and a miniature motion picture theater with musical accompaniment seating forty, in which visitors with motion picture cameras may show their own films.

Cabaret and Charity Dances Are Planned in St. Petersburg

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The first of the three groups of United States coast guard destroyers coming to St. Petersburg for long and short range target practice will leave New London, Conn., Jan. 11. Each of the groups is comprised of five ships. The New London squadron will be followed here in February by the Brooklyn group, and the third will arrive in March.

Many winter visitors attended the annual reception of the St. Petersburg Woman's club at its beautiful home on Snell isle and the annual luncheon which followed it.

Plans for the milk fund carbaret ball of the Junior league were announced this week. This affair is to be held at the Coliseum academy Feb. 19.

* *

Greek Meets Greek.

Greek letter women among the city's visitors attended a tea at the Hotel Huntington given by the Pan Hellenic association of St. Petersburg.

The anuual circuit exhibition of the Florida Federation of Art is the center of interest just now at the St. Petersburg Art club.

Another event attended by the winter social colony was the colorful cabaret ball at the Yacht club given for members and their guests. Plans for the annual valentine party are under way.

This city will be represented at the meeting of the League of Nations association at St. Petersburg Jan. 13 to 16 by Mrs. Wendell P. Slayton, president of the St. Petersburg Civic association and vice president of section A of the Florida Federation of Women's clubs.

Charity Ball Jan. 22.

Patronesses for the anuual charity ball for the benefit of the American Legion Hospital for Crippled Children were announced by Mrs. Will Payne of Philadelphia, general chairman. The ball will take place at the Hotel Vinoy Park Jan. 22.

Many of the country's fastest racers were entered in the opening events of the Florida Outboard Motor association schedule, held off the recreation pier. Sixty-eight races have been arranged by the state association, many of them here and at Clearwater.

The concert tea at the Hotel Soreno Friday afternoon was one of the smartest affairs of the week, being attended by many of the city's winter colony. The second dinner dance of the season tonight also attracted many of the socially active. More than a hundred of the guests of former years have arrived for the season.

* *

Chicagoans in the South.

Mrs. and Mrs. Edwin F. Mack of Chicago will arrive Sunday to join their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Whitman, at the Soreno for the balance of the winter.

Mrs. John Sherwin of Highland Park is at the Soreno for her usual all season visit.

Chicagoans expected this week at the Soreno are Mr. and Mrs. John E. Bastien and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Glessner.

John Buehler of Peoria, whose winter home is in St. Petersburg, entertained a party of four at dinner at the Soreno Thursday.

Others arriving from Chicago recently were Mr. and Mrs. Mark Beeman, Miss Esther Blakeman, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Browne, F. E. Cashel, Mrs. Fannie Chace, C. F. Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. J. Chill, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Eidamiller, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Foster, H. T. Greene, Jack Greene, A. E. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Alvard E. F. Johnson, John L. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Melville, and Mrs. Harriett M. Wood.

Treasure Sunk by Nelson Is Sought Off Nile's Delta

MALTA.—(AP)—Gold pieces worth $3,000,000 and sacred utensils of inestimable value from St. John's church in Valletta, the premier church of the Knights of Malta, are to be salvaged from the wreckage of the French flagship, L'Orient, sunk by Nelson in the battle of the Nile in 1798.

The treasure was taken by the French when they captured Malta.

The salvaging attempt is to be made by Commander Claude L. A. Wollard, retired, on behalf of the Rev. Spencer A. Wollard, whose grandfather was a midshipman in the battle.

The Rev. Mr. Wollard, now nearly 90, has full records of the action and details of the treasure.

WINTER IS SUMMER IN GALVESTON

. . . . . . AND LIVING COSTS ARE LOW

Folks actually grow young on Treasure Isle. No one stays indoors. A gracious sun shines all day long. The air is warm, never hot, never cold—always delightfully invigorating. Salt breezes from the Gulf blow strength to all who come.

A winter in Galveston is like a trip abroad. It is the Mediterranean of America. One sees sailorfolk from every land, the verdure of the tropics, and glimpses of Spain. Yet, here is the old South with its quaint homes and shuttered windows. Galveston is different! All America has not a place with such distinctive charm.

You catch the romance of the sea. The waterfront teems with adventure. Great ships bring cargoes from afar. Nowhere are watersports more enjoyable . . . sailboating, fishing, hunting.

Come. Escape cold weather. Live economically in a new hotel or apartment beside the Gulf. There's a treasure of fun and good feeling for you on TREASURE ISLE. And the cost for a week, or a month, or the winter is low indeed.

Nassau Cruise Recalls Days of High Piracy

Hotel Now Stands Where the Evil Blackbeard Watered His Ships.

AMONG the "Treasure Islands" of the Bahamas lies Nassau, often called Britain's "Isle of June" because of the delightful climate that prevails the year round. In the historic year 1492 when Christoper Columbus landed in the Bahamas he had journeyed in a sailing vessel for 35 days. Today these isles of perpetual June may be reached in a few days by palatial steamers from many ports, or by air from any part of Canada or the United States.

Nassau, because of its proximity to the coast line of the United States, being only 200 miles from Miami, Fla., is one of the most readily accessible vacation lands to residents of the United States.

Nassau, the capital of the Bahama islands, the fame of which as a winter resort attracts thousands of visitors every year, combines in a rare degree romantic and historic interest and old world charm with subtropical beauty and an incomparable winter climate. Situated on the island of New Providence, for two and a half centuries Nassau has been the seat of government of the ancient British colony of the Bahamas.

On the site where now stands the palatial New Colonial hotel, overlooking the entrance to the harbor, stood old Fort Nassau, where Blackbeard, the notorious pirate, watered his ships from his famous well, and the last of the pirates who had held full sway for so many years, surrendered to Gov. Woodes Rogers and received the royal pardon in 1718. Eight of the pirates who were unrepentant were gibbeted there and then.

Held by American Navy.

The stones of old Fort Montagu, which gives its name to the stately hotel at the other end of the harbor, are soaked in the memory of valorous deeds in many an exciting action against the Spaniards, and notably the dramatic final ousting of the invaders by the Carolina loyalist Deveaux and his gallant corps of Eleutherans. Here, too, the American navy made its first landing during the revolutionary war and took temporary possession of the town, which they held for a few hours, carrying away the governor.

Nassau grows more popular with the passing years, as it has been provided with all the amenities demanded by modern holiday makers and the hotel managements seek to gratify every whim and desire of the tourist in the line of accommodation, recreation, and sport, so that a holiday in Nassau may be a perpetual round of pleasure and delight.

Sea bathing on one of the coral sand beaches makes perhaps the strongest appeal, for the translucent and buoyant waters of the Bahamas have no rival. With a temperature varying but little throughout the year, the water is never uncomfortably cold, but always invigorating. Many delightful hours may be spent drowsing on a beautiful coral beach.

Golf on the seaside links of the Bahamas Country club, three miles west of Nassau, is a novel experience to many, for after a round on the 18 hole course, where the Bahamas championship is contested annually by many players of note, one may take a dip in the sea, sun bathe on the beach, or lounge on the verandas of the clubhouse and enjoy the fresh ocean breezes.

Enjoyable Diversions.

Tennis attracts numerous players daily and the courts are the scene of various exceedingly interesting tournaments throughout the entire season.

Sailing and yacht racing provide diversion of another kind. The Royal Nassau Sailing club, of which his majesty the king is patron, holds an annual regatta in which interest centers around the races for the challenge cups presented by his majesty, the Royal Yacht squadron, and the New York Yacht club.

Fishing is a favorite pastime. King fish, amber jack, grouper, and many varieties of small fish abound, while more thrilling sport is to be had with tarpon and bonefish at some of the islands within a few hours' cruising distance.

Many of the adjacent islands are delightful objectives for short cruises and provide a veritable haven for those seeking a quiet retreat from the turmoil of city life, while a day's leisurely sail through the beautiful limpid waters of the Exuma cays has an indescribable charm and tranquillity which it would not be easy to find elsewhere in the south. One of the first to experience the delights of cruising in the Bahamas was Ponce de Leon, who in 1512 sailed through the islands in his quest for Bimini with its legendary fountain of youth.

Nameless Deputy Dares Vote "No" in Fascist Rome

ROME.—(AP)—There is an opposition party of one in Italy's chamber of deputies, but no one knows who he is.

The chamber is not supposed to have a minority party. The members were carefully chosen by the Fascist grand council and are supposed to be dyed-in-the-wool Fascists.

But every time there is a secret vote the result reads: favorevole [for], 382; contrario [against], 1.

If the vote it not secret the opposition party disappears.
